STABLE PRICES, GREATER BUYING POWER NEEDED, ROOSEVELT SAYS

'That Is Philosophy of 1936 America,' He Declares at Banquet of National Democratic Clubs in New York.

DEFENDS COST OF GOVERNMENT

Higher Wages Mean Fewer Unemployed and Lower Taxes He Asserts—Tammany Leaders Among Guests.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Greater purchasing power with a "reasonably stable and constant price level" was emphasized tonight by President Roosevelt as his economic, social and political philosophy and "The Philosophy of 1936 America."

"Higher wages for workers, more income for farmers, mean more goods produced, more and better food eaten, fewer employed and lower taxes," he said in an address at the Thomas Jefferson banquet of the National Democratic Club here.

Seated with the state leaders and his Old Tammany Hall opposition, Mr. Roosevelt called for the re-election of Gov. Lehman.

Farley at His Right.

Postmaster General Farley, fresh from the meeting today at Philadelphia which completed formal arrangements for the national convention, sat at the right of Mr. Roosevelt. Gov. Lehman, the heads of Tammany Hall and Gov. Curley of Massachusetts and Gov. Earle of Pennsylvania were present. Ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith and James J. Walker, former Mayor of New York, were absent.

And Mr. Roosevelt threw in some political quips, remarking with a smile in his address that "every time I come to New York I look for the grass which was to grow in the city streets." This referred to the prophecy made by Herbert Hoover in the 1932 campaign. This remark came in connection with an observation on the increase in the national income.

Throughout the course of the dinner in the flag-draped banquet hall, Mr. Roosevelt was constantly turning from his food to shake hands and exchange greetings with various of the distinguished group of New York Democracy calling by to slap him on the shoulder and say "Hello."

Text of Speech.

The text of his speech follows:

It is a pleasure to be welcomed this way to my home state of New York. It has loyally supported those progressive policies of government in the making of which so many of us have had a part. New York State has an unbroken record of almost a generation of liberal government, each succeeding administration of State affairs building for the future upon the best which the past has given us.

I want to take this occasion to compliment the State on its good fortune in the loyal, competent and unselfish service of its present Governor, Herbert Lehman.

He has continued to extend and strengthen the humane laws for which this State has been noted. History repeats itself. He has met the same type of opposition today which some of us as youngsters met in the State legislature 25 years ago. We won then and we are winning today.

As a New Yorker I am confident that a vast majority of our citizens this autumn as in the past will invite Gov. Lehman to continue his splendid work for at least two more years.

Sectional Spirit.

America a century ago was regarded as an economic unity. But as time went on the country was cut up bit by bit into segments. We heard about the problems of particular localities, the problems of particular groups. More and more people put on blinders; they could see only their own individual interests or the single community in which their business was located.

It is only in these comparatively recent days that we have been turning back to the broader vision of the Founding Fathers.

The cities of the Nation and the countrysides near them have come to realize each other's ex-

Italian Forces Find Advance On Addis Ababa From Dessye "Just a Big Military Picnic"

Laborers Making Road Fit for Passage of Army—Invaders Ready for Battle but News From Front Indicates No Opposition.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

WITH THE NORTHERN ARMY BELOW DESSYE, BY MILITARY AIRPLANE TO ASMARA, April 25.—There is a lessening in the necessity for caution by the Italian military censorship—as strict as any in the history of warfare—because of the recent Ethiopian defeats, and this correspondent therefore is permitted today to tell the story of the true situation.

This correspondent is with the Italian first army corps of 30,000 far down the 150-mile road to Emperor Haile Selassie's capital.

All of Northern Ethiopia is completely subjugated. Many influential chieftains are submitting daily in the principal northern cities, apparently eager to climb aboard the Italian bandwagon which is due to roll into Addis Ababa within two weeks.

Not a shot was fired in defense of Dessye which was for a long time the field headquarters of the Emperor, and it was learned Asfa Wosan, eldest son of the Emperor, almost failed to leave with the garrison of about 1000 men.

It is thouge he will accept offers to become a puppet Prince when the time is ripe, probably when the Italians reach the capital.

The Reports and the Facts.

The most difficult thing to understand in this have been the fragmentary radio bulletins and stories from Addis Ababa recounting great victories by the Ethiopians.

When the Ethiopians said they had encircled Makale a few months ago, I was in the field with Marshal Badoglio on the spot where, if the Ethiopian reports were true, we were 30 miles inside their lines.

Every Italian effort now is being concentrated on the capture of Addis Ababa. Twenty thousand laborers and every soldier not needed in the lines have been thrown into the enormous task of turning the two-foot wide mule trail from Amba Alagi, 150 miles north of Dessye, into a stone road capable of holding up under the pounding of thousands of military trucks. This has been done in a little more than two weeks. Trucks are concentrated here, leaving with daily supplies of ammunition for the troops ahead.

Gigantic Military Picnic.

In a few days, a great automobile caravan carrying thousands of men will start for Addis Abada from Dessye over the imperial highway now undergoinng repair. The high command will go with it.

Instead of fighting up ahead with Italian reverses as radio reports from Addis Ababa say, all is peaceful and quiet in the whole Italian army.

The last stretch in the march of this great army has turned into a gigantic military picnic.

Preparations are complete for a battle if Emperor Haile Selassie can pull together another army, but there are no signs of such an event here.

It is reported that the Emperor actually is in a monastery praying for guidance.

Supplies are piled high at Dessye, which was sacked by natives before the Italians entered. The troops are enjoying the green produce and quantities of meat. A calf costs about four American dollars.

The natives appear friendly, and are glad that the invaders have brought them some prosperity through their purchases.

3 POLICEMEN SEE HOLDUP, CHASE NEGRO AND CATCH HIM

Victim Identifies Prisoner as One Who Hit Him and Took His Watch.

Three probationary patrolmen, riding in a police car at 8:20 o'clock last night, saw a Negro hit a man in the face and take his watch in front of 935 North Vandeventer avenue. As he started to run away, the driver of the police car swung around and went in pursuit.

The policemen, all attached to the gambling squad, captured the man on Enright avenue just west of Vandeventer avenue. He gave his name as Marvin Booker, 22 years old, 4047 Enright avenue.

The robbery victim, James McSheahy, 5964 Highland avenue, was treated at City Hospital for a deep laceration, then went to Police Headquarters where he identified Booker as the man who robbed him. Booker was sentenced to 60 days in the workhouse for larceny in 1933.

POLICE SHOOT WOMAN WHEN MOTORIST FLEES

Department Store Buyer Thought New York Detectives Were Robbers.

By the Associated Press.

FLUSHING, N. Y., April 25. — Mrs. Margaret Wiggens, 32 years old, wife of a Brooklyn department store buyer, was in a critical condition tonight as the result of a bullet wound suffered early today when her husband mistook two Nassau County detectives for holdup men and didn't stop his automobile at their command.

An operation was performed, but the bullet, which penetrated the brain, was not removed. Physicians hold little hope for recovery.

District Attorney Martin W. Littleton termed the shooting a "most unfortunate accident," and promised an investigation of the conflicting stories told by the detectives and the husband, Charles Wiggens.

The detectives, Joseph Murray and Matthew Simmons, said they identified themselves as officers when they pulled alongside Wiggens' car, which was parked on the side of the highway waiting for some friends.

Wiggens sped away, fearing the men were robbers. The detectives gave chase.

Mrs. Wiggens, who was on the back seat with Wiggens' sister-in-law, Mrs. William Pollen, was shot as the officers fired at the fleeing car.

AGE PENSIONS FOR VETERANS URGED BY EX-SOLDIERS' PAPER

Publication Says It Speaks for All; Legion Officers Repudiate Suggestion.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25. — The National Tribune, a publication for war veterans, today urged pensions for World War veterans "disabled because of age or other infirmities." "The fight for World War pensions is on," the paper declared.

Published independently by a company headed by Col. Rice W. Means, the National Tribune said in a first-page editorial that "pensions are inevitable." It added it did not pretend to speak for any organization of World War veterans, but did voice "the views of the great rank and file of organized and unorganized."

American Legion officers said the publication did not represent that organization. They repeated that the Legion had never taken a stand for pensions and could not ask for pension legislation unless instructed to do so by the national convention.

SEC ALLEGES BROKERAGE FIRM RIGGED MARKET

Cites White, Weld & Co., New York Member of Three Exchanges, for Hearing.

CHARGES DENIED BY COMPANY

It Suggests This Is Reopening of Inquiry Begun Six Months Ago by Commission.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The Securities and Exchange Commission today served a show cause order on the international investment banking and brokerage house of White, Weld & Co., accusing it of manipulating the price of a listed stock, that of the A. O. Smith Corporation. The firm denied the charges.

This is the first time since it began administration of the securities law that the commission has acted against so prominent a firm. White, Weld & Co. was formed 40 years ago. In addition to offices in New York, it has offices in Boston and London, as well as resident representatives in Paris, Amsterdam and several South American cities.

The firm holds membership in the New York Stock Exchange, the New York Curb Exchange and the Board of Trade of the City of Chicago. The commission's order directs the partners to show cause why they should not be suspended for 12 months or expelled from the three exchanges.

A public hearing was set for June 1 at 10 a. m. in Washington with Ernest Angell as trial judge.

SEC Charge.

The order stated that the commission had reason to believe that from Jan. 1, 1935, to last Oct. 17, partners in White, Weld & Co., and Harold Benjamin Clark and Faris R. Russell, individually, created a false and misleading appearance of activity in the common stock of the A. O. Smith Corporation. The order states the partners used the mails, divers means and instrumentalities of interstate commerce and the facilities of the New York Curb Exchange "to enter divers orders for the purchase of such security with the knowledge that an order or orders of substantially the same size at substantially the same time and at substantially the same price for the sale of such security had been or would be entered by or for the same or different parties" contrary to the provisions of the Security and Exchange Act.

Company's Reply.

In its denial of the charges White, Weld & Co. says :

"We assume that this public hearing will be a reopening of the investigation which was commenced by the commission over six months ago." In this inquiry it says the firm co-operated to the fullest extent, and adds:

"This firm did not in any sense engage in any public distribution of or selling campaign in this stock, that of the A. O. Smith Corporation. In fact, far from endeavoring to distribute any of the already substantial holdings of the partners, the firm, together with the partners and their families, added to their holdings a total of 6400 shares. . . . . And this amount is today still held intact.

"Finally, any allegation of implication that we have engaged in any manipulative or rigging practices has no justification in fact."

Milwaukee Corporation.

The stock of the A. O. Smith Corporation Co. is now listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Prior to its transfer several months ago it had been traded on the New York Curb Exchange. The Smith company produces a variety of products, including automobile frames, electrically welded line pipe and equipment for the oil industry. The company has about 498,000 shares of stock outstanding. Its general office is in Milwaukee.

The partners of White, Weld & Co. named in the commission's complaint are: Harold T. White, Francis M. Weld, Faris R. Russell, Harold Benjamin Clark, W. J. K. Vanston, William A. Barron Jr., J. Preston Rice, Philip Gossler Jr., Jean E. V. Cattier, Nathaniel S. Howe, Alexander M. White Jr., Gilbert G. Brown, and Robert E. McConnell.

24 PCT. RISE IN INCOME HERE, STATE REPORTS

Gain in Taxable Total in St. Louis and in Number of Taxpayers.

Taxable income reported by St. Louisans subject to personal State income tax for 1935 was 24.7 per cent greater than for 1934, the number of taxpayers was 9.4 per cent greater, and the tax assessed against them was an increase of 32.2 per cent, according to a report made by Assessor Ralph W. Coale yesterday to Collector William F. Baumann.

Comparable figures for 1935 and 1934 are as follows:

Taxable returns —	36,601	33,440
Taxable income—	—$67,690,008	$54,266,774
Amount of tax — —	1,425,909	1,078,493

The Assessor sent individual bills for the taxes to the Collector, who will mail out statements to the taxpayers. The tax is payable after May 1 and becomes delinquent if not paid by June 1. A penalty of 1 per cent a month accrues after the tax becomes delinquent. All the revenue from the State income tax goes to the State Treasury.

The figures for 1935 will be increased somewhat by supplementary returns not yet tabulated. In the foregoing table the figures for 1934 are those compiled before supplementary returns were tabulated. Supplementary returns increased the number of taxpayers for 1934 to 35,303 and the amount of taxable income to $60,250,429.

As the State income tax law was the same for 1935 as for 1934, the figures for last year reflect actual gains in aggregate income and in the number of persons with income enough to be subject to the law. penalty ended March 15. The tax is payable in a lump sum, and not in quarterly installments as is permitted for the Federal income tax. The tax rate is 1 to 4 per cent, according to size of taxable income.

The St. Louis income tax figures do not include the returns of persons engaged in business or employed in St. Louis but residing in St. Louis County or other communities. Their returns are filed in the counties in which they reside.

Corporation income tax returns for 1935 have not yet been tabulated by the Assessor. For the year 1934 taxable returns were filed by 1924 St. Louis corporations with taxable income of $32,374,214. The tax assessed on this corporation income was $640,110.

ARAB POLITICAL PARTIES TO CALL STRIKE IN PALESTINE

General Walkout Decided on to Enforce Demands; Two Jewish Houses Burned.

JERUSALEM, April 25.—(Palcor Agency)—The Arab political parties of Palestine decided late tonight to institute a general strike which will be carried on until the Palestine government grants their three principal demands.

These demands are: Stoppage of Jewish immigration, a bar on the sale of land to Jews, and the establishment of a national government.

Two Jewish houses in the old city of Jerusalem were set on fire tonight.

U. S. AND CANADA IN ARGUMENT OVER PROHIBITION LIQUOR

Move to Bar Firms That Did Not Pay Duty Causes Protest.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Conferences have been initiated secretly here, designed to settle troubles arising from a threat to bar shipments of liquor into this country by four Canadian firms unless they pay taxes on whisky sent across the border during prohibition.

The effect such action would have upon the recently concluded trade agreement between the United States and Canada has been brought up in the discussions.

The quiet negotiations were begun on Monday after the Canadian government had protested against a bill pending in the House to bar imports from liquor firms against which tax claims have been filed unless those firms agree to submit the tax claims to the courts.

Treasury and Justice Department officials and representatives of the Canadian liquor firms are engaged in the discussions and hope was expressed today that a compromise might be reached early next week. The names of the firms and the amounts involved were not made public.

NEW YORK FIRE ALARMS RING IN DAYLIGHT SAVING

Signals Give Station House Clock Setters Cue When to Advance Hands One Hour.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 26. — New York City fire alarms rang in daylight saving time early this morning.

Apparently feeling that time changes were not to be entrusted solely to the memories of station house clock-setters, the department yesterday sent out an official order which read in part:

"Department clocks shall be advanced one hour on April 26, 1936. At 1:59 a. m., April 26, 1936, one round of test signals will be transmitted on the primary alarm circuits, as a preliminary warning, followed by one round on the secondary alarm circuits. Upon receipt of the first tap on the secondary alarm circuits, clocks shall be advanced exactly one hour, from 2 a. m. to 3 a. m."

ITALIAN SENATOR SAYS CLOSED SUEZ CANAL WOULD MEAN WAR

Replies in Rome Newspaper to Those He Calls British Ultra Sanctionists.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 25.—Senator Roberto Forges Davanzati, in answer to demands in some British quarters that the Suez Canal be closed to Italian ships, declared today that "acts of war will be answered by acts of war without limitation."

Davanzati wrote his reply to those he called "Ultra Sanctionists" in the newspaper La Tribuna.

"Lord Lytton, Lord Cecil and all their peers are invited to consider the situation seriously," he said, "not only in the Mediterranean but also in the Alps and Africa itself where within a few weeks we shall have a huge military force which has annihilated Ethiopian resistance.

"This force could operate in all necessary directions."

GOV. PARK AGAIN REFUSES PLEA FOR RELIEF SESSION

Tells St. Louis Social Service Commission Legislature Opposes Higher Taxes Needed.

Gov. Park at Jefferson City last night told a representative of the Social Service Commission of the St. Louis Church Federation he thought it would be futile to call a special session of the Legislature to provide additional funds for relief because members of the Legislature were opposed to the increased taxes the Governor said would be necessary.

Earlier in the day Mayor Dickmann had told reporters at the City Hall that he and other city officials who had been studying the relief crisis hoped soon to arrive at "a complete and satisfactory solution of the whole problem." The Mayor would give no indication of what plans were under consideration.

The latest of many requests that the Governor call a special session of the Legislature was made in the name of the Social Service Commission of the Church Federation by the Rev. Ralph Abele, pastor of Holy Ghost Evangelical Church. In repeating his refusal, the Governor told the Rev. Mr. Abele he thought St. Louis could handle its own relief problem until the Legislature meets again in regular session next January.

Likely to Go Before Aldermen.

There has been some talk at City Hall of new revenue measures which might be enacted to raise relief funds, and a new relief bond issue. Funds from the present bond issue, being expended at the rate of $147,000 a month, would last until next February if that rate of expenditure were to be continued.

Undoubtedly the problem will be placed before the Board of Aldermen at its meeting Tuesday. A delegation from the American Workers' Union, an organization of the unemployed, which frequently has taken its relief demands to City Hall, will attend the meeting to press its demand that the city appropriate, from the present bond issue fund, $500,000 for relief in each of the next two months.

Mayor Making Check.

The Mayor, in his statement, said that since it became apparent that there would be no special session of the State Legislature to appropriate additional money for relief, he and other city officials had been "making a check of the situation to devise some ways and means of taking care of our needy persons, employables as well as unemployables."

The most urgent immediate problem is the plight of the 14,400 men, women, and children who were dropped from the relief rolls last week because they were members of families in which there was some person capable of working, even though unemployed.

Then there are the 9500 who were dropped earlier in the month because they were members of families which had some source of in-

HARD FIGHT BY ITALIANS IN ADVANCE IN THE SOUTH

Gen. Graziana Scores "Tactical Success" With Bayonets, Bombs and Machine Guns and Surrounds Sasah Baneh.

40 FASCIST PLANES USED IN ATTACK

Ethiopian Warriors, Demoralized, Forced to Swing Out in Unsuccessful Attempt to Check Invading Troops.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 26.—Italian war correspondents reported today that Fascist airplanes, dropping tons of bombs on Ethiopian defense works at Sasa Baneh and other points on the southeastern front, had caused the defending forces to swing out in desperate but unsuccessful attempts to check the Italian advance.

Dispatches from the war zone said Gen. Rudolfo Graziani's soldiers had achieved a "tactical success." The Ethiopian warriors were reported to have been demoralized by the airplane bombs and the bayonets of Gen. Verne's column, pressing in toward Daggah Bur, long an objective of the Southern Italian army.

The Italian soldiers, the dispatches stated, were moving forward from an advanced position at Dagaha Modo, and the Ethiopians fled before them, leaving the way open for Graziani's men to surround Sasa Baneh.

Story of the Fight.

The Italian writers declared Ethiopian chieftains forced the attack, rather than be "sepulchred" at Sasa Baneh by the Italian air attacks. As a result, Gen. Verne's column was forced to deploy to defend itself against repeated onslaughts which started at 6 a. m. yesterday, the press reports asserted.

Verne's Libyans, with bayonets fixed, countercharged at noon yesterday, the accounts said, and by that time the Ethiopians were exhausted by their heart-breaking charges against the Italian machine guns and the harrying airplanes. They were repored to have broken and fled.

In the meantime, these dispatches continued, a column under Gen. Frusci marched up the Fafan river valley directly toward Sasa Baneh, beating back the "admirably conducted" Ethiopian resistance in the cave-pitted, crag-studded territory.

40 Planes Meet in Fight.

The latest reports from the battle front indicated the Ethiopian fortifications at Homanlei, on the road to Sasa Baueh, were surrounded and destroyed by the advancing Italians.

On the right flank, Gen. Agostini's militiamen, carabiniers and dubats (native Somali troops) attacked and took Gunugadu aided by airplanes, scattering the Ethiopians after they had put up a determined resistance, the accounts stated.

Forty Fascists planes took part in the fighting in the southeast and the Ethiopians were reported in flight along the whole line of conflict, the dispatches said.

Lake Tana Area Occupied.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander of the Italian armies in Ethiopia, reported yesterday the complete occupation of the Lake Tana region.

A column of the northern army occupied Bahar Dar Ghiorgis at the extreme southern part of Lake Tana and at the source of the Blue Nile. Lake Tana is the center of the British zone of influence in Ethiopia.

A battle was under way along the defensive lines of Sasa Baneh, on the southern front, with Gen. Rodolfo Graziani personally in charge of the troops there.

No official news was forthcoming on the progress of a column toward Addis Ababa, but, unofficially, it was reported that a unit of native troops from Eritrea had reached the village of Caiafer on the Uacit river, which forms one of the tributaries of the Nile.

At this point, the white Italians in the column ride or march along a road built 40 years ago by their countrymen under entirely different circumstances.

Back in 1896, Emperor Menelik,

LANDON CONTROL AT STATE G. O. P. MEETING LIKELY

Convention to Open Here Tomorrow—Selection of Delegates-at-Large Chief Business.

HYDE GROUP WANTS NO INSTRUCTIONS

A. L. Shapleigh and Ex-Gov. Caulfield Are Among Those Mentioned for Four Places.

The Republican State convention will go into session tomorrow at Hotel Jefferson, with supporters of the presidential candidacy of Gov. Landon of Kansas apparently in control, and in a position to instruct the delegates-at-large to the Republican national convention, to be chosen tomorrow, to vote for his nomination.

Landon leaders last night indicated such instructions would be given to the four delegates-at-large, although opposition to this course was developing from several influential party leaders.

The extent to which instructions will be imposed, and the personnel of the "Big Four" delegates-at-large, which to a considerable degree depends upon the nature of the instructions, were the chief topics of discussion yesterday and last night by party leaders and convention delegates arriving for preliminary conferences.

Landon already has the support of a majority of the 26 district delegates to the national convention at Cleveland in June, who were chosen in recent conventions in the 13 Missouri Congressional districts. Each district has two delegates. Eight of the districts instructed their delegates for Landon. In three other districts Landon was indorsed. Delegates from two districts, the Tenth and Eleventh, were not instructed.

Opposed to Instruction.

It is known that instructions to the delegates-at-large are not favored by former Gov. Arthur M. Hyde of Trenton, who was Secretary of Agriculture in the Hoover cabinet; Grover M. Dalton of Poplar Bluff, chairman of the Republican State Committee, and former United States Senator Roscoe C. Patterson of Springfield.

All three have been mentioned as delegates-at-large. Hyde and Patterson likely will be eliminated if definite Landon instructions are given to the delegates-at-large.

Landon leaders were claiming a substantial majority of the 1050 delegates to the State convention. It was said the instructions to be offered would direct the delegates-at-large to support Gov. Landon as long as there appeared to be a reasonable chance of his nomination, and until a majority of the Missouri delegation, totaling 30 delegates, voted to change.

The entire delegation can not be bound by action of the State convention, under a ruling by the Republican National Committee. It can bind the delegates at large, but the national convention delegates elected from the districts are governed by the action of their district conventions.

Some of Those Mentioned.

Numerous names have been suggested for the "Big Four" and the four alternates. Further conferences are to be held today on the selections. In former years the slate of delegates-at-large usually has been agreed on well in advance of the convention.

The choices most prominently mentioned by leaders were A. L. Shapleigh of St. Louis and Herman Langworthy of Kansas City. Among others discussed, in addition to Dalton, Patterson and Hyde, were former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of St. Louis, William F. Phares of Maryville, former chairman of the Republican State Committee; Arthur M. Curtis of Springfield, Republican national committeeman, and Mrs. Helen Lang Rogers of Carthage.

Richmond C. Coburn of St. Louis, who has been mentioned as a candidate with the backing of a group of younger Republicans, this afternoon said he was not a candidate for a place on the "Big Four." This move by younger Republicans to assume an active part in the selections had engendered some friction, but was not regarded seriously by party leaders.

The Republican State Committee will meet at Hotel Jefferson tomorrow morning and the convention will open at 11 o'clock with the keynote address by Representative Dewey Short of Galena, the only Republican in the Missouri Congressional delegation.

Other Convention Business.

Aside from the election of the delegates-at-large, the principal business of the convention will be ratification of 13 district presidential electors, one selected in each of the 13 congressional districts, election of two presidential electors-at-large, and adoption of resolutions which in effect will be a preliminary platform. The convention will close tomorrow evening.

Party leaders indicated the resolutions would be brief, and would be limited to a few recommendations to the national convention. The platform for the State campaign will be adopted at the regular candidate and State Committee convention to be held in Jefferson City in September.

A Republican National Committeeman and National Committeewoman for Missouri will be elected by the delegates to the national convention, probably when they convene in Cleveland for the convention. National Committeeman Arthur M. Curtis is assured of reelection, as he has been indorsed by each of the congressional districts.

A lively contest has been in progress over election of a successor to Mrs. Grace Semple Burlingham of St. Louis, National Committeewoman, who is not a candidate for re-election.

The principal contenders are Mrs. John Wyeth of St. Joseph, a member of the State committee; Mrs. M. R. Remley of Liberty, vice-chairman of the State Committee, and Mrs. Gladys Ava Berger of Ava. The latter is the only woman member of the Missouri Legislature. Miss Cleta Smith of St. Louis, secretary of the State Committee, also has been mentioned for the post.

STARHEMBERG'S ARMY TO ENTER MILITIA

Austrian Heimwehr Won't Disband or Disarm, It Is Announced.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, April 25.—An official source declared today that Vice-Chancellor Ernst con Starhemberg's Heimwehr would not be dissolved nor disarmed.

His announcement, in which he indicated a compromise by which the Heimwehr would be accepted into the militia, was made at the conclusion of a secret meeting of 150 picked leaders of Starhemberg's troops.

The Heimwehr is Von Strahemberg's private army, which assisted him into office as Vice-Chancellor of Austria.

At the same time, Catholic quarters threatened to discontinue the demilitarization of Catholic storm troops if the Heimwehr remained armed.

Prince von Starhemberg and Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, who helped organize the Catholic storm troops, are scheduled to go together tomorrow to Horn to be made honorary citizens of that city and to participate in a fatherland front rally.

AAA SENDS $5,372,700 TO COTTON PRODUCERS

Payments Expected to Total $35,000,000; 7000 Checks Being Mailed Daily.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25. — The AAA said today a total of $5,372,700 in price adjustment payments had been mailed to cotton producers in 10 states.

These payments, constituting a subsidy to producers to equal the difference between 12 cents a pound and the average price for cotton on the date of sale are expected to total between $35,000,000 and $45,000,000.

Cully A. Cobb, director of the AAA southern region, said about 7000 checks are being mailed daily and that the peak had not been reached. He predicted most of the payments would be made by June 1.

'WOMAN IN RED' IN DILLINGER CASE ON DEPORTATION TRAIN

Mrs. Anna Sage, of Chicago, Started Back to Her Childhood Home in Rumania.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 25—Mrs. Anna Sage, the "Woman in Red," who led John Dillinger to death in an ambush of Federal men almost two years ago, surrendered to Eugene M. Merriam, immigration inspector, at the La Salle Street Station tonight and was placed aboard a train for deportation to Europe.

Steve Chiolak, 23 years old, Mrs. Sage's son, and his wife, Marie, said they would remain with Mrs. Sage in the coach until the train departed for Jersey City, N. J., soon after midnight.

Mrs. Sage, who is being deported as an undesirable alien, took her seat in the barred coach with seven other aliens held guilty of illegal entry and other offenses against the immigration laws. Another woman, Catherine Goss, 45, of Milwaukee, was deported to Scotland after 30 years' residence in the United States.

Mrs. Sage's coach was one of three to make up a train to take the deportees eastward. The train, with 32 aliens aboard, was scheduled to arrive in Jersey City at 6 A. M. Monday.

Mrs. Sage reiterated that Melvin Purvis, former agent in charge of the Chicago bureau of the Department of Justice, promised that deportation proceedings would be dropped in return for her help in the Dillinger case.

Mrs. Sage said she left her property here to her son.

Now 45 years old and a resident of America since she was 12, Mrs. Sage will be returned to her childhood home, Constanza, Rumania. A half-brother resides there. In Chicago she leaves her second husband, Alexander Sage, railroad employe.

Brockmeyer-Bohle, Inc., St. Louis, was second low with $51,646, and Blauner Construction Co., Chicago, next with $53,600.

HOFFMAN REFUSES TO PUT JOBLESS OUT OF CAPITOL

Tells State Representative That New Jersey Assembly Temporized With Relief Problem.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., April 25.—J. Parnell Thomas, Bergen Republican whose seat in the assembly chamber is one of 60 being occupied by a band of the unemployed demanding relief funds, told Gov. Harold G. Hoffman today he should call the State police to clear the room of the "uninvited squatters."

"If you don't care to exercise your authority in this respect," wired Thomas, "I then suggest you feed the crowd caviar and chocolate eclairs."

Hoffman, who this week scolded the Legislature for "temporizing" with the relief problem for four months and failing to provide funds to carry on State aid, refused to do so. He told Thomas and others of his group who oppose a tax plan for relief purposes that had they exhibited "courage enough to meet the situation," there would have been no demonstration.

Cause of Crisis.

Failure of the Legislature to approve a tax substitute for the Governor's 2 per cent retail sales tax, repealed last October after four months' operation, precipitated the present relief crisis. The State relief treasury became empty nine days ago and since that time the State's 550 municipalities, many of them financially hard pressed, have been forced to carry the load alone.

The ragged band of unemployed, whose numbers fluctuate from 50 to 200, moved into the Assembly chamber at 3:30 p. m. last Tuesday and resolved to stay there until the Legislature voted funds. The lawmakers will return Monday night, but leaders said no revenue bills would be passed then.

The unemploye, called by Thomas a "mob of unoccupation," continued today their burlesque of the Legislature's sessions. During the morning, they rested—tired out, they said, from their four-day and night sessions, broken only by snatches of sleep in the Assemblymen's swivel chairs, or on benches or window sills.

"Just What Legislature Did."

"We have to take some time off," said John Spain, the presiding officer. "We're just doing now what the Legislature always did—nothing."

Their renewed appeal to Hoffman to divert other State funds to relief—a request the Governor said was impossible to grant because the State faces a deficit on June 30. He said he had no authority to create a debt except for purposes of war or to meet invasion or insurrection.

In an effort to meet the Governor's conditions, the unemployed promptly labeled themselves invaders and adopted a resolution to inform the Governor "an insurrection is in progress against the State Legislature for failure to provide relief funds."

DEATHS INCREASE TO FIVE IN FIGHT NEAR HAVANA

Supervisor of Rural Guard Succumbs to Wounds Suffered in Night Attack.

HAVANA, April 25.—The death of Lieut. Ramon Pena today increased the toll of last night's fight in Guanabacoa to five.

A rural guardsman, Patrocinio Andarco, was killed by Pena's assailants when he opened fire on them, after Pena had been wounded. One of the attackers was killed in flight. The bodies of two others were later delivered, by men representing themselves as police, to the home of their sister, Josefa Cuervo Galan.

The man left dead as the assailants ran off was identified as Vicente Gimeno Ferrer, a teacher in an industrial school. Lieut. Pena was supervisor of the rural guard at Guanabacoa, across the bay from Havana.

BILL TO MAKE PARACHUTES COMPULSORY ON AIRLINERS

Congressman Powers Offers Measure; Says Air Commerce Bureau Rejected Proposal.

WASHINGTON, April 25—Parachutes would be required as standard equipment on all passenger-carrying airplanes under a bill introduced in Congress today by Congressman Powers (Rep.) of New Jersey. He said he had tried without success for three years to have the air commerce bureau require commercial planes to carry a parachute for each passenger.

"They have objected on the ground that in most air crashes there is no chance to use parachutes, that present planes are not built for use of chutes and that it would hurt air traffic if passengers had to don chutes as they entered a plane," Powers said.

"My answer is that if the parachutes saved only one life a year, they would be worth while."

Powers said the recent crashes of airliners near Goodwin, Ark., and Uniontown, Pa., which took 25 lives, were examples of the need of providing every possible safeguard.

47 SAILORS QUIT SHIP IN AID OF UNAUTHORIZED STRIKE

Grace Liner Sails From New York for San Francisco, However, With Full Crew.

NEW YORK, April 25.—After 47 of her crew walked off ship in sympathy with the unauthorized strike of union seamen here, the Grace liner Santa Paula sailed at noon today for San Francisco without disorder. Capt. Alf Adler said she had a full crew of 191.

A line spokesman said the walk out men had not been dissatisfied with their own wages were "involved in the fight with the Seamen's Union." The strike conducted by some members of the International Seamen's Union does not have sanction of officers.

The Santa Paula carried 120 passengers.

predecessor of Emperor Haile Selassie, had the Italian prisoners he captured in the Battle of Aduwa put to work along this stretch of road.

Premier Mussolini today declared Italy, despite sanctions which "augment the disorder and misery of the world," would remain "always methodical, tenacious, and indomitable."

He told celebrants at the inauguration of the new town of Aprilia, in the reclaimed Pontine marshes: "New victory will be added to the others which the Italian people have firmly desired and fully merited during these years."

Senator Roberto Forges Davanzati, one of Mussolini's editorial writers, said in La Tribuna that "acts of war will be answered by acts of war without limitation."

"Not only in the Mediterranean but also in the Alps and Africa itself, within a few weeks we shall have a huge military force which has annihilated Ethiopian resistance," he wrote. "This force could operate in all ncessary directions."

Italian Scouting Planes Fly Over Addis Ababa.

ADDIS ABABA, April 25. — Two Italian airplanes, plainly showing their tricolor markings, scouted over Addis Ababa and the capital's airdrome today and it was evident that the pilots were gaining an excellent view of the city.

Severe fighting is believed to be going on between here and Dessye, where Marshal Pietro Badoglio has established the Italian General Headquarters. Red Cross ambulances left the capital today, on the road toward Dessye, to care for the Ethiopian wounded. The group included a British and an Ethiopian ambulance and six trucks.

Emperor Haile Selassie was believed to be commanding the defensive action against the Italians while Crown Prince Asfa Wosan was directing the affairs of government, in the imperial palace.

KAHOKA LAWYER SUSPENDED FOR DIVORCE SCHEME

Supreme Court Bars J. S. Tall From Practicing for 6 Months Because of 'Missouri Reno' Plan.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 25.—Joseph S. Tall, Clark County lawyer who sought to establish in the small town of Kahoka a divorce mill which would "back Reno off the map," was suspended from the practice of law for at least six months today by the State Supreme Court, which found him guilty of "gross misconduct."

The suspension is to remain effective for six months and thereafter until Tall pays the cost of the disbarment proceeding instituted against him by the Advisory Committee to Boyle G. Clark of Columbia, general chairman of the Supreme Court's 38 judicial circuit bar committees.

Tall, who is 66 years old, was elected president of the Clark County Bar Association after disbarment proceedings had been instituted against him. He was attorney for Wilfred Jones, baby broker in the Muench baby hoax, at the recent trial in Kahoka of Jones, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, his wife, Nellie Tipton Muench, and Mrs. Helen Berroyer on criminal conspiracy charges, which ended in a mistrial when one of the jurors said he had been offered $100 to "hang" the jury. Circuit Judge Walter A. Higbee, who presided at the trial, was the Judge before whom Tall took his divorce suits.

Opinion by Judge Gantt.

Judge Ernest S. Gantt wrote the opinion of the Supreme Court in which all other members concurred.

"It is generally held," the Court found, "that the encouragement by attorneys of divorce litigation, by means of advertisements or circulars so worded as to induce divorce proceedings, and the employment of themselves therein, constitutes grounds for disbarment or suspension."

Tall readily admitted, at deposition hearings conducted by Clark's committee, that he had retained a New York agency to place advertisements in "pulp" magazines offering a synopsis of Missouri divorce laws, and his interpretation of them, for $1.

The advertisements read: "A Divorce Mecca. Certain conditions make no length of residence necessary. Recognized Everywhere. Reno Excelled." They were "blind" ads, giving a postoffice box number at Keokuk, Ia., 21 miles east of Kahoka.

Persons from Minnesota, Virginia, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Iowa and New York, the Supreme Court pointed out, had gone to Kahoka to file divorce proceedings, and some of them were in the State of Missouri "only for dinner."

His Interpretation of Law.

Tall's bizarre interpretation of the Missouri divorce law was based on the clause which stated that those seeking a divorce in the courts of this State must have been residents of Missouri for at least a year—"unless the offense or injury complained of was committed within this State, or whilst one or both of the parties resided within this State."

So, concluded Tall, if a husband or wife, residing in another State, committed an offense justifying a divorce, the aggrieved mate might come to Missouri, establish residence here merely by expressing that intention, and obtain a divorce by showing that the offense took place while the injured person was a resident of Missouri. Tall could take depositions in other States, he pointed out, to show that the offense continued while his client was a resident of Missouri.

The Supreme Court's opinion quoted the following laudatory published account of Tall's activities:

"If you are looking for a quick divorce don't worry about a long trip to Mexico, or Reno, Nev., or a trans-Atlantic passage to Paris, France. For we have a coming divorce mill right next door in the little county seat town of Kahoka, Mo. And what's more, you can get married again as soon as the divorce is granted.

Credit to Col. J. S. Tall.

"The credit for discovering these possibilities for a divorce 'Mecca' goes to Col. J. S. Tall, attorney-at-law at Kahoka, county seat of Missouri's most northeasterly county. Col. Tall, like Maitre Carrulier of the Maupassant story, has worked out the obscure law of divorce as if it had been a gold mine, and offers the result of his research to the interested in the form of a synopsis of the Missouri divorce laws."

One section of the synopsis suggested that "it would be almost impossible for a non-resident defendant to ever discover that a divorce suit was pending against them in Missouri." This was an advantage, Tall said, which Missouri, and almost no other State in the union, could offer.

CONDITION OF EGYPT'S KING SHOWS SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT

Fuad, 68, Ill of Intestinal Infection, Calls for Young Crown Prince.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 25. — A slight improvement in the condition of King Fuad, seriously ill with a mouth and throat ailment, was reported by the Foreign Office tonight. Improvement followed a blood transfusion.

The King, 68 years old, who has been in failing health more than two years, was described by his physicians as suffering "necrotic stomatitis and fever." Last night, they said, he experienced an "important" hemorrhage which was stopped by a local anesthetic.

All court functions were cancelled and seven physicians were called into consultation.

In the event of King Faud's death, Crown Prince Farouk, 16 years old and a student in England, King is said to have asked for his son. . The boy probably will come at once by airplane.

NEW SPANISH BOMBING ON EVE OF ELECTION

One Killed, Four Injured in Explosion at Town Hall in Arganda.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, April 25—Disorders on the eve of Spain's second election in two months resulted tonight with the killing of two men. Four others were injured.

The citizens tomorrow will select presidential electors to choose, with parliament, a president to succeed Niceto Alcala Zamora, who resigned.

A bomb exploded in the town hall at Arganda, near Madrid, during a session of the town councillors, killing one councillor and injuring four others, two of them seriously. Police said they thought rightist elements were responsible, and special efforts were taken to prevent any retaliation.

The owner of a Madrid bakery, a member of the conservative Popular Party, was shot and killed. Police said they thought the crime was due to political causes.

An almost solid block of popular front (leftists) electors is expected to be returned, since the Monarchists and Conservatives are abstaining from voting.

Efforts to draft Premier Manuel Azana as the sole presidential candidate, however, are meeting with objections from his followers who feel he should remain in the Premiership in order to unite the republic and the popular front parties now in power.

MISSOURI TOWN PINS HOPES ON 'HALL OF WATERS'

Excelsior Springs Breaking Ground Tomorrow for $822,000 Project Backed by PWA Funds.

$157,000 GIFT, $565,000 LOAN

City Operated Bathhouse Expected to Yield Income Repaying Government in 20 Years.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 25.—With the breaking of ground Monday for the construction of the "Hall of Waters," a glorified municipal bathhouse intended to attract customers to the mineral water springs at Excelsior Springs, property owners and business men are satisfied, in the words of the popular song, that "Santa Claus is coming to town."

As a matter of fact, "Santa Claus," in the form of PWA and the Federal money bag, has been to town already and left on the city hearth the bulk of the funds—a $565,000 loan and an outright gift of $157,000—to finance the undertaking. The city of Excelsior Springs has contributed $110,000 and 10 acres of grounds, with wells and springs, valued in all by the city at between $175,000 and $200,- 00. Half of the land was purchased by the city by condemnation for about $75,000; the other five acres had been a public park.

When the "Hall of Waters," known to PWA simply as "mineral water development at Excelsior Springs, Mo.," is completed, the town of less than 5000 inhabitants, with annual tax revenue estimated at $65,000, will boast an improvement that cost $822,000, exclusive of grounds, through the trusting generosity of the Federal Government. From the income of the municipally operated bathhouse, which the Government's "management engineers" estimate variously from $200,000 to $300,000 a year, it is hoped the Government loan will be repaid in 20 years.

How Estimate Was Made.

The estimate of income, according to Allan Brantingham of the firm employed by order of PWA, was based on a survey of business done by other watering places and on an estimate of prospective customers in this area. An average annual profit of about $100,000 is expected, he said, from admission prices to the pretentious building, to be fixed by a commission appointed by City Council. The commission also will control operation of a mineral water bottling plant, part of the enterprise.

Almost since 1880, when Indians were frightened away from the springs by white settlers, there have been efforts by land owners and business interests to sell the idea that Excelsior Springs was a Mid-Western "spa." In subsequent years, a certain amount of advertising by well-owners and the usual Chamber of Commerce promotion met with fair success in attracting recreation and health seekers to the resort. Three large hotels were built. Tracts of land were purchased by speculators who saw liquid gold in the streams of mineral water, to which medicinal qualities were attributed.

Business firms which could only be supported by an influx of tourists were established. Outside capital took over many of the wells, springs and rooming house sites. One enthusiastic Iowan is said to have paid $23,000 for one well—which the city took in condemnation proceedings for about $7000.

Effect of Depression.

Due, it was said, to lack of individual initiative, but principally to reluctance of those who stood to gain the most in promoting their interests by supplying capital necessary to develop popularity of the springs, the patronage languished. Institutions existed meagerly for several years, before the depression added the finishing blow, from patronage of week-end excursionists from Kansas City, 30 miles away, and from occasional conventions and political meetings.

As a measure of the town's financial decline due to the marked absence of visitors, the Elms Hotel, show-place of the resort, was sold in bankruptcy in 1933 at the "give-away" figure of $186,039.

Within a few weeks after the loosening of the public purse strings at Washington in 1933, three Excelsior Springs men began the campaign that led to obtaining the PWA funds. The men, leaders in a civic group known as the City Club, were Ogden C. Ris- ey, banker; Harry Timber, jeweler, and the late Circuit Judge Harris L. Moore, a Democrat.

Judge Moore, because of his political experience and contacts, was employed by the city to persuade PWA to put "mineral springs development at Excelsior Springs, Mo." on the records. In expectation of approval of the application, lbert C. Weien, a druggist, then ayor, signed the ordinance passed by City Council authorizing the city to obtain the loan and grant to purchase self-liquidating public projects." The original sum obtained from PWA was $647,000 and an additional $75,000 loan was approved last Thursday.

The city issued 4 per cent bonds to PWA for the amount of the loan and an additional $110,000 worth of 5 per cent for sale to the public to raise the municipal contribution to "Hall of Waters." In a test suit, the State Supreme Court upheld the validity of the bonds, which are to be retired only from revenues of the bathhouse and not from taxation.

The MacDonald Construction Co. of St. Louis, which obtained the contract to erect the building at a cost of $430,500, will try to have enough of it above ground to enable Gov. Park to preside at cornerstone laying ceremonies May 30. Pipe lines and other exterior installations are nearing completion at a cost of about $110,000.

So, with nothing to lose, and possibly much to gain, the butcher, baker and candlestick maker and the real estate dealer, too, await with happy anticipation the business results to flow from the "Hall of Waters."

Four Types of Water.

The waters, to which are attributed certain curative properties, are of four types. The most widely publicized is that with iron-manganese content which flows from both Siloam and Regent springs, the only two sources of this water in the United States, it is said. Use has been recommended as a blood tonic and for diuretic and eliminative qualities.

Analysis by a former representative of the U. S. Pharmacopaeia, of the water of Regent Spring showed it contained iron bicarbonate, manganese bicarbonate, magnesium bicarbonate, calcium bicarbonate, alumina, silica, potassium sulphate, potassium chloride, sodium chloride, and sodium bicarbonates. A greater manganese and iron bicarbonate content was found in the analysis of Siloam Spring water.

The other types are described as saline sulphur water, used by some for catarrhal conditions of the digestive and respiratory tracts; soda bicarbonate, also called "lithia" water, advertised as an alkaline, and calcic bicarbonate, also an alkaline.

MAN WHO WRECKED TRAIN IN HOLDUP ATTEMPT EXECUTED

James Thompson, 28, Electrocuted at Columbus, O.; Trainmen Killed in Crash.

COLUMBUS, O., April 25.—James Thompson, 28 years old, shouted "Good-by, boys," tonight as the black hood was placed on his face and then died in the Ohio penitentiary electric chair for the murder of one of two men killed in a train he wrecked with hopes of robbing the mail car. He whispered, "Don't screw it so tight," as death house attendants fastened him into the chair.

Thompson, scheduled to die Friday night, gained an extra 24 hours of life by an Appellate Court order. He was originally sentenced to die Feb. 5, but was granted stays pending an appeal to the Appellate Court, which finally upheld his conviction.

Previously convicted of tampering with railroad signal lights and sentenced to a term in the Mansfeild Reformatory, Thompson confessed last August that he wrecked a Norfolk & Western train near Haverhill, O., April 12, 1932, killing the engineer and fireman. He said he planned to rob the mail and express coaches, but "lost my nerve when I heard the people screaming, and saws them climbing from the cars."

TRANSIENT CAMP WORKER WHO INHERITED $250,000, WEDS

Angus J. Gallagher Marries Woman He Met at St. Joseph, Mo., When on Relief.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 25.—Angus J. Gallagher of Youngstown, O., who a few months ago inherited about $250,000 on the death of his father, was on his honeymoon today with the former Miss Constance Williams of this city, whom he met last fall through her sister, a relief office worker, when he was employed in a transient camp near this city under the name "Robert J. Hall."

The two were married this morning at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church by the Rev. Victor J. Meagher.

Gallagher went to work at the transient camp here after months of aimless travel through southern States. He used another name "because I wasn't going to put the name of Gallagher on the relief rolls," he explained.

FATHER SCHWITALLA HEADS SCHOOL GROUP

First Priest Elected President of North Central Association of Colleges.

CHICAGO, April 25. — The Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., of St. Louis, said today, on assuming his new office as president of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, that he considered the problem of harmonizing the aims of academic and professional education "one of the most important which the association has to solve."

Father Schwitalla, dean of the school of medicine of St. Louis University, following his election earlier today, became the first Catholic priest to head the 41-year-old association.

In the tendency toward specialized training, Dean M. T. McClure of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, University of Illinois, said he saw a trend which, "if persisted in, will be fatal to the creation of a humane and cultural life."

He gave the association his view that "the man who has had a broad and general training can, in the long run, do the technical task better than the narrowly trained expert. . . . I firmly believe that the policy of turning colleges of liberal arts and sciences into trade schools has been short sighted."

The dean suggested that the association add to its present efforts a study of "certain phases of contemporary civilization, with a view to adjusting the educative process to the needs and benefits of life." He said it seemed that motion pictures, the radio and newspapers were becoming important agents of education, and that he "suspected" they were "exerting a stronger influence in character education than formal education itself."

It should be possible, Dean McClure said, "for institutions of higher learning, through personnel studies, guidance and counseling, and other in loco parentis (in place of the family) functions to combat, where dangerous, these powerful forces in the formation of our public morals."

Dr. B. T. Thayer, educational director of the Ethical Culture School of New York City, told the convention, "it seems clear that the problem of unemployed youth is a permanent characteristic of economic life today. It sets the task for the school of so organizing its educational program that young people will be helped in reading meaning and purpose into life under new conditions of stress and strain. . . . It is obvious that vocational courses can no longer be safely carried on in the narrow and specific manner of the past."

Other selections of the nominating committee approved by the association were: First vice-president, Miss Lucia R. Briggs, head of the Milwaukee-Downer College, Milwaukee, the first woman to hold an executive post in the association; second vice-president, W. F. Shirley, superintendent of schools at Marshalltown, Ia., and members of the executive committee, G. R. Reavis, state high school inspector, Columbus, O., and Eli Foster, principal of Central High School, Tulsa, Ok.

STRANGERS DOUBT BANK BOOK; HE GETS IT; THEY GET $290

Syrup Company Foreman Says He Let One of Three Hold Money in Tavern.

Three friendly strangers whom Frank Herl, 924 La Beaume street, met downtown yesterday after he had withdrawn $44 from a bank, so impressed him with their affluence that he went back to the bank and drew out $290 just to prove that he had further resources.

Then as they sipped drinks in a tavern at 114 North Ninth street, he gave one of them the $290 to hold for him, Herl told police. He went for a walk with one of the three, who left him at the corner "to telephone someone" and when he went back to the tavern the other two were gone with his $290.

Herl said he first sought to convince the three that he was a man of means by showing them his bank book, but they expressed doubt that it was genuine, so he went to the bank and got the money. He is a foreman for the American Syrup & Sorghum Co, come, however small, from WPA employment or private industry.

And the $147,000 a month appropriated by the city is not even sufficient to provide adequately for the 29,200 "unemployables" who remain on the relief rolls, in the opinion of W. C. Connett, vice president of the First National Bank and chairman of the St. Louis Relief Committee.

These 29,200 are being required to make new applications for relief, giving under oath detailed statements of their condition and needs. They constitute 7700 families or "cases" and the money available is sufficient to care for only 6500 "cases." If the relief roll were allowed to stand at 7700 "cases" the average monthly allowance to each family would be $17.

The purpose of requiring renewed applications to be made under oath, Connett said, was to "shake the relief roll down to the absolute minimum." When the committee had done that, he said, it would "let the people of the community decide whether to support those on relief or let them starve."

The problem will be further complicated soon with the dismissal of about 4100 WPA workers between now and June 15. WPA Administrator Joseph Amend said last week the present total of 27,374 WPA workers in St. Louis and the County would have to be reduced by 15 per cent.

The relief problem became acute in St. Louis the first of this month when the State's $6,000,000 relief appropriation, from which the city received about $300,000 a month, was exhausted.

Special Session Pleas Denied.

There have been repeated demands from St. Louis and other sections of the State that Gov. Park call a special session of the Legislature to appropriate additional money for relief. This he has refused to do on the ground that "improved conditions" would make it possible for local communities to care for those in need.

The Governor's opinion that taxes would have to be increased to provide more money for relief has been challenged by Carter W. Atkins, director of the Governmental Research Institute, who reported that existing revenues were sufficient to permit an additional relief appropriation of about $4,000,000.

Members of the St. Louis Ministerial Alliance will consider the relief situation at their meeting tomorrow at the Union Avenue Christian Church. Dean Sidney Sweet of Christ Church Cathedral, chairman of the Church Federation's Social Service Commission, which termed the present relief administration "cruel and barbarous" in a statement made public Friday, will speak.

FLORIDA SUPREME COURT TAKES HAND IN FLOGGING TRIAL

Grants Defense Request to Call Court Reporter and Make Grand Jury Evidence Available.

By the Associated Press.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 25.—The Supreme Court today ordered Judge Robert T. Dewell, presiding in the trial of seven former Tampa policemen on kidnaping charges at Bartow, to summon R. F. Johnson of Tampa as a witness to testify at the trial.

The order was on a mandamus action brought by Pat Whitaker of Tampa and four other defense lawyers.

Johnson was a witness before the Hillsborough County grand jury which indicted the former policemen. The Supreme Court's order directs that he appear as a witness at the trial, and also directs that transcript of evidence by Johnson before the grand jury be brought into court.

The six former policemen and their former chief are being tried in Bartow on a change of venue from Tampa.

They are accused of the flogging of three organizers of the Modern Democrats, one of whom, Joseph Shoemaker, died of his injuries.

Johnson is court reporter in Hillsborough County, and he made the court's record of testimony before the county grand jury which returned the flogging case indictments.

All judges of the Supreme Court signed the mandamus order directing Johnson to file in the Polk County Criminal Court his transcript of testimony before the Hillsborough grand jury. He also was directed to file his shorthand notes from which the transcript of testimony is made.

The court instructed that after the documents are filed with the Polk County Court they will be open to inspection by defense counsel in the flogging case trial.

Judge Dewell said Friday that the defense might call as witnesses members of the grand jury but introduction of stenographic records was in question. The defense said it wanted the records in the evidence for the purpose of trying to impeach the testimony of two flogging victims, Eugene F. Poulnot and Samuel S. Rogers.

DOCTORS THINK THEY MAY SAVE MINE VICTIM'S FEET

"Greatly Encouraged" Over Prospects; "Glass Boot" Being Used at Halifax.

By the Associated Press.

HALIFA&, N. S., April 25.—Physicians said tonight they were "greatly encouraged" in efforts to save the feet of Charles Alfred Scadding, descued from the Moose River gold mine after 10 days' imprisonment. A "glass boot" is being used on his feet.

His friend, Dr. D. E. Robertson, who despite his 52 years, went through the ordeal in better physical shape, was reported showing continued progress toward recovery.

Scadding contracted "trench foot," an incipient case of gangrene, from the dampness of the underground prison. Dr. H. H. Langdon, superintendent of the Cincinnati General Hospital, where the glass boot was developed, described it as a "Pavaex Unit." It is so called after the words "passive vascular exercise," since it increases the circulation of damaged arteries by alternating negative and positive air pressures. The glass boot was brought here by Major Stuart Graham, inspector of civil aviation, who flew from Montreal to Moncton yesterday in a sleet storm, then finished the trip by automobile.

RULING OPENS WAY FOR DR. MUENCH LICENSE HEARING

However, Physician Refused Writ Against Health Board, Says He Will Appeal.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 25.—The way was opened today for the State Board of Health to proceed with its hearing to determine whether it should revoke the medical license of Dr. Ludwig O. Muench of St. Louis for unprofessional conduct in the Muench baby hoax, when Circuit Judge Brown Harris dismissed the physician's application for a writ of prohibition, after hearing oral arguments.

Counsel of Dr. Muench, who was in court during the arguments, announced they would file an appeal to the Kansas City Court of Appeals next week, and if necessary, pursue the matter in the State Supreme Court.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Charles Howell Jr. of Kansas City, representing the State Board of Health, said he did not think it likely that the board would attempt to set a time and place for the license hearing, pending Dr. Muench's appeal.

Judge Harris' Ruling.

In his decision, Judge Harris was guided by rulings of Missouri courts holding that the Board of Health was not a judicial body which could be prevented from acting by means of a writ of prohibition and that the board might take action against a physician for an act of unprofessional conduct not specifically set forth in the governing statute.

"That is so clearly the established law in Missouri," Judge Harris told counsel for Dr. Muench, "that there is no need for you to file briefs. I will sustain the board's motion to quash the temporary writ of prohibition and dismiss your petition for a permanent writ."

In explaining why he had issued the temporary writ of prohibition, Judge Harris said: "I was actuated in this case originally by the human element. The thing charged against this man (Dr. Muench) is one of which the most devoted husband or parent might be guilty. We have repeated cases where people have lied to their own children about their paternity. It is consistent with the most decent sentiment in a man's system. Yet, what has that got to do with it?

"I went on the proposition that of course this (the function of the Board of Health) was a judicial function, passing on a man's life and living, but it is purely ministerial—the Supreme Court repeatedly has held so.

"I think you gentlemen," he continued, turning to counsel for Dr. Muench, "would be happy to have the complaint in the shape it is and go on. (Apparently referring to the fact that the complaint charged a specific act of professional misconduct, that of falsifying a birth certificate, not specified in the governing statute. There is nothing else I can do but quash the writ and dismiss the petition."

The Court indicated that Dr. Muench's only remedy, other than appeal from the present decision, was to appear before the Board of Health and if a decision adverse to him were given there, then to seek review of the board's action through certiorari in the Circuit Court of the county in which the board held the hearing.

Walter W. Calvin of Kansas City and R. H. Musser of Plattsburg, counsel for Dr. Muench, argued that the complaint of the Board of Health charged only one act of alleged dishonorable conduct and not a 'course of conduct" as they interpreted the requirements of prevailing court decisions.

Basis of Citation.

The charge on which the State Board cited Dr. Muench Feb. 3, was that he had signed a false birth certificate purporting to show a child was born last Aug. 18 to his wife, Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench. The St. Louis Court of Appeals, in the Anna Ware habeas corpus proceeding last autumn, took from Mrs. Muench the baby which had been in her home since Aug. 18 and restored it to Miss Ware, holding she was the real mother.

In his report to the Court, Special Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh cited as one of Mrs. Muench's motives in obtaining the baby a desire to arouse sympathy for herself in the kidnaping case then pending against her. She was acquitted of the charge of kidnaping Dr. Isaac D. Kelley by a jury at Mexico, Mo., last Oct. 5.

Howell's argument to the Court on behalf of the Board of Health was threefold—that prohibition did not lie to prevent action of a ministerial body, that the board could proceed under a particular charge even though the statue defining authority did not mention that charge under professional misconduct, and that Dr. Muench had an adequate remedy at law, through certiorari to review any action of the board.

Faced with appearing before the Board in St. Louis last Feb. 26 or permitting his license to be revoked by default, Dr. Muench came here and obtained counsel who stopped the hearing on that day by seeking, and obtaining, a temporary writ of prohibition from Judge Harris.

The Board's complaint, on which it based its citation of Dr. Muench, characterized the physician as a "menace to the health, safety and welfare of the people of Missouri," by reason of his conduct in the baby hoax.

BOY, 5, HIT BY AUTO DIES; DRIVER TOOK HIM TO HOSPITAL

Victor Kuba Jr. Ran Into Side of His Car, Fred Nagel Says.

Victor Kuba Jr., 5 years old, was injured fatally yesterday when struck by an automobile on Dolman street near Emmet street. He lived at 1827 South Fourteenth street.

The driver, who said he was Fred Nagel, 4746A Nebraska avenue, took the boy to the City Hospital where he died at 7:30 p. m.

Nagel told Police Victor darted into the street from the west curb and ran into the side of his southbound automobile.

8 BIDS SUBMITTED FOR CONTINENTAL LIFE

Sealed Offers Will Be Opened Tomorrow in Circuit Court.

Eight bids for the Continental Life Insurance Co., which were submitted yesterday in an offer of the sale of the company, will be opened to Division No. 2 of the Circuit Court at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The company, which has been operated for the last two years by State Insurance Commissioner R. E. O'Malley, has approximately $57,400,000 of insurance in force. Its home offices are in the Continental Life Building, 3615 Olive street, where Frank P. Aschemeyer, a sa special attorney for the State Insurance Department, has operated the company for the Commissioner.

Aschemeyer said yesterday he did not know all the bidders, as some of the bids—all of which were sealed—were submitted by law firms representing other interests.

Among the known bidders, Aschemeyer said, were the Kansas City Life Insurance Co.; State National Life Insurance Co. and the Mound City Life Insurance Co., both of St. Louis. The State National has offices at 4 North Eighth street. The Mound City, Aschemeyer said, is a newly-formed concern which has not yet obtained its license to do business.

There had been a report in the insurance field that Central States Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis, would bid on the Continental, but Aschemeyer said he would not know whether that company submitted a bid until the bids are opened.

Hearing Friday on a motion filed by stockholders of the Continental to end the rehabilitation proceedings and to remove the assets from Commissioner O'Malley's management, was continued until next Friday by Circuit Judge John W. Joynt. A meeting of the stockholders will be held May 7, to elect new directors.

WARSHIP PROFIT CHARGES DENIED BY SHIPBUILDERS

Senate Munitions Committee Accused of 'Amazing Inaccuracy' in Protest Sent to Nye.

SUBCOMMITTEE'S WAR TAX PROPOSAL

Would Lay 10 Per Cent on Incomes, Graduated With Surtax to Take $880,000 of Each Million.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Shipbuilders charged the Senate Munitions Committee today with "amazing inaccuracy" in accusing the shipyards of making excess profits out of warship contracts.

The accusaton, made by H. Gerrish Smith, president of the National Council of American Shipbuilders in New York, appeared almost simultaneously with an announcement by a Senate Finance Subcommittee of an agreement on war profits taxes.

The tax plan approved would lay a 10 per cent war tax on incomes, graduated upward so as to bear down heavily upon big earnings in time of war.

Out of the approval grew a plan by the Senate Munitions Committee to seek to have the tax attached to the new revenue bill, although the subcommittee did not approve the same tax suggested by the Munitions Committee.

The latter proposal had been for a tax that would take all individual earnings above $10,000 in war time. While not so severe, the Finance Subcommittee's plan, graduating upward with surtaxes, would take $880,510 of tax out of million dollar incomes.

Letter to Chairman Nye.

The shipbuilders' spokesman, in a letter to Chairman Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, protested the Munitions Committee's assertions that there were "evidences of fraud" and indications of "collusion" in warship contracts negotiated by shipyards with the Government, both in war times and in the years since.

The committee accusations, based on months of testimony, were contained in a report submitted to the Senate last June. It was labeled preliminary, and Smith said the shipbuilders expected it would be superseded "by a carefully measured document which, at least would be expected to adhere to historical truths and plain facts as they were developed during the weeks of hearings."

When the Committee, a week ago, submitted a second report on the progress of its inquiry, it adopted the terms of the previous naval building report, thus, Smith complained, making it the permanent finding of the Committee.

"By the use of unjustified inferences and by a selection of testimony designed to support the desired findings," Smith wrote, "the shipbuilding industry has been done a grave injustice, and has been condemned through inadequate and prejudiced testimony, without regard to the true facts. I find your report replete with inaccuracies and conclusions which cannot be justified either by the historical facts or by the testimony taken."

Committee on Costs.

In its report the Committee had said warship profits ranged up to 35 per cent on certain vessels and had claimed there was evidence of parallelism in bids in which it felt collusion was indicated. In addition, the report contended costs in private ship yards greatly exceeded those in the Government yards, sometimes by more than $1,000,000 on a $10,000,000 vessel.

Smith said wartime earnings listed by the committee had been introduced without consideration of the war profits paid, and further:

"Profits on individual contracts were emphasized in the report, while no reference was made to losses on other contracts, or to the moderate average percentage of profits in the shipbuilding industry over long periods of time."

He called "particularly inaccurate" the comparison of Government and private shipbuilding costs, and said he was given no opportunity to explain records taken from files of the Shipbuilders' Council, which comprises the major ship yards in the industry.

THREE GASOLINE STATIONS PICKETED IN LABOR DISPUTE

Seven Employes Discharged by James O. Sampson After They Make Demands.

Members of the Gasoline Service Warehouse Employes' Union yesterday began picketing three filling stations operated by James O. Sampson after he had discharged seven employes at two stations and refused to sign an agreement with the union.

Sampson told the Post-Dispatch he paid his employes $85 to $90 a month and that they worked between eight and nine hours a day, seven days a week. The union demanded a working week of six eight-hour days, with pay ranging from $95 to $110 a month. Sampson said acceptance of the demands would necessitate the hiring of additional attendants, and that his business did not warrant the extra expense.

Stations at which Sampson replaced his old employes were the Power Oil Corporation, 600 South Vandeventer avenue, and the Atlas Oil Co., 700 South Vandeventer. Employes of the Sampson Oil Co., 6185 Olive Street road, did not join in the demands and were not discharged.

Roosevelt in Speech Outlines His "Philosophy of 1936"

istence. The same idea now is spreading on a truly national scale.

That is why, while I may be breaking another precedent—and they say in Washington that my day is not complete without smashing at least one precedent—I can come here to the city of New York and talk with you about the cotton problems of Georgia, the corn and hog problems of Iowa and the wheat problems of the Dakotas, the dust storms of the West, the destructive tornadoes of the South, the floods of the Northeast. In the same way I would not hesitate to discuss the slum clearance problems or any other problems of the big cities of the East with a farmer audience in Georgia or Iowa or the Dakotas or anywhere else.

A National Problem.

The strong arm of the nation is needed not in immediate relief alone—we grant that. It is needed also in taking measures of prevention before natural disasters occur. It is equally needed in taking measures to prevent economic disasters which are not natural but man made.

During the past three years the Hester street and Park avenue of this city have both come to understand that they belong to the same economic pattern and indeed to the same nation as the cotton, corn and hog belts, and the flood areas and the dust bowls. Not so long ago it was the farm against the city and the city against the farm. From now on if both are to prosper, it must be the farm with the city and the city with the farm.

Economists are still trying to find out what it was that hit us back in 1929. I am not a professional economist but I think I know. What hit us was a decade of debauch, of group selfishness—the sole objective expressed in the thought — "Every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost." And the result was that about 98 per cent of the American population turned out to be "the hindmost."

Depression That Began in 1921.

Let me illustrate what happened by taking the case of the garment workers in New York City. They make 40 per cent of all the clothes of the nation worn outside of New York City. Their work and wages in this city were dependent on the sales they made all over the country. The garment workers' depression did not begin in 1929. It began back in 1921 when the depression began on the farms of the nation. But back in the twenties people in power still thought of prosperity chiefly in industrial terms. They overlooked the farm depression; and because it went unrelieved the troubles that started among the farmers in 1921 finally and inevitably reached the garment workers on Eighth avenue.

Nebraska's corn and Eighth avenue's clothing are not different problems; they are the same problems. Before the war a Nebraska farmer could take a 200-pound hog to market and buy a suit of clothes made in New York. But in 1932, to get that same suit of clothes he had to take two and a half hogs to market. Back in the twenties a cotton farmer had to raise seven pounds of cotton to buy one pair of overalls. By 1932, however, he had to raise 14 pounds of cotton to get those New York overalls.

What Started the Breadline.

Obviously the farmers stopped buying as many clothes and when the farm districts stopped buying, New York's garment districts soon started bread lines. That, however, was only half of the vicious circle. When the garment district's breadlines grew longer, buying power in the cities grew less. Other breadlines formed. Every man on a new breadline meant one person who ate less and wore less. Because the garment worker ate less the farmer sold less and his income went down. The vicious strangling circle was complete. Today we have broken that throttlehold. The American electorate proposes that it shall not be renewed.

And while I am talking of food consumption here is a fact of equal interest to the city dweller and the farmer population. If all of the 7,000,000 people living in New York City could afford to buy the bread and meat and vegetables and milk and cotton and wool that their health and decent living called for then we would need crop production from 3,000,000 more acres of good crop land than we are using to feed and clothe New York City today. I propose to continue the fight for more food and better homes.

But this tie-up between cities and farms is one of the chief reasons why in 1933 we sought a national solution for a national problem. We sought simultaneously to raise the farmer's cash income and to add to the working man's pay envelope. What our success has been you can prove by the simple process of putting the financial pages of any newspaper published in 1936 along side the financial pages of the same newspaper published in 1932.

By the way, every time I come to New York I look for that grass which was to grow in the city streets!

Defends Deficit.

But some individuals are never satisfied. People complain to me about the current costs of rebuilding America, about the burden on future generations. I tell them that whereas the deficit of the Federal Government this year is about three billion dollars, the national income of the people of the United States has risen from 35 billions in the year 1932 to 65 billions in the year 1936, and I tell them further that the only burden we need to fear is the burden our children would have to bear if we failed to take these measures today.

Building national income, distributing it more widely means not only the bettering of conditions of life but the end of, and insurance against, individual and national deficits.

Nation-wide thinking, nation-wide planning and nation-wide action are the three great essentials to prevent nation-wide crises for future generations to struggle through.

Replies to New "Brain Trust."

Other individuals are never satisfied—one of these, for example, belongs to a newly organized brain trust—not mine. He says that the only way to get full recovery—I wonder if he admits that we have had any recovery—is to lower prices by cheapening the costs of production.

Let us reduce that to plain English. You can cheapen the costs of industrial production by two methods. One is by the development of new machinery and new technique and by increasing employe efficiency. We do not discourage that. But do not dodge the fact that this means fewer men employed and more men unemployed. The other way to reduce the costs of industrial production is to establish longer hours for the same pay or to reduce the pay for the same number of hours. If you lengthen hours you will need fewer workers. More men out of work. If you choose lower wages for the same number of hours you cut the dollars in the pay envelope and automatically cut down the purchasing power of the worker himself.

Reduction of costs of manufacture does not mean more purchasing power and more goods consumed. It means just the opposite.

The history of the 1929 to 1933 period shows that consumption of goods actually declines with a declining price level. The reason is that in such periods the buying power goes down faster than the prices.

If you increase buying power prices will go up, but more goods will be bought. Wages ought to and must go up with prices. This does not mean unsound inflation or skyrocketing prices; this should be avoided just as we seek to avoid deflation and bankruptcy sale values. What we do seek are a greater purchasing power and a reasonably stable and constant price level. It is my belief as I think it is yours that the industry and agriculture of America subscribe to that objective. Toward that end, representative government is working. The objective cannot be obtained in a month or a year. But results—results proven by facts and figures show that we are on our way—very definitely on our way. Higher wages for workers, more income for farmers means more goods produced, more and better food eaten, fewer unemployed and lower taxes.

That is my economic and social philosophy, and, incidentally, my political philosophy as well. I believe from the bottom of my heart that it is the philosophy of the 1936 America.

The President went to his New York home immediately after his speech. He will go to the family estate at Hyde Park tomorrow.

EX-OFFICER OF COMPANY SUES FOR RECEIVERSHIP

Bill-O-Type Corporation President Denies Allegations and Says He Will Resist Action.

A petition was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Nicholas H. von Soosten for appointment of a receiver for the Bill-O-Type Corporation, 418 Olive street, manufacturer of book-keeping attachments for typewriters.

His petition set forth he purchased 500 shares of common stock and 300 of the preferred, which has not been delivered to him; further that the business of the company has been mismanaged by its officers, for whose removal he also asked.

The company was incorporated in November, 1933, and authorized to issue 175,000 shares of common stock, of a par value of $1 a share, and 5000 of preferred. Officers named as co-defendants are: Erwin von Gemmingen, president; R. L. Smith, secretary, and Raymond Kaltwasser, Albert T. Kaltwasser, Emil H. Klick, Dr. John W. MacDonald, John F. Peters and Ernst N. Schultz Jr., members of the board of directors.

Von Gemmingen denied the allegations and declared that the plaintiff, who was formerly a vice-president, had become disgruntled. He said there was no ground for the suit and it would be resisted.

SUPPORTER OF GOMEZ VENEZUELA PRESIDENT

Gen. Eleazar Lopez Counteras to Take Oath of Office Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.

CARACAS, Venezuela, April 25.—Eleazar Lopez Contreras, who rose to the rank of General as a supporter of the late Dictator, Juan Vicente Gomez, was given the administrative control of Venezuela today.

The Congress elected him President by a vote of 132 to 1 and provided that he should assume the presidency next Wednesday.

Gen. Lopez has served as provisional president since last December, when Gomez died after ruling Venezuela absolutely for 25 years.

Extraordinary police precautions were taken to prevent possible disorders outside the Federal palace or in the gallery of the Senate where the electoral session was held. Police said they had discovered a radical plot last night to start trouble during the election. Several prominent persons, including three women, were taken into custody.

From Wednesday, when he takes the oath of office, Lopez will resume the difficult task of guiding the country. The army is said to be solidly behind him.

ROBERT HANNA, MRS. STUECKEL FILE FOR G. O. P. COMMITTEE

Former Constable Supported in 24th Ward by Charles L. Moore of Election Board.

Robert Hanna, 6103 Adeline street, and Mrs. Lillian H. Stueckel, 6405 South Kingshighway, filed their candidacies yesterday for election to the Republican City Committee from the Twenty-fourth Ward.

Hanna, a salesman and former Constable, has received the support of the ward organization of Clarence H. Eberle, retiring committeeman, and of Charles L. Moore, member of the Election Board. He will be opposed by an organization in which James G. Blaine, a former Police Judge, is a leader, and which may run Blaine as a candidate for the committee. Hanna's opponents have expressed resentment at participation in the contest by Moore, arguing that an Election Commissioner should stay out of party affairs.

The present committeewoman, Mrs. Ruby Koelling, secretary of the city committee, will seek re-election, backed by the Blaine faction.

DEMOCRAT ASKS ABOUT VALIDITY OF NEW TAX BILL

Bailey's Question in Senate Study of Act Pending in House Referred to Treasury Counsel.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25. — A question concerning the constitutionality of the $803,000,000 tax bill was raised today in the third executive session of the Senate Finance Committee, which is holding tax studies while the measure is pending before the House.

Senator Bailey (Dem.) North Carolina inquired about the validity of provisions in the House bill for special treatment for debt-ridden corporations.

Chairman Harrison (Dem.) Mississippi, immediately jumped to their defense.

"My own opinion," Harrison told reporters, 'is that it is merely a question of classification, and Congress certainly has the right to classify these rates of taxes and give certain credits to debt-burdened corporations."

Different classifications and rates, he said, were worked into a graduated corporation income tax in last year's revenue bill.

To Seek Opinion on Validity.

The bill, now being debated in the House—which is in recess today—would provide a flat 22½ per cent rate on income which corporations are required by contract to apply to debts. A corporation without contract but nevertheless compelled to use earnings to retire obligations, likewise would have the 22½ per cent rate. But it could not obtain the rate on an amount in any one year greater than one-fifth of its standing debt.

Harrison said Herman Oliphant, Treasury counsel, would be asked to prepare a brief on the constitutional question raised by Bailey.

The major feature of the bill is designed to induce corporations to distribute more of their profits among stockholders by applying a tax to corporate income graduated according to percentages withheld from distribution. The present exemption of dividends from the 4 per cent normal income tax also would be withdrawn).

Senate Hearings Arranged.

The Senate Finance Committee arranged to begin open hearings on the bill Thursday—the day the House hopes to pass it—probably with Secretary Morgenthau as the first witness.

The committee, Harrison said, was deluged with applications to appear at the open hearings and many were proposing changes in taxes untouched by the House bill, such as levies on gasoline and matches.

"It is taking a lot of time explaining this bill," Harrison told reporters at the close of his committee's third executive session at which tax experts answered questions with the aid of blackboard and chalk.

He said everything would be done to expediate the passage of the measure, once it got through the House, so Congress could adjourn before the Presidential nominating conventions.

House Debate Nears End.

Chairman Doughton (Dem.), North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee, handling the bill on the House floor, said he expected the remaining five hours and 36 minutes of debate on the measure to end Monday, although possibly an hour of it might be held over until Tuesday.

Representative Snell of New York, leading the fight against the legislation, shut himself in his office today to prepare his attack.

Doughton said, however, he had a request from Representative Burdick (Rep.), North Dakota, for time to speak in behalf of the bill.

"He said he was for it strong—100 per cent—and he will offset Lamneck," the Chairman asserted.

Representative Lamneck (Dem.), Ohio, a Ways and Means Committeeman, spoke against the legislation this week.

The House Appropriations Committee leaders said they expected to work a deficiency appropriation bill, containing the new $1,500,000,000 relief fund, into shape next week to follow the tax bill to the floor.

The Senate, which cleared away 197 bills yesterday, planned to use next week for consideration of other secondary legislation. A measure to permit deportation of criminal aliens is due for consideration.

Some Senate leaders thought there was a possibility of calling up a $360,000,000 omnibus flood control bill later in the week. The Commerce Committee approved the bill today.

"Window" in Milky Way Reported by Astronomer

Dr. Shapley of Harvard Tells of Hitherto Unseen Stars Beyond—Scientist Tells of Scales That Weigh Energy.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25. — Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard Observatory, today announced finding a "southwest window in the milky way," a hole in the obscuring clouds of dust through which for the first time astronomers can see beyond the milky way.

He made the report to the American Philosophical Society.

The "window" which Dr. Shapley described is seen through best by telescopes in the southern hemisphere.

Stars Beyond Milky Way.

The aggregation of stars known as the milky way, is shaped like a cartwheel. The earth is out on a spoke half way to the rim. But the center or hub of this wheel is surrounded with dust and gas. The "window" which the Harvard telescopes have been studying is like a hole in the dust about the hub.

Through the "window," Dr. Shapley said 147 variable stars, so called because their brightness fluctuates, had been found, with certainty that 100 of the number were beyond the milky way.

The distance to the center is 30,000 light years—the distance it takes light to that number of years to travel. Some stars in the "window" lie twice as far away.

Weighing Energy.

Atomic scales at the University of Chicago, on which energy can actually by weighed, verify Einstein's declaration that mass and energy are equivalent, and were described by Prof. Arthur J. Dempster of Chicago. On these scales 2,000,000 electron volts, which might be linked to the nature of a radio wave, weigh 43 thousandths of one atomic unit, and the energy of 43,000,000 electron volts weighs 36 thousandths of an atomic unit. This unit is the mass of one hydrogen atom.

SUIT AGAINST OTTO HAMMER FOR ACCOUNTING ON ESTATE

Administrator for Property of Sister-in-La , Asks for Judgment of $6374.

Suit was filed in Probate Court yesterday by Jacob Elsperman as administrator of the estate of Mrs. Katie Hammer, who died in 1933, against the former administrator, Otto W. Hammer, for an accounting of his administration. The National Bonding Corporation, surety on his bond, was named as codefendant.

The present administrator alleged that Hammer, an attorney, failed to make settlement, as ordered by the Court, and that he owes the estate $6374, for which judgment was asked.

Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold removed Hammer as administrator last month after he failed to respond to citations to make final settlement. Hammer had been appointed in place of his brother, the late Henry W. Hammer, 913 Bellerive boulevard, president of the Hammer Dry Plate Co., and husband of Mrs. Hammer. Henry W. Hammer died shortly after taking charge of the estate.

Hammer explained to a reporter yesterday that settlement had not been made because certain claims were pending in another matter and that as soon as an adjustment was made he expected to render an accounting. Hammer was a member of the recent City Board of Equalization which passed on appeals of taxpayers against assessments fixed by the City Assessor. Payment by the city of $240 due him for this service was deferred pending an investigation of a report he owes $250 delinquent personal taxes.

STARK TO OPEN CAMPAIGN AT FAYETTE, MAY 20

Candidate for Democratic Nomination for Governorship to Speak at Central College.

Lloyd C. Stark of Louisiana, Mo., will formally open his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor at Fayette, May 20. Plans have been made for attendance of a large crowd from Howard County and neighboring counties and politicians from all parts of the State. The meeting will be held on the campus of Central College, enlivened by brass bands and drum and bugle corps and a drill by a Kemper Military Academy team.

Speakers will include Stark, Paul P. Prosser, Attorney-General of Colorado and a native of Fayette; Prosecuting Attorney Walker Pierce of Howard County, and Robert S. Walton, editor of the Armstrong Herald, first newspaper in the State to support Stark's candidacy. Chairman R. P. Spencer of the Howard County Democratic Committee will preside. It has been recalled that the late David R. Francis opened his successful campaign for Governor in Fayette in 1888.

Stark received a gold emblem of the Salesmen's Stark-for-Governor Club at his organization headquarters in the Railway Exchange Building yesterday.

W. R. GEORGE, FOUNDER OF YOUTH VILLAGE, DIES

"Nothing Without Work" His Policy in Developing Self-Reliance in Young.

By the Associated Press.

FREEVILLE, N. Y., April 25.—William R. George, founder of the George Junior Republic, a nationally known community for juvenile self-government, died tonight.

The 69-year-old founder of an experiment in youth guidance that won the commendation of Theodore Roosevelt, Thomas Mott Osborne and others distinguished in philanthropy and education, suffered a heart attack a week ago.

Funeral services will probably be held Tuesday.

Out of the Junior Republic which George founded here 41 years ago have grown many similar movements. Mutual Welfare Leagues in prisons trace directly to the self-governing principles which Mr. George enunciated.

During the last few years, he had engaged principally in the establishment of what he called Junior Municipalities. In such movements he advocated giving young people between 16 and 21 civic and economic responsibilities through self-government in schools and colleges.

His Self-Support Ideas.

Boys club work had convinced George that the problem of bettering the lives of young persons who had to look to the sidewalks of New York for recreation or escape from the bonds of poverty, was being merely scratched by the old-style settlement house methods.

This doctrine began to take shape in the years 1890-1894 when he took parties of 200 or so boys and girls to the country to share his own vacations. The New York Tribune's Fresh Air Fund furnished the transportation and various churches in New York provided shelter ,food and needed clothing.

But George became impressed that these youngsters took as a matter of course the contributions and seemed intent mostly on getting something for nothing. He believed the excursions, while beneficial physically, were really doing more harm than good.

Almost on the point of abandoning his venture, he decided to continue it for one more year and to try the experiment of requiring that each youngster should work part time for clothing, "eats" and housing. So in 1895 he got together 144 boys and girls and took them to an abandoned farm near his own native town of West Dryden.

"Nothing Without Labor."

The city bred youngsters started to put the buildings into habitable shape. Country neighbors, interested in the queer venture, sent in food, clothing and tents. At the end of the summer five boys elected to stay on the farm with George through the winter. The next summer 200 boys and girls came back.

Thus was born the George Junior Republic. Its motto from the start was "Nothing Without Labor" and that has been the keynote of the enterprise ever since.

The "republic" has become, in fact, the village of Freeville, almost exactly the same as any other in the country, embodying the same social, civic and economic conditions. The essential difference is that its citizens reach voting age at 16 instead of 21. Young people can learn a trade there, or prepare for college and ultimate professional life.

While in its early doys the republic's citizens traveled on transportation furnished by the New York Tribune and many of its wants, financial and spiritual, were filled by contributions from philanthropic sources, it has become largely sefl-supporting.

William Reuben George was born June 4, 1866, at West Dryden, Tompkins County, New York. After the usual scanty schooling of a farm boy of that day, he went to New York City at the age of 14 to make his own way. For a time he worked for a publishing concern, then went into business for himself, making jewelry cases. He was still in his early twenties when he turned to social betterment work.

He is survived by his wife, Esther Brewster George, and three daughters, Mrs. Eleanor Kirkland of New York City; Mrs. Donald P. Urquhart, wife of the director of the Republic at Freeville, and Mrs. Malcolm Freeborn of Cortland.

INQUIRY INTO BANK BOOKS OF DETECTIVE WHO ENDED LIFE

New York Prosecutor Won't Tell What Officer Told of Drukman Killing.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Special Prosecutor Hiram C. Todd's office revealed today an investigation was being made into the bank accounts of Charles C. Hemendinger, police detective who shot and killed himself yesterday shortly before he was to appear for further questioning.

John G. Broady, assistant to Todd in the investigation into charges of bribery and police coercion in the killing of Sam Drukman in Brooklyn, refused to give any estimate of the detective's banking transactions nor did he disclose the contents of a note found in his pocket.

Hemendinger, acting Sergeant of Detectives in service for 21 years killed himself in his home. Broady said he took a 26-page statement from the detective Thursday night and Hemendinger was scheduled to return yesterday. Broady declined to say whether the detective made any disclosures having an important bearing o nthe Drukman case in which three men were convicted and sent to Sing Sing.

SUIT FILED TO REORGANIZE DUNKEL OIL CORPORATION

Three Creditors Contend It Is Necessary to Prevent Losses by E. St. Louis Firm.

A petition asking for corporate reorganization of the Dunkel Oil Corporation, Tenth street and Brady avenue, East St. Louis, under sections 77A and 77B of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, was filed in Federal Court at East St. Louis yesterday by three creditors of the company.

The creditors, asked for the appointment of trustees. Their claims are: William S. Gray & Co., New York, $1009; Bell Oil and Gas Co., Tulsa, Ok., $661, and the Teuscher Pulley and Belting Co., St. Louis, $38. According to their attorney, Max W. Kramer, they contend that a reorganization is necessary to maintain the good will of the company and to prevent losses to both debtor and creditors.

The Dunkel Oil Corporation, which does a wholesale and retail business in oil and grease, suffered a $50,000 loss by fire in April, 1934, and in August of the same year a 10,000-gallon steel tank was destroyed by a bomb. Officers of the company had no comment.

THREE MORE ORGANIZATIONS INDORSE BETTER-JURIES PLAN

Members of Webster Groves Lions' Club Pledge Themselves to Serve When Summoned.

Three additional organizations have indorsed the campaign for better juries being conducted by the Chamber of Commerce, Bar Association and Associated Industries, it was announced yesterday. They are the Lions Club of Webster Groves, the Boulevard Heights Improvement Association and the Carondelet Lions Club.

Members of the Lions Club of Webster Groves, in adopting a resolution approving the campaign, pledged themselves to serve on juries when called.

"We believe the subject is of outstanding importance not only to our members, but to the whole community," George C. Benne, president of the club, stated in a letter to the Chamber of Commerce.

A resolution adopted by the Boulevard Heights Improvement Association urged all members to accept jury service when called.

E. W. Murphy, secretray of the Carondelet Lions Club, informed the Chamber that members of the club would "constantly strive to do their part in this cause."

NOW The Airflo CORDLESS Beautiful New VENETIAN BLIND

• Sensational! • Revolutionary!

SEE IT DEMONSTRATED

❶ Cleans in Minutes—Airflo slats, made of the finest warp-proof wood obtainable are instantly demountable—one by one, or all at once, for quick easy cleaning. They can be reassembled just as quickly. No tools required. No trouble. No expense. Anyone can clean Airflo slats and ladder tapes.

❸ No Holes in Slats—No Leakage of Light Between Slats—Airflo Slats are strong, solid strips without holes and are guided in a groove on each side of the window. No blowing or flopping in the wind. Slats close tightly—no gaps—no leakage of light.

See these remarkable Airflo Cordless Venetian Blinds demonstrated at any of the following stores or telephone for a home demonstration and prices. No obligation.

FARLEY GIVES OUT CONVENTION PLAN AT PHILADELPHIA

Expects Roosevelt to Accept Nomination June 27 on Franklin Field, Where 100,000 Can Be Seated.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25. — President Roosevelt will accept the renomination, which the Democratic National Convention is expected to give him, in an outdoor demonstration the night of Saturday, June 27, on Franklin Field, athletic grounds of the University of Pennsylvania.

Announcement of this plan was made today by Postmaster-General James A. Farley, National Chairman, who also announced that Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, would be the temporary chairman and keynote speaker, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the permanent chairman.

Barkley was the keynote speaker at Chicago four years ago, and Robinson the permanent chairman of the National Convention in San Francisco in 1920 when James M. Cox was nominated for President and Roosevelt for Vice President.

Arrangements Complete.

The committee on arrangements of the National Committee met here today, adopted convention plans and made an official inspection of the convention hall which is on the edge of the university campus in West Philadelphia.

"Splendid" and "adequate" were the descriptive words expressed by Chairman Farley and committee members after going over the hall.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N., retired, and head of the Red Cross, was chosen head of the medical staff of the convention.

Lee Barnes of Alabama, will be chief doorkeeper. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Washington, will be hostess and will be assisted by Agnes Collins Dunn of New Hampshire.

W. Forbes Morgan, secretary of the national committee, will be the secretary of the convention, and Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the Senate, will continue as Sergeant-at-Arms.

Chairman Farley in reply to a question said he "honestly" did not know who would place President Roosevelt in nomination, and later said "that's a good guess" when asked whether it would be former Justice John E. Mack of New York.

According to present plans, the set speeches will be delivered at night, Chairman Farley said.

The convention will open at noon on Tuesday, June 23, with invocation by Bishop Hugh L. Lamb of Philadelphia, in the absence of Cardinal Dougherty who will be abroad. Chairman Farley and Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania, will speak and the convention will recess until evening when Senator Barkley will make the keynote address. There will be a day session.

Wednesday and that night will be given over principally to the address of Permanent Chairman Robinson. It is expected the committee on resolutions will present the platform Thursday, and on Friday and Saturday nominating and seconding speeches for President and Vice-President will be made.

Notification Speech.

It was at first agreed that the presidential notification would take place at the municipal stadium in South Philadelphia, three miles from the convention. Later Chairman Farley announced it would take place on Franklin Field, 200 yards from the convention hall. In case of rain the notification meeting could easily be transferred to the hall.

Franklin Field normally seats 80,000. It is planned to place seats on the field and make space available for a total of more than 100,000 persons.

At a luncheon after inspecting the convention hall, the local committee on arrangements told the members of the national committee of the plans to entertain visiting delegates.

Mayor S. Davis Wilson will give a dinner to the visiting Governors and a reception to mayors; many colonial homes will be opened and teas given for women visitors; there will be a horse show, a rodeo, parade of uniformed organizations of the city, regatta on the Schuylkill River, a naval display at the navy yard and nightly band concerts.

WORK HORSES WIN MOST PARADE HONORS

Percheron on Milk Route First in Draft Class—Police Mount Best in Saddle Entries.

The everyday work horse carried off most of the honors yesterday afternoon as more than 50 horses paraded on Lindell and Kingshighway boulevards, in the concluding feature of the annual "Be Kind to Animals Week," sponsored by the Humane Society of Missouri. The expensive show horses won only one of the four prizes awarded.

First prize for draft horses was won by "Queen," a 7-year-old Percheron, owned by the Highland Dairy. No pampered stable darling is "Queen." Every morning at 3 o'clock she is harnessed to a milk wagon to make early morning deliveries. William Wolfe, her driver for the last two years, smiled broadly as he received the cup from Edmond A. B. Garesche, one of the judges.

First prize in the saddle horse class was won by "Major," one of the mounts of the Police Department's Traffic Division, which may be seen on duty every day in the downtown district. John Pipkin, the mounted policeman who has patrolled the streets with "Major" for more than two years, received the cup from Mrs. George Pieksen, chairman of the Kindness to Animals Week observance.

The prestige of the show horses was maintained, to some extent, by a team of four Percherons owned by the St. Louis Dairy Co. These horses, which have appeared in many St. Louis horse shows, won second place in the draft class. Third prize was won by a team owned by the North Market Feed Co. These animals also are veterans of everyday labor.

The parade formed at West Pine boulevard and Spring avenue, with 22 mounted policemen leading. A Boy Scout drum and bugle corps was next, followed by decorated automobiles and the horses and wagons. The procession proceeded west on Lindell to Kingshighway and south to Clayton avenue, where the judging was held.

As another feature of the observance, a poster contest was conducted among 10 private schools in the city and county. The winners of four first prizes of $10 each were: Wallace Sheets, the Principia; Everett Bayha, the Principia; Rachael Howe Hosmer Hall, and Stella Slater, Hosmer Hall.

THURSTON'S DAUGHTER SEEKS TO BAR FILING OF ANY WILL

Says Magician Was "Not in Mental Condition" to Make Testament Before He Died.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., April 25.—Attorneys for Jane Thurston, daughter and co-worker of Howard Thurston, famous magician who died at Miami Beach April 13, filed a caveat in Probate Court here today seeking to prevent the filing of any will which might be presented as having been signed by her father.

The petition said the will might not be the "last will" of Thurston and that at the time of his death he was "not in a mental condition" to make a legal testament.

Miss Thurston's counsel advised Miami attorneys the late magician was reported to have a large estate, consisting of boats, buildings and personal property. The caveat is formal notice to the Court that Miss Thurston reserves the right to protest against any effort to settle the estate. Thurston died of a cerebral hemorrhage complicated by pneumonia. Miami counsel for the daughter said she "understood" her father left his estate to his third wife, the former Miss Pauline Mark, formerly the girl Thurston "sawed in half" on the stage. Miss Thurston is daughter of his second wife who died in 1934.

WOMAN BURNED IN EXPLOSION OF STOVE DIES IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Herman Uterman, 68, Succumbs to Injuries Suffered in Her Home Monday.

Mrs. Herman Uterman, 68 years old, died yesterday at St. Louis County Hospital of burns suffered last Monday when gasoline exploded in a stove as she was preparing a meal at her home on Thorpe avenue, in Overland.

Her husband, a laborer, put out her burning clothing with a blanket. The explosion set fire to the house, causing $100 damage. Mrs. Uterman was burned on the back and arms.

MISS MARY FORRESTAL WINS IN FONTBONNE HORSE SHOW

Takes Two Firsts and One Second Place; Exhibition Closes.

The concluding events of the Fontbonne College and St. Joseph's Academy spring horse show were held yesterday afternoon at the Missouri Stables arena. Miss Mary Katherine Forrestal, who won two firsts and one second place in the opening events Friday night, was awarded first place in the championship class.

SOVIET-JAPANESE PARLEY PROGRESSING

Russia Expresses Readiness to Co-operate in Redefining Manchoukuo Border.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 25.—An indication that Soviet-Japanese negotiations for settlement of their Far Eastern border disputes again was progressing favorably was given tonight in an official Soviet statement.

Russia expressed its readiness, under certain conditions, to co-operate in redemarcation of the Eastern sections of the Soviet-Manchoukuo frontier.

At the same time, Klementi E. Voroshiloff, Soviet commisar for war and marine, in a speech at a reception given by Japanese Ambassador Tamekichi Ota, warned that the Soviet Union's "policy of peace" should not be taken as a sign of weakness.

"Irresponsible Parties."

Voroshiloff said his country had a right to expect that the Japanese Government would put an end to action of "irresponsible parties who had been causing frontier clashes.

These encounters, the war commissar stated, increased in recent months to the point where they menaced good relations between the two countries.

The Soviet Union's willingness to co-operate in border redemarcation was made known to Tokio officials Saturday by Russian Ambassador Constantine Youreneff. He said Japan, however, must first guarantee the re-establishment of a "peaceful atmosphere" on the whole Soviet-Manchoukuoan border.

Wants Whole Border Included.

Russia has been pressing for establishment of a mixed commission to investigate the causes of disputes along the entire border, but the Japanese maintain that for the time being it is sufficient to turn attention to the Eastern section, where most of the clashes have occurred.

Voroshiloff in his speech referred to a standing offer of a non-aggression pact with Japan made by the Soviet Union several years ago as proof of his country's peaceful intentions.

Ambassador Ota declared that Japan also was striving for peace, and that its withdrawal from the London naval conference was in pursuance of that aim. He accused other countries represented at the conference of refusing to support Japanese proposals intended to serve as guarantees against war.

8 MANN ACT ARRESTS, VICE RING EXPOSED

Women Reported Transported From Chicago to New York by Negro Men.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Five white women and three Negro men were arraigned today before U. S. Commissioner Isaac Platt charged with conspiracy to violate the Mann act.

All were held to the federal grand jury. The men were released in $7500 bail; the women in $2500 bail each.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation in Washington, said the eight were arrested in "what is believed to be a ring engaged in transporting white women from Chicago to the Harlem district in New York."

Government agents said the white women's earnings were used by the Negro men to live in lavish style. They drove expensive automobiles and frequently made trips to other cities to attend prize fights.

Those held were booked as: Lean Richard Smith, 36 years old, Garland A. Patton, 44, Robert Edward Smith, 36, Negroes; Catherine Hill Boosey, 23, Betty Parker, 32, Mrs. Leon Richard Smith, 30, Dorothy Moritz, 31, and Betty Tobin, 35.

Group in Several Cities.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Seymour Klein told Commissioner Platt at the arraignment that the alleged conspiracy began Jan. 1, 1930. He charged that the men were "merely part of a group that have houses in several cities, including Boston, Chicago and Cleveland."

Klein said the "group" had six apartments in New York City, three in Harlem and three in mid-town Manhattan. He said the women earned $200 a week, and that their individual income was between $60 and $70 a night."

"There are many more girls employed by this group," Klein said.

In connection with the arrest "various letters and other documents" were taken as evidence.

One of these documents included several pages of longhand writing allegedly by one of the conspirators, "detailing the method of choosing a victim, maintaining her and educating her in methods of her trade."

Ways to Avoid Detection.

It also contained, the Department of Justice said, "suggestions relative to avoiding the law and detection.

Government agents said a manual outlined methods to keep the women in commercialized vice. These included having the women arrested on false charges; transporting them to cities in foreign countries where they do not speak the language; involving them in debt; and obtaining police protection for them.

ESCAPED CONVICT TAKEN BACK TO MICHIGAN PENITENTIARY

Frank Shinn, Who Served as St. Louis Juror to Finish Six-Year Burglary Term.

Frank Shinn, escaped convict who was captured here last Thursday, was taken back to the Michigan penitentiary at Jackson yesterday by Sergeant Charles McDowell of the prison force.

He escaped from the prison, where he had been serving a term for burglary, six years ago. Under the name of Roy F. Nailon he married, registered here as a voter, worked for several years at the Fisher Body plant and served on the jury before which Gustav Cytron was tried last month on a charge of obtaining money under falst pretenses, and which was deadlocked. Shinn told policemen he had voted for conviction.

He was arrested because detectives noticed that his brother, a recently released convict, was wearing prison made clothes. They took both of them to headquarters for questioning.

SEATTLE SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS TEXTBOOK IS NOT UNAMERICAN

Group of Parents Complained It Was Friendly to Russia and Was Radical Literature.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 25.—The school board ruled today that a protested textbook, "Current Problems in American History," is suitable for high school use. A group of parents had complained, calling it "un-American, friendly to Soviet Russia and radical literature."

The book, by William A. Hamm and Oscar Dombrow, members of the social studies department of the Walton High School, New York, had been on the shelves for supplemental use.

Mother of Missouri Senator in Critical Condition.

WASHINGTON, April 25. — Mrs. Genevieve Bennett Clark, widow of Speaker Champ Clark and mother of Senator Bennett Champ Clark, was critically ill today in New Orleans.

Senator Clark went to New Orleans to be at his mother's bedside. Mrs. Clark, who is past 80, has been in failing health for several years. She has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Genevieve Clark Thomson, in New Orleans for several years, but until last year had returned annually to spend some time at Honey Shuck, the old Clark home at Bowling Green, Mo.

MRS. ADA L. SPRAGUE WILLS $15,000 TO THREE CHARITIES

$5000 Each to Memorial Home, Orphans' Home and Home of the Friendless.

Benevolent bequests totaling $15,000 were contained in the will of Mrs. Ada L. Sprague, filed in Probate Court yesterday. These bequests were $5000 each to the Memorial Home, 2609 South Grand boulevard, Episcopal Orphan's Home, 1711 South Grand, and Home of the Friendless, 4431 South Broadway.

Other bequests totaling $11,000 were made to various individuals, the largest being $5000 each to Mrs. Wallace Miller of Macon, Ga., and Mrs. Fulton F. Varner of Atlanta, Ga., relatives of the late Mrs. Miriam C. Stuyvesant, a close friend of Mrs. Sprague. Mrs. Ethel Sprague, widow of former Circuit Judge Harry E. Sprague, son of the testatrix, will get $500.

Stock in Central Coal & Coke Co. was bequeathed to Mrs. Hilda C. Douglas, a sister. The residue, value of which was not estimated, was left to Mrs. Eugene Raphel of Cumberland, Md., a cousin of Mrs. Sprague's late husband. The Mississippi Valley Trust Co. was appointed executor.

Mrs. Sprague, who resided at 6169 Pershing avenue, died Thursday morning. She was buried Friday in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY MUSIC FESTIVAL AWARDS

Webster Groves High School Wins Four Prizes; Normandy Girls' Glee Club First.

The Webster Groves High School orchestra, band, boys' glee club and mixed chorus won first prizes yesterday at the fourth annual invitation music fastival at Washington University. The Normandy High School girls' glee club tied with Webster Groves for first place in that competition.

Clayton was first in the orchestra and band contests for smaller high schools. Hannibal, Mo., High School won prizes in the same division with its glee clubs and mixed chorus. A concert ended the music festival last night, after 4600 pupils from 40 high schools of this area competed in various contests.

The Webster Groves High School newspaper, the Echo, won first place yesterday in a competition for high school newspapers sponsored by Washington University. McBride High School Colonnade was second and Belleville Hi-News was third.

ST. CHARLES VOTES INCREASE OF 3 CENTS IN SCHOOL TAX

Measure Defeated April 7 Carried at Special Referendum Election, 935 to 204.

A proposal to increase the St. Charles school tax rate from $1.30 on the $100 assessed valuation to $1.35 carried, 935 to 204, at a special referendum election yesterday. The election was the second this month, the proposal having been defeated April 7.

School Board members declared the $1,30 tax insufficient because of decreased property assessments and small income from fines and liquor licenses. School revenues, they said, decreased $26,000 last year.

SIKORSKY FLYING BOAT CLIMBS 20,000 FEET WITH PAYLOADS

Establishes Claim at Indicated Altitude on Two More World Records.

By the Associated Press.

STRATFORD, Conn., April 25.—The Sikorsky flying boat, S-43, climbed to an indicated height of 20,000 feet with heavy payloads today and established a claim on two more world altitude records.

The records claimed, never sought before, were for altitudes with 2000 kilograms (4410 pounds) and 1000 kilograms (2205 pounds) payloads for Class C3 amphibians.

Recently the craft rose to an indicated height of 27,950 feet and claimed two records—for absolute altitude and for altitude with a 500-kilogram payload.

The amphibian was in the air for more than an hour during today's flight, taking off at 2:02 p. m. and landing at 3:32. Capt. Boris Sergievsky, chief pilot of the Sikorsky Aviation Co., was at the controls. With him were I. I. Sikorsky, designer of the craft, and Michael Pravikoff, mechanic.

The S-43 soon will be placed in service by Pan-American Airways. It is a high-wing cabin monoplane powered by two engines capable of delivering 750 horsepower each.

TELLS OF PAYING MAN $7800 TO GET APPOINTMENT FOR HIM

Chicago Insurance Broker Accuses Paroles Officer; Latter Said to Have Confessed.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Anton S. Olson, a temporary State parole officer, was under arrest tonight, said by Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan to have confessed accepting $7800 from Fred Sanborn on the pretext he could obtain Sanborn's appointment as receiver for an insurance firm.

Moynihan said Olson, a defeated candidate for State Representative in the primary, admitted squandering the money on liquor and night clubs.

The prosecutor said Sanborn told him he met Olson in 1934, and that Olson told he could get him the receivership if Sanborn would furnish some money to "spread among the politicians at Springfield."

Sanborn, the prosecutor said, has been making contributions ever since. Sanborn is a retired insurance broker.

24 INSURANCE COMPANIES LOSE LICENSES IN OKLAHOMA

Permits of Fraternal Organizations Revoked After Governor Reorganizes State Board.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., April 25.—Licenses of 24 fraternal insurance companies doing business in Oklahoma were revoked today shortly after Gov. E. W. Marland reorganized the State board governing their activities.

The action was taken over protest of Jess G. Read, State Insurance Commissioner and board member.

Read said insurance policies now held were not affected by the order. He said it would keep the companies from selling new policies "until the matter is cleared up."

Marland has opposed licensing the companies until payment of state insurance taxes on their gross premiums.

HARRY ARTHUR BLACKWELL DIES IN NEW MEXICO

Vice-President of Blackwell-Wielandy Succumbs at 54 to Paralytic Stroke.

Harry Arthur Blackwell, vice-president of Blackwell-Wielandy Co., stationers, died Friday of a paralytic stroke at Raton, N. M., where he had gone three years ago for his health. He was 54 years old and had been a resident of St. Louis more than 40 years.

Born in Las Vegas, N. M., Mr. Blackwell came to St. Louis with his parents as a boy. He attended the old Smith Academy, and later entered business with his father in the stationery firm. He was a member of the St. Louis Country Club and the Racquet Club.

Surviving are a son, Harry A. Blackwell Jr. of Boston; a brother, Charles A. Blackwell of Long Island, N. Y., and three sisters, Mrs. Stuart Aldrich, Providence, R. I., Mrs. Jane B. Christopher, Long Beach, Cal., and Mrs. Parmley Herrick, Cleveland, O.; a daughter-in-law of the late Myron T. Herrick, who was Ambassador to France.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday or Wednesday at Carrollton, Mo., the birthplace of his parents, with burial in the family lot there.

"I like these bargain long distance rates!"

"I'spose I could grind out letters to the boy away at school—and I could use mules instead of a tractor, too. But pencils and mules look alike to me—contrary critters and hard to handle.

"What little I have to say to folks out-of-town, I say by phone nowadays. It's cheap, everything considered, especially if you call after 7 at night, or any time Sunday, when you get these new bargain rates."

Save After 7... and Sundays

It used to be the only "bargain" rates were on station-to-station calls after 7 at night.

NOW—after 7 o'clock every evening, both person-to-person* and station-to-station calls cost less, And these reduced rates are in effect all day Sunday, too.

The reductions apply to all calls to points over 100 miles distant, and to many shorter calls.

Just ask Long Distance for the new rate to any point.

DRIVER IS HELD WITHOUT BOND IN AUTO KILLING

Arrested After Collision in County in Which Man on Running Board of Other Car Loses Life.

L. C. Weaver, Negro WPA laborer, driver of an automobile which killed a passenger in another car on Lindbergh boulevard, adjoining Lambert-St. Louis Field, shortly before midnight Friday, has been held without bond in the county jail at Clayton since early yesterday.

He and six Negro companions in the coach he was driving fled to their nearby homes in Robertson after the accident, but were arrested four hours later by St. Ferdinand Township Deputy Constables. The other six were offered freedom on $1000 bail as Coroner's witnesses. The inquest will be held tomorrow.

Walter Werremeyer, 42 years old, a tree trimmer residing near St. Charles, was killed in the accident, in which Weaver and two of Werremeyer's companions were injured. Werremeyer was riding on the right running board of a sedan, with eight persons inside.

The Negroes, three of whom were women, ran away from the coach, which stopped about 20 feet away from the sedan after the accident, but one of them paused to tear off the State license plates. Close by Deputy Constables Robert Bewig, Joseph Sherman and August Baker found a "St. Louis County" metal tag, which apparently had been attached to the coach. Concluding that the occupants of this car might reside in a Negro colony at Robertson, they made a canvass of the homes there for the owner.

SAVED FROM MOB

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

WALTER JOHNSON

IN hospital at Baton Rouge, La. where he was taken after being wounded and saved from a mob. He is accused of the killing of two officers.

Denies, Then Admits He Was Driver.

At the second house they found Weaver, who is 23 years old, lying on a cot under a pile of clothing. His lip and right hand were cut and his face bruised. Denying at first that he had been in the accident, he afterwards admitted, the deputies reported, that he was driving the coach, but he denied removing the licenses. He named some of his companions and they told who the others were.

One of them, Clarence Hays, laborer, told the deputies, they said, that Weaver removed the plates, giving them to him, and that he left them at the home of a friend in Robertson. The officers recovered them at the place he mentioned.

The other Negroes are: Frank Webster, WPA laborer; Stacy Ivy, farmhand; Leslie Owens, a beauty shop employe; Heien Webster and Cora Lewis, a maid.

How Collision Occurred.

Werremeyer was one of a party of nine persons who drove from St. Charles to the airport Friday night in his truck and a sedan operated by Roy Bailey of St. Charles. Leaving the truck at the air field, the group went to a tavern a short distance north, in Robertson, and were returning in the sedan, with Bailey at the wheel, when the accident occurred.

Bailey was driving on the extreme right side of the four-lane concrete road, just south of the underpass beneath the Wabash Railway. The coach approached from the south in the same lane. Seeking to avoid collision, Bailey swerved towards the center of the road, but the coach struck the right side of the sedan, where Werremeyer was clinging.

He was thrown from the running board and suffered fractures of the skull, neck and both legs, and his chest was crushed. His wife, who was in the sedan, and Bailey suffered lacerations. Both cars were virtually demolished.

Those accompanying the Werremeyers and Bailey included Mrs. Bailey, Viola Werremeyer, Catherine and Alice Phoebus, sisters; Justin Miese and Noma Priep.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 25. J Mrs. Jane Masters Hollenbeck, daughter of Mrs. Julia McCall Masters of St. Louis and Paris, has filed suit here to divorce John F. Hollenbeck, vice-president of the Credit Life Insurance Co. of Springfield. They were married Dec. 20, 1934, in Los Angeles, Cal.

In her petition, Mrs. Hollenbeck, a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warner S. McCall, 5145 Lindell boulevard, St. Louis, charged extreme cruelty, alleging that Hollenbeck nagged and complained and called her unpleasant names.

Mrs. Hollenbeck is a graduate of Mary Institute in St. Louis. Her husband was graduated in 1933 from Princeton University, where he was a member of Campus and Triangle Clubs.

CORONER'S JURY NAMES OWNER OF LION WHICH KILLED MAN

Aiken (S. C.) Resident Who Kept Animal in Cage at Home Is in Jail.

By the Associated Press.

AIKEN, S. C., April 25.—An Aiken County Coroner's jury today named Robert L. Moyer Sr., today in the death of Olin F. Lazar, who died in an Augusta hospital this week of injuries inflicted by a caged lion owned by Moyer.

Moyer had been in jail here since shortly after Lazar died. After the inquest, Arthur Lazar, brother of the victim, swore out a warrant charging the owner of the lion with manslaughter.

Lazar was clawed when he approached the cage in which the animal was confined at Moyer's home near Ellenton. The animal had been sent to Moyer as a cub by a friend in Africa.

SOVIET CHIEFS VETO ARTIFICIAL SUPERMEN

Denounce Claims of Experimenter for 'Geniel' as 'Anti-Marxist.'

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 25.—S. Kislitzin, a state-subsidized scientist, thinks he can manufacture supermen with a special substance of his own called "geniel." The Communist party, which in effect is the government of Soviet Russia, says he can't.

The superman theory, says a party statement, is contrary to the tenets of Marxism, and the party wants to know why, when eminent scientists have been unanimous against Kislitzin's theory, the Department of Education has continues to provide Kislitzin with funds and a laboratory in Moscow State University.

Pravda, the party organ, tells the story today. During the summer of 1935 Kislitzin led an expedition into the Abkhazia district of the Caucasus, noted for the longevity of its inhabitants, to study the influence of "meridians X and Y" on the life span, pigmentation, and growth of the beard of people in the locality. As a result of this study, Kislitzin developed a new race theory, according to which racial divisions, religious ideas, and even the mental capacity of peoples are governed by sun rays.

The decomposition of light, combining with peculiarities of electromagnetic fields of the earth, Kislitzin believes, make racial characteristics permanent and inalterable. And, says Kislitzin, he has "geniel" which can be applied to human beings to speed the process. "Geniel," he says, will spur human mental processes, endow individuals with power to foretell world events and finally create a "more perfect man."

Pravda says eminent scientists publicly voice the opinion that Kislitzin's theories are illogical, but nevertheless scientific counsel of the Department of Education decided that material assistance should be granted the experimenter. Pravda complains of this and says further the department padlocked the laboratory two days before the results of the party's investigation into Kislitzin's work were to be discussed.

POPE'S BIRTHDAY PILGRIMAGE

By the Associated Press

VATICAN CITY, April 25. — The Pilgrimage Office announced today a world-wide pilgrimage to Rome to honor Pope Pius XI on his seventy-ninth birthday May 31. The pilgrimage will include a nation-wide "plebiscite of loving, applauding affection" at Rome under the supervision of the Catholic Action organization. Ceremonies planned for the event include a mass at St. Peter's and a reception at which the Pope will receive thousands of the organization's members.

FLOOD BILL GOES TO SENATE AFTER $350,000,000 CUT

Committee Lops Off $250,000,000 for Power Projects and $100,000,000 for Land and Damages.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Shorter by $350,000,000 than when the committee took it over, an omnibus flood control bill emerged today from the Senate Commerce Committee. It carries $360,000,000 for 215 strictly flood control projects.

Power development projects amounting to $250,000,000 and a potential $100,000,000 expenditure for land and damage costs were cut from the bill.

It will be reported to the Senate floor Monday and quick passage is predicted.

Weeks of wrangling in executive sessions preceded approval of the bill. The committee lopped off the $100,000,000 by voting 10 to 6 that states and local communities should pay all land and damage costs, with the Federal Government providing only the construction funds. However, where the land and damage costs exceed construction costs the Federal Government and the states would share the total expenses on a fifty-fifty basis.

Chairman Copeland on Bill.

Chairman Copeland said "there isn't one project in it that isn't a strictly flood control matter." Referring to elimination of all power projects, he said: "Power and flood control projects don't hitch. If its a power project you want reservoirs of water for power. If its flood control you want empty spaces for flood waters."

The bill, however, carries a lump sum authorization of $5,000,000 for continuation of engineering surveys of nine power-flood control projects in seven Southern, Midwest and Northwest states, and for many other new flood control surveys.

Preliminary surveys already made on the nine power projects were said to disclose possible opportunities for "useful flood control operations with economical development of hydro-electric power whenever sufficient markets to absorb such power become available."

Declaration of Policy.

A revised declaration of policy said: "It is hereby recognized that destructive floods on rivers of the United States, upsetting orderly processes and causing loss of life and property, including the erosion of lands, and impairing and obstructing navigation, highways, railroads and other channels of commerce between the states, constitute a menace to national welfare;

"That it is the sense of Congress that flood control on navigable waters or tributaries thereof is a proper activity of the Federal Government in co-operation with the states and localities thereof;

"That investigations and improvements of rivers and other waterways for flood control purposes are in the interest of the general welfare;

"That the Federal Government should improve, or participate in the improvement of navigable waters, or tributaries thereof, for flood control purposes if the benefits to whomsoever they may accrue are in excess of the estimated costs, and if the lives and social security of people are otherwise adversely affected."

River Surveys Added to Measure.

The Senate committee added to the measure authorization for the army engineers to carry out flood control surveys on more than 100 streams. Authorization for actual flood control work on these waterways would depend on recommendations by the engineers and future congressional action.

Among the streams to be surveyed were:

Buffalo Bayou, Trinity River, Neuces River, Texas; Caddo Lake dam and Jefferson-Shreveport waterway, Louisiana and Texas; North Fabius River, Salt River and Weldon River, Missouri; Marias des Cygnes River, Normaton River, Republican River, Smoky Hill River and Verdigris River, all in Kansas, and Spoon River, Illinois.

ST. LOUIS CLINICS TO OPEN CONFERENCE WEEK TOMORROW

Daily Programs to Be Given at Hospitals, Dinner for Visiting Physicians.

The annual conference of the St. Louis Clinics will be held this week, beginning tomorrow. Many of the members are on the faculties of the medical schools of the two local universities, and the conference is held to demonstrate the medical activities in the various clinics and hospitals of St. Louis and the universities.

There will be a course of lectures and clinics. The daily programs will be held at various St. Louis hospitals. On Saturday afternoon there will be a scientific program at the St. Louis Medical Society Auditorium. Four evening programs will be held at the society's building, with a dinner for visiting physicians Thursday.

Medical Reserve Corps men of the Army and Navy will take part in the conference.

MARGARET KELLY FUNERAL

Former Classmates to Attend Services Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Miss Margaret Mary Kelly, who died of a throat infection Thursday at St. Mary's Hospital, will be at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kelly, 307 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, and at Holy Redeemer Church at Webster Groves. Burial will be at SS. Peter and Paul's Cemetery.

Miss Kelly, 22 years old, was graduated last June from Maryville College of the Sacred Heart, and her class will attend the funeral in a body. Suffering with a streptococcus infection, she was taken to the hospital last Sunday. She underwent three blood transfusions. Surviving are her parents and a brother and sister.

WAGNER HOUSING BILL 'PRACTICAL, FEASIBLE'

Assistant PWA Administrator Says Participation of Private Capital Is Encouraged.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Horatio B. Hackett, Assistant WPA Administrator, told the Senate Labor Committee today the $876,000,000 Wagner housing bill was "practical and feasible."

In his testimony Hackett took occasion to reply to Peter Grimm, former assistant to Secretary Morgenthau, who yesterday told the committee that activities undertaken by WPA were unsuccessful.

Hackett said the seven limited dividend corporations established by WPA were in good financial shape despite Grimm's assertion they were not meeting their obligations to the Government.

He said his support for the Wagner proposal to empower the Federal Government to make loans and grants to local housing authorities over a four-year period was based, in large part, on means to be used for "the progressive transference of responsibility to local agencies." The plan, he said, "encourages" the participation of private capital.

Sees "Political Gesture."

Ben Marsh of the People's lobby said the bill was a "political gesture" and would result in excessive profit-making on the part of propertied interests on the sale of real estate to local and national governments.

Coleman Woodbury of the National Association of Housing Officials described British housing programs, in an effort to show that Government subsidization of home building was beneficial.

"The general concensus of the best opinion developed by Federal agencies, housing or otherwise, private associations, self-appointed committees and experts," Hackett said, "is that somewhere around 750,000 dwelling units will have to be built by someone each year for the next 10 years. Two-thirds of our families are indicated as low income groups. If we do not provide them with adequate shelter, these United States will be guilty of the grave accusation that it is one of the most backward of nations in caring for the welfare of its citizens.

Present Program.

"The present program now under construction by the (PWA) housing division approximates 25,000 units at a cost of approximately $140,000,000; a drop in the bucket in the face of the need. Even without provision to prevent conflict between programs, interference is ridiculous.

"Private capital must be attracted to housing for the lower income groups by investment in a public program, Federal at first, and then local with Federal aid as soon as suitable agencies become qualified. Municipalities must help by accepting a reasonable municipal service charge in lieu of taxes, and, when financially able, by helping to write down the cost of slum land. Private builders may be aided by mortgage insurance for the middle income groups. Higher income groups can be aided by stabilized finance."

ACCUSED MIDWIFE GIVES BOND

Named by Mrs. Catherine Tessmer Before Her Death.

A midwife named by Mrs. Catherine Tessmer before her death from peritonitis Friday night at City Hospital as the person who performed an illegal operation on her April 14 surrendered yesterday at the Wyoming Street Police Station and was booked "suspected of manslaughter." She was released on $5000 bond and was instructed to appear at the Coroner's inquest tomorrow.

Mrs. Tessmer, 31 years old, was the wife of Frank Tessmer, an automobile mechanic, of 1959A Utah street. Five children survive.

LOSER SEEKS VOTE RECOUNT

Dr. L. D. Darner Contests Madison County Coroner Nomination.

Dr. L. D. Darner of Granite City, who was defeated by 93 votes by Francis J. Lahey of Madison for the Republican nomination for Coroner of Madison County in the primary election April 14, filed a suit in County Court at Edwardsville yesterday contesting the nomination and asking for a recount.

General allegations of fraud were made, but Dr. Darner did not specify any particular instances. He received 5493 votes and Lahey 5586 in the official return. Judge W. A. Trares set the case for preliminary hearing next Thursday.

PUERTO RICO GOVERNOR DENIES ISLAND UNREST

Has No Comment on Independence Bill; Agrees Election Reforms Are Needed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Steering clear of the controversy stirred by the proposal of Senator Tydings (Dem.), Maryland, to let Puerto Rico vote on independance, Gov. Blanton Winship today said the territory's Government was "on an even keel" and that its election in November will be fair and without violence.

The Puerto Rican executive declined any direct comment on the independence plebiscite bill, recalling he also had avoided such discussion when holding administrative or advisory posts in the Philippines, Cuba and elsewhere.

But he approved election reforms also proposed by Tydings for the territory and said a measure along that line was pending in the Insular Legislature when it adjourned yesterday in the midst of political turmoil stirred by the independence issue.

"We must have a good election law, the Governor said. "If the Legislature did not enact one I will call it back into session. If we can't get the law one way we will another."

Winship asserted the "ordinary forces of the Government are sufficient to handle any situation that is likely to come up," and added: "If they think they can shoot up things and cause a lot of trouble they are mistaken."

"Misapprehension exists about the situation in Puerto Rico," Winship added. "The assassination in February of Col. E. Francis Riggs, the Chief of Police, by extremists was an isolated crime of the sort that might have occurred in any State.

"The record shows no strikes of importance have occurred in the last two years. Holdups are unknown. I go all over the island without danger and members of my family travel everywhere accompanied only by a chauffeur.

"There are ill-disposed people there as in any state, and they are more vocal than the others and so attract more attention. The Governor said much of the relief funds sent to Puerto Rico should be charged to the states inasmuch as "probably 80 per cent of the materials used are sent from the continent." Winship said he was "delighted" the Farm Administration ruled additional sugar, the island's chief crop, might be produced this year, because a drouth threatened to reduce the output next year.

RUSSIAN EDITOR HELD IN PARIS

Reported to Be Under Arrest on Espionage Charge.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 25.—Nikolas Alexeieff, a Russian rufugee who is editor of the Rusian language newspaper, The Renaissance, was reported to have been arrested today on a charge of espionage.

Police declined to confirm the charges but Alexeieff's papers said he had been taken into custody after his home was searched.

TAX RATES UNDER NEW ILLINOIS RELIEF PLAN

St. Clair County Property Would Be Subject to 50 Cents a Hundred, Madison to 55.

Property in St. Clair County would be subject to a tax levy of 50 cents a year on each $100 of valuation, based on unemployment relief costs for last month, if a plan to issue county relief bonds, now under consideration, became a tSate law.

The bond proposal was made last Wednesday at Springfield, Ill., at a conference between legislators and Gov. Horner, after the House and Senate, in special session to consider ways of raising additional relief funds, failed to agree on any measure. In the form of bills, the county relief bond plan, is expected to be presented to the House, which will reconvene tomorrow night. Both House and Senate temporarily adjourned after the bond proposal was made. It has the approval of Gov. Horner.

Madison County property, under the plan, would be subject to a levy at the rate of 55 cents, and Monroe County, largely agricultural and with less unemployment, would be subject to a rate of 6 cents, based on March figures. St. Clair and Madison counties are largely industrial.

The county relief bond proposal, as explained at the Spriingfield conference by DeWitt Billman, executive secretary of the Legislative Reference Bureau, who was to prepare the measure, provides for creating new municipal corporations in the 101 Illinois counties, consisting of boards of supervisors or commissioners, who would have power to isue bonds to be retired by property taxes.

Share Regulated by Need.

Proponents of the plan, designed to make each county share relief costs in proportion to its quota of unemployed, emphasized that the entire tax levy would not have to be paid in one year, since the bonds would be retired over la long period, and that the actual levy in many counties would necessarily have to be small each year because of the constitutional limit of indebtedness and restrictions on bonding power.

St. Clair county, with 157,775 population, had 12,580 unemployed on relief in March, at a total cost of $93,000. The county's share of the State retail sales tax was $40,000, leaving a balance of $53,000, which was pair from a February relief appropriation by the Legislature and now exhausted. It is this difference between the total cost of relief in each county and the income from the sales tax that each count yis expected to furnish under the proposed bond plan.

As the total assessed valuation in St. Clair county for 1936 is $128,181,750, and the March cost for relief not taken form the sales tax was $53,000, or an estimated total of $636,000 for a year, the 50-cent tax would be required to make up the difference if levied in one year.

Madison County, with 143,830 population, had 10,982 unemployed on relief in March at a total cost of $78,000. It received $35,000 from the sales tax fund, leaving $43,000, or approximately $516,000 in a year that would have to be made up from property taxes, based on the March figures.

Since the total assessed value for 1936 was $92,918,389, the relief tax levy would be at the annual rate of 55 cents on $100 valuation to provide an income of $516,000 a year.

Monroe County, with a population of 12,369, had only 366 persons on relief at a total cost of $1199 in March. Its share of the sales tax was $532, leaving $8004 a year to be raised from property taxes, based on the March figures.

As the total assessed valuation for 1936 is $13,736,517, the levy under the proposed law would be fixed at the rate of 6 cents on $100 for a year to raise $8004.

Attitude of Farm Bloc.

The farm block in the Illinois Legislature has supported legislation to make each county bear its proportionate share of the relief cost not provided from the sales tax, while most representatives from Cook County and other industrial sections have opposed such measures, and favor a State-wide tax on property to be levied equally in all counties. Farm bloc leaders also have supported legislation to transfer relief administration from the State Emergency Relief Commission to counties and townships.

The result has been a tangle which threatens to close all relief offices next Friday.

St. Clair County property also pays a "pauper relief tax" of 16.3 cents on $100 valuation. It is used to support institutions, to defray hospitalization for paupers, and similar expenses. In Madison County, the "pauper relief tax" is 22 cents.

POLICE RADIO SYSTEM TO BE INSTALLED IN BELLEVILLE

City Council Decides in Caucus to Vote for Station and Car Equipment.

The Belleville City Council, meeting yesterday in an informal caucus, decided to vote in favor of an appropriation of $5000 for the installation of a police radio system. The appropriation will be approved when the Council considers the budget at its regular meeting May 4.

The radio system will include a central broadcasting station and receiving equipment in three scout cars. The proposition was approved by a vote of 9 to 4.

YOUTH ADMINISTRATION AID SAYS IDLE SPELLS TROUBLE

C. W. Taussig, Advisory Chairman, Tells Cleveland Civic Forum of Need for Jobs.

CLEVELAND, O., April 25.—Charles William Taussig, advisory chairman of the National Youth Administration, warned a civic forum here today that "5,000,000 idle youth spells trouble."

Taussig said "no government can long endure that fails to make it possible for its youth to earn a living.

"When we were young we were taught that thrift and virtue brought success. Today it would be foolhardy to dare speak thus to unemployed youth. Hard work? Yes, but where? Thrift? Yes, but with what?

Taussig urged that education give all the facts about government, "including the whole sordid story of spoils system, ward healers, lobbies and corruption."

He spoke at the City Club Forum.

FLYER MAKES 24 TAIL SPINS

E. C. Hedler Claims Record After Feat at South Bend.

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 25.—A world's record for tail spins was reported set at Bendix Municipal Airport this afternoon by E. C. Hedler in a bi-plane built especially for aeronautical acrobatics when he completed 24½ turns. The previous record was 22 spins.

Hedler's feat was witnessed by 12 witnesses whose affidavits will be sent to the National Aeronautical Association for recognition.

R. A. TAFT'S GOLD BOND CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Claims Tribunal Does Not Pass on Question; Ruling Unlikely Before October Term.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The Court of Claims asked the Supreme Court today to decide whether the United States should pay Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati $1.07 in gold, or legal tender currency as interest on his $50 gold bond.

Arguments on the case were heard several weeks ago by the Court of Claims. By its ruling today, it passed the question on to the high tribunal. A ruling by the Supreme Court usually is obligatory in such cases. It is not expected before the October term, however.

The case was filed by the Dixie Terminal Co., headed by Taft, against the United States after the son of the former President had been refused payment in gold under the gold devaluation act.

Accepted Invitation From Junior Chamber of Commerce.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn, April 25.—Allen Whitfield of Des Moines, Ia., president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, said today President Roosevelt had accepted an invitation to address the national convention here, June 4, unless developments make it necessary for him to cancel a proposed Southern tour.

Whitfield was here to confer with Memphis members on convention plans.

Organ Recital Today.

Paul Friess, organist at St. Michael and St. George's Episcopal Church, Clayton, will give a recital at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 6518 Michigan avenue. Hugh McClymont will sing two songs, and there will be several choir numbers.

Want More POWER?

"If you had two cars that were precisely alike—except that one was equipped with Champion Spark Plugs and one with some other brand—and you drove each of these cars every other day—you would soon learn that the car equipped with Champions would perform better, give better gasoline mileage, and operate more dependably.

Preferred at home—preferred abroad. The choice of racing champions for 12 years. The choice of motoring millions for 25 years.

THE NEW FORD CONVERTIBLE SEDAN WITH BUILT-IN TRUNK

"V·8" IS THE MARK OF THE MODERN CAR

THE word Ford has always meant dependable service and economy. V-8 has always meant fine-car performance. Put them together and you get Ford V-8—a modern car with a background of proved reliability.

Today's Ford is more than new in appearance. The whole car is built for 1936. Here are five features that show its advanced design and extra value.

V-8 Engine—Still the newest motor in the low-price field. Gives you modern acceleration, power and smoothness—increased motoring enjoyment. Center-Poise Riding—Modern weight distribution. Greater comfort, front and rear. You ride near the center of this car instead of over the axles. Safety Glass throughout in all bodies at no additional cost. Big, Six-inch Tires for greater comfort and safety. Distinctive steel wheels. Sixteen Body Types—A body style for every taste and need, including the new four-passenger Club Cabriolet and Convertible Sedan with built-in trunk.

It's altogether modern, this alert, spirited Ford V-8 for 1936—there is nothing comparable to it within hundreds of dollars of its price.

FORD V·8 FOR 1936

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, APRIL 26, 1936.

KSD Goes on Different Schedule This Afternoon Effective Until Sept. 26

News Broadcasts Among Those Affected by New York City Going on Daylight Saving Time—Several Studio Features Moved in Addition to General Shifting of Chain Periods—Amos 'n' Andy at 9 P. M. Hereafter.

MANY changes in KSD's program schedule for the next five months, beginning today, have been necessitated by New York City's changing to daylight saving time. As a rule, network programs on KSD will be heard here an hour earlier than heretofore. One exception is the Amos and Andy sketches, which will be broadcast at 9 o'clock nights, Monday through Friday. Several new programs from KSD's studios are listed, and some others have been moved to different periods or to other days.

Kathryn Turney Garten's program on KSD today will begin at 2 o'clock and continue until 2:45, when the Community Forum will be broadcast. Miss Garten plans to base her program on "The Unknown Brahms," by Robert Haven Schauffler, and to intersperse excerpts from Brahms' Second and Fourth Symphonies.

KSD's concert series featuring music by Frank Black's concert orchestra and soloists of note has been moved to the 8:30-9 o'clock period Monday nights.

KSD is broadcasting a new series of high quality transcription programs entitled "Musical Moments," which feature the music of Rubinoff and his violin, his orchestra, Jan Peerce, the tenor, and other soloists. The time is 9:45 Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

News Broadcasts.

BEGINNING this afternoon, KSD's schedule of news broadcasts will be somewhat changed, and will be as follows: Sunday—12:30 noon and 5:20 p. m., A. P. News; Monday through Saturday—8 a. m., Press Radio; 9 a. m., A. P. News; 11:00 a. m., Post-Dispatch Headlines; 1:15 p. m., A. P. News; 2:30 p. m., A. P. News; 5 p. m., A. P. News.

KSD's market news schedule Monday through Friday is: 12:10 noon and 1:20 p. m.; Saturday, 12:10 p. m.

When Richard Himber and his orchestra move to KSD at 8 o'clock Friday night, the guest soloist will be Lanny Ross of KSD's Thursday night Show Boat. Ross will sing "My Romance," from "Jumbo." Stuart Allen will continue singing on the program.

Donald Brian, the original prince in Lehar's "The Merry Widow," is to sing "Give My Regards to Broadway," on Ted Hammerstein's program tomorrow night. W. C. Handy, Negro composer of "St. Louis Blues," will lead an orchestra in playing the piece.

Sports Review Change.

TODAY'S Sports with Stockton and Conzelman has been moved to the 9:15 to 9:30 period Tuesday through Saturday, and on Sunday night will be broadcast at 9 o'clock. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights, this sports program which features J. Roy Stockton of the Post-Dispatch's sports staff, and James Conzelman, coach of Washington University, will follow Amos and Andy.

KSD's Vic and Sade serial is now scheduled at 1:30 p. m. Monday through Friday. The O'Neills Family may be heard at 1:45 on the same five days. The Girl Alone sketches will be broadcast hereafter at 2:30, and Forever Young at 1 p. m. Uncle Ezra and his "radio station" will be a KSD feature at 5:15 p. m. Wednesdays and Fridays. The Nickelodeon program is listed on KSD at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Back on KSD, at 2 p. m. daily except Saturday and Sunday, is the always interesting Women's Radio Review, with Claudine MacDonald as mistress of ceremonies and its array of speakers and entertainers of note.

New KSD Programs.

ANOTHER new KSD series, at 4:30 Sunday afternoons, beginning today, will come from Dallas, Tex. It will be directed by Alexander Keese, a Southern musician of note, and will bring the comedy and singing of "Sugah and Her Boy Friends," special sound effects, dialect episodes and songs by a harmony trio. After June 6, this program will come from a special studio on the Texas Centennial Exposition grounds.

An extra dramatic and musical show will open on KSD at 8:45 Tuesday night as a weekly feature. It is entitled "Colonel Courtesy," and is broadcast with music by an ensemble of piano, 'cello, violins and muted trumpet and singing by Tennessee, who next Tuesday night will feature Carrie Jacobs Bond's "Just A-Wearying for You." The principal character is cast as the old Southern gentleman type, soft-spoken and reminiscently philosophical. Tennessee will sing also at her regular time, 1:15 p. m. Sunday, with orchestra.

The Washington University faculty educational series, which was concluded last Friday, will be resumed in the fall.

The Listening Post is now at 5:25 Sundays on KSD.

KSD's fine transcription programs featuring Harry Richman, an orchestra and singers of note that have been broadcast Wednesdays and Fridays are now scheduled at 9:45 Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Coming on KSD

IT is stated that Bing Crosby surely will sing with Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra on his KSD program next Thursday night. Stokowski and the orchestra will be in one of the NBC Hollywood studios awaiting the signal to "cut in."

Igor Sikorsky, the noted airplane inventor and builder, will speak on "Problems of the Trans-oceanic Airplane" at 4 p. m. Saturday on

Here and There on the Air

H. G. Wells Speaks From London at Noon Today—Richard Barthelmess and Sally Eilers in Radio Theater.

By J. L. S.

H. G. WELLS, famous British author, who wrote the story for the movie, "Things to Come," and Raymond Massey, who played the leading role in the film, will take part in the Magic Key program at 12 noon today on KWK. Wells will be speaking in London, and Massey will play his part in the NBC Radio City studios in a scene from the picture. Also on the program will be Honeyboy and Sassafras, the comedians, music by an orchestra led by Meredith Wilson, playing in San Francisco, and a pick-up at a festival in Madrid, Spain.

Ralph Kirberry, the "Dream Singer," will have his own program on the WJZ net at 5:15 p. m. today, tomorrow and Wednesday.

Andre Kostelanetz and his dance orchestra; Kay Thompson and her girls' chorus; Ray Heatherton, the baritone, and the Rhythm Singers will begin a new weekly series on KMOX at 8 p. m. Friday. Miss Thompson is a native of St. Louis.

It is stated that there will be no change for the time being in the Wednesday concerts featuring Lily Pons of the Metropolitan Opera. But the Saturday night concerts that featured Nino Martini have been dropped.

Richard Barthelmess and Sally Eilers, the movie actors, are billed in "Under Cover" for the Radio Theater at 7 p. m. tomorrow on KMOX.

Niela Goodelle, the Broadway singer and pianist, and Joe Lillie's orchestra are scheduled at 5 p. m. Mondays and Fridays on the WJZ chain.

Mrs. Jouett Shouse will preside at a meeting of the National Women's Trade Union League that will be broadcast at 5:15 p. m. Monday, May 4, on the WJZ net. The meeting topic will be "Why Should Women in Industry Organize?"

Bennie Rubin, the comedian; the Keller Sisters and Lynch are billed with Ben Bernie for Tuesday night.

A concert in which 100 pianos, each with two pianists on it, and 25 other pianos played by one person each, is set for 3:30 p. m. next Sunday on the WEAF chain.

Father Coughlin Concludes Radio Addresses Today.

FATHER COUGHLIN'S address at 2 o'clock this afternoon on KWK is to conclude his current broadcasts, it is announced.

A special Lum and Abner program is listed on KWK at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

KSD's Memory Game program on Saturdays will be broadcast hereafter at 6:45 p. m. instead of 6 o'clock.

Otaker Marak, a tenor who has sung leading roles in opera at Covent Garden, London; Berlin, Madrid and other European cities, will make his NBC network debut with Walter Blaufuss' orchestra during the Farm and Home Hour at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday on KWK.

Irene Rich opened a new serial, "Lady Counsellor," on KWK and the WJZ net Friday night. Instead of playing a different character each week, she will be cast throughout the series as "Irene Davis," a successful woman lawyer. However, each episode will be a complete play.

June and Jerry will sing today on KMOX at 12 noon. David Ross's Poet's Gold program is set for 11:30 this morning on KMOX. The Salt Lake Tabernacle choir and organ concert will be carried at 9:30 this morning by KMOX.

Dorothy Thompson to Be Announcer for National Conventions.

DOROTHY THOMPSON, whose column is a Post-Dispatch feature, will be among the NBC commentator-announcers for the national political conventions. Otherwise, the announcers will be about the same as for past convention broadcasts. Among them will be Graham McNamee and Ted Husing. There will be a single microphone pick-up system in both convention halls, but each network will have its own separate master control booth and special studios for broadcasting speeches off the floors of the conventions.

A dramatization of experiences of Gordon Enders as an explorer in Asia will be carried under the title, "Tibet—the Last Outpost of Romance," at 6:30 p. m. today by the CBS net and KMOX.

Victor McLaglen and Arthur Tracey, the Street Singer, are billed with Mary Pickford at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

Lord Horder, physician in ordinary to King Edward of England, will speak on "Let's Have Less Noise," at 8:45 p. m. Wednesday on the CBS net.

Bette Davis will be featured in the Hollywood Hotel period at 7 p. m. Friday.

KSD Will Carry Rapee Symphony Concert Tonight

Florence Easton Soloist at 8 O'Clock—Times of Musical Broadcasts Changed—Last N. Y. Philharmonic Concert at 1 P. M.

CHANGES in the NBC networks program schedules make it possible for KSD to begin at 8 o'clock tonight to broadcast the Sunday Erno Rapee symphony concerts featuring soloists of international reputation. Hitherto it has been possible for St. Louis listeners to hear these concerts only by tuning to distant stations. The soloist in tonight's inaugural of these concerts on KSD will be Florence Easton, who followed years at the Metropolitan Opera with many appearances in the opera at Covent Garden, London, and returned the past season to fresh acclaim at the "Met."

Virtually all of the more important network concerts will be broadcast an hour earlier today and hereafter. For example, the New York Philharmonic concert will begin at 1 o'clock, KSD's Fireside Recital at 5:30, the Victor Kolar concert at 7 o'clock and Erno Rapee's concert, on KSD for the first time, at 8 p. m.

Listeners will have to tune out of town CBS chain stations for the second half of the New York Philharmonic concert, as KMOX schedules list it only from 1 to 2 o'clock. Listeners can try WBBM, Chicago (770 kilocycles); WHAS (820), WCCO (810), WOWO (1160), KMBC (950) for the second hour of this concert.

Beginning next Sunday, part of the two-hour period on the CBS net occupied for months by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra will be taken by an hour-long concert entitled "Everybody's Music." Howard Barlow will open the series with his symphony orchestra and at least 26 programs are scheduled.

Today's concert schedule includes: 8:30 a. m. on KWK, Walberg Brown string ensemble, 8:30 a. m. on WEAF net, premiere of the operetta, "Who Discovered America?" written by Keith Crosby Brown, a Boston musician, as a musical political satire in the Gilbert and Sullivan manner. 8:35 a. m. on KMOX, Alexander Semmler's Beethoven sonata recital. 9:30 a. m. on KMOX, Salt Lake City Tabernacle choir and organ. 12:30 a. m. on KWK, Radio City concert. 12 noon on WEAF net, concert from Warsaw, Poland. 2:15 on KMOX, the French Trio.

1 p. m. on CBS net, 2 p. m. on KMOX, New York Philharmonic orchestra's final concert for the season, Toscanini conducting, possibly his last broadcast in this country; Mozart's G-minor Symphony, Beethoven's "Leonore" overture No. 3, and Schubert's Seventh Symphony. 1:45 p. m. on WJZ net, Henri Deering, pianist. 4 p. m. on WJZ net, Grenadier Guards' Band, playing in Montreal.

5:30 p. m. on KSD, Fireside Recital; Siguard Nilssen, basso, and Willie Morris, soprano. 7 p. m. on KMOX, Victor Kolar's symphony orchestra and Percy Grainger, pianist. 8 p. m. on KSD, Erno Rapee's symphony orchestra and Florence Easton, soprano.

Richard Crooks, the Metropolitan Opera tenor, will sing in KSD's concert at 6:30 tomorrow evening. Shandor, the violinist, is scheduled on KWK at 10 p. m. tomorrow and at the same time Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Tuesday will bring two special concerts. The first, at 1:35 p. m. on the WJZ net, will come from Turin,

Net Programs an Hour Earlier, Beginning Today

Sweeping Rearrangement Also Results in Some Assignments of Established Series to Other Days or Times—A Few Exceptions Made—National Farm and Home Hour Will Be Continued at 11:30 A. M.

CERTAIN programs on the WEAF, WJZ and CBS networks are made exceptions to the general rule that today brings an advance of an hour in broadcasting time. One of these is the National Farm and Home Hour, which will not be affected, but will continue to be carried at 11:30 a. m. by the WJZ chain and KWK.

As noted elsewhere, Amos and Andy will change from 6 to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday on the WEAF chain and KSD. The Singing Lady programs will be continued at 4:30 p. m. on WGN, Chicago, but will go to 3:30 and 4:30 p. m. on certain network stations.

At least 10 CBS network programs are now scheduled on different days than in the past or at times other than would be expected under the hour ahead rule.

The Goldberg Family is now listed at 9 a. m. on Eastern stations and 12 noon on KMOX.

The Milky Way now comes at 10:15 a. m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Lazy Dan will be heard hereafter at 6 p. m.

Frank Parker's program is now a Saturday feature, at 5:30 p. m.

Mark Warnow's group will play at 3:30 p. m. Fridays.

Ted Malone's Through the Bookends poetry period is set for 11:45 a. m. Monday through Friday.

The Women's Place series, featuring Grand Duchess Marie and other noted women, takes the 8:15 a. m. spot Monday through Saturday.

Renfrew of the Mounted is listed at 9:15 p. m. Monday through Friday. But KMOX schedules this program at 4:45.

The Rhythm Boys quartet has changed to 9:15 a. m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

A dramatization of Amelia B. Edward's story, "The Phantom Coach," will be performed in the "Terror by Night" series at 8 p. m. today on KMOX.

An appeal to youth to refrain from fast and reckless driving will be made in a "Youth Week" broadcast at 1:30 p. m. Thursday on the CBS net. Several actual traffic accidents will be reviewed, and a scene in a Chicago court will be covered.

H. V. Kaltenborn, the CBS chain news commentator, observed his fifteenth anniversary in radio last Tuesday.

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman will resume his Sunday Forum symposium at 11:30 next Sunday morning. This Forum has been an NBC network feature since 1928. It will replace Dr. Daniel W. Poling's National Youth Conference in May, June and July.

Music Magic, featuring Joan Blaine, actress, and Cyril Pitts, tenor, goes from Thursday to the 8:30-9 p. m. Friday period.

The listener who is adjudged to have written the best 1000-word letter on "Peace and Party Platforms" will be invited to speak during the America's Town Meeting broadcast Thursday night, May 14. The competition will close Friday, May 1.

Ten broadcasts from the new British liner Queen Mary are planned by the NBC from the ship's sailing date, May 27, until its arrival in New York harbor. The first will cover the ship's departure from Southampton.

Radio visits to buildings, monuments and landmarks in Washington will be WJZ net features at 9 a. m. Fridays, beginning this week. In the opening broadcast, listeners will be taken to the Washington Monument. (Possibly on KWK at 9:05.)

Nellie Revell's interviews will be carried by the WJZ net at 1 p. m. Tuesdays, starting May 5.

"The Widow's Sons," a serial by Lula Vollmer, author of the stage show, "Sun-up," is scheduled on the WEAF net at 2 p. m. Sundays, starting today.

Echoes from the Orchestra Pit is the title of a new hour-long program at 6 p. m. Sundays on the WJZ net, which will recall songs and stage personalities of the past. Emil Polak's orchestra; Annette Hastings, soprano; Ralina Zarova, a Russian singer, and a quartet will be featured.

WLW's Follies program is now scheduled at 8:30 Monday nights. Its big Revue program has been changed to 5:30 p. m. Sundays and 8 p. m. Tuesdays.

Two of KSD's Programs Voted Best in Classes

TWO KSD features—Rudy Vallee's Thursday night variety hour and the Jessica Dragonette concert on Friday night—won the awards by the Women's National Radio Committee for the best non-musical and the best light music programs on the air. The committee adjudged America's Town Meeting the best of the educational broadcasts and "Wilderness Road" the best children's program.

In the non-musical class, KSD's One Man's Family, Vic and Sade and Forever Young, and the Today's Children, were ranked as the best of the dramatic serials; Leslie Howard led in the vote in the drama division, with the Radio Guild second and the Radio Theater third, and Jack Benny led in the vote on comedy, KSD's Fred Allen was a close second, and Burns and Allen ran third.

News commentators were voted on under the non-musical heading, Gabriel Heater, Edwin C. Hill and Boake Carter leading in this subclassification.

In the light music classification, Fred Waring's program was ranked second after the Dragonette concerts.

No award was made in the serious music classification, Mme. Yolande Mero Irion, advisory chairman of the committee, said, because "none of the features considered conformed to the standards established by the committee." However, honorable mention in this field was given to the Erno Rapee Sunday night concerts, the Victor Kolar symphony concerts and Frank Black's string symphony.

Runners-up in the children's program class were said by Mme. Mero-Iron to have been Walter Damrosch's Music Appreciation Hour and Irene Wicker's Singing Lady. Honorable mention for educational programs went to the Wednesday, the Curtis symphony concert will be carried by KMOX at 2:15 p. m., and there will be a concert by the NBC symphony at 7:30 p. m. on KWK. Lily Pons will sing at 8 p. m. on KMOX.

Thursday, there will be the usual concert by the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, at 6 p. m., Charles Hackett, the opera tenor, will be the soloist.

Friday, at 3 p. m., the WJZ net will carry a concert of Virginia folk music sung and played by musicians of the region in the Virginia State Choral Festival in the Capitol Square, in Richmond. A Music Guild concert is set for 7:15 p. m. Friday on KWK.

Saturday, at 9 a. m. KMOX will broadcast a symphony concert from Cincinnati. At 2:30 p. m., the WEAF net will carry a Virginia State Choral Festival performance of Schubert's Mass in E-flat. Bruna Castagna's concert will be on KMOX at 5 p. m. KWK schedules a piano recital by Henri Deering at 6:15 p. m. Saturday and a concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at 7:15 p. m.

Gianini Dusolina is billed as soloist with Victor Kolar's orchestra next Sunday night.

Kentucky Derby Story on CBS Net At 5:15 P. M. Saturday.

BRYAN FIELD, sports announcer, will conduct another Churchill Downs pre-Derby program at 3:45 p. m. Tuesday on the CBS net. Field and Bob Trout will be at the microphones for the same network for the Kentucky Derby broadcast at 5:15 p. m. Saturday. (Probably on KMOX.)

A 20-minute account of the bouts in London between British and American amateur boxers, the climax of the Golden Gloves contests in this country and England, will be broadcast at 3 p. m. Tuesday, May 5, on the WJZ network. A British sportsman of note will be at the microphone.

Network News, Studio Gossip.

GENIA FONARIOVA, the Russian who once was one of radio's best-known singers, will have a series with Josef Honti's orchestra on the WJZ chain at 1 a. m. Saturday . . . Mario Cozzi, the baritone, will begin weekly recitals at 6:15 p. m. Friday on the WJZ net . . . Jack and Loretta Clemens, heard often in the past on KSD, now are billed on the WJZ net at 11 a. m. Monday to Friday . . . Veloz and Yolanda, the dancing team now in Chicago, are to be featured with George Hamilton's orchestra at 10:30 p. m. Saturday and also May 9. After May 16, they will be billed with Henry King's orchestra . . . Jeannie Elkins, a 4-year-old mite in the movies, who plays the piano well enough to arouse the interest of the Holsman Sisters of St. Louis, will have a part in Milton J. Cross' children's program this morning. She played in a network broadcast two weeks or so ago.

Ethel Shutta and George Olsen's Saturday Celebrity Night program will go off the air after the broadcast on May 16. . . . Jack Benny will begin his fifth year of broadcasting next Sunday. . . . Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson are being considered for Phil Baker and Hal Kemp's program while the comedian is on vacation starting in June. . . . Ted Fiorito may succeed Lennie Hayton within a month on the CBS net's Friday night show. . . . Mary Pickford has agreed to carry until June 23 on her Tuesday night radio show, originally scheduled to end May 5.

Richard Crooks, the tenor, expects to depart on May 27 for a prolonged tour of New Zealand and Australia where he has engagements for 50-odd concerts.... When the sponsors of KSD's Little Orphan Annie serial received a letter about the program from an association of mothers in Linden, Pa., they engaged several child psychologists to go to Pennsylvania and confer with the women. This is in line with a growing willingness to defer to the wishes of mothers as to programs for the young. . . . Bert Lahr may be back on the air before long. . . Johnny the Call Boy of KSD's Leo Reismann programs is John Roventini, only 43 inches tall but a real radio star. . . . Allyn Joslyn, a featured player in KSD's Court of Human Relations and now starring on Broadway in "Boy Meets Girl," will go on the retired list for several weeks. He broke his right leg twice in accidents last year, and the broken bones failed to knit properly. So he has to have it broken again and lie abed until the bones are sound again. . . . Harry Richman, who is featured in one of KSD's high-quality transcription programs, is being considered for a network series. . . .

KSD Goes on Different Time Schedule Today

KSD. Sikorsky is expected to tell of the perils and difficulties encountered by pilots and aviation personnel on the regularly scheduled trips over the Pacific, South Atlantic, Carribean and other hazardous stretches of water.

Gloria Swanson's appearance with Smith Ballew on KSD, scheduled for last night, has been postponed until next Saturday.

Lonel Barrymore and little Cora Sue Collins will do "The Mad Hatter's Party" from "Alice in Wonderland" tomorrow night on Sigmund Romberg's program.

Research is said to have disclosed that Dorothy Bows really set a high note record on Maj. Bowes' program last Sunday when she sang the D, an octave and a note above High C. She said at the time that she believed Jennie Lind had sung the same note, but records available indicate that the Swedish Nightingale's highest note was three notes below the one sung by Miss Bows. A letter written by Mozart, the composer, when he was a lad of 14, noted that he had heard the soprano, Agujari, sing the B, a note and a half below the note reached by Miss Bows.

Among network programs on KSD are: Waltz Favorites, light music by Leopold Spitalny's orchestra, at 12:45 noon Mondays; Josef Littau's concert orchestra, at 9:15 a. m. Mondays; Terri la Franconi and Carol Deis, with salon orchestra, at 9:15 a. m. Thursday; Anne Jamison, soprano, at 1 p. m. Sundays, starting May 3.

Ben Bernie will be the "guest skipper" on Lanny Ross' Show Boat next Thursday night.

Twin Set and Aerial System for Short Wave Reception for Amateurs.

DEVELOPMENT of a new receiver designed to prevent fading in short wave radio reception, by making a strong signal "kill" a weak one, is announced at headquarters of the American Radio Relay League, the Associated Press reports. The set was invented by James J. Lamb, who recently demonstrated a silencer which makes man-made electrical noises "commit suicide." The system is based on the principle of dual diversity reception, and requires the use of two radio sets, each with an antenna in a different location.

Through Lamb's invention, both sets are tuned by a single knob on a five-gang condenser having a single high frequency oscillator which synchronizes both receivers and keeps them operating identically.

The dual diversity reception system is based on the fact that a radio signal does not fade simultaneously in two antenna locations. What happens is that if the signal picked up by one of the antennas is fading, it is killed off by its stronger twin picked up by the other antenna. Only the strong, good signal reaches the speaker.

Diversity reception of short wave signals with such a twin-receiver, using separate antennas but a single control, makes available to amateurs a method similar to that used in commercial communication for several years, radio engineers said.

They expressed the belief that the new Lamb receiver would be ideal for "ham" reception for which considerable tuning about is necessary.

In commercial radio reception, where it is necessary to "stay" on a signal for hours, a different method is employed. This consists of three separately tuned receivers connected to three antennas in different localities. These antennas feed into a common amplifying system, which automatically picks out the strongest signal from any one of the three receivers and passes it along. The scheme was developed largely for trans-Atlantic rebroadcast reception, for which steady signals are required, in research at the RCA receiving station at Riverhead, L. I., in 1928. It since has been considerably improved.

Ultra Short Waves Used in Directing Movie in Desert.

THREE portable 20-watt ultra short-wave transmitters, similar in principle to the Post-Dispatch's 100-watt W9XPD and operating on its frequency of 31,600 kilocycles, were used to direct the maneuvering in battle scenes for the movie, "Under Two Flags."

The three transmitters were linked in a "network" in the desert about 30 miles from Yuma, Arizona, and enabled Frank Lloyd, the director, to issue orders to the maneuvering units representing French Legionnaires and North African tribesmen. Lloyd's orders were picked up on 31,600 k. c. by portable receivers.

In addition to the ultra short-wave network, Lloyd maintained constant communication with the studios of the producing company through a short-wave station in Hollywood operating on 1652 k. c. and a receiver at his headquarters "on location" in the desert.

Tulip Festival Broadcast Today.

THE Tulip Festival at Haarlem, Holland, where fields of these flowers are in full bloom, will be described at 11:30 this morning on KMOX. Folksongs of tulip time will be sung by wooden-shoed boys and girls, and the carillons in the Singing Towers of the "City of Flowers" will be played. Haarlem is the center of the world's greatest bulb-growing industry. The old city is surrounded by miles of fields aglow with the variegated colors of the tulips.

Shell Corporation Holds Two Meetings For Dealers, Salesmen

At two meetings held by the Shell Petroleum Corporation Tuesday and Wednesday, each attended by more than 500 dealers, salesmen and others, the company's advertising and sales promotion plans were outlined in detail.

P. C. Wilson, manager of the central division with offices in St. Louis who acted as chairman, outlined in brief the Shell Corporation's activity in keeping pace with modern developments in the automobile engine. He also explained how Shell's advertising and sales departments, in collaboration with the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency, developed newspaper advertising to appeal to the buying motives of motorists.

A talking motion picture, "The World Rolls On," was presented by T. M. Pallett, of the central division sales department. This picture disclosed the importance of lubrication from the building of the Egyptian Pyramids, through the ages to present-day high speed, high compression engines, and outlined the story of Shell's development of a new motor oil to save motorists money in today's "Stop-and-Go" driving.

New Oil Refining Process.

The new refining process is the first of its kind in the history of the petroleum industry. The new oil was perfected, he said, after three years of study and research in Shell laboratories at San Francisco, at Wood River, Ill., and at Sewaren, N. J. Road tests were made with six popular priced cars over all kinds of roads in all kinds of weather, from the tropics to the Rockies to prove the new oil under strenuous driving conditions.

All this study and research proved that three-fourths of engine wear occurs in starting, Wilson said, and that if a motor is not properly lubricated, at least a year of normal driving is being taken from its life. The laboratory and driving tests proved, he declared, that the new oil has all of the essentials of an ideal motor oil for complete and proper lubrication of modern motors.

At a cost of more than $3,500,000, the Shell Petroleum Corporation built a new motor oil refinery which covers 55 acres, in addition to its other extensive operations at Wood River, Ill.

Carl E. Campbell, central division lubricating and industrial manager, outlined from charts the essentials of an ideal motor oil, and told what this new Shell oil would accomplish in present-day motoring.

Company's Program Discussed.

James D. Thomas, assistant sales manager of the central division, discussed Shell's 1936 program on successful selling and the buying motives of today's motorist. He told of the "news item" type of advertising designed to reach, through newspapers and other advertising media, approximately 8,000,000 motorists in the Shell Petroleum Corporation's territories. The theme of "Super Shell" gasoline advertising is "Stop and Go Driving," and features the three kinds of power in Shell gasoline—power for quick starting, power for acceleration in traffic, and power for long, steady running. It was emphasized that motorists today need a gasoline which gives them the three kinds of power, just as their automobiles must have three shifts of gears.

The theme of the motor oil advertising is also built around the "stop-and-go driving" idea, featuring the proven fact that three-fourths of engine wear occurs in starting.

D. H. Sheperd, sales manager of the Central Division spoke on sales helps provided by Shell to help dealers and employes increase sales in the territory and on the service station driveways. Product folders and phamplets prepared for the individual service station, for distribution to the motorist, tell a story of proper lubrication for a car.

Officials of the central division attending the meeting were P. C. Wilson, division manager; Mr. D. H. Sheperd, sales manager, C. E. Gerteis, operations manager, N. J. Olson, tank car sales manager, C. E. Campbell, lubricating and industrial manager. O. L. Baldwin, service station department manager, J. D. Thomas, assistant sales manager, and N. M. Bassett, St. Louis district manager.

New Planes Built In Custom Style for Service on May 1

New ideas in decoration and comfort have been worked out in the new Lockhead Electras which Chicago & Southern Airlines on May 1 will place in service on the route between Chicago and New Orleans.

Ordering a new $50,000 airplane is like ordering a custom-built automobile. One can choose the upholstery fabrics, window curtains and other special fixtures and trimmings.

The interior decorative plan of these new planes is different from that of any other tranesport airplane previously produced by the Lockhead factory, according to Carleton Putnam, president of the air line.

For example, a special upholstery fabric was chosen for the 10 chromium-framed reclining chairs. Morocco blue leather arm rests were provided instead of the customary upholstery. The interior side walls and ceiling are finished in a soft shade of stratosphere gray broadcloth.

Windows are curtained with a new style silk lustre material to harmonize with the side walls and ceiling and are of a non-fading material which is also light absorbing. There are individual air ventilators, ash trays and reading lamps at each seat. The reading lights are recessed in the walls below the window sash and, when lighted, permit reading comfort without shining on adjacent passengers who may desire to relax or sleep. At each seat is a call button which summons the co-pilot.

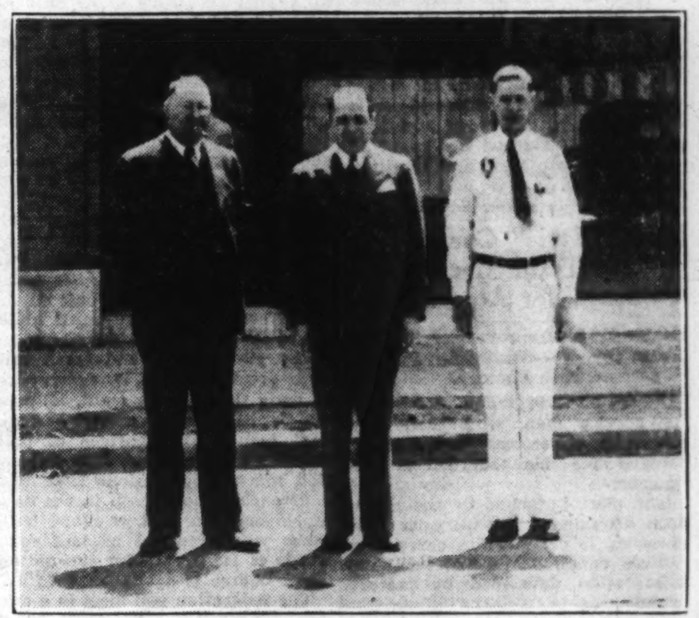
Webster Groves Firm Moves



Z. A. Barker, president of the Barker Motor Co., which has just moved to 218 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves; Lowell Barker, secretary and treasurer of the firm, and Peter Fischer, service manager.

Barker Motor Co. In New Location on West Lockwood Av.

The Barker Motor Co. has moved to 218 West Lockwood, Webster Groves. The firm consists of Z. A. Barker, president, and his son, Lowell Barker, secretary and treasurer. Barker has been in the automobile business since 1912, and has operated his own business since 1924, at which time his son joined him.

Barker has been an associate Dodge dealer at 7486 Manchester. He was recently appointed a direct dealer for Dodge and Plymouth cars, and this, together with increased business, made necessary the move to larger quarters.

The new building's outside dimensions are 67 feet by 176 feet deep, and the salesroom and service department occupy approximately 6000 square feet of floor space.

Pete Fischer is manager of the new service department, which is completely and modernly equipped with the latest equipment for service and lubrication. The department is exceptionally well-lighted, having an unusually high ceiling and large expanse of glass. It is also equipped with automatic sprinklers.

Chevrolet Dealers Sell 900,000 Used Units in Six Months

Chevrolet dealers' used car sales in the first six months of the current model year will reach a total of more than 900,000 units, it is stated by W. E. Holler, vice-president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co.

A high percentage of the trade-ins since Nov. 2 have not been old cars at all, but recent models with thousands of miles of satisfactory service left.

"The trading-in of these cars has had the result of increasing the quality, and also the variety, of dealers' used car stocks. Through advertising, Chevrolet has gone systematically about the job of acquainting the public with this situation.

Twelve American Cars Shipped to Japan for Imperial Household

Twelve Packard cars, just shipped to Japan, are destined, according to the Packard Motors' Export Corp., for the Imperial household. All 12 are of the large, more costly type.

The garage of the Japanese Imperial household now houses a large fleet of Packards. New cars for the palace have been ordered in fleets several times, and many have been delivered one or two at a time.

Standard Oil Dealer Meeting Here Set for Tomorrow and Tuesday

A meeting of dealers will be held here by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana at the Elks Club tomorrow and Tuesday.

Other dealer meetings have been scheduled by the company as follows: Wednesday, Cape Girardeau; Thursday, Poplar Bluff; Friday, Campbell, Mo., and May 4, Fredericktown.

Preparing Automobile For Warm Weather Use Termed Important

A spring cleaning is a spring tonic to an automobile, giving it renewed life and liveliness, and fitting it for the summer's season of heavy duty use, according to C. W. Wood, national service director of the Chevrolet Motor Co.

"Proper attention to an automobile when spring comes is just as important as winter preparations," says Wood. "Unfortunately, many motorists neglect the spring cleaning job, with the result that the car, and the engine especially, cannot perform with maximum efficiency and economy.

"One of the most important operations when freezing weather is no longer to be expected is a complete cleansing of the engine cooling system and the installation of new rubber radiator connections in place of flabby old ones. If these precautions are neglected, overheating is the penalty. After a long winter, the radiator is likely to be partly clogged with sludge and scale, caused by the action of antifreeze solutions on the metal of the engine block, and the rubber radiator connections possibly have deteriorated sufficiently to obstruct the circulation of water.

"As soon as the weather warrants it, heaters should be completely disconnected from the cooling system. That is, the fittings and valves and hose connections should be removed and stored carefully, and, especially important, the heater itself should be emptied by removing the drain plug at the bottom.

"The fan and its drive belt are a part of the cooling system. In cold weather, a slipping fan belt may not be noticed, because the engine will run cool anyway. But on the first warm day the engine may overheat, unless the belt is adjusted to get the maximum cooling effect from the fan.

"Actually, the best thing one can do for one's car in the spring is to have a complete tune-up of the engine, including a thorough overhauling of the entire cooling system, plus a change from winter to summer lubricants in the engine, transmission and rear axle."

Need of Spark Plug Changing as Security And Safety Measure

Efficient spark plugs constitute a first-line safeguard of both driving economy and driving security, it is pointed out by M. C. Dewitt, vice-president of the Champion Spark Plug Co., sponsor of the twelfth annual national "Change Week" which will begin May 4.

"I believe that a majority of present day motorists appreciate the financial economy of changing plugs every year or every 10,000 miles of driving," said Dewitt. "Even though they don't always do something about it, they realize that new spark plugs improve the efficiency of the ignition system and therefore raise the fuel mileage developed by their cars. They know, too, that new plugs usually eliminate such motor 'bugs' as hard starting and loss of power.

"The reason, of course, is that no spark plug—even the new patented Champion—can retain its full efficiency for an indefinite period. This is even more true today than it was a few years ago. Modern, high-compression, high-speed motors inflict tremendous mechanical, electrical and chemical punishment upon the spark plugs. The economy-minded motorist will pay himself dividends by observing 'plug change week.'"

Dewitt doubts, however, whether the average driver understands that he is guarding his own safety and that of others when he replaces worn plugs.

"That angle," he said, "has to do with the improved response and faster acceleration developed by a car that is equipped with new and perfect spark plugs. Nearly every driver will recall that on more than one occasion he has avoided a dangerous traffic situation by a sudden burst of speed. When he needs that pick-up he needs it instantly. His car must respond without a split second of delay. And in that situation, spark plug efficiency becomes of vital importance."

P. A. Jerrue Back From Detroit Meeting of Regional Executives

P. A. Jerrue, manager of the St. Louis region for the Dodge sales organization, has returned from Detroit where he and other members of the regional staff attended a two-day convention.

During the session the men were addressed by A. Van Der Zee, general sales manager; Emerson J. Poag, director of merchandising and advertising, and other Dodge department chiefs, largely on midsummer activities of dealers.

Presentations, many of them illustrated by sound motion pictures, were made of merchandising and advertising policies developed for the guidance of dealers as well as for the information of the public, in May, June and July. Several of the motion pictures, which are available to dealers, may soon be shown in the St. Louis region.

Electric Outboard Motor Operates From Storage Battery

An electric outboard motor, designed to run 14 to 20 hours from one charging of a 100-ampere storage battery, is being distributed by the Fox Ignition Co.

It is said to drive a 12-foot skiff at faster than rowing speed, and to operate in silence. Two batteries are said to give nearly double the speed, and three batteries may be hooked up with it for still more power and speed.

The motor weighs only 18 pounds, is fully permanently sealed, and gives two speeds forward and one in reverse. The braking effect is described as of the "four-wheel stopping" type. The motor is water cooled, and has no gears or drive shaft.

How Ford's Test of Village Industries Idea Is Working Out

Eight Small Plants Operated Pay Way—Employes Alternate Between Factories and Small Farms.

Founded on Henry Ford's conviction that a balance must be struck between the farm and the factory, the Ford Motor Company's village industries employ village folk who in their spare time, or days off, operate profitably small farms or garden plots of their own. Thus, they produce goods as well as food for themselves and their families.

Experience in the operation of these plants—in this experiment in the agriculturization of industry—has suggested the Ford Motor Company says, the solution of several of the problems of industrial plants in large urban centers. They have to a degree offered relief from the ills of the fat and the lean periods which afflict industry today. They assist a balance between the city and the country.

"Working under the ideal conditions in these small industrial units, the villgers have found greater contentment than the average employe in a modern factory in a large city ever dreamed of. These riverside factories have attracted a type of worker superior in productive capacity and steadier in employment than the average supplied by great cities.

Typical Village Factory.

"A visit to the village industries of the Ford Motor Co., lying at attractive water power sites along the Rouge and the Huron Rivers near Dearborn, Mich., where the greatest of the Ford factories is located—may reveal why these small industrial plants have been successful.

"Stand for instance, among the busy automatic machines in the smallest of these Ford factories, at Nankin Mills. The plant is an old gristmill, framed of massive hand-hewn beams, finished in clapboard, painted white in the colonial manner. A headrace, carrying the waters of the stream to the modern turbine-driven electric generator, slips under a grass lawn and discharges below the mill into a pool lined with willows."

Nine men work in this plant manufacturing thousands of machine screws. On warm days as they tend the busy machines a spring breeze softly blows through the open windows. Outside in the elms and maples on the trimmed lawn, birds sing as they sing only in the country. The men live nearby, on tiny farms, mostly of two or three acres.

Six Plants on Rouge River.

Their homes are only 20 miles from Detroit. They have every advantage a city could offer and none of the disadvantages. Their automobiles take them quickly back and forth to work or to and from the city. Their children attend good schools. Their homes are operated far more cheaply than would be possible in the city, and yet the men earn proportionately as much as the city worker.

Six of the available water power sites along the Rouge are occupied by Ford village industries. The development of the first of these plants at Northville marked Ford's first experiment in carrying the factory back to the farm. Years ago the river was lined with small factories, mostly gristmills, all operated by the power of the stream. Most of them eventually were abandoned. The power of the river went to waste for years.

Ford took over the mill at Northville in 1919, rehabilitated it, moved in machinery from the Highland Park plant and began the production of valves. The factory was located in the center of a lawn, where trees might shade its windows and shrubs bloom on the lawn.

Experienced workers from the big Ford plant at first operated the mill, but as time went on men from the village and countryside were put at work. These now make up the majority of the 300 employes. Half of them run their own farms or garden plots, alternating factory work and farming, working on their land when the factory is idle. A new plant is under construction here.

Some of the Other Factories.

At Waterford, a few miles down the river, is a two-story factory which employs 65 workers in manufacturing measuring instruments, gauges and the precision tools used in the various Ford plants. On a platform at the entrance is an electric generator connected with a turbine driven by a 21-foot head of water from the river.

Farther down the river, at Phoenix, is another plant run by hydroelectric power. Here generator parts are made. Most of the 81 employes are women from the countryside. Married women are not employed, unless their husbands are unable to work. Many of them support their husbands during illness as well as their families. The work is light. Few quit unless to be married. All live close at hand, driving to and from their work.

On the site of another old gristmill, at Plymouth, still farther down the river, is the fifth Ford village industry. It is a model factory that manufactures taps used in the Ford plants. A day's production, worth several thousand dollars, can be shipped in a relatively small package. In other ways the plant is a midget. It has the smallest turbo-electric generator owned by Ford—a 5-horsepower unit, used as an auxiliary. Only 35 highly skilled workmen are in this factory.

Newest of the River Rouge village plants put in operation is at Newburg, where 15 men manufacture twist drills.

Eight Village Plants in All.

These six factories make up the Ford village industries on the Rouge River. The farthest is less than an hour's leisurely drive from the great Ford Rouge plant. Motor trucks link them to the main factory at Dearborn.

Two larger Ford plants of the same kind are on the Huron River at Flat Rock and Ypsilanti, with a power paint at Rawsonville.

According to a recent statement for the Ford Motor Co., these village industries pay. The overhead is low, less superintendence is required, the spirit of the people is better, and pride in the product is apparent. The employes not only enjoy a better life than is usually found in cities, but are more secure if slack times come, because there is the land. As a matter of fact, however, these shops had practically continuous employment all last year.

In addition to these little factories which make parts for Ford cars, the company is erecting other country shops to prepare agricultural products—notably at present, soy beans—for use in manufacturing.

New "Movie" Course to Train Mechanics for Auto Dealers

Designed to Improve Service For Car Owners—Started by Plymouth Factory.

A nation-wide technical school for service men, with their own shops as classrooms and "talkie" screens for blackboards, is announced.

The plan, launched by the Plymouth division of the Chrysler Corporation, is designed to carry into dealers' repair shops new technical information developed by factory experts.

Written examinations will be conducted by factory representatives on each of the meetings held with the sound slide films which compose the special training course. Each dealer will be responsible for showing the sound slide films to his mechanics and preparing them for the examinations.

"Every service man who attains passing grades in these examinations will be a highly skilled specialist in modern automotive maintenance," says J. D. McCrimmon, Plymouth's Director of Service. "High marks at the end of the course will be the factory's reward for the expenditure of tens of thousands of dollars on preparing and distributing this sound-film course.

The sound film method of technical instruction was adopted on the basis of educators' reports, which held that films with sound were many times more effective than textbooks. The visual treatment also illuminates special problems formerly difficult to deal with effectively by written bulletins.

Among the many subjects covered are steering adjustment, motor tune-up, body adjustments and repairs, clutch and transmission, brake mechanism and rear axle, and electrical service. Also included are many new factory suggestions for reducing material and labor costs to car owners.

J & R Motor Supply Moves Into New Store On So. Jefferson Av.

The J & R Motor Supply Co. has moved from 3407 South Jefferson avenue to 3401 on the same street, at the corner of Cherokee street. The entire building has been remodeled.

Improvements made include drive-in service and service parking facilities. There is more floor space in the new store, which has what is said to be the largest porcelain store sing in St. Louis.

Boas Weisman, manager of the store, has been with the concern for a number of years. H. Kawks came to St. Louis from the company's Chicago office for the opening of the new store.

METHODISTS EXPECTED TO DEBATE ECONOMICS

Dispute Over Profit System Likely at Columbus (O.) Conference.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 25. — Debate over church participation in economic and social issues is expected to eclipse discussion of church questions at the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church which opens a 22-day session here May 1.

Observers said today that a movement of the Methodist Federation for Social Service to obtain approval of abolition of the profit system "in order to develop a classless society based upon the obligation of mutual service" is highly controversial among leading Methodist churchmen.

Led by Dr. Harry F. Ward, dynamic secretary of the federation, and his associate, Miss Winifred L. Chappell, the so-called "radical" group in the church will be opposed by a group conservative in their stand on economic and social questions rather than on matters of church doctrines. A liberal group stands midway between the others. The conservatives organized in Chicago a year ago and would limit the church to matters of religion.

The federation will demand that the general conference: Declare that the Christian religion compels rejection of the struggle for profit as the economic base for society; approve the method of social-economic planning under democratic control, with social ownership of all things necessary to its successful operation, as a method by which the Christian principles of service and the development of personality can be progressively realized; declare that the change from a blind profit economy to one that is intelligently planned for social ends should be sought by education and democratic discussion, not by violence.

"The basic issue is whether this conference is going to utter any word of leadership for mankind in the most widespread crisis the human race has ever confronted," Dr. Ward said in the April bulletin of the federation.

"In all parts of the earth millions are threatened by destruction in wars they do not want. Millions are denied necessary food and decent homes, are deprived of both training and jobs. . . . It is a situation much more serious than that confronting the church in the days of slavery. On that (slave) issue those who preceded us had some words of leadership for the nation. Their course is a challenge to us."

The federation will meet in a one-day convention here April 29 to perfect plans for supporting its program at formal conference sessions. The federation, an authorized body, but not an official board of the church, was organized in 1907.

Its opponents are expected to challenge use of the word Methodist in the federation title.

DEMOCRAT TAKES KNOX UP ON POLITICS IN POSTOFFICE

Congressman Tells Chicagoan to Have G. O. P. Stop Opposing Civil Service Bill.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, was requested in a telegram today by Chairman Ramspeck (Dem.), of the House Civil Service Committee if he would ask House Republican leaders to withdraw their objection to his bill to place all postmasters under Civil Service.

Ramspeck sent the telegram to Knox, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, after reading his statement last night assailing "politics" in the Postoffice Department. Ramspeck said passage of the bill on the consent calendar of the House was prevented a few weeks ago by Republican leaders.

Knox had asserted that "under Mr. Farley's benevolence the spirit of the Postoffice Department has been nearly wrecked," and that the President had aided the Postmaster-General by an executive order of July 13, 1933, giving him "authority thenceforth to 'disqualify any certified candidate at will.'"

LANDON SUPPORTERS CLAIM 9 OF 12 COLORADO DELEGATES

G. O. P. Representatives to Cleveland Convention Not Instructed at Pueblo Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

PUEBLO, Colo., April 25.—Colorado Republicans today named 12 uninstructed delegates to the national convention at Cleveland but supporters of Gov. Alf M. Landon for the presidential nomination claimed at least nine of the group. Presidential preferences were not mentioned.

Charles R. Enos, Republican State chairman and leader of the delegation to Cleveland, declined to "speak for the delegation" but said "it appears heavily in Landon's favor."

Former United States Senator Lawrence C. Phipps of Denver was re-elected national committeeman by acclamation. A similar vote returned Mrs. Lucy Hillman of Delta at national committeewoman.

North Side W. C. T. U. Institute.

The annual institute of the North Side Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held Tuesday at North Side Y. M. C. A., 3100 North Grand boulevard. The morning session will begin at 10 o'clock, followed by a luncheon and an afternoon meeting at 1:30 o'clock.

ALLEGED DRIVER HELD IN 1934 AUTO FATALITY

Arthur G. Hester Returned From Evanston, Ill., to Answer Manslaughter Charge.

Arthur G. Hester of Evanston, Ill., named as the driver who fled after his automobile killed a man on the Twelfth street viaduct Aug. 1, 1934, was brought to St. Louis yesterday in custody of a city detective for service of bench warrants on charges of manslaughter and leaving the scene of an injury to a person.

He was released on $5000 bond and the cases were placed on tomorrow's docket before Circuit Judge James M. Douglas. It was expected that a continuance would be granted. Hester denied the charges.

Indictments were returned against Hester last January in the death of Jesse B. Everingham, a Terminal Railroad switchman, who was run down by an automobile while waiting in a safety zone for a street car. Hester, a salesman, was arrested at Evanston and released on bond last December after Miss Irene Sommer, 3724 Fairview avenue, told police he was the driver of the automobile which struck Everingham and sped away. Miss Sommer said she, Hester and two other men left a hotel bar shortly before the accident.

Everingham was 42 years old and resided at 3401 Magnolia avenue.

New Train to Texas May 17.

Officials of the Frisco and Katy railroads announced yesterday that a new Texas-bound train, which they will operate jointly, will be added to their schedule on May 17. The train will leave St. Louis daily at 6:30 p. m., the time at which the Texas Special now leaves, and arrive at Dallas at 12:15 p. m. the next day. The Texas Special will leave at 5:30 p. m. but have its running time to Dallas cut one hour and 45 minutes. The new train has been added in anticipation of crowds going to the Texas Centennial.

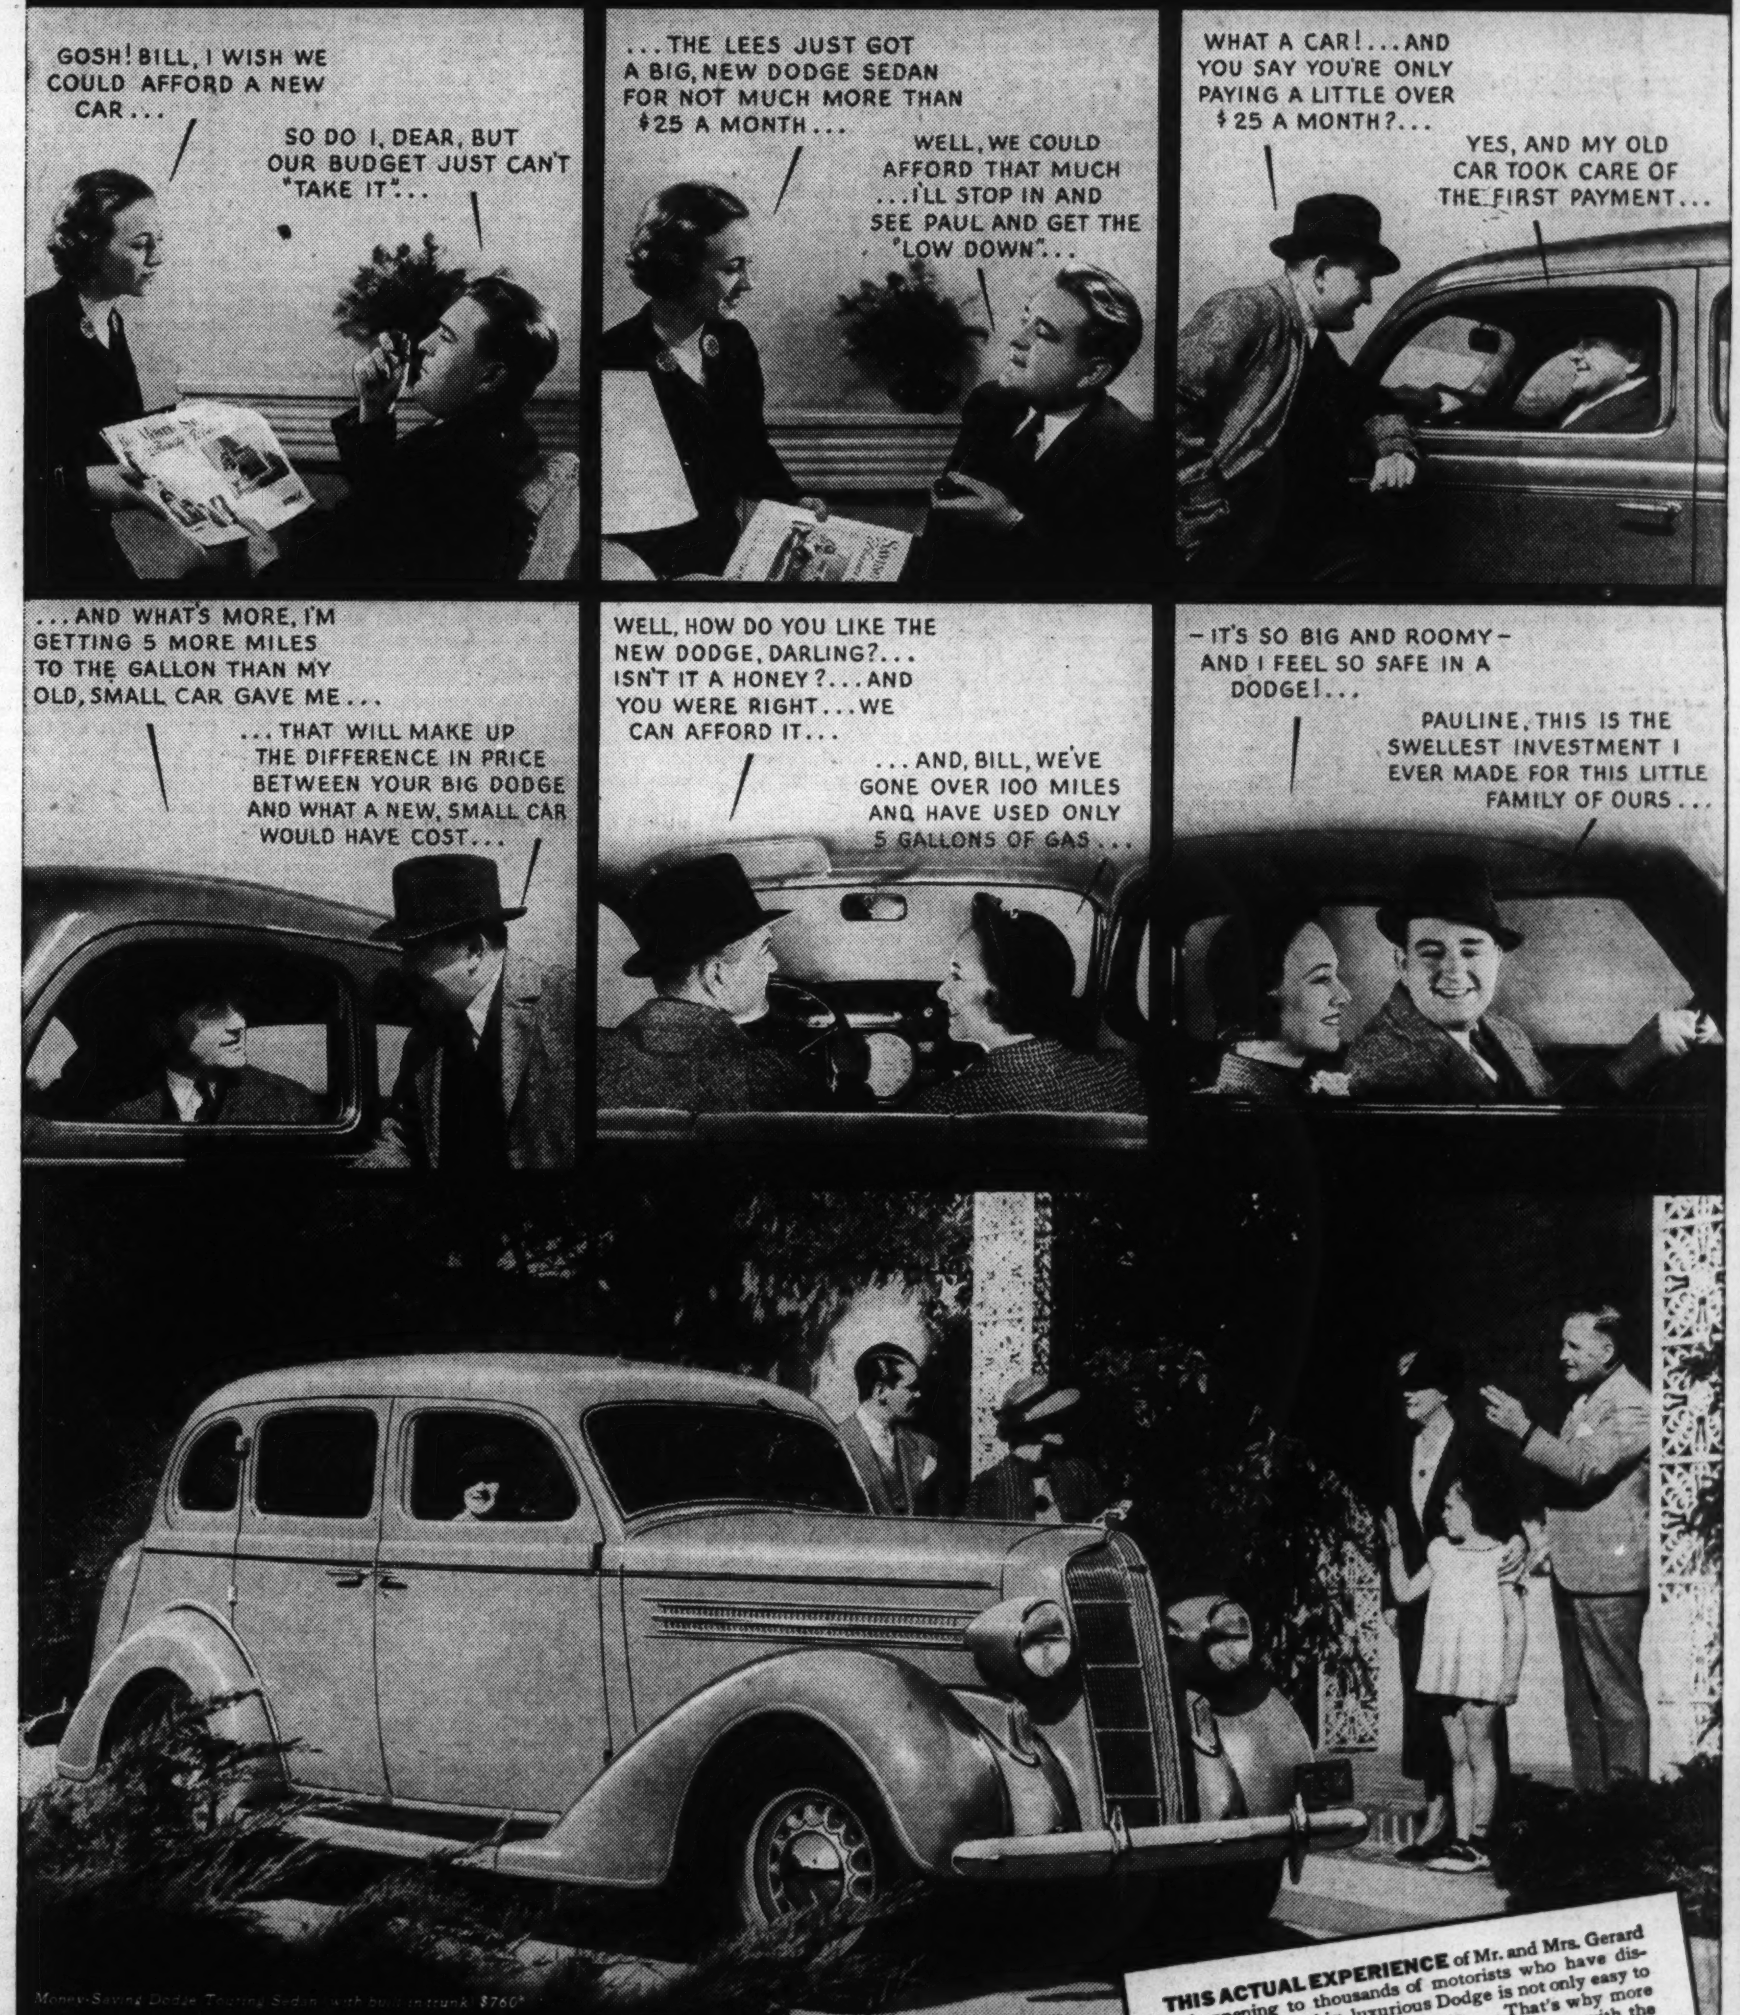
How Dodge Made it Easy FOR THE GERARDS TO OWN THE "BEAUTY WINNER"
THE ACTUAL EXPERIENCE OF MR. and MRS. WILLIAM A. GERARD and PAUL L. LEE of JACKSON HEIGHTS, LONG ISLAND, NEW YORK



GOSH! BILL, I WISH WE COULD AFFORD A NEW CAR...
SO DO I, DEAR, BUT OUR BUDGET JUST CAN'T "TAKE IT"...
...THE LEES JUST GOT A BIG, NEW DODGE SEDAN FOR NOT MUCH MORE THAN $25 A MONTH...
WELL, WE COULD AFFORD THAT MUCH ...I'LL STOP IN AND SEE PAUL AND GET THE "LOW DOWN"...
WHAT A CAR!...AND YOU SAY YOU'RE ONLY PAYING A LITTLE OVER $25 A MONTH?...
YES, AND MY OLD CAR TOOK CARE OF THE FIRST PAYMENT...
...AND WHAT'S MORE, I'M GETTING 5 MORE MILES TO THE GALLON THAN MY OLD, SMALL CAR GAVE ME...
...THAT WILL MAKE UP THE DIFFERENCE IN PRICE BETWEEN YOUR BIG DODGE AND WHAT A NEW, SMALL CAR WOULD HAVE COST...
WELL, HOW DO YOU LIKE THE NEW DODGE, DARLING?... ISN'T IT A HONEY?...AND YOU WERE RIGHT...WE CAN AFFORD IT...
...AND, BILL, WE'VE GONE OVER 100 MILES AND HAVE USED ONLY 5 GALLONS OF GAS...
-IT'S SO BIG AND ROOMY- AND I FEEL SO SAFE IN A DODGE!...
PAULINE, THIS IS THE SWELLEST INVESTMENT I EVER MADE FOR THIS LITTLE FAMILY OF OURS...
Money-Saving Dodge Touring Sedan, with built-in trunk $760*

THIS ACTUAL EXPERIENCE of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard is happening to thousands of motorists who have discovered that the big, luxurious Dodge is not only easy to buy but so inexpensive to operate . . . That's why more people buy Dodge cars than any other make—with the exception of the three lowest-priced cars . . . With the new, low price—only $640*—and the new, easy, low-cost Commercial Credit Company terms—owners say it's just about as easy to pay for a big Dodge "Beauty Winner" as it is to pay for small, competitive makes... And, they say, their amazing savings in gas, oil and upkeep more than make up the difference in the long run.

NEW LOW PRICE . . ONLY
$640* for the Big Money-Saving DODGE
Priced from $640 to $995. List prices at factory, Detroit, subject to change without notice. Special equipment extra.

COTTON IS IRREGULADR IN A NARROW RANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Cotton was irregular today with May advancing while later deliveries eased under realizing. The general market closed barely steady at a net advance of 3 points on May. Later months were 4 to 6 points net lower.

The influence of steadier Liverpool cables was partially offset by hedging and liquidation in the later deliveries. Buying on overnight reports of continued dry weather in the Southwest was checked by prospects for unsettled conditions in that section. May was sustained by the covering of trade shorts.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 63,000 bales, against 82,000 last year.

Spot steady; middling, 11.83.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, April 25.—Spot cotton closed steady, 5 points down. Sales 1887, low middling 10.50c; middling, 11.60c; good middling, 12.20c. Receipts 884; stock 407,965.

WASHINGTON NOTES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The largest gain in rural retail trade last month, as estimated by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, was credited to the Far West. Its increase in dollar value of daily average sales was 20.5 per cent compared with 11 for the East, 6.5 in the South and 8 per cent in the Middle West. The national average was 9.5 per cent. The Far West also led for the first quarter, with a gain of 18 per cent over the comparable 1935 period against 4.5 for the Middle West and a national average of 7.5.

Resumption of lard shipments to Germany, formerly a leading market for the American product, was reported by the Department of Commerce. Negotiations were said to be on with domestic packers for purchase of 8,000,000 pounds in addition to recent shipments of 4,000,000. Last year German takings amounted to only 1,500,000 compared with yearly imports ranging from 120,000,000 to 160,000,000 prior to 1934.

Silver imports last week, as recorded by the Commerce Department, amounted to $1,137,518, mostly from Mexico, compared with arrival of $6,447,791 in gold. Both gold and silver imports were moderately smaller than in the preceding week.

The trend of industrial output points to a further increase in employment and payrolls this month. The Commerce Department says. The Labor Department estimated both jobs and payrolls had gained by more than the usual seasonal amount last month.

The Department of Labor's March index for domestic wholesale prices, based on 784 items, stood at 79.6 per cent of the 1926 average compared with 80.6 in February and 79.4 in March, 1935. It has fluctuated in a relatively narrow range for more than a year following a sharp rise from the low touched early in 1933.

CATTLE AND HOGS UNEVEN LAST WEEK

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, East St. Louis, Ill., April 25.—Saturday receipts: Cattle, 400; calves, 300; hogs, 6000, direct 1500; sheep, 50. (United States Department of Agriculture).

Swine trading showed greater irregularity than has been noted for some time but net changes were still small for the week under review. Expanded shipper demand for light lights and pigs resulted in a 10c to 15c advance for weights from 170 lbs. downward, some of the light pigs as much as 25c higher. Heavier weights, after reaching a top of $11 on a few sessions, some 160 to 180-pounders also realizing that price on Friday, reacted and finished 10 to 20c lower for the week. Packing sows closed with a net gain of 15c to 20c. Supplies this week totaled around 46,600 compared with 40,762 last week and 42,279 similar week last year. The Saturday top was $10.80 for small lots choice 180 to 210 lb. weights while majority of supplies were 160 to 240-lb. averages at $10.70 to $10.75. Packers made moderate purchases at $10.70 downward. Good and choice 250 to 290-lb descriptions were quotable from $10.45 to $10.70, extreme heavies down to $10.25 or below. Good and choice 140 to 160-lb. light lights finished at $10.25 to $10.75 and 100 to 130 lbs. $9.25@10. Packing sows bulked late at $9.15 to $9.65.

CATTLE—400; calves, 300; compared with last Friday; steers weak to 25c lower; mixed yearlings heifers, beef cows and bulls steady; cutters and low cutters steady to 15c lower; vealers 25c lower; stock steers, 15@25c lower; other feeding prices steady; tops for the week: 1394 lb. steers, $9.10; 1042 lb. yearlings, $9.25; heifers, $8.40; mixed yearlings, $8.25; cows, $6.50; sausage bulls, $6.25; vealers, $9; feeder steers, $7.75; bulk for the week: Steers, $7@8.25; mixed yearlings and heifers, $6.50@7.90; beef cows, $5@5.75; cutters and low cutters, $3.50@4.50; stocker and feeder steers, $6.35@7.25; closing top of sausage bulls, $6.25 and on vealers, $9.

SHEEP—50; compared with a week ago, market generally 50c higher; small lots of choice native spring lambs to outsiders, $11.50@12.25; bulk on Texas and Arizona, $10@11.25; top clipped lambs, $9.75; bulk, $8.50@9.50; wooled lambs and ewes scarce; clipped wethers, $6@6.50; yearlings, $8.50@9; clipped ewes quotable, $5.25 down.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., April 25.—Another light supply of horses and mules the past week gave selling in this department a healthy appearance. Commission arrivals did not exceed 400 head and this small quota was easily cleared.

The horse market was aided by a good representation of Eastern buyers, and big mules, too, were in active demand. Medium sized and medium priced work horses and mules are selling for the farm trade.

As the season advances demand is increasing for good fillies and medium-sized young brood mares. These classes last week moved to better advantage than at any time during the past month.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $125@160; medium to good draft, $100@125; good to choice chunks, $100@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $80@110; large farm mares, $125@150; medium farm mares, $90@110; good Southern mares, $75@100; small Southern mares, $40@60; small, cheap horses, $30@50.

WEEK'S METAL SUMMARY

NEW YORK, April 25.—Indications of increasing consumption of metals had their principal reflection in the past week in the lead market.

A larger general demand for this metal caused large producers to adapt a cautious selling policy. As a result, the trade was considering the possibility of price rises.

As a result of increased demand from most consuming branches, the leading seller announced that it would restrict sales to the requirements of its regular customers. A waiting list of buyers was said to be building up.

Following the early April activity in copper prior to the ¼-cent advance, business in the domestic market has been limited at the 9½-cent level for electrolytic. Nevertheless, the trade is encouraged by reports of a good outlook for consumption, notably in the automobile and electrical industries.

Improved export demand developed at steadier prices, with the buying said to represent expansion of regular trade needs.

Although no change was made in production quotas at the international tin committee meeting during the week, prices eased slightly with demand limited. However, consumption is reported at a relatively good rate with deliveries on contracts sustained and with tin plate mill production increasing to 90 per cent of capacity.

Zinc remained quiet with prices unchanged. Although the firmer tone in lead was regarded as a sustaining influence, the fact that London prices are relatively close to an import parity was said to check the chance for an immediate price rise.

Reports of firmer conditions in the antimony markets of China and the continent were reflected by a mark-up of ⅛c in the price for American grades here. This attracted light buying. The nominal price for Chinese in bond was unchanged at a ⅞c premium over domestic grades.

Steel mill activity was maintained at around 68 to 70 per cent of capacity. There were divided opinions in the trade as to whether further expansion was to be expected. Heavy materials were in good demand from the railroads and construction industries. Further increases were noted in automobile consumption and the miscellaneous lighter industries were supplying good orders.

Prices were being maintained with the new second quarter quotations on some products receiving their first test. The scrap market, however, was somewhat easier.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Raw sugar was unchanged today at 3.75 for spots although there was nothing offered below 3.85 and a sale was confirmed of 27,000 bags of Philippines for June-July shipment to an operator at the asked price.

Futures advanced 1 to 2 points early on a little covering or trade support but reacted later and closer unchanged to 1 point net lower.

May declined from 2.88 to 2.86 and Jan. from 2.67 to 2.66 with final prices at the lowest. The volume of business was small with sales for the day amounting to only 300 tons.

Refined was unchanged at 5.00 for fine granulated but resale sugars were available at 4.80.

Sugar futures: No. 3 closed quiet, unchanged to 1 lower. Sales 300 tons. May 2.86b; July 2.82b; September 2.82b; November 2.81b; January 2.65b; March 2.60b.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits $743,339,100 (unchanged); total net demand deposits (average) $47,029,000 (increase); time deposits (average) $12,112,000 (increase); clearings week ending today $3,460,571,330; clearings week ending April 18, $4,249,934,383.

MOISTURE RELIEF PROSPECT BRINGS LOWER WHEAT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Some prospects of moisture relief for crops Southwest and West, together with actual scattered showers in Kansas and Nebraska, led to wheat price downturns today.

A low barometer in the Southwest cast its shadow over the wheat market, and values slid down 1¼ cents a bushel, maximum. One leading unofficial authority reported that although a large percentage of Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma wheat acreage is losing color rapidly, potential recovery promises to exceed last year by far if general rains come as early as a year ago, around May 10.

Wheat closed nervous, ¼@1⅛ under yesterday's finish, May $1.00¾@⅞, July 90¾@⅞c, corn ¾ off to ⅛ up, May 63¾@⅝c, oats unchanged to ¼ lower, and provisions unchanged to ⅝ decline.

Notwithstanding there were no positive indications of adequate succor for drouth regions, a forecast of further possible showers in Kansas and Nebraska did much to check buying of wheat futures and induce more or less selling. Bearish significance was also attached to the circumstance that temperatures next week are expected to be near or below normal. Furthermore, bears contended that a price decline at this time of year has come to be regarded as normal when preceded by a good advance, and it was pointed out that the Government April estimate of domestic winter wheat production is between 50 and 60 million bushels larger than the April estimate, which last year proved correct.

Active demand for old crop wheat tended to have a rallying influence, but price upturns failed to hold. It was in vain, at least for the moment, that some traders interpreted action of the barometer Southwest as possibly meaning heat rather than moisture relief.

Corn, oats, rye and provisions took their cue largely from behavior of wheat. Profit-taking sales were a feature of corn trading.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 18,153,000 bushels, corn 2,790,000. Open interest in wheat was 88,068,000 bushels, and in corn 26,531,000.

ST LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 25.—Wheat and corn futures were lower at close of trading on the local market.

Winnipeg wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c lower and early was ¼@⅜c off. The close was ⅜@⅝c let lower.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼@½d higher after opening ⅜@⅝d up.

Local wheat receipts which were 33,000 bushels, compared with 45,000 a week ago and 25,500 a year ago, included 18 cars local and 4 through. Corn receipts, which were 92,000 bushels, compared with 46,500 a week ago and 48,000 a year ago, included 57 cars local and 11 through. Oats receipts, which were 34,000 bushels, compared with 34,000 a week ago and 6000 a year ago, included 14 cars local and 3 through.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ½@1c higher. Demand was good and all offerings were taken. Order buyers were the main purchasers. Most of the available supply was of good quality and heavy test. Hard wheat was nominally ½c higher. Corn was 1@2c lower. Demand started slowly, with mills and shippers showing the interest, but later the buying pace quickened and a clearance was effected. Buyers late in the session were shippers and feeders. Oats were unchanged. Supplies were light and were quickly cleared. Mills, feeders and shippers showed interest.

STOCK TRADE DOMINATED BY DEVALUED FRANC FEAR

Setback to Securities During Week Despite Some Favorable Domestic Business News—French Gold Movement.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Financial markets slipped out of gear with domestic business news during the past week. Sentiment, jolted by fears that Sunday's French election might be followed by devaluation of the franc and unsettlement in world money centers, produced selling of shares which shoved many market leaders downhill.

In response to the healthy condition of the consumers' goods industry, freight carloadings scored a better than normal record. Electricity output, a peg under the preceding week, showed a 12.5 per cent rise over the like 1935 week.

Automobile production was a little slower, but leaders in the industry looked ahead to a busy season. Retail trade was above the preceding week and the like week of 1935 and predictions of experts pointed to a new peak ahead.

The week's crop of annual meetings brought hard and fast statements of high hopes from executives of companies in the copper, chemical, rubber, locomotive, cement, power and film industries.

Many Earning Reports.

The mounting tide of industrial quarterly earnings were favorable on the whole. One specimen off the top was provided by Chrysler Corp. which turned in the best first quarter earnings in its history, and, in addition, caught the financial community off balance by declaring a dividend of $1.50 a common share, the largest quarterly disbursement ever ordered.

Somewhat less cheerful were the reports of the railroads which showed mixed net operating income trends for March. Eastern systems showed the adverse effects of floods. Southwestern roads made a much better record.

Bonds were shaken down a bit on the week but the press of idle money in search of profitable employment served as a support. Issues with a speculative tint and with stock conversion privileges got the worst jolt, while the low yield loans stood their ground.

Farm Shares Lead Rise.

Gains of 1 to 3 points in the farm shares gave the market a bright spot at week's closing session.

The remainder of the list lacked the steam shown by the farm issues and finished generally with advances of only fractions to a point or so.

Measured by the Associated press average of 60 stocks the market was up .4 of a point to 60.9. Transactions totaled 536,370 shares for the two-hour session.

Influences on sentiment were the continued uneasiness over tomorrow's French elections and, in the background, the continued flow of favorable business news.

The market started briskly with a good demand for motors, specialties and rails. Some of these issues which advanced a point or so, bumped into selling as the session progressed and closed with gains of only fractions.

The bond market ended firm with a rally in long-term U. S. Government loans. Rail liens, both high and low priced, were somewhat higher.

Franc Unchanged.

Wheat closed ¼ to 1⅛ cents a bushel off. Corn was down ⅜ to ⅛ of a cent higher. Cotton ended 15 cents a bale higher to 30 cents lower.

The pound sterling was ¼ of a cent higher at $4.93⅞ at the finish. The French franc, unchanged at 6.58⅜ cents, afforded little hint of the financial district's opinions on the French eelctions tomorrow.

The decision of the New York Stock Exchange to ease margin requirements, announced after the close of the market Friday, was seen in brokerage circles as abating fears that selling would develop on May 1, from customers unable to comply with the rule as it formerly stood.

Analysts scanning the business horizon stressed the substantial industrial first quarter net earnings gains over the period last year.

In addition they said they looked for some slackening in the pace of steel production during May, but meanwhile they cited evidences of current gains in the demand for heavy steels.
the seasonal increased demand.

PARIS, April 25.—Expectations of little change in the Parliamentary elections helped rentes and other French issues to register gains in the Bourse today. International shares also moved higher.

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, April 25. — Wheat futures closed about ½ point higher, advancing in sympathy with yesterday's strength in North American markets and predictions of small world shipments.

Hedging and realizing in cotton futures was absorbed by trade calling in near positions and local buying of distant options on unfavorable weather reports from the United States.

LONDON—Stock Exchange closed on Saturday.

PROFITABLE TO SHIP GOLD HERE FROM FRANCE

Additional $2,500,000 on Way as Franc Closes Unchanged at 6.58 3-8 Cents.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—With more gold shipments from Paris to the United States being arranged, the French franc was unable to move out of a narrow groove in today's foreign currency dealings.

The dollar at Paris was quoted at the equivalent of 6.58 cents to the franc. The latter was slightly higher most of the day in New York, but slipped back later to finish unchanged at 6.58⅜ cents, the theoretical level at which gold may be transported to America at a small profit.

During the day it was learned that $2,500,000 of gold had been arranged for transport on the S. S. Paris sailing April 29. This was in additon to the $7,115,000 which it was announced Friday had been booked for New York from the French capital. Several million dollars more, it was understood, were to come in on the S. S. Hamburg and S. S. Europa sailing early next week.

Dealers were careful in making further commitments in French funds pending the elections which start in the republic tomorrow.

At the final New York franc rate, the dollar was at a premium of 75-100 of 1 per cent, the same as yesterday. A month ago the premium was 24-100.

In London the dollar closed at 4.93 13-16 to the pound, while in New York sterling improved ¼ of a cent at $4.93⅞.

Belgas advanced .02 of a cent to 16.92 cents, guilders were up .03 of a cent at 67.83 cents and Swiss francs firmed .02 of a cent at 32.59 cents. The lira held unchanged at its low level of the year at 7.87 cents.

TRADE TRENDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Contracts for residential construction in March showed an increase of 77 per cent over the previous month according to a survey by the National Industrial Conference Board. This was reported as a new high point for the recovery in residential building.

Fur—Trading inquiries in New York prompted by the steadily rising trend in prices of fur trimmings brought out some forecasts that quotations for next fall will be from 15 to 40 per cent above those of last autumn. The unusual strength of the market has been attributed to wild life conservation programs in this and other countries.

Glass.—Jobbers report a considerable rise in demand for summer glassware specialties in the wholesale market. Retailers placed large orders for pitcher and glass sets.

Hardware.—Wholesale trade continued active during the last week with emphasis on garden implements, screening and electrical appliances, distributers reported.

Wool Goods—Trade circles hear that a general restoration of the price levels on men's and women's woolen robes, prevailing before the recent wave of price cutting, is expected in the near future.

ST. LOUIS CAR CO. BOND INTEREST PAYMENT MAY 1

The St. Louis Car Company announced that the payment of the May 1, 1936 interest coupon on the extended 6 per cent first mortgage gold bonds will be made on that date. The payment, to be made at the Mercantile Commerce Bank and Trust Co., is in accordance with the extension plan approved last year by bondholders. There are outstanding $1,118,100. Originally maturing Nov. 1, 1935 they were extended to Nov. 1, 1945. It is understood that more than 96 per cent of the bondholders consented to the extension. Funds covering the full amount of the original issue have been deposited for payment. The bonds are secured by a first closed mortgage on the company's entire property.

FINANCIAL NOTES

NEW YORK, April 25.—The price of U. S. Type 12 Grade B4F flue cured tobacco averaged 18c a pound last week, against 7.8c in the preceding week and 24.4c in the corresponding period last year, according to H. A. Stich, tobacco statistician.

U. S. Pipe and Foundry Co. is offering common stockholders rights to subscribe to $500 principal amount of new 3½ per cent convertible debentures for each 60 shares held, it was announced today.

Sugar consumption in the 14 principal European countries during the first six months of the current crop year ended February totaled 3,853,651 long tons, raw sugar value, against [illegible],712,670 tons consumed during the like period last season, it was reported by Lamborn & Co., trade brokers.

For the year to April 18 the 13 United States sugar refiners had a total melt of 1,350,000 long tons against 1,280,000 for the same period last year. Deliveries amounted to 1,125,000 tons against 1,155,000.

Domestic sales of copper for the past week were estimated by "Metal and Mineral Markets" at 3400 tons against 135,871 tons reported for the preceding week. Sales for the month to date were placed at 154,066 tons. The pronounced falling off in demand since the market was established at a uniform price of 9½ cents a pound is viewed by the trade as a natural reaction to the unusually heavy buying before the price adjustment.

NEW YORK, April 25.—All dividend changes during the last week as compiled by the Standard Statistics Co., were on the favorable side, totaling 32 against 23 in the preceding week. The previous week recorded three unfavorable actions.

COMMODITY INDEX AVERAGES

Other statistical data showing economical trend.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Industrial production statistics held at the year's top this week.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity was unchanged from the previous week at 85.5, compared with 73.9 in the same week last year.

Sharp gains in the week's reports of steel-mill activity and railroad carloadings were equalized by minor setbacks in the seasonally adjusted figures for automobile production, cotton manufacturing and electric power output.

Steel mills operated at the highest levels since June, 1930—some 43 per cent above the year's low—with all major classifications contributing to the expansion.

Reflecting the high rate of activity in the consumer industries, a large movement of miscellaneous freight advanced the carloadings index.

The composite index, with its seasonally adjusted indices based on the latest available statistics, and with 1929-30 as 100, follows:

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Composite index — —	85.5	85.5	73.9
Automobile production	90.7	91.5	90.0
Steel mill activity —	*94.5	91.1	55.9
Cotton Mfg. activity	97.4	98.4	82.4
Electric power prod.	104.9	106.7	95.7

WHOLESALE COMMODITY INDEX.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Commodity prices continued to fluctuate in the same narrow range that has confined them since early March during the week just ended.

The Associated Press weighted index of wholesale commodity prices dropped .02 to 74.33 of the 1926 average and compares with 76.06 in the same week last year.

Scrambled price movements resulted in 10 advances, 10 declines and 15 unchanged quotations in the 35 commodities making up the index. The individual groups likewise moved diversely; three rising and three falling.

Still under the impetus of drouth talk—Secretary Wallace referred during the week to a "baby drouth" in the Middle West—agricultural products posted higher prices. Corn, wheat and cotton were buoyant. Rye sagged a fraction on technical factors.

Foods were a bit higher although trends varied; eggs, cocoa and flour offsetting coffee and butter.

A large movement of cattle to market put them off almost a dollar. Good demand for lamb and the incidental price boost, was no match for the slump in cattle, and the index fell to a new low for the year.

Another 1936 low was established by the textile index which has been sinking steadily under the pressure of over-production in practically every branch of the industry. Wool and silk reacted.

Rubber, bituminous coal, turpentine and linseed oil slid off.

Other industrial staples moved moderately against the trend, notably steel scrap and burlap, but at no time was there any appearance of pressure to buy.

A slight advance in the price of tin as the date for the meeting of members of the international tinnplate cartel neared gave hope to the trade that the reported disagreement among large producers as to quotas was a myth. The index touched a new top for the year.

The combined index, with its components, based on 1926 as 100, follows:

	April 24.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
35 commodities— —	74.33	74.35	76.06

LONG TERM TREASURY BONDS LEAD LIST

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The bond market displayed a steadier tone during the brief session today, under leadership of long-term U. S. Treasury issues.

Fractional advances were in the majority in the corporate division, where a feature of trading was extreme firmness among the lower-priced rail bonds. Foreign loans were about a standoff.

Accompanied by a substantially increased volume, virtually all of the 10 to 20 year Treasury bonds gave a good account of themselves. The 2⅞s of 1955-60 advanced 5-32ds to 102; the 3⅛s of 1946-49 gained 4-32ds at 105.27 and somewhat smaller advances were distributed among the others.

As in previous sessions recently, there was little activity in the nearby maturities, but a generally steady tone prevailed. The 3¼s of 1943 improved 4-32ds on a single sale.

In the corporate sections trading was dull, but there were enough buyers willing to bid for securities to keep prices pointing upward. Issues closing fractionally higher included Baltimore & Ohio 4½s at 70, Illinois Central 4¾s at 72¾, Missouri Pacific 5s at 29¼, Postal Telegraph 5s at 31¼, and Penn-Dixie 6s at 92½.

Bonds moving in a wider range on the up side with gains of 1 to 2 points included Chesapeake Corporation 5s, Utility Power & Light 5s and Warner Bros. 6s.

German 7s and Australian 5s were among other foreign bonds on the mend. Italian 7s were unchanged.

The Associated Press averages ranged from an advance of .1 of a point in the rail and foreign groups to unchanged in the industrials.

Transfers of $4,781,000, par value, compared with $5,373,000 last Saturday.

IRREGULARLY HIGHER RANGE TO CURB LIST

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Extending its irregular recovery of the preceding session of the curb market today made fair progress particularly in such groups as utilities, oils and industrial specialties.

In issues like American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, United Gas preferred, Imperial Oil and International Petroleum, early fractional gains were held to the close.

Aluminum Co. of America finished at 128, up 1½; American Cyanamid B at 34⅜, up ⅜; Axton Fisher 48, up 1 and Pan American Airways 55½, up 1½.

Mining stocks showed a mixed trend. New Jersey Zinc and Pioneer Gold were moderately improved.

Sales totaled 125,000 shares compared with 234,000 last Saturday.

CONSOLIDATED RETAIL STORES VOTES $4 ON PREFERRED

Consolidated Retail Stores, Inc., has declared a dividend of $4 a share on the 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock, payable June 1 to stockholders of record May 15. The company stated that it "intends to declare further dividends from time to time so that when the amendment of certificate of incorporation, proposed to remove the existing defaults resulting from non-payment of past accumulations of divends and non-retirement of preferred stock becomes effective, the preferred dividends arears will not exceed the amount of arrears as at April 1, 1936, that is, $36 a share."

WOULD CUT STOCK'S STATED VALUE MANY MILLIONS

NEW YORK, April 25.—In a letter sent today to stockholders of Engineers Public Service Co., S. B. Tuell, president, has asked their approval at the annual meeting on May 18 of a reduction in the stated value of the common stock to $1,-909,968 from $58,059,512.

"Such action," Tuell said, "would place directors in position to considers the declaration of dividends when conditions warrant, creating a capital surplus which would permit an allowance for possible shrinkage in the value of the security holdings of the company."

The action, if approved, would have the effect of reducing the total outstanding capital of the company to $42,985,601 from $99,135,145.

There are three issues of Engineers Public Service preferred stocks: 158,080 shares of $5 convertible; 196,934 shares of $5.50 preferred and 75,000 shares of $6 preferred. All are cumulative.

At the end of 1935, the $5 issue was $12.50 in arrears. Back dividends on the $5.50 preferred were $13.75, while on the $6 stock they totaled $15.

SCRAP IRON AND METALS.

Scrap iron in the St. Louis market was quoted as follows: Per ton: Country agricultural or industrials, $5.75@6.75; stove iron $5@6; cast iron, $7.50@8.50. Metals—Per 100 lbs: Light brass, $2.75; heavy yellow brass, $3.75; red brass, $5; heavy copper wire, $6.25; light do, $2.75; tinfoil, $30; aluminum, $11.50. lead, $3.50; lead foil, $5.50; zinc, $2.75;

JESSE OWENS SETS NEW MARK FOR PENN RELAYS, WINNING 100 METERS

TEXAS U. RELAY TEAM AGAIN SETS A RECORD

By Alan Gould
Associated Press Sports Editor.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25. — The boys from the wide open spaces, gaining momentum for this year's Olympic drive, topped off their most successful invasion of the 42-year-old Pennsylvania relay carnival today in a record-smashing fashion.

Paced by the crack University of Texas sprint relay team, which scored two record-breaking victories in as many days over the East's best, and by Ohio State's redoubtable Jesse Owens in the individual competition, athletes from the Mid-West and Southwest dominated the two-day meet.

Four records were shattered today for the benefit of a crowd of 40,000 fans, making a total of five new marks for the carnival. The University of Michigan, victorious here for the first time in 23 years, joined Ohio State and Texas in collecting two major relay championships apiece.

Manhattan's triumph in the distance medley yesterday and Harvard's conquest of Cornell in the shuttle hurdles relay this afternoon saved the East from being shut out but not from absorbing its worst beating in the history of the meet.

Owens Is Double Victor.

Owens hung up a double victory as his contribution to the West's surge of talented performances. The sensational Negro breezed to victory over Sam Stoller of Michigan in the final of the 100-meter invitation sprint by four feet, setting a new carnival mark of 10.5 seconds after equaling the old record of 10.6, set last year by Eulace Peacock, in the trials. With Peacock out of action, the result of an injury yesterday, Owens was not hard pressed and contented himself with clearing only 23 feet, ⅝ inch to win the broad jump.

The jumping take-off appeared faulty and Owens, after frequent false starts down the runway, decided not to run any risks or attempt a record-breaking performance. His best jump was a far cry from his world mark of 26 feet, 8¼ inches.

The day's most sparkling individual feat was registered by Charles Beetham, Ohio State's half-miler, who stepped the anchor 880 in the dazzling time of 1:52.5 to overhaul Manhattan and Michigan rivals and capture the two-mile relay title for the Buckeyes. Beetham started off in third place, fully 20 yards in the ruck, but overtook Burns of Manhattan and Brelsford of Michigan at the end of the back stretch. His stretch drive ran them into the ground as he won by a dozen yards. Burns barely staggered to the tape to beat Brelsford by inches and give Manhattan the runner-up spot.

Michigan Back in Limelight.

Ohio's time of 7:49.8 for the two miles was considerably short of all records but sufficed to give the Buckeyes their second major crown of the carnival.

The University of Texas fliers, coached by Clyde Littlefield, wound up their first visit to Franklin

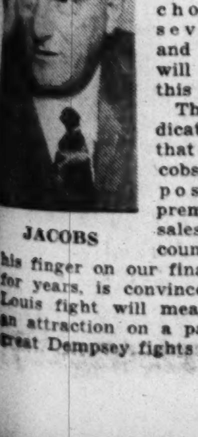
WRAY'S COLVMN

Back to the Gold Rush.

GOLD rush days are here again. That is to say, ringside seats for the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling international mayhem event will be $40 each. This fact has not been made public, but we have it on reliable authority.

From the maximum of $40 prices will range down to $3.45 general admission. It is probable that the $40 tickets will not apply to all the vast area usually designated as "ringside," but that the real choosy seats, several thousand in number, will be held at this figure.



JACOBS

This fact indicates clearly that Mike Jacobs, who in his position as premier ticket salesman of the country has had his finger on our financial pulse for years, is convinced that the Louis fight will measure up as an attraction on a par with the great Dempsey fights of the past.

It also means that the public is approaching a pre-depression frame of mind as to letting loose of their "jack." That's important. For persons might esteem a show worth $40 and yet not be willing to let go that sum. Mike Jacobs, it is very evident, thinks the country has turned that difficult corner, around which the rainbow once again is doing its stuff.

The Press Is Interested.

THERE is another angle indicating unusual interest in the Schmeling-Louis affair. Press reservations tell the story. Almost two months remain before the fighters enter the ring. Yet already there have been received 540 applications for working press seats.

But to accommodate these 540, plus as many more that will ap-

Mahaffey Hurls and Browns Beat Indians For First Time, 6 to 3

By James M. Gould
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CLEVELAND, April 25.—Despite a tendency to "go wild" at times, Roy (Popeye) Mahaffey did a rather neat job of pitching this afternoon and, allowing the hard-hitting Cleveland Indians only six hits, scattered over as many innings, brought the Browns their first victory of the season over the Cleveland club by a score of 6 to 3.

The Browns continued their fine hitting, collecting an even dozen safeties off the efforts of Hudlin, Lee and Galehouse. Of these, Lary had three and Solters and Bottomley each two. Pytlak was the only Indian to get more than one hit off Mahaffey.

Several times in the late innings, Mahaffey looked to be in serious trouble but fine fielding helped him out, two St. Louis double plays being of considerable aid.

One of the three Cleveland runs—the second—was Trosky's fifth homer of the season. It came in the eighth.

Mahaffey struck out two men and walked seven. Only one of these receivers of free tickets scored.

The Browns were away with a run in the first. After two were out, Solters bounced one over Hudlin's head and beat it out. Whereupon Bottomley inserted one carefully in left center which was good for three bases and Solters romped home.

Hornsby's generous lads presented the Indians with the "tier-upper" in the second. Trosky, first up, walked and, after Hale flied out, stopped at second on Campbell's single to short left. Pytlak popped out and a wild pitch advanced Trosky and Campbell. Hudlin's slashed hit bounced off Clift's glove to Lary, who, with plenty of time to get the pitcher, made a low throw to first on which Trosky counted.

In the third, the Browns earned another on Lary's single, an infield out and a safe wallop by Solters.

West's Triple Routs Hudlin.

Hudlin, who had been hit hard from the very start, disappeared in the fifth. Lary, first up, dropped a double in left and scored immediately when West tripled off the fence in right center. Thornton Lee, tall southpaw, came in at this juncture. He knocked down Solters' smash and threw him out but West went over with the second run of the inning. Lee got the next two.

There was a queer play in the Fifth Soccer Final Here in Row Tonight

WHEN the Shamrock Club takes the field against the German-American F. C., of Philadelphia at Walsh Stadium tonight, it will mark the twelfth time St. Louis has placed a team in the national soccer cup final. This is the fifth year in a row that the Shamrocks or their predecessors, have reached the final. They were known formerly as Stix, Baer & Fuller, and the Central club. The National Challenge Cup has been in the possession of this team for the past three years.

A story of the contending teams will be found on Page 5 of this section.

CARAS RETAINS BILLIARD TITLE

Brevity Close to Track Record In Beating Ten Derby Eligibles

Bradley's Bien Joli a Badly Beaten Second, Sangreal Third in Test Race for Kentucky Classic.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 25—Brevity, Josephine E. Widener's bay son of Sickle today banished all doubt of his fitness for the Kentucky Derby and firmly established himself as the horse to beat in the mile and a quarter Blue Grass classic when he simply romped to victory in a seven-furlong allowance affair, one of the opening day features at Churchill Downs, where the Derby will be run next Saturday.

Coupled with Brevity's sensational victory was a none too subtle warning from Colonel Edward Riley Bradley, whose Bein Joli finished second behind Brevity and whose Banister came from nowhere in the stretch to land fourth.

Loses and Regains Lead.

Brevity's triumph was typical of his other conquests, most recent of which was the world-record equalling effort in the Florida Derby on March 7. The bay colt tok the lead shortly after the start, lost it for one brief moment at the half to Milky Way Farm's Sangreal and then, under expert handling by Wayne D. Wright, streaked frontward again to win drawing away by two and a half lengths.

Bien Joli, making his first start of the year, closed stoutly in the brief jaunt and finished another length and a half in front of Sangreal, with Banister fourth and eight other Derby hopefuls straggling along further in the rear.

$2 mutuels paid: Brevity, $2.80, $2.40, $2.20; Bien Joli, $3.00, $2.80; Sangreal, 3.20.

Brevity rushed to the front on the inside in the first eighth, forced a fast pace under light urging, came away when strongly shaken up in the stretch and won easily. Bien Joli, well up from the start and forced to race wide, was in hand for five-eights and after closing stoutly under mild pressure, went out a mile in 1:39 4-5. Sangreal had fine speed from the start, swerved out slightly entering the stretch and held on well though outmatched by the leaders. Banister, badly outrun for five-eights, and brought to outside in the stretch, closed with fine speed and went out one mile and a furlong in 1:54 1-5. Wise Duke had no mishaps and could not improve his position. He Did tired. Boston Pal pulled up lame. Silas, never prominent, worked out one mile and a furlong in 1:55 3-5. Noble Star and Judge Kavanagh delayed the start.

J. E. Widener's Kentucky Derby candidate is shown winning a 7-furlongs race at Churchill Downs yesterday in which he made a show of 11 other Derby eligibles and one non-eligible. E. R. Bradley's Bien Joli finished second and Sangreal third, well beaten.

CARDINALS USE FIVE PITCHERS IN LOSING TO PIRATES, 12 TO 5

HALLAHAN BELTED FOR 3 HOMERS; WALKER WILD

By J. Roy Stockton

Sportsman's Park has brought out all the sterling qualities of visiting teams this spring. The dog wood is scarcely through putting on the dog. The red bud still makes hill side and valley more gorgeous. But already the Indians, the Tigers, the Reds and Pirates, treading the friendly turf of the park our Browns and Cardinals call home, have seemed to wear the robes and carry the armament of champions.

It was the Pittsburgh Pirates' turn yesterday afternoon. They called to open a three-game series with Frankie Frisch's Cardinals, an ambitious team, one of the darlings of the spring prognosticators. But the Pirates did the shining, just as the Indians, Tigers and Reds had done before them. Say not that the Reds did not do well here. They lost, it is true, but it took a five-run splurge by the Redbirds in the ninth inning to nullify their batting power and fielding skill.

Pirates Show Power.

Pie Traynor's Buccaneers showed great power as they bombarded two of Herr Frisch's pitchers and profited greatly by two walks that Bill Walker gave, and when the large and loudly cheering Ladies' day crowd of 15,900 persons filed sadly from the park the Cardinals were on the somber end of a 12 to 5 score.

Five Cardinal pitchers appeared on the firing line during the long afternoon and two of them, Bill Hallahan and Mike Ryba, were treated as Pirates are wont to treat their victims. Hallahan, hero of many a Cardinal battle, had nothing. His curve was a mere wrinkle. His fast ball hung on a string. While he was trying to get the ball as far as Catcher Davis, Fred Schulte, former Brownie, hit a home run. So did Gussie Suhr, a left-handed batter who is not a supposed to hit a left-handed pitcher. Dan Hafey, a nephew of our old friend Chick, also whacked a four-bagger into the sun seats, and with a few singles thrown in for good measure, the Pirates had six runs before Hallahan departed, which would have been enough to give Big Jim Weaver the decision.

Cards Start with Two-Run Lead.

Schulte hit his homer in the first inning and for a time it seemed unimportant as the Cardinals, profiting by a pass to Moore, Frisch's single, a wild pitch, a single by Medwick and a double by Davis took the lead with three runs.

But the Pirates continued their attack in the second frame and tied the score with two runs on singles by Lavagetto, Todd and Jensen, with a pass and a wild throw by Pepper Martin tossed in. They added another in the third on Suhr's clout to the pavilion roof and Hafey made his circuit drive in the fourth after Schulte had singled, so the hit was good for two.

Pirates Have Six-Run Inning.

Hallahan withdrew for a pinch hitter in the fourth and the Cardinal pitching in the fifth and sixth was excellent, Jim Winford turning back the enemy in order. But runs

CUNNINGHAM SETS 1000-YARD MARK, LASH 2-MILE RECORD

KANSAS STATE TAKES RELAY, CALDEMEYER IS HURDLE WINNER

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 25. — Glenn Cunningham, that grand old man of the American footracing wars, and Don Lash, welterweight Indiana University speedster, who may some day take Cunningham's place as ruler of the middle distances, gave America's Olympic hopes a shot in the arm today by racing to new American records in the twenty-seventh annual Drake relay games.

The great Kansan, whose failure to win mile races every time he started in the indoor season caused concern over his Olympic prospects, gave a highly reassuring demonstration in outfooting a picked field in the featured 1000-yard run.

Glenn not only won, but showed a sample of newly-acquired finishing "kick" to finish in 2 minutes, 11:2 seconds. The time was more than a second slower this his own indoor mark of 2:10.1, but it did trim a full second off the former outdoor standard achieved by Pennsylvania's Larry Brown in 1921.

Cunningham ran a cagey race, permitting Ray Sears, former Butler University star, and Elroy Robinson of Fresno, (Cal.) State to bear the pace making burden until the last three-quarters of a lap. Then, lengthening his stride, the one-time Kansas record-destroyer, now a graduate student at the University of Iowa, made his bid. Sears dropped back and with a half-lap left, Cunningham sped past Robinson.

All that remained from there on in was to withstand a bristling challenge from Harry Williamson of the University of North Carolina, who moved up swiftly from fourth place. Cunningham refused to be stampeded out of his apparently planned race and the Southerner pulled up to within four yards. As they swung around the last turn, Cunningham let go with his sprint. Williamson couldn't come close to matching it and was eight yards back as Big Glenn tore across the finish line.

Cunningham was credited with doing his half mile in 1 minute 55 seconds and covered the remaining 120 yards in the excellent time of 16.2 seconds.

Cal Beckett, Negro middle distance star from Marquette University, finished third, with Harold Manning, former Wichita star, a remote fourth. Robinson suffered an ankle injury while struggling to match the Kansan's pace around the last turn, and fell off the track. Sears was far back in fifth place.

Lash's contribution to the smashing of seven records in the Midwest's blue ribbon relay carnival, was fully as convincing as Cunningham's fine job. Not very big, but with sped to burn today, the Hoosier ace made a show of his field in winning the two-mile event in 9 minutes, 10.6 seconds, running along after the first 100 yards, Lash increased his lead so rapidly that he sprinted through the tape 250 yards ahead of Wayne Slocum of Minnesota.

Lash's time shaved three seconds off the listed American mark of 9:13.6, established by another great Hoosier, Henry Brocksmith, in 1932. It failed, however, to threaten the indoor record of 9:07.4, established in 1934 by Sears.

Alton Terry, of Hardin-Simmons college of Texas, got off a throw of 222.65 feet, the best achieved by an American in competition, to win the javeline event and on none of his throws did he fall under 208 feet. The best listed heave by an American was 222 feet 6¾ inches credited to Jimmy Dewers. Terry's throw bettered the national collegiate record of 221 feet, 11 inches by Horace O'Dell of Manhattan college in 1934.

Ray Ellenwood, Chicago's crack sophomore, won the 440-yard special race in 48.5 seconds, and later hauled the Maroons from last place to third in the university one-mile relay, won by Northwestern. Notre Dame was second.

Lash ran a dazzling final race to help Indiana to a new Drake four-mile relay record of 17 minutes, 40.2 seconds. The old record, 17:45 was set by Illinois' crack 1922 team.

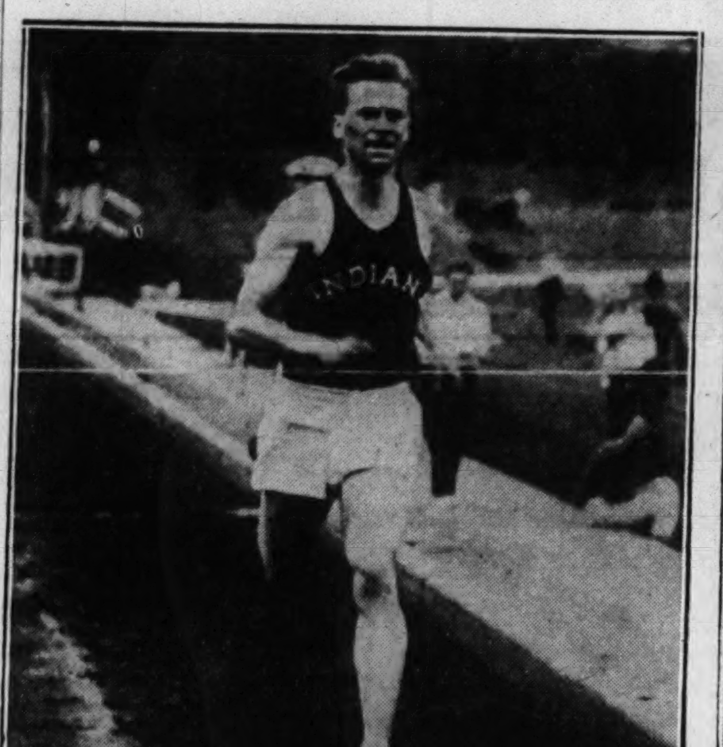
Double-victory honors for the two-day carnival rested with Sam Francis, Nebraska fullback, whose southpaw tosses won the discus and shot put events; Harvey Neil, from Maryville (Mo.) Teachers, and four Notre Dame sprinters. Francis won the discus yesterday with a mark of 149.76 feet and his 50 feet 7 inches in the shot—made in yesterday's trials, held up in the finals today.

Neil was declared victor in the closest race of the meet, the 100-yard dash, and followed up with a triumph in the hop, step and jump. Neil's time in the 100 was 9.07 seconds and his winning effort in the triple jump event was 48 feet ¾ inch.

The same Notre Dame four, Jordan, Frawley, Boyle and Clifford, won the quarter mile and half mile university relays. They whipped through the shorter event in 41.8 seconds and came back later to take the half mile in 1 minute 27.3 seconds.

Dan Caldemeyer, Indiana, accounted for an upset by conquering Jack Kellner, Wisconsin, in the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.8 seconds.

They Boost U. S. Olympic Hopes— Lash and Cunningham Win at Drake Relays



Don Lash, Indiana U. distance runner, boosted United States Olympic hopes by winning the two-mile run at the Drake Relays yesterday in 9 minutes, 10.6 seconds, a new American outdoor record.

Glenn Cunningham, world's champion miler, coasted to victory in a special 1000-yard race at the Drake Relays yesterday, which netted him a new American record of 2 minutes, 11.2 seconds.

Tomlinson Third In Shotput at Drake Relays

DES MOINES, Ia., April 25. — Washington University was limited to two individual place winners in the Drake Relays here today, Tomlinson getting third place in the shot put with a heave of 47 feet 7⅜ inches and Waite landing fourth place in the 100-yard dash in which all six of the finalists hit the tape in a blanket finish.

Waite had the satisfaction of nosing out Grieve, the Illinois star, who prior to Friday's preliminaries, was considered the favorite.

University City High placed third in the one-mile relay, behind Valley Junction, Ia., and Clinton, Ia.

WASHINGTON BEARS WIN TENNIS MATCH FROM WESTMINSTER

Although their captain, Conway Frye, was ill and unable to play and their No. 1 player had a blister on his finger, Washington University tennis players defeated Westminster, four matches to two, on the Washington U. courts yesterday afternoon.

Harry Greensfelder, the boy with the blister, was slow to start his conquest over John Morsinkhoff of Westminster, losing the first set 4—6, but winning the next two, 6—4, 6—1.

Other Washington boys to win singles were Morris Gawlen, who defeated Ewald Busse, 6—2, 6—1, and Donald Lorenz, who beat John Covington, 6—3, 6—3. Bud Durham, Westminster, won from Joe Offstein, Washington, 6—2, 6—4.

Owens Stars in Penn Relays

Field the way they started—in record-breaking form. The smooth-running, fine passing combination of Reeves, Rockhold, Gruneisen and Wallender ran the legs off Pennsylvania, as well as Navy, in the final of the 880-yard relay. Their time, 1:26.6, clipped two-tenths of a second off the former carnival mark, set by Ohio State in 1930. They lowered the meet mark for the 440 relay to 41.1 yesterday.

Penn trailed by 10 yards and Navy by 15 in the half-mile relay white Cornell, the fourth qualifier, withdrew.

Michigan celebrated its comeback to the victors' heights by romping of fwith the classic one-mile relay championship and then lifting the four-mile crown. The Wolverines last were triumphant in the Penn meet in 1913, when they captured two-mile honors.

Mercersburg Sets Record.

The feature of performances by a horde of school boys was contributed by Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy's runners, who cracked the national interscholastic two-mile record. After losing their sprint crown the day before, Mercersburg's half-milers set a new mark of 8:08.6. This knocked two-tenths of a second of the former interscholastic record, set by Hamilton Collegiate Institute of Canade, here in 1932. Mercersburg won by 20 yards from Mount Pleasant High, with Not Terrace third in a field of 24 starters.

Ohio State furnished one of the surprises of the field events when Dave Albritton, a sophomore, won the high jump at 6 feet 5 inches and narrowly missed three attempts to break the carnival mark of 6:7½. University of Pittsburgh athletes topped two events, with Walter Good, winner of the hop, step and jump at 44 feet, 9¼ inches, and Gene Taano best in the javelin, at 196 feet, 4½ inches. Anton Kishon, Bates' "strong man," won the hammer throw, with a toss of 164 feet, 1¾ inches, repeating his 1935 victory, and Bill Harding of Yale captured the pole vault at 13 feet 4½ inches.

No Progress in Picking Olympic Soccer Players

Efforts on the part of the Olympic Committee of the United States Football Association to set in motion machinery for the raising of funds to send a soccer team to the Olympic Games have thus far met with failure, it was disclosed when Elmer A. Schroeder of Philadelphia, chairman of the committee, met St. Louis and Chicago committee members here last night.

Discussing the need for funds, Schroeder told Reynold Oeschler of Chicago and John Finnegan and John Scully of St. Louis that no progress has yet been made in the matter of selecting a representative team. The United States Football Association delegates at their last annual convention instructed its Olympic Committee to hold an interstate association elimination series, the surviving team to play a test match against the Amateur Cup winner and selection of the U. S. team members to be made thereafter.

No such inter-state games have been played and so far as Chairman Schroeder could inform the committee, none is contemplated. He said that he did not know definitely how the team would be selected and asked the St. Louis member to aid in the raising of funds without giving further consideration to how players would be chosen. Finnegan told the chairman that he thought it would be difficult if not impossible to raise any considerable sum from St. Louis soccer fans when the method of selecting players remained in such a confused condition. At least $10,000 is needed. The soccer competition at Berlin is played in August.

In 1928, the last time the United States sent a team after the Olympic title, St. Louis raised 60 per cent of the necessary funds, or approximately $4000

WICHITA U. TENNIS TEAM SWEEPS MEET WITH THE BILLIKENS

Completing a victorious invasion of college tennis teams here, Wichita University's squad won all six matches with St. Louis U. yesterday on the Reservoir Park courts. Friday, Wichita shut out Washington U.

Harry Corbin, Wichita's junior champion of Kansas and Alabama, easily defeated John Renard of St. Louis, 6-1, 6-2, in one of the singles matches.

The closest match was between Stanley Diamond of Wichita and Cornie McDonald of St. Louis, Diamond winning in three sets, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

W. U. GOLFERS TAKE PLAYOFF TO DEFEAT WESTMINSTER TEAM

After the Washington-Westminster golf matches ended in a nine-hole tie, Tom Draper and Jack Lich gave the Bears a 10-9 decision by defeating Jack Berkley and Keith Compton 1 up in a two-hole playoff at Normandie Golf Club yesterday.

In the other extra playoff, George Stamm and Bill Mason were even for the two holes.

Draper, star of the Bears' team, was the only player to take all three points, winning both nines and the 18 holes to defeat Berkley, Kirkwood boy, now attending Westminster, 5 and 3.

ST. LOUIS WOMEN BOWLERS ROLL LOW SCORES AT OMAHA

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., April 25.—Of the four St. Louis teams competing in the women's national bowling tournament here tonight, the best score was bowled by the Kroemeke team with 2294. The Hart Printers turned in 2215 for next best. The Wacher-Helderles hit 2135 and the South St. Louis Dairy team 2187.

HARVEY AGAIN STARS, HELPING CLAYTON TO WIN MEET AT HOME

By Reno Hahn

Francis "Bud" Harvey's rocket-like start that gave Clayton's sprint medley relay team a ten-yard advantage and enable it to win the event in record-breaking time, decided the "B" division title in the regional qualifying trials for the state track meet held yesterday at Clayton's stadium.

Clayton was trailing, 31-30, behind John Burroughs when the last event, the medley, was run. Harvey's quick start gave Clayton an advantage it held to the finish, the victory giving Clayton 35 points to Burroughs' 34. Union won the "C" division easily, scoring 82 points.

Harvey set three records, and as before related gave the Orange and Blue a good start in the medley relay.

His performances were needed, as Marion Schaeffer, his teammate, failed to give the support expected. Schaeffer looked as if he hadn't fully recovered from his recent illness.

Anxious Moments.

But Harvey gave Clayton followers some anxious moments at the start of the medley relay. He beat the gun the first time it went off. A second false start would disqualify Clayton's team. The starter called the runners off their marks on the second start when several runners appeared to be too eager.

The third time saw Harvey flash off his starting block with the gun. From his position in an outside land, he sped past the other runners to a lead in the pole position. He kept his furious pace throughout the 220 yards and held a ten-yard lead when he passed the baton. His teammates had no trouble in holding the lead and aided by the fast furlong set a new record of 1 minute 39.1 seconds, 4.3 seconds better than the mark set in 1934 by Clayton.

Harvey's records were: 120-yard high hurdles, 15.7 seconds, the old mark, 16.2 seconds by Harvey, 1935; 200-yard low hurdles, 23.8, old mark, 24.4 by Ramsey Lammers, St. Charles, 1935; and broad jump, 21 feet 9 inches, old mark, Charles Barklage, Washington, 1935.

Eight New Records.

Altogether, there were eight records broken and two tied out of 15 events in "B" class, and five broken and one tied in "C." The best mark set was by Robert Waldram, Washington High javelin thrower, who hurled the spear 191 feet 11½ inches to beat his old mark of 177 feet 11 inches. He also set a new record of 44 feet 4 inches in the shotput.

Winners and runner-ups in each event in both divisions qualify for the state outdoor meet next Saturday at Columbia. Clayton led the "B" qualifiers with eight places, and John Burroughs was next with seven. Clayton is defending champion in the state "B" meet.

Union appears to have a good chance to win the "C" state meet as it will have 17 entrants.

The "B" and "C" track teams will run at Columbia this Saturday and the "A" squads on May 9. This is a change in the usual method of running the event as all three classes used to compete on the same day.

About 300 spectators enjoyed the meet which was speedily run off, the 18 afternoon events being finished in a little over three hours. The field events were held in the morning.

PRINCIPIA ACADEMY TENNIS TEAM BEATS WESTERN MILITARY, 3-2

John Andrews and Jerry Simon of Principia Academy delivered a three-set victory in the deciding doubles match to give their tennis team a 3 to 2 victory over Western M. A. in ABC League competition yesterday at Principia.

Andrews and Simon defeated Tracy Finn and Robert Winkelmeyer, 6—8, 6—4, 8—6, in the final match of the afternoon. Western won two singles matches.

Singles results: Tracy Finn, Western, defeated Jerry Simon, Principit, 6—2, 6—2. Henry Holt, Principia, defeated Edward Andres, Western, 6—1, 6—2. Clifford Young, Western, defeated Marvin Storms, Principia, 8—6, 6—1.

The Magic Carpet.

I SEE Dick Shikat lost his crown
When Ali Baba rubbed his lamp;
He put the German's shoulders down,
And, lo! another wrestling champ!

With growing interest we read
The saga of the wrestling game;
No One-eyed Calendars they need
To put the Arabian Nights to shame.

Compared to what those boys can do
Grimm's fairy tales seem tame and flat,
While Aesop's Fables all ring true
A magic carpet is the mat!

ALI BABA
WRESTLING CHAMP

Not detracting from the performance of Ali Baba, but in our opinion either Sinbad the Sailor on In-bad the Tailor could take his measure.

Norvell Hunthausen of St. Louis U., pitched a no-hit no-run game and struck out 15 Western Military batters, while on the same day McBride High turned a triple play against C. B. C. Indicating that the majors can't do anything the minors can't do.

Pitching no-hit ball is no novelty to Hunthausen. He got the knack of it in the Muny League last year and one and two-hit games while pitching in the American Legion League were the rule rather than the exception. Charley Barrett will get him if he doesn't watch out.

You better ease up Norvell and mind what you're about
Or the major league'll git you if you don't watch out.

Al Smith may take a walk on election day but the slogan of his namesake who pitches for the Giants is "nobody walks!"

Beau Bell may not be a ringer for Babe Ruth but he lined out a ringing homer the other day.

It goes without saying that Dick Shikat claims he was fouled by Ali Baba. O'Mahony claims he was fouled by the referee when he lost to Shikat. Gus Sonnenberg claims he lost to Strangler Lewis on a foul. So it looks as though the boys intend to fight it out on the foul line if it takes all summer.

The wrestlers are opposed to Governmental paternalism. Every state in the Union is entitled to its world's champion wrestler.

In the course of time if there are enough champions to go around they might divide it up into cities, wards and precincts. In that way St. Louis might get a world champion.

Jimmy Londos used to register from St. Louis but we didn't appreciate him when we had him.

Strange as it may seem Detroit has no world champion wrestler. Probably doesn't care for titles that are split 40 ways from the jack.

The man on the feedbox says Indian Broom may come clean in the Kentucky Derby but he would feel more confident if it were a sweepstake affair.

"Soft Ball Heads Meet in Lansing."

The soft ball heads will foregather as usual in the front row.

Webster Beats C. B. C. at Track

Showing greater all around superiority, Webster Groves' High School track and field team defeated Christian Brothers High, 146 to 89, in a dual meet that began Thursday and was completed yesterday on the winners' field.

Harkey of Webster and Meara of C. B. C. stood out in the Senior division, the suburban ace winning the high jump and the high hurdles while the C. B. athlete took first in the 220-yard dash and second in the century and the discus. In the junior division Tillay of Webster with 12 points, and Droege of the Brothers with six were in the limelight. The Webster Seniors outscored the Prep leaguers 77 to 45 as the County Juniors ran up a 69 to 44 count on Coach Bill Klemm's boys.

The summaries:

ICTORS POUND FOUR HURLERS TO REMAIN IN SECOND PLACE

the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, April 25.—Eugene hott, 22-year-old graduate of Cin- nati's sandlots pitching his sec- season as a Red regular, held e champion Chicago Cubs in heck today and Cincinnati rapped ut a 5—3 victory.

The victory enabled the Reds to ighten their hold on second place. A crowd of 22,626 that included 4,219 "Knot Holers" saw the Reds unch all of their nine hits in four nnings and send as many Cub itchers to the showers.

e Handley, 20-year-old rookie bstituting at third base for Lew iggs, who was ill, got his first g league hit in a third inning ally that netted two runs. He nade a sensational leaping one- anded catch of Phil Cavarretta's ine drive in the next inning.

Handley Is a St. Louis Boy.

Billy Myers, shortstop who was the object of considerable abuse earlier in the week because of er- rors, received a handsome travel- ing bag from his admirers before the game and celebrated by trip- ling in the fifth and scoring the Reds' final run on Schott's single.

Giants Smother Bees, 11 to 5.

the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Great relief hurling by Al Smith, who gave up but one hit after the Bees had knocked out Harry Gumbert in the fifth inning, enabled the New York Giants to turn back the Boston club today in the opening game of their series, 11-5.

Hank Leiber combined with Mel Ott and Bill Terry to provide the batting punch for the victory, these ee players sending nine of the runs across the plate. Hank showed the way with five runs driven in.

Ott connected with his fourth homer of the year, belting the ball into the teeth of a strong wind with one on in the seventh.

MARSHALL LEWIS WILL RETURN FOR MIDGET AUTO RACES, MAY 12

Marshall Lewis, driver on the local tracks, is returning to St. Louis to takeup residence here and compete in the midget auto races that open at Walsh Stadium, May 12.

Lewis said that he will be on hand for opening night and that expects to make all the races in Midwest circuit this summer representing St. Louis. He has racing at Gilmore Stadium in Angeles.

This Indian Didn't Have to Hit the Dirt—The Throw Was Bad

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

The runner is Willis Hudlin, pitcher of the Cleveland Indians; the fielder is First-sacker Jim Bottom ley of the Browns, and the wide throw was made by Shortstop Lyn Lary of the St. Louis club, in the s econd inning of yesterday's game at Cleveland. The bad peg enabled Hal Trosky to score for Cleveland with the first run of the game.

ply in the next two months, there will be only 275 working press accommodations, according to a limitation imposed by the New York commission.

Grief for Mike Jacobs, or for his press relations department, can hardly be avoided.

At the same time the situation for Mike is offset, for it can only mean that the Yankee Stadium will be packed to the fences with close to 100,000 persons at an average price of $15 per seat, which indicates a $1,500,000 melon to be divided by Mike and the fighters.

It also indicates a return to normal conditions, both as to the fight game and the public willingness to spend money.

The Pitching Problem.

THE pitching weakness of the Browns becomes more apparent daily. At this writing there isn't an ace on the club and only one or two of the staff likely to become nine-inning pitchers.

In fact, we might limit that guess to one—Paul Andrews, who himself failed to get started well, notwithstanding he was in better condition early this season than last.

The same weakness accounts for practically all the bad showing of those other unfortunates—the second division teams of the league. There are not enough good pitchers for 16 clubs, if all teams are to have a fair chance of success.

Baseball players today are coming up long before they are seasoned, and some graduate who would not have been able to make the major league level a few years ago.

"What can you do about it?" we asked a baseball official.

"Search me—got any ideas?"

The problem of creating pitchers out of thin air is not so simple, is it? Perhaps a number of pitchers could be made more efficient by relaxing the pitching restrictions.

There's one sure way to create more pitchers, but Ban Johnson would have given you the stony stare had you proposed it. That is to restore freak pitching—shine ball, spitball and "sailers" of all descriptions.

Curve-ball pitchers are hard to develop. But freak-ball throwers would become numerous if tolerated. There probably would be a sufficient number to equip 16 major-league clubs amply.

Freak pitching is not desirable. But if the major-league clubowners find that half of the 16 big-league membership ceases to be gate attractions because they can't get curve-ball pitchers, any move that will strengthen weak pitching staffs will probably get a hearing.

More and more fans remain away from losing clubs or those that have no pennant hopes. And you can't have eight contenders in an eight-club league unless good pitching is available for all.

Bloom Is Off the Peach.

IS professional tennis on the rocks? Bill Tilden's once famous tennis troupe attracted only 310 persons to their show here. They had plenty of publicity. But the public was "not interested."

Elsewhere this winter the tour was not patronized. But Big Bill ascribed it to the abnormal winter. Few nights were suitable. He believes that the inertia of a bad winter remains to be overcome and then the fans will come out of hibernation and patronize his show.

Well, perhaps. It is more logical to believe that the reason for failure is that Bruce Barnes, Jimmy McClure, Jane Sharpe and Mrs. Ethel Arnold are not names to conjure with. Even Tilden himself, at 43, is no longer the attraction of yore.

To keep going professionally, Bill must have new and sensational recruits for his troupe annually. Ellie Vines is a real card and when he shows the fans will appear.

But others will be needed in addition this summer. Fred Perry is the big shot who could help pack them in. But Fred, it seems, will approach no nearer professionalism than Hollywood.

The one other potential aid for "prof" tennis will not materialize," Bill himself says. That is "open" tournament play, as in golf. While here Tilden declared there wasn't a chance that the U. S. L. T. A. would countenance open tourneys. England has threatened to bar all our amateurs who play against pros.

Too bad. A pro-amateur tournament in this country would fill Forest Hills for a week, even though we no longer boast any amateur celebrities. Aside from Vines, our amateurs still seem good enough to beat all American pros in a tournament.

What's Happened to the Strangler?

SOMETHING is going on within that grand old edifice known to the public as Strangler Ed Lewis. As with many things pertaining to wrestling, when you consider Ed's case you conclude that you're mentally cross-eyed.

Attention was called to it through the recent match between the Strangler and Buttin' Gus Sonnenberg, who a decade ago was billy-goating his way to the top of what is referred to as the world wrestling championship.

Sonnenberg won that match and the somewhat bedraggled honors claimed by Lewis. Subsequent to that victory, Sonnenberg at intervals repeated the butts and also the victory over the Strangler.

Now, Lewis, who will never again see two score years, who is nursing sparse capillary decoration, whose shape is overstuffed and whose vision has been impaired by a wrestler's eye disease, is able to defeat his conqueror of long ago.

They are talking of rematching Gus and Ed to prove that Gus was taken unawares, or something; but the fact remains that Lewis won and won quickly.

It is an encouraging sign for us old boys to find such evidence that advancing years have no effect whatever on our physical powers. For if we judge by the Strangler's career, the older you grow the better you get.

It's a philosophy that this writer, for one, just can't resist.

were needed and so in the sixth when Davis and Morgan singled and a wild pitch advanced them, Johnny Mize was called from the dugout to bat for Winford. He drove in two runs with a double, but that necessitated a new pitcher and Bill Walker didn't have his control. Bill walked Hafey and Vaughn to start the bad seventh and then, when Suhr bunted for a sacrifice, Vaughan beat Martin's throw to second and all runners were safe and the bases filled. Ryba replaced Walker, but he had forgotten his rabbit's foot, or wasn't properly warmed up. At any rate Lavagetto's long fly scored a run and after an intentional pass to Young, filling the bases, another run scored while Todd was forcing Young at second. Then, of all things, Weaver doubled to left, driving two more home. Singles by Jensen and Schulte followed and a fumble by Moore on Jensen's drive helped make the inning good for six runs and disgusting to the customers, cash and otherwise.

Ryba did better in the eighth and Nelson Potter, Houston '35, pitched a scoreless ninth. But what of it! The Pirates didn't need any more runs. And they wanted to save their strength for a chappie named Jerome Herman Dean.

Redbird Notes.

DIZZY DEAN will oppose the Pirates today in the second game of the series, with Blanton or Swift likely to work for the visitors.

A ladies day crowd of 5000 women, 1900 girls, 4500 Knothole boys and 4500 cash customers welcomed the Cardinals back home.

Before the game 10-gallon Texas Centennial hats were presented to Dizzy and Paul Dean.

Charley Gelbert and Lynn King were out with leg trouble so Pepper Martin continued at third base and Eddie Morgan played right field for the Cardinals. Leo Durocher was back at short.

Lavagetto, at third for the Pirates, made a fancy stop to take a hit away from Medwick in the third inning.

Mahaffey Hurls and Browns Beat Indians for First Time, 6-3

Cleveland fifth which Pytlak opened with a lusty triple to left. For some reason Pytlak took a long lead off third and when Lee hit to Clift, the Cleveland catcher was snared trying to get back to the bag. This "break" helped considerably for Mahaffey got a bit wildish and a pair of passes filled the bases with two out and the very dangerous Joe Vismik up. Mahaffey worked carefully on Vosmik and Lary took care of Joe's high fly to short center.

Mahaffey was in trouble again in the sixth when, with one down, Hale singled for Cleveland's fourth hit and Campbell walked. But "Popeye" refused to blow and made Pytlak hit into a life-saving double play.

Sullivan, batting for Lee, and Knickerbocker walked to open the Indians' seventh. Here was a chance for Hornsby to do some master-minding but he decided to string along with Mahaffey. The Rajah guessed right, for Hughes hit into a double play and Averill flied meekly to West.

Galehouse appeared in the eighth as the third Cleveland pitcher and yielded a run on Bottomley's hit and an error by Trosky who failed to catch Hughes throw of Clift's easy grounder. The Indians got their fifth hit in the last of the eighth and it happened to be Trosky's homer which fortunately came with nobody aboard.

In the ninth Pytlak singled to start and Pinch-hitter Gleeson walked. Knickerbocker flied out and Pytlak scored while Carey was throwing out Hughes. It was all over when Averill popped out.

OVERNIGHT changes were possible but the pitching probabilities for the second game of the series tomorrow were "Sugar" Cain for the Browns and Oral Hildebrand for the Indians.

Young Billy Sullivan, now a catcher, ought to get the best of training in the position with Steve O'Neill, manager, and Wallie Schang, coach, at hand. Both Steve and Wallie were among the best catchers of theirs or any other baseball day.

It was a dark and dreary day but not cold. However, the good people of Cleveland, excited as they are over the Indians' chances—they're always that way here in April—didn't exactly jam the park. There were no more than 4000 present.

Bottomley's first inning triple went between Vosmik and Averill and rolled almost to the 415-foot marker.

Rollie Hemsley may get a vacation soon. He plainly favors one leg, but, with victories so scacrce, Hornsby doesn't want to take him out until its plumb necessary.

Umpire Basil, with Campbell up in the last of the second, called a strike because Bruce made a motion at the ball with his bat. Then, when "rushed" by the Cleveland Board of Strategy, he allowed Moriarty to reverse him all the way from second base. Wonder what a plate umpire thinks about?

BOSTON, April 25.—Lefty Grove revealed his old mastery over the Yankees here again this chilly afternoon as he registered his second triumph of the season over them by a socre of 7 t o2. An eighth inning home run by Myril Hoag with Red Rolfe on base was all that stopped Grove from duplicating the shutout decision he took from them at the stadium last week.

It was the Boston left-hander's third straight victory, his third start and his third complete game. He gave up nine hits, one more than the Red Sox made off the combined deliveries of Monte Pearson and Pat Malone, but he was never in any serious difficulties.

The Sox chased Pearson early, getting a pair of runs in each of the first innings. Malone relieved Pearson in the third and allowed only one run thereafter.

Hoag's homer was one of three hits he got during the day. In addition, he played a sensational game in the outfield, making a great throw in the third to nip a man at the plate, and sparkling as he made circus catches in the outfield.

Tigers Go 10 Innings To Beat White Sox.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Marvin Owen's tenth-inning single with the bases loaded gave the Detroit Tigers an 8-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox before 5000 fans today.

The Bengals took an early lead and at one stage held a 6-1 margin. Zeke Bonura's homer with two on, however, put the Sox back in the game and they knotted the count in the eighth. Simmons singled to open the tenth and reached third on Goslin's double to left. Rogell was purposely passed and Owen then poked a hit past short to provide the winning margin.

Mickey Cochrane homered for Detroit and Tony Piet duplicated Bonura's four-base clout for the Sox.

Local Bicycle Riders Olympic Trial Here May 3

Charles E. Forrest, local representative of the Amateur Bicycle League of America, has announced Robertson, Mo., as the start and finish of the Missouri State trials for the American Olympic Bicycle team, next Sunday, May 3.

All riders must report to the Clerk of Course at 8 a. m. for their numbers with the race getting under way at 9 o'clock. The race will start at Robertson, just north of Lambert Field, with the boys pedaling northwest over route 140 to route 99 where they turn south to route 66 and then west on 66 to the start. Three laps will be ridden around this course to complete the necessary 100 kilometers, 62.14 miles.

The race will be a massed start with all the riders starting at the same time from scratch. Twenty per cent of the riders who start in this elimination will be entitled to compete in the sectional trial which will be held over the same course June 7.

The first four riders to finish in the sectional trial June 7 will travel east to New York to compete in the final in which four riders and an alternate will be selected to represent the United States in the Olympic race in Berlin this summer. All expenses of these five riders will be paid from New York to Berlin and return by the Amateur Bicycle League of America.

Entry for these trials may be made at any bicycle store. All amateur bicycle riders are eligible to compete. Entries will close at 8 o'clock Friday evening at 1523 North Grand boulevard.

Scratched—Split Second.

Teufel ran a remarkable race. He was a bit slow to get away but perfectly rated along, began to close ground turningout of back stretch, came around field entering stretch, closed very fast and won in final nod. Granville also performed brilliantly. He was kept in a contending position to the far turn, where boy sent him after the leader. He assumed lead in final quarter but was driven out at end. Delphinium displayed great speed but stopped badly after racing Tintagel into defeat. Ned Reigh moved up gamely but had no excuse. Bright Plumage trailed far back. Tintagel had plenty of speed but stopped to a walk in final half mile. Hollyrood appears to have lost his form.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JAMAICA, L. I., April 25.—Before the largest crowd ever to witness racing at Jamaica, Teufel, a strapping maiden son of Diavolo, added his name to the list of Kentucky Derby contenders today by winning the $10,000 added Wood Memorial by the narrowest of nose margins from Granville, his more highly regarded stablemate, over the mile and seventy yard route.

Teufel's victory for the Wheatley Stable-Belaire Stud colors, was a paradoxical upset and done so convincingly in 1:43 1-5, that the son of Diavolo must be considered a possibility for top-honors in the classic of the Blue Grass to be run at Churchill Downs next Saturday.

With Eddie Litzenberger riding, the colt, a non-winner as a juvenile came from behind with long, belated strides, overtook Granville at the final pole and won with something left in the test for Derby candidates.

Hollyrood Far Back.

Six lengths back of the top-pair, even money favorites in the betting, came the Brookmeade stable's Delphinium, with Ned Reigh, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Derby candidate, a fast-closing but outclassed fourth in the field of seven. Such highly-touted hopefuls as Tintagel, Marshall Field's 1935 Belmont Futurity winner, Hal Price Headley's Hollyrood and C. V. Whitney's Bright Plumage, completed the field.

Teufel earned $10,775 by his thrilling and unexpected triumph. The crowd of 15,500 which packed every available spot, expected Granville to win the test easily and going into the stretch the son of Gallant Fox looked an easy winner. But then, from far behind, bolted Teufel and Litzenberger.

And Teufel won in one of the most hair-raising stretch battles seen at this or any other track in a long time. Granville had overtaken the pace-setting Delphinium at the start of the stretch and was drawing away and at this point Teufel streaked into the picture.

Granville, with Stout up, was doing his best but the flaming red son of Diavolo was better and just managed to stick his nose in front as they crossed the final barrier.

Tintagel Only a Sprinter.

The race definitely eliminated Delphinium, Tintagel, Hollyrood and Bright Plumage as Derby contenders and indicated that the Belaire-Wheatley combine now has two stout Derby horses instead of only one. Tintagel showed once more that he was nothing more than a high-class sprinter, and Hollyrood and Bright Plumage showed nothing at all.

Teufel and Granville will be shipped to Louisville immediately to start preparation for the $40,000 added Derby next Saturday.

Brevity Now 2 to 1 Choice To Win Derby

CHARLEY BURKE of this city and Tow Shaw of New York, the only betting commissioners in the country who operate a future book on the Kentucky Derby, both sliced the odds against Brevity following his impressive victory yesterday. Burke now quotes him at 2 to 1, and Shaw has him at 8 to 5.

Bien Joli, second to Brevity yesterday, is now 12 to 1; Teufel was cut from 30 down to 10 to 1; Granville and Grand Slam now 8.

Hollyrood, now regarded as not likely to go to the post in the Derby, was for a long time second choice in the future book at short odds.

WESTERN MILITARY BEATS BLEWETT ON TRACK, 65 1-2 TO 56 1-2

Western Military Academdy defeated Ben Blewet High School in a dual track meet at Alton yesterday afternoon, 65½ to 56½. The Cadets won the final relay to gain their victory.

Norman Willey of Western was high scorer with 15 points, winning firsts in the discus, javelin, and shot put. However, John Fowler, who with Willey is co-captain of the W. M. A. team, turned in the most brilliant performance by setting two new W. M. A. records in the high hurdles and low hurdles of 16 seconds and 23.7 seconds respectively.

The summaries:

TROLLEY LEAGUE BEGINS SEASON IN THREE PARKS

Six clubs, comprising the Missouri-Illinois Trolley League, will swing into action in their opening games of the thirty-fourth baseball campaign of the semipro organization, this afternoon.

The champion Stags will face the Edgemont A. C. of East St. Louis in the curtain raiser at Athletic Park, Belleville, while Vandalia will move over to Granite City to meet the Alpen Braus. The Hufschmidts of East St. Louis go to Mount Vernon for a game with the Car Builders.

Every club has strengthened its team over last season and a close fight for this year's title is expected.

Several changes in the makeup of the circuit have been made. Collinsville this season is a park owning team, while Vandalia will be a road team, having abandoned its home grounds.

President Fisher announced the assignment of umpires for opening day as follows: Walsh and Gantz at Belleville, Hatter and Lauth at Granite City, Driggers and Seib at Mount Vernon.

SHIKAT'S 'CONQUEROR' IS HARRY EKEZIAN OF OAKLAND, CAL.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.

ALI BABA, stocky wrestler who threw Dick Shikat in Detroit last night to lay cailm to the heavyweight championship, was said today by Donn Sheilds, chief inspector for the California Athletic Commission, to be an Armenian whose real name is Harry K. Ekezian.

Ekezian makes his home in Oakland, Cal. He wrestled two years in this State under the name of "Ali Yumed." Shields said Ekezian left California "because he could not get much work."

The local wrestling colony heard of his victory with much surprise.

Budge and Mako Beat Allison and Van Ryn Again

By the Associated Press.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 25.—The surprising Californians, Donald Budge and Gene Mako, swept over the veteran American Davis Cup team of Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn today for the third time in three weeks, to win the Mason-Dixon tennis doubles title.

The scores were 2—6, 3—6, 6—4, 6—1, 8—6, with the victors suddenly grabbing control midway in the third set.

Helen Fulton of Winnetka, Ill., "dark horse," won the women's singles title with a surprising victory over Mrs. Virginia Rice Johnson, ranked No. 1 in the tournament. The score was 6—1, 4—6, 6—3.

Budge will meet Bryan (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta tomorrow in the final of the men's singles.

BREVITY EASY WINNER OVER BIEN JOLI AND OTHER DERBY ELIGIBLES

Watch Bradley's Bannister.

The showing of Bradley's stalwart's indicated that neither Bien Joli nor Banister can be counted out of the mile and a quarter classic and hinted also that the latter is probably the better router of the two. "Darby Dick" Thompson, who trains Col. Bradley's horses and who has saddled the winners of four Kentucky Derbys, has always insisted that Banister is a better distance horse than Bien Joli and today's effort, more or less proved it.

VAN DYCK
Hayden

One man says enthusiastically of a young lady, "She is marvelous!" Another, not so enthusiastic will say, "Oh, is she?" Just a matter of highly personal preference.

We believe that like millions of other delighted smokers, you'll say Van Dyck is a fine cigar, smooth, mild, pleasure-ful. But you—you'll decide for yourself.

Here's the only real test of a Van Dyck we know: Light one; puff it slowly; contemplate its qualities. (Experience makes us pretty confident how you'll decide!)

It costs only 5¢ to be introduced to Van Dycks. And the only way you can be sure you're not depriving yourself of smoke-satisfaction is to try them at your leisure. You, too, may find this comradeship a lasting joy.

MATTHEWS IN RETURN GO WITH HEAVIER MARTINEZ TUESDAY

DENVER BOXER FLOORED THREE TIMES IN THEIR PREVIOUS BOUT

By W. J. McGoogan.

Allen Matthews, St. Louis Negro iddleweight, who has been try g for a number of years to gain cognition for what he and his anager, George Wilsman, believe unusual ability on his part, has d to step up into the light eavyweight ranks to find oppo ents. Thus he met and defeated Emilio Martinez, Denver Mexican, who gained a decision over the 175-pound champion, John Henry Lewis. And now he is called upon to fight Martinez again, which he ll do Tuesday night at the Aud ium.

Matthews has labored under any natural difficulties and there ore has been given the run-around y the topnotchers of his own di vision. In the first place, he can punch. His right hand carries a full load of dynamite. And in the second place he is not a great drawing card anywhere, for various reasons.

So, when the really good 160-pounders are approached with an offer to box Matthews, they always have urgent business elsewhere. Not that they are afraid of him but boxers figure when they take the risk of fighting a man who might knock them out, they should be paid accordingly. Against Matthews there is little hope for them to get what they think is adequate pay for the chance they take.

Martinez Floored Three Times.

That is the reason Martinez asked when he first came to St. Louis "Who ever heard of Matthews. Why, I'll knock him out in a few rounds, for if I am good enough to outpoint the champion, I certainly should stop an unknown." But he found out differently, for it was Emilio who hit the floor, three times in the course of a 10-round scrap, and although he outboxed Allen those three knockdowns won a decision for Matthews.

Followers of Martinez and many unbiased watchers thought if the match had gone 15 rounds, Emilio would have been the winner, so the promoters, who ever strive to please, arranged a rematch over the derby distance.

Matthews is not well known outside St. Louis and particularly not outside members of the boxing game. Maybe Martinez, therefore, didn't know anything about Allen and did take him too lightly the first time.

Has Taken Off Four Pounds.

Emilio was a little heavy for the bout, weighing about 176 pounds, a condition which he attributes to the fact that he had been unable to get sparring partners here for a week before he fought Matthews. Perhaps his training was not all it should have been. He says so. Also his manager. This time they have tried to avoid that condition and have had sparring partners working with him daily in the gymnasium.

Yesterday he weighed 172¼ pounds and perhaps will go into the ring a little lighter than that. Even so he will have a weight advantage of several pounds on Matthews, which will be no unusual experience for the Negro, as most of the men he boxes outweigh him.

Now the boxers have been promised a chance at Lewis in an outdoor show this summer, probably late in June, which will go to the winner if such a contest can be arranged. Not altogether a hopeless possibility.

And Matthews if he achieves his objective of winning a title, probably will have to go out of his class to do so because his efforts to secure matches with Babe Risko, the American champion; Frank Battaglia, Lou Brouillard and other first rank middleweights have been fruitless. He has given up in disgust, content to try his luck with the 175-pounders.

All the boxers scheduled to show Tuesday night will finish their hard work today and rest until time to get into the ring Tuesday.

Rightmire vs. Buckler.

One of the feature matches which promises something unusual is the featherweight bout between Everette Rightmire, Sioux City and Jimmy Buckler, Louisville. Rightmire is well and favorably known to St. Louis fans for he has fought here several times. Buckler is a newcomer, but such a judge of boxing as Jack Callahan saw him box in Alton recently and declares Jimmy is the goods.

Rightmire seemed headed for the top of his division when he ran afoul of Jack Charvez in Butte, Mont., and was knocked out in the seventh round. Then, after recovering from that setback with a new string of victories, he was stopped by Mike Belloise, New York, in a Chicago ring. He has to beat back again, and a victory over Buckler would help him considerably. At the same time a triumph for Jimmy would mean a great deal to his career.

Both are earnest little battlers and their bout should be full of action.

The last three programs promoted by Lew Raymond and Benny [illegible]enberg, promoters for the Jack- [illegible] Johnson Jr. Post of the American Legion have attracted between [illegible] and 10,000 persons and they share the advance sale for this [illegible] indicates another crowd of [illegible] numbers.

Shamrocks Seek St. Louis' Sixth U. S. Title in Series With Philadelphians

Local Soccer Champions Face Worthy Foe in German-Americans, Eastern Representatives, in the Final Here Tonight.

By Dent McSkimming.

St. Louis' well established claim to recognition as the best soccer city in the United States and the home of national champion clubs is seriously challenged tonight by a youthful team from Philadelphia, the German-American F. C. The first game of the National Cup final series will be played at Walsh Memorial Stadium, and the second game at Philadelphia next Sunday, the Shamrocks, of St. Louis, represent the western division and the German-Americans the East.

A hundred or more clubs from many cities and towns east and north of St. Louis compete annually for the huge, silver Dewar Trophy, emblematic of the United States soccer championship. After a series of knock-out matches in which the winner advances to the succeeding round, the Eastern champion meets the Western champion for the title and the cup. The final test between these two, the German-Americans and the Shamrocks, is to be contested on a two-game home-and-home basis, the greater total of goals to win the series if there is a split in victories.

PROBABLE LINEUPS

GERMAN-AMER.	Pos.	SHAMROCKS
Denton	Goal	Rodriguez
Stoll	Right Fullback	Lehman
Harker	Left Fullback	Davidson
Crockett	Right Halfback	Kane

Referee—Mike Boylan of Pittsburgh. Linesmen—Jimmy Dunn and Charles LaBarge, St. Louis. Time of halves—45 minutes (no overtime in case of tie). Total goals in two-game series to win U. S. F. A. Challenge Cup.

Reserves: Philadelphia—McAlees, Laub and Nemchik, forwards; Nicol, O'Neill, McDevitt and Els, backs. St. Louis—Hebberger, Egan and Nolan, backs; Roe, forward; Dueker, goal. (Two substitutions only permitted).

Place—Walsh Stadium, 5200 Oakland ave.

Starting time—8:15 p. m.

Peter Pietras, center halfback.

Twelfth to Reach Final.

The Shamrocks are the present cup holders by virtue of their victory last season when they played under the name "Central Brewers." And their presence in the national final after having defeated local, Chicago, Cleveland and Pittsburgh clubs, marks the twelfth time a St. Louis club has reached the last round.

Briefly, here is the record of St. Louis teams in the national cup final:

1919-20—Ben Millers (won cup).
1920-21—Scullins (lost).
1921-22—Scullins (won cup).
1922-23—Scullins (tied and forfeited).
1923-24—Vesper-Buicks (lost).
1924-25—Not entered in competition.

1935-36—Shamrocks? ? ?

That makes five national championships out of 15 seasons of competition against the country's best, and an even dozen times a cup finalist, in 16 seasons.

If, as some observers predict, Philadelphia is about to open a regime of cup conquest, it will have to shoot high to equal St. Louis' record.

McLean's Absence Hurts.

If the Shamrocks had not lost little Willie McLean through illness there would be no occasion to worry over the outcome of this series with the hustling German-Americans, but the void created by the elever outside left's absence has tended to upset what should be easily the best forward line in the country. The halfback line, too, has not been quite so steady as one expects in a national champion team, and Manager Bill Lehman has hesitated to make his final selection of players. A weakness in punting on the part of the fullbacks, so forcefully brought out in the recent games with Botafogo of Brazil, might prove very costly in this brief series wherein there is a premium on goals, but both Davidson and Lehman have thus far shown an aptitude for raising the caliber of their game in the cup matches. Perhaps they will repeat. Goaltender Rodriguez has proved over the course of a full season's competition that he is thoroughly reliable and often brilliant. He will make no more errors than may be expected of the best goaltender in the land.

On paper, the forward line of McNab, Nilsen, Patenaude, Gonsalves and Pastor or Roe, supported by a good but not remarkably tight backfield, should be accorded a two and three goal edge a game over Philadelphia, but dissension and a lack of confidence have greatly reduced the potentialities of this All-Star combination. That well-known but oft maligned medium of exchange called the American dollar is said to have been the cause of cross words and bruised feelings. If wounds are healed, as wounds sometimes are healed, the Shamrocks may click again and go right on to bring St. Louis its sixth national soccer championship, fourth in succession.

The doughty young men who make up the Eastern champion team have never played here before, but four of the Shamrock players are thoroughly familiar with their capabilities. Nilsen, Patenaude, Gonsalves and Lehman have played with or against nearly all of the Philadelphia team, and they are agreed in the opinion that this will be one of the most trying series in recent years. Four of the German-Americans: Harker, Pietras, Ryan and Fiedler, were on the United States' picked team which played in the world series at Rome in 1934 when they had for teammates Lehman, Gonsalves, Nilsen and McLean of the Shamrocks. Patenaude was a member of the Philadelphia team in 1933 and knows the Shamrocks are in for a tough struggle.

Manager Elmer Schroeder of the Philadelphia club said upon arrival here last night that one of his forward stars, Sammy McAlees, outside left, will be unable to play because of an injury suffered two weeks ago. A slight shifting of players has been made necessary but Schroeder said he believes the change will take nothing out of the team's effectiveness.

Breaks Own Record.

Ed Burke, Marquette negro, high-jumped 6 feet 9 inches in the A.A.U. meet the past winter but previous to that had never jumped higher than 6 feet 3 inches in competition.

38 RUNS SCORED IN PAROCHIAL LEAGUE CONTEST

St. Lukes and Cathedral played an "Alphonse and Gaston" game of baseball last week with St. Lukes winning 22-16 when Cathedral, was more generous in donating runs. The game was one of those played in the Parochial Schools Baseball League.

St. Lukes actually earned some of its runs, getting 12 hits, but the generosity of Cathedral's pitcher, Kruckmeyer in issuing passes and of the other Cathedral players, who committed nine errors, produced most of the runs.

In other League games, St. Cecilia scored a run in the last inning to beat St. Andrews, 5-4; St. Margarets walloped St. James, 17-6; St. Philip Neri defeated St. Edwards, 5-3; St. Anthony blanked St. Joseph Orphans, 10-0; and Holy Name trounced St. Matthews, 15-4.

How Long Do Wild Ducks Live?

STATISTICS as to the duration of life among the migratory wild fowl of the United States has been largely a matter of conjecture. However, in recent years, through the efforts of the Biological Survey Bureau, real facts have been made available on this subject.

Information has developed through the practice of banding wild birds of various migratory species and releasing them. Returned bands indicate how long such birds survived under the hazards of wild life.

The bureau's record until recently was 13 years, held by a pintail duck. Recently this mark was broken by an osprey or fish hawk. this bird, banded as a fledgling, lived to the ripe old age of 21.

Real Anglers in North Carolina.

HERE'S heartening news about the size of fish and the skill of North Carolina Angelrs, culled from the Fayetteville, N. C. Observer:

"When it comes to catching prize bass the fishermen of Cumberland County are second to none. In fact, Cooper Hall of Fayetteville and Maj. George A. O'Connell of Fort Bragg top the list in the entire South of catches of prize large and small mouth bass, while C. L. Mozingo, of Cumberland County, is the winner of a prize for the second largest big mouth bass. Broadus M. McKee also a North Carolinian, caught the third largest in the waters of Lake Adger.

"Fisherman Hall relieved the waters of Big Cross Creek of his prize winner. It weighed 11 pounds 12 ounces. The second prize winner was hauled from the water of Rockfish Creek by Fisherman Mozingo. It tipped the scales at 10 pounds 14 ounces. Maj. O'Connell's smallmouth prize winner was caught in McKellar's pond at Fort Bragg and weighed 8¼ pounds."

The prizes are awarded annually by a sportsman's magazine.

War on Predators.

Montana paid $28,842 in bounties for 14,421 coyotes killed in April, May and June last year. The state fish and game department said irreparable loss to wild life was prevented by the coyote kill and ranchers were saved thousands of dollars' worth of livestock.

Forest Fires Destroy Game.

"The saddest thing about fires in the woods of the Ozarks is what they do to the wild things," comments Galen W. Pike, United States Forest Supervisor, at Springfield, Mo. "Young birds or animals are crippled or killed by spring and summer fires. Mother birds often refuse to leave their nests when the fire comes. They stay there trying bravely to save their babies and they are tortured to death by the flames."

When a fire swept across a portion of Big Spring State Park, a few years ago, the wild turkeys there fled to other areas. Park attendants, checking losses after the fire, discovered the charred carcasses of many turkeys and other game birds.

Wild Fowl at Squaw Creek.

Wild fowl are gathering at the new Squaw Creek migratory waterfowl sanctuary in Holt County, Harry Barmeier, United States Game Protector of St. Louis area, reports. He said that last week he observed the widgeon there in great numbers and saw one flock of more than 3000 blue and snow geese near there.

The Squaw Creek sanctuary adjoins the Big Lake State Park area where the 400-acre State-owned lake, augmented by many smaller bodies of water, including creeks and ponds, provides excellent refuge. The tract was the first to be acquired in Missouri from funds derived from the sale of the Federal duck stamp.

Alec Mermod, local sportsman, will be the guest of honor at a meeting of the finance committee of the Restoration and Conservation Federation of Missouri to be held at 12:30 p. m. Tueday, April 28, at the Mayfair Hotel. Mr. Mermod will describe wild life conditions in Missouri some years ago as compared to the present.

University City Muny League to Open Its Season

The University City Muny Baseball League will open the 1936 season today in Heman Park at 2:30 o'clock with games between the defending champions Hellrung & Grimm and Kroger Kemba on diamond No. 1, while the Mount Auburn Abso-Crystals oppose the Burke Garden team on diamond No. 2.

City officials will be on hand to participate in the flag raising ceremonies after which Mayor David L. Millar will pitch the first ball to officially open the season.

THREE GAMES TODAY TO OPEN MUNICIPAL BASEBALL SEASON

Three games in the South Side Sodality League will open the Municipal Asociation baseball season today.

On Concordia No. 1 diamond, St. John will meet Holy Trinity at 1 p. m., and an hour and a half later St. Agatha will meet St. Raymond. St. Joseph and St. Vincent will play at 2:30 o'clock on Concordia No. 2 field.

Other teams in the Muny League will start play next week.

CLEVELAND WINS AND TAKES LEAD AS BEAUMONT MEETS DEFEAT

Cleveland took over sole possession of first place in the City High School League baseball race when it defeated Soldan, 8 to 7, in the third game of yesterday's tripleheader at the Public Schools Stadium. It was Cleveland's third victory against no defeats.

Beaumont dropped out of its position as co-leader when it suffered its first setback, losing to Roosevelt, 12 to 9, in the morning game. Blewett remained in the hunt for the championship by taking a free-swinging decision from McKinley, 16 to 15, in the second game.

Central, the seventh member of the league, was idle.

Starting Throwers Chased.

Erwin Pesak of Cleveland and "Hardluck" Lee Griffin of Soldan, started the final game, but neither was on the scene when the final out was made. Pesak was chased by the West Enders in the fourth inning when they put on a three-run attack, while Griffin followed his southpaw rival off the mound in the following inning when the South Siders scored twice.

Cleveland tied the score with two runs in the fifth inning, then went on to win with a single tally in the sixth.

Knock fanned as a starter, but Reinecke followed with a singlye to right field. He stole second and continued home when Norville Bleitz connected for his second hit of the game—a ground single to right. Breidert then walked, but Lamping brought the inning to a close with a drive to Dimitriades.

Gross to the Rescue.

Soldan threatened in the seventh inning, but Coach Bert Fenenga of Cleveland quickly called on Augie Gross, a left-hander, to stop a potential rally.

Dimitriades of Soldan singled to center field in the seventh. Gross then relieved Finke, who had replaced Pesak earlier in the game. In succession the Cleveland left-hander struck out Pinch-Hitter Granoti, Colpi, and Liepman to end the game.

Coach Victor Kirk of Beaumont used five pitchers in an effort to stop Roosevelt. They were Wamhoff, who started the game; Lonsberg, Rayne, Schwan and Ballat.

The North Siders scored seven times i nthe second inning, yet could not win as Roosevelt retaliated with the same number of runs in the following inning and three more in the fourth.

It took Bob McCarron, Blewett's regular third baseman, to stop McKinley. McCarron would have been the losing pitcher instead of the winning hurler had it not been for a final inning rally, started by himself, which won for Blewett.

Leading 15-14, McKinley sent Lefty Bucheck in to replace Johnny Burge, who had been hit all afternoon, in the l st inning. Sunningham greeted the southpaw with a single to center. Later, McCarron tripled to right center. Cunningham scoring the tying run. The McKinley infield crept closer in order to get McCarron at the plate. Buchek didn't need any assistance as he fanned Gordon House, but Hugh McIafferty, hitting for Hymie Tash, lined a single to right field to break up the ball game.

As indicated by the scores, the games were loosely played.

Three teams are co-holders of second place, Beaumont, Blewett, and Central each possessing two victories in three games. Roosevelt has split four contests, while McKinley has one triumph in four games. Soldan brings up the rear with four consecutive setbacks.

WICHITA GOLF TEAM DEFEATS BILLIKENS

The Wichita University golf team won every match but one to defeat St. Louis University, 16 points to 2, at Westborough Country Club yesterday.

Dick Mathis, the only St. Louis winner, defeated Leon Watkins, 2 up. All were 18-hole matches.

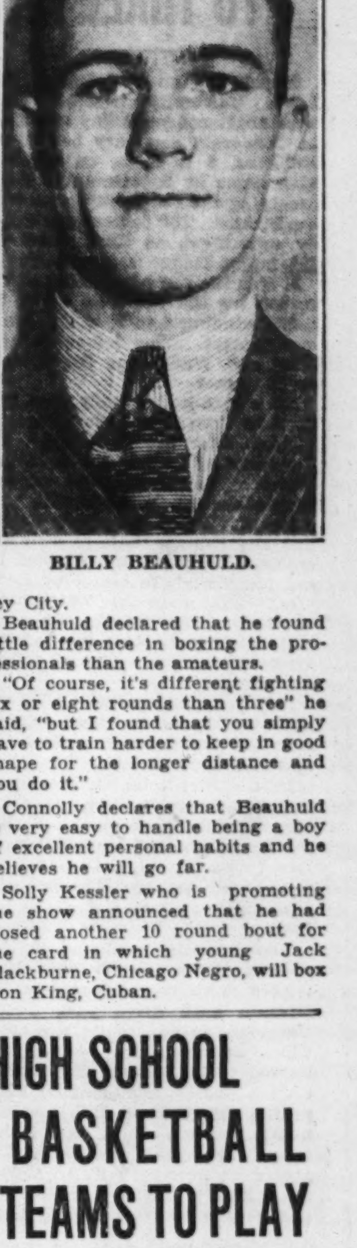
Other results:

Dick Price, Wichita, defeated Francis Kane, St. Louis, 6 and 6; Charles Black, Wichita, defeated Bob Hubbell, St. Louis, 2 and 1; Sam Knox, Wichita, defeated Harold Schramm, St. Louis, 7 and 6.

In team play, Price and Black beat Kane and Hubbell, 5 and 4, and Watkins and Knox won over Mathis and Schramm by the same score.

Beauhuld Returns Home With 19 Victories and a Natty Suit

Former National Amateur Lightweight Champion to Box Chicago Boy at the Auditorium May 5.



BILLY BEAUHULD.

Billy Beauhuld, north St. Louis boy, who went to Jersey City to make good in the professional boxing game, returned to his home town yesterday to finish his training for a bout with "Little Pal" Primich, Chicago Polish boy, which he is to fight May 5 at the Auditorium.

Surrounded by a group of admiring boy friends, Billy attired neatly in a gray suit with a white pin stripe, appeared to enjoy his homecoming which, in his circle, was that accorded a celebrity.

The boy who won the National amateur lightweight championship at The Arena in the spring of 1935 with his manager, Johnny Connolly, went east last August. Since that time he has fought, and won, 19 successive bouts of 6 or 8 rounds, seven of them by knockouts with boys of his own class in New Jersey and New York.

Bill seems to have improved in appearance. Naturally he is in fine health as he has been in almost constant training for nine months and needs but little more work to put him on edge for Primich. He has not been marked by his opponents.

Tomorrow he will start the daily grind at the Business Men's gymnasium under the watchful eyes of Connolly, his Christopher Columbus.

Billy is as yet immature and will have to be nursed carefully for a while although Connolly contends that he will go after bigger game than he has met in the summer season in the east, aiming particularly for a match with Joe Costa in Jersey City.

Beauhuld declared that he found little difference in boxing the professionals than the amateurs.

"Of course, it's different fighting six or eight rounds than three" he said, "but I found that you simply have to train harder to keep in good shape for the longer distance and you do it."

Connolly declares that Beauhuld is very easy to handle being a boy of excellent personal habits and he believes he will go far.

Solly Kessler who is promoting the show announced that he had closed another 10 round bout for the card in which young Jack Blackburne, Chicago Negro, will box Don King, Cuban.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL TEAMS TO PLAY AT ST. LOUIS U.

City High School League basketball games will play their games next season at St. Louis University gymnasium, August H. Plag, league manager, announced last night. Three games will be played on Friday nights at the Biliken gymnasium during the league season, with the first game scheduled for 6:30 p. m.

The league, at its meeting Friday, adopted the 1936 basketball and baseball schedules.

Another matter placed before the league officials was the ruling on the protest of the swimming championship, made by Beaumont. Soldan was considered the 1936 champion, and it seemed that a boy on one of the relay teams was eligible but his name was not among those entered for that particular race.

Beaumont contended that the boy's name should have been listed on the relay list as well as the other events. The matter was referred to Artie Eilers of Washington University, the referee of the meet, and Eilers ruled that, judging by similar actions in intercollegiate meets, a swimmer, to be eligible for the relay race, must be entered in the relay. The upshot of the whole affair was that Soldan had to forfeit a relay victory and Beaumont, which finished second in the meet, was declared the 1936 champion, with Cleveland second and Soldan third.

McKinley Needs a Coach.

Raymond R. Brisbin, the McKinley basketball coach, will resign his position to become league manager next fall. The league manager's job rotates from school to school each year and Brisbin will take over the duties now held by August H. Plag of Soldan.

The 1936 baseball schedule disclosed the fact that the season would start a week later than it did this year.

The baseball schedule:

April 10—Central vs. Beaumont; Soldan vs. Cleveland; Roosevelt vs. Blewett.
April 17—Cleveland vs. Roosevelt; Blewett vs. Soldan; Beaumont vs. McKinley.
April 24—Blewett vs. Central; Beaumont vs. Roosevelt; McKinley vs. Cleveland.
May 1—Soldan vs. Roosevelt; Central vs. McKinley; Cleveland vs. Blewett.
May 8—McKinley vs. Blewett; Central vs. Cleveland; Beaumont vs. Soldan.
May 15 — Cleveland vs. Beaumont; Roosevelt vs. McKinley; Soldan vs. Central.
May 22—McKinley vs. Soldan; Blewett vs. Beaumont; Roosevelt vs. Central.

The 1936 basketball schedule:

Jan. 8—Blewett vs. Soldan; Roosevelt vs. McKinley; Central vs. Cleveland.
Jan. 15—McKinley vs. Central; Cleveland vs. Roosevelt; Soldan vs. Beaumont.
Jan. 22—Cleveland vs. Blewett; Soldan vs. Central; Beaumont vs. McKinley.
Feb. 5.—Roosevelt vs. Central; Blewett vs. Beaumont; McKinley vs. Cleveland.
Feb. 12—Beaumont vs. Cleveland; Blewett vs. McKinley; Soldan vs. Roosevelt.
Feb. 19—McKinley vs. Soldan; Central vs. Beaumont; Roosevelt vs. Blewett.
Feb. 26—Beaumont vs. Roosevelt; Cleveland vs. Soldan; Central vs. Blewett.

Columbia Crew Wins.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Columbia's 150-pound crew defeated Princeton today over the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths on the Harlem River. The Light Blues had a half boat length at the half-mile, stretched it to a length at the mile and kept this to the finish.

ST. LOUIS U. LOSES TO CONCORDIA, 3-1, FOR FIRST DEFEAT

PITCHER WOLFF OF SEMINARY HOLDS BILLIKENS TO THREE HITS

Hopes for an undefeated St. Louis University baseball team were shattered yesterday afternoon as Concordia Seminary bested the Billikens, 3 to 1, in an eight-inning game at Sportsman's Park, preceding the Cardinals' game with the Pirates. The contest was called by agreement as time came for the major league engagement.

It was the second meeting of the season for the two local clubs, St. Louis winning 4 to 3, in the previous contest. The defeat for the Blue and White was the first in seven games.

An eighth-inning rally that was good for two runs gave Concordia victory after the Bills had tied the count at 1-all in the preceding frame. The Seminarians counted their other run in the fourth.

Freddy Wolff, Concordia hurler, had the Billiken batters swinging wildly throughout and allowed but one hit, a triple to center by Henry "Red" Krause in the fourth, until the last of the seventh, when the Bills made their other two safeties. Wolff issued one walk and fanned six batters.

Roy Scott, submarine hurler who gave St. Louis its first triumph over the Concordians, walked four and permitted six hits.

In the fourth inning Markgraff, Concordia third sacker, singled to left. Koenig, next up, hit a short fly to center and on McDonald's late throw to third, both runners were safe. Markgraff scored after McDonald caught Kreuger's long fly.

The Billikens retaliated in their portion of the seventh when Mudd tripled to right and scored on Lou Drone's hard drive past Second Baseman Vaitko, to tie the count. The Seminarians then scored what proved to be the winning runs as Callies singled, advanced on Markgraff's bunt to Fash, Bill first baseman; reached third as Koenig forced Markgraff at second and scored on Kreuger's fly to McDonald. Muhly singled between first and second to send Koenig home.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL SOFTBALL TEAM GETS 58 RUNS IN TWO GAMES

High scores predominated in the first week of the St. Louis Parochial Softball League. In the Sherman Park division, the Corpus Christe team made 58 runs in two games. Its first victory was at the expense of St. Rose's 25 to 5, and then it turned in a 33—7 conquest over the Nativity squad.

In the Fox Playground division, Immaculate Conception lost its first start to St. Henry's, 13 to 3, but enjoyed a field day later in the week when it trounced St. Thomas 30—2. St. Ambrose's school was leading the Sublette division as a result of turning in two victories, one over Holy Innocents, 7—4, and the other over Holy Family, 20—10. In the remaining game, Holy Family scored the only shut-out when it blanked the St. Aloysius team, 7—0.

The schedule for this week is:

Sublette Park—Holy Innocents vs. St. Aloysius, Tuesday; St. Ambrose vs. St. Aloysius, Thursday; Holy Family vs. Holy Innocents, Friday.

Fox Playground—Immaculate Conception vs. St. Wenceslaus, and St. Henry vs. St. Agatha, Monday; St. Thomas vs. St. Wenceslaus, Wednesday; St. Henry vs. St. Wenceslaus and St. Thomas vs. St. Agatha, Friday.

Sherman Park—St. Ann (Normandy) vs. St. Rose, Monday; St. Marks vs. Nativity, Tuesday; Corpus Christie vs. St. Ann (Normandy), Wednesday; St. Ann vs. St. Rose, Thursday; St. Ann (Normandy) vs. Nativity, Friday.

David Boyd won the O'Reilly Cup, presented to students of Country Day School by Dr. and Mrs. Archer O'Reilly, for marksmanship in a shoot held yesterday. Boyd also won the competition last year.

He scored 230 out of a possible 250 points, getting 97 in prone posion, 47 sitting, 43 kneeling and 43 standing.

Adolph Orthwein finished second with 211 points and Bill Spivey third with 192 points.

U. S. OPEN GOLF EVENT ENTRIES CLOSE TUESDAY

By W. J. McGoogan.

Entries for the United States Open Golf Tournament close at the office of the United States Golf Association, 73 East Fifty-seventh street, New York City, Tuesday night at 6 o'clck. Clarence Wolff, secretary of the St. Louis District Golf Association, is handling the details for the U. S. G. A. and entry blanks may be obtained from him.

The event, as usual, is open to all professionals and amateurs with a handicap of three strokes or less. The amateur's handicap has to be attested by Wolff or by an officer of the club to which the player belongs.

The 36-hole qualifying round for this district will be played Monday, May 11, at Westwood Country Club and the number of entrants permitted the district in the championship proper at Baltusrol will be determined by ratio of the number of entrants from this district to the whole number of entrants.

Pro-Amateur Meet Tomorrow.

Another pro-amateur tournament will be held tomorrow under the auspices of the Professionals' Association at Normandie Golf Club. Entries close tonight at 6:30 o'clock with Johnny Manion at Sunset Hill Country Club.

As before, it will be a best ball affair with one professional playing with a group of amateurs, either two, three or four as the number of players dictates.

Manion declared entries would not be accepted at the first tee. The fee is $2 a man.

District Tourney in June.

Wolff has let a contract for the printing of programs for the district tournament which is to be played at Westwood, June 1 to 6. There will be a qualifying round this year, as usual, but the district officers will watch with interest the all match play tournament, the St. Louis amateur, to be held the week before the district in Forest Park. If that proves popular the district may be changed to all match play next year.

Wolff and Corny Schnecke have been appointed starters for the St. Louis amateur which will be open to all amateurs in the district regardless of club affiliation.

The Women's district is scheduled for Sunset, June 6-13, the week following the men's tournament.

Local Stars to Compete.

Kansas City's Heart of America tournament, which has proved attractive in some degree to golfers of this district, is to be played May 18, 19, 20 at Oakwood Golf and Country Club, Kansas City.

This year all players are to be charged an entrance fee of $3. Heretofore only Kansas City players paid.

Johnny Dawson, Chicago, who has won the tournament twice and is now the champion, will defend his title.

Sidney Salomon, Westwood, said yesterday that he likely would go to Kansas City to play.

The State amateur also is scheduled for that city this year and will be held the third week in June.

Johnny Manion is seeking a good exhibition match to be held at Sunset May 14 which has been named "Johnny Manion Day" in honor of his long service with the club. He has invited Craig Wood and Vic Ghezzi to play here. Both are among the outstanding tournament professionals of the country.

Corkball League Opens.

The Perpetual Youth Corkball League, a self supporting, non-commercial athletic organization, will inaugurate its season next Sunday at Willer Field, Kraft and Manchester avenues. Its members range from 16 years to 61 years. The youngest member is Larry Cunningham and the oldest is Charles Nelson. The four clubs of the league are as follows: Bottle Babies, Sweet Sixteens, Flaming Youths and Second Childhoods.

WAHLBRINK'S DISMISSAL IN MAIL, SCHOOL HEAD STATES

G. E. Dille, superintendent of Maplewood schools, announced yesterday the Board of Education has notified Athletic Director Armin Wahlbrink his services no longer will be required after the end of this school year.

The notice, Dille said, was placed in Wahlbrink's mail box at the school Friday, and yesterday the board sent a letter to the coach giving the reasons for failure to "reelect him to his position."

"There were many reasons," Dille said, "and, in fairness to Wahlbrink, I do not care to say anything further."

Asked if one of the causes for the board's action was that Wahlbrink reputedly brought in an athlete from the city schools and registered him as a resident of Maplewood so that he might play football, Dille replied:

"That was only part of it, and a very small part. I do not know for sure that Wahlbrink did that. Mrs. Cunningham, the boy's moth told me that he did."

"Mrs. Cunningham," he said, the mother of Bill Cunningham, w was a backfield player on t Maplewood squad the last t years."

The telephone at the Wahlbri home rang unanswered. Dr. Phili N. Davis, friend of Wahlbrink, sa he thought the coach was in Cha paign, Ill. yesterday.

Taste Test No. 4—BASEBALL OPENING—N. Y. C.

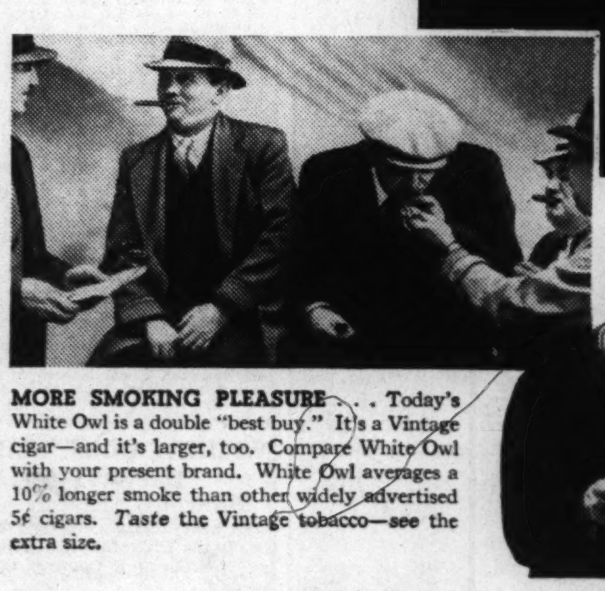
75% vote for White Owl as best-tasting

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 14th—Don't let a fancy band or a name fool you when you buy a cigar. It's taste—and nothing else—that gives you smoking pleasure.

And when taste alone counts—most men choose White Owl. We made a taste test at the New York Baseball Opening and proved it again. 231 smokers were given two unidentified cigars—a Vintage White Owl and another—representing the leading nationally advertised brands. Each man smoked both cigars—then indicated the one he liked best. 75% preferred White Owl with its Vintage-tobacco taste. White Owl won hands down by its taste alone.

BLEACHERITES . . . and box holders, too, made the test . . . voted 3 to 1 for Vintage-tobacco mildness. Every White Owl always has a Vintage filler—rich and mellow as a rare old Vintage wine.

THE GIANTS VS. BROOKLYN . . . 55,000 excited fans . . . swell weather—all in all, a perfect opening. And the testers went into the crowd . . . picked smokers at random for the test. White Owl won by taste alone. And wherever you are, you can get a mild Vintage cigar identical in every way with those that won these taste tests. It costs but 5¢ at your nearest cigar store.



MORE SMOKING PLEASURE . . . Today's White Owl is a double "best buy." It's a Vintage cigar—and it's larger, too. Compare White Owl with your present brand. White Owl averages a 10% longer smoke than other widely advertised 5¢ cigars. Taste the Vintage tobacco—see the extra size.

$155,000 OFFER FOR APARTMENT ON LINDELL BLVD.

Interests Would Take Over Carleton, 52-Unit Structure at 4616, From Group of Bondholders.

LARGE RECOVERY OF INVESTMENT

Building Bought in at Foreclosure Sale in January for $135,000—Built in Pre-depression Era.

By Berry Moore

Undisclosed interests have submitted an offer of $155,000 for the four-story Carleton Apartment building at 4616 Lindell boulevard. The building, a fireproof structure, occupying a lot 100 by 213 feet, has 52 units.

Acceptance of the offer has been recommended by a committee, representing a group of bondholders who bid in the property at a foreclosure sale in January at $135,000. The foreclosure action was taken by Edward G. Platt, trustee under a $300,000 mortgage, which had been reduced to $210,000. Nathan Frank, Inc., a holding company of the late Nathan Frank attorney, was the title owner, subject to the mortgage, succeeding the Dorothy Investment Co., a holding company of Sam Hamburg, Jr. which erected the building.

The sale of the property at the above mentioned price, it is estimated, would yield the bondholders between 75 and 78 per cent of the face value of the bonds. Thus, the bondholders would emerge with a comparatively small loss. The bonds deposited with the committee under a trust agreement now aggregate $203,900 in principal amount.

Meeting to Confirm Sale.

A meeting of the stockholders of the present holding corporation formed by the bondholders committee to take title to the property has been called for May 1 at 4 o'clock at the office of the company, 308 North Eighth street. The bondholders' committee is composed of Herman V. Schulte, Joseph R. O'Hanlon, and Oliver R. Henry. The voting trustees in the trust agreement are Edward G. Platt, Herman V. Schulte, and Louis F. Freund.

The Carleton, which is on a pretentious scale, was built in the pre-depression era, when construc-

HOME FINANCING

THE FEDERAL LOAN PLAN HAS MANY ADVANTAGES

1. The most satisfactory way of paying off the home loan. The cost is very low and is spread over a long period of years.
2. The Federal Plan does away with frequent renewals, frequent commissions and other expenses.
3. One single monthly payment takes care of all interest, principal, taxes and fire tornado insurance premiums.
4. Each month the interest cost reduces; each month the principal payment correspondingly increases.
5. The monthly payment is made to fit your income. No more taxes to pay each December. No more insurance premiums coming due at inconvenient times.
6. The monthly payment remains unchanged during the loan.
7. Under supervision of the Federal Government.

COUNTRYSIDE DESIGN PLACED ON RECORD

Estate Development on South Side of Geyer Road Comprises 45 Homesites.

A plat of Countryside, an estate development of 70 acres situated on the west side of Geyer road, approximately three-fourths mile south of Clayton road in St. Louis County, has been placed on record. There are 45 homesites ranging in size from one and one-half to two and one-half acres. The entire tract has been highly restricted and a board of trustees composed of Mr. Lyle T. Johnston, Charles J. Wilmot and Willard B. Shelp Jr. has been set up. The development was placed on the market a year or so ago by W. B. Shelp & Co.

A site of one and one-half acres fronting on Foxrun lane has been purchased by Frank J. Wright, president of the Acme Paper Co. He has started construction of a handsome residence. A site of two and one-half acres on Foxrun lane has been purchased by William R. Mellow, an officer of the Liberty Foundry Co. Mellow is also having plans drawn for a home.

Plans and specifications for the development of Countryside were laid out under the supervision of Maritz, Young & Dusard, Inc., architects, and Pitsman's Company of Surveyors and Engineers.

J. F. CONRAD III BUILDS HOME IN LOG CABIN CLUB DISTRICT

Construction has started on a residence for John F. Conrad III on a three-acre tract on the south side of Clayton road, about one-fourth mile west of the Log Cabin Country Club.

The house, designed by Study & Farrar, architects is of modernized colonial style, in which regency and Greek refinement are blended. This style is especially favored by persons seeking formality and yet a distinct homelike character in their residence.

The house is planned with the principal rooms on the first floor, and the garage and servants' quarters in the basement. A large living room is located in the center of the house, leading off of which are two wings, one including the kitchen, pantry and service quarters, the other containing the master bedrooms, gown room and bath.

A most unusual feature of this house will be a large circular glass bay, opening off the long access of the living room, this feature becoming a dining bay, and commands an extensive view of the rolling landscape to the west.

Conrad is vice-president of the Conrad Grocery Co.

The deed conveying the residence at 6400 Ellenwood avenue, recently acquired by Ingram F. Boyd Jr., treasurer of Boyd-Richardson company, has been filed.

The transaction was handled by Albert T. Terry Son & Co.

The house has five bedrooms and two baths on the second floor and a maid's room and bath on the third.

W. H. Whitton Jr. With Blanke.

W. H. Whitton Jr., formerly of F. J. Cornwell Real Estate Co., is now associated with the Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Co., 711 Chestnut street. He will specialize in the sale of University City, Clayton and county houses and homesites. He is secretary of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS REPORT

Further Substantial Improvement in Residential Ownership and Credit Conditions.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Further substantial improvement in residential property ownership and credit conditions throughout the country is shown in first quarter statements of representative savings, building and loan associations, Morton Bodfish, executive vice-president of the United States Building and Loan League reported today.

For one thing, real estate sold on contract has increased to 2.8 per cent of total assets from 1.7 per cent this time last year in the consolidated statements of associations. Bodfish pointed out. This factor is particularly significant since it shows the movement of properties from the association to buyers, the latter undertaking home ownership on a minimum down payment plus monthly installments until they have paid a sufficient amount to justify the transfer of title to themselves under a mortgage.

Bodfish said this method of decreasing the real estate owned account of associations has been found most satisfactory. In the past year it has accounted for the transfer of some $65,000,000 worth of residential property from associations to new owners, it was estimated, and the transfer has been at about double the pace noted a year ago.

Bodfish pointed out that the home properties listed in the assets of associations as of April 1 are only 18.7 per cent of total resources, whereas they were 19 per cent on Jan. 1. Last year the real estate item increased 1 per cent from Jan. 1 to April 1.

A decrease in real estate listed is a natural corollary to increases in real estate sold on contract provided there is concomitantly no large movement toward the assumption of title to more real estate, Bodfish said. Apparently, the last quarter has been a halt in the abandonment of their mortgage obligations by existing owners and there is thus reflected a true improvement in the condition of the country's home owner debt in line with recent statements from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board regarding real estate debts in general which show foreclosures at their lowest point since 1931.

Another favorable sign in the statements is the increasing percentage of mortgage loans to total assets when the statements are compared with those of the first of the year, he said.

ACQUIRES BUILDING ON WEST BELLE PLACE

Maurice Steinbaum Buys Old Hospital Structure at Northwest Corner of Sarah.

The old Evangelical Deaconess Hospital, a three-story structure at the northwest corner of West Belle place and Sarah street, has been purchased by Maurice Steinbaum. The site has a frontage of 327 feet on West Belle, with a depth of 147 feet on Sarah. The building will be converted into a 100-room hotel for Negroes. The premises includes 200 by 147 feet of vacant ground on the corner, which is to be improved with a business building. The hospital building itself occupies 125 by 147 feet of ground.

The Dubinsky Realty Co., of which Frank Dubinsky is president, represented the purchaser and the Knickmeyer-Fleer Realty Co. acted for the seller in the transaction.

Several weeks ago Steinbaum purchased the Young Women's Christian Association residence, a four-story building at 714 Walton avenue. The 77 women living there were given notice to move. Steinbaum also has plans for converting the building into a hotel for white persons. Negotiations in this instance were handled by Albert T. Terry, Son & Co.

Steinbaum operates the Maryland Hotel at Ninth and Pine streets, as well as hotels in other parts of the city.

Stores on Delmar Leased.

The Moguin Beauty Shop has leased the storeroom at 6221 Delmar boulevard, in a building owned by clients of the Barngrove Realty Co.

BUILDING SCORES BIG INCREASE IN 1ST 1936 QUARTER

Survey of 45 Key Cities Shows Residential and Industrial Construction Is Largest Volume.

Impressive gains supported by building permits were scored during the first 1936 quarter as compared to the corresponding 1934 and 1935 periods, states E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers. Residential, industrial and alteration work are responsible for this sharp rebound, E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, declared.

The 1936 spring building survey of 45 key cities compiled by Robert D. Steele, the association's statistician, is the most cheering since 1931. His report shows that New York is far ahead of other cities in permit valuations, with a total of $39,135,147 for the first 1936 quarter. Cleveland with a 325 per cent margin over the same 1935 period has the largest gain. Los Angeles leads in new homes and volume of permits. Ground has been broken there for 1100 new homes since Jan. 1, while a total of 6254 permits was issued. New York is second, with 750 homes. St. Paul with 100 per cent is the housing occupancy leader. Cincinnati second with 99½ and Detroit third, with 99 per cent. Building permit valuation in 44 states the first 1936 quarter aggregate $594,805,991, which compares with $324,647,658 in the same 1935 period, an increase of 80 per cent.

Permits in Larger Cities.

The survey gives the 1934, 1935 and 1936 first-quarter tabulation of the larger cities as follows:

Baltimore—First 1936 quarter, 1537 permits, $3,742,720 corresponding 1935 period, 1469 permits, $1,212,800; 1934 quarter, 1225 permits, $2,370,080; 196 new homes, 1936 quarter; 30 in 1935 and 12 in 1934; 225 per cent increase of private work over same 1935 quarter.

Boston—First 1936 quarter, 1031 permits, $1,806,135; first 1935 quarter, 961 permits, $955,064; first 1934 quarter, 851 permits, $1,218,016; 1936 to be a much better building year.

Chicago—Jan. 1 to April 17, 1936, 283 permits, $4,549,688; first 1935 quarter, 126 permits, $2,146,505; first 1934 quarter, 60 permits, $1,674,675; new homes, first 1936 quarter, 80; 1935 first quarter, 38; 1934 first quarter, 17.4 per cent vacancy rate reported.

Cincinnati—1936 first quarter, 4319 permits, $2,776,230; 1935 quarter, 4264 permits, $1,894,940; 1934 quarter, 3454 permits, $921,650; shortage of single-family dwellings very obvious; new homes, 1936 quarter, 157; 1935 quarter, 79; 1934 quarter, 45.

Cleveland—1936 first quarter, 1117 permits, $4,449,710; 1935 quarter, 836 permits, $1,306,727; 1934 first quarter, 598 permits, $973,825; first 1936 quarter, 218 homes; first 1935 quarter, 74; 35 in the first 1934 quarter.

Detroit—First 1936 quarter, 2405 permits, $5,980,857; first '35 quarter, 1245 permits, $2,593,811; first '34 quarter, 859 permits, $1,565,934. Homes 1936 quarter, 678; '35 quarter, 163; 1934 quarter, 62. Shortage of all housing types. Industrial construction gaining and industrial plant vacancies very few.

tion of buildings of this type was rampant.

The Leonardo Apartments, comprising a nine-story building at 4166 Lindell boulevard, was recently acquired by the Hamedo Co., Inc., a holding company of Jack Dubinksy & Sons, real estate operators. It occupies a site with a frontage of 50 feet on Lindell by a depth of 250 feet. M. H. Rodemyer & Co. handled the transaction. The purchase price was not disclosed. The building was formerly owned by the Leonardo Co., Inc., composed of bondholders who acquired it in October, 1931, through foreclosure proceedings. Erected in 1925, the Leonardo was financed with a $200,000 first mortgage bond issue. Sponsors of the project appraised the building at a much higher figure.

Many Striking Apartments.

Lindell boulevard, between Grand boulevard and Kingshighway, is graced with striking apartment structures, not a few held by life insurance companies, financial establishments, or bondholders through foreclosure actions.

Fourteen councils of the Knights of Columbus of St. Louis, which have been occupying the old Columbian Club building, at 3719 Lindell boulevard since 1929, have been requested by the owners to vacate the property. The Knights of Columbus formerly held title to the property.

The four-story building is owned by members of the Columbian Club, as a common law trust organized from membership of the old Columbian Club. Negotiations for the property is pending according to Morris G. Levinson, attorney for the trust, and the premises are needed for reconditioning in the event of its sale. The identity of the prospective purchaser is withheld.

The Knights of Columbus purchased the Columbian building in 1929, for $175,000, but deeded it back to the original owners in 1934 when only $125,000 had been paid on the purchase price.

Westminster Place Sale.

Albert T. Terry & Son report having closed contracts for the sale of the residence at 5086 Westminster place to Clark M. Clifford, an attorney. The house has four bedrooms and two baths on the second flood and four rooms and bath on the third floor. There is a two-car garage, the lot is 50x175 feet. The sale is for the account of Nelson B. Gatch, an officer of Gatch Brothers, Jordan and McKinney, Inc.

Sportsmen, Don't Pass This Up
Unquestionably the best site in the Ozarks for a large private lake and power site; 437 acres located in Shannon County, 160 miles from St. Louis, 10 miles from Eminence near Current River; 4 miles from Hi; 1 mile from Farm-to-Market highway; survey, on county highway; accessible at all times; approximately 50 acres in cultivation in valley, balance timber; oak and pine predominating. The astonishing feature of this property is that it is watered with a large spring-fed stream which flows through a natural shut-ins of solid porphyry stone. A concrete dam 10 feet high, 30 feet long would create a lake of 20 to 30 acres. Stream falls approximately 50 feet below the shut-ins creating a pool of an acre or more. Deep water abounding with game fish; impossible for fish to go over the falls. Now a natural turbine power site. RAM would force water practically anywhere on the land. Impossible for dam to break if properly constructed and at very small expense. Excellent hunting and fishing; several springs. Beautiful scenery surrounded by four of the largest mountains in Shannon County. A site one of a million. Price $4000. No discount for cash. No trades. See property by appointment only. Ed. Houser R. E. Co., Cuba, Mo.

HIGHLY PRODUCTIVE GENTLEMEN'S FARM
189 acres located less than 100 miles from St. Louis on hard road, 2½ miles from County seat; near the Meramec River and numerous resorts; select neighborhood; woven wire fenced and cross-fenced; 80 acres in cultivation; greater part fertile level valley; balance in bluegrass pasture and timber; 5-room frame house; screen porch, large cellar, smoke house, brooder house, large poultry house, large barn, sheds, etc; watered with deep well situated to run water in all buildings by gravity; also 2 cisterns; one of best small farms in County; will pay interest and taxes on investment; owned by closed bank and will liquidate for less than the loan. $5000, ½ cash. See property by appointment. Ed Houser R. E. Co., Cuba, Mo.

MONEY TO LOAN

"I don't ask favors from anyone"

. . . that's what a customer told us the other day. He said he comes to us when he needs money because he gets it quicker . . . can repay it easier and feels more independent when he doesn't ask favors. You, too, can use this money-service. Single or married, you may get up to $300 on your own signature and have a year or longer to pay. Need cash? Come in TODAY.

Average Monthly Cost Each $100 Only $1.31; or 2½% Per Month on Unpaid Balance.

7 NEW CONCERNS ARE ESTABLISHED IN CITY IN MARCH

Seven Other Industries Expand Facilities, Chamber of Commerce Report Shows.

ADDED INVESTMENT SAID TO BE $100,000

Activities Require 544 More Workers — 62,000 More Square Feet of Floor Space in Use.

Establishment of seven new business concerns and expansions by seven others already in business were reported in the St. Louis industrial districts during March, according to the monthly report of the Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

The new industries and expansions will represent an added industrial investment of $100,000 and require the services of 544 additional employes. They will use 62,600 square feet of existing floor space, with 21,000 additional square feet being constructed.

The New Companies.

New companies reported are as follows:

Charter Co., Inc., McVeigh Goodson, president, 6239 St. Louis avenue, incorporated with a paid-in capital of $5000 to manufacture pharmaceutical products. The company employes three persons and occupies 2000 square feet of floor space.

Amity Pattern Co., W. H. Hinson, president, 703 North Sixteenth street, organized to manufacture shoe patterns. The company occupies 2000 square feet of floor space and expects to employ 12 persons.

Kelco Electric Co., Chicago, V. N. Lee, district sales manager, branch office opened at 622 North Ninth street. The company is a wholesale distributor of farm power and lighting plants and employes three persons in the St. Louis office.

Alton Garment Co., L. L. McCourtney, president, 1324 Washington avenue, office and stock room containing 6000 square feet of floor space. The company, which manufactures wash dresses, has its plant at Alton, Ill., and expects to move its designing and part of its cutting department to St. Louis later this year. At present six persons are employed here.

Air-Conditioning Unit Handlers.

Champion Distributing Corporation, L. E. Lang, president, 3638 Olive street, organized with a paid-in capital of $1000 to handle and install air-conditioned equipment and supplies. Five persons employed.

Lief-Matthews Air Conditioners, Inc., John B. Matthews Jr., president, Boatmen's Bank Building, incorporated with a paid-in capital of $4000 to distribute self-contained air conditioning units, as well as central station air-conditioning equipment. Three persons will be employed.

Surfaseal Co. A. W. Buck and S. A. Buck, partners, and Surfaseal Sales Co., J. V. Rowan, owner, 315 South First street, 4500 square feet of floor space. The Surfaseal Co., formerly in Wichita, Kan., manufactures industrial paints and mastics. Two persons are employed at present, while the Surfaseal Sales Co. is employing four persons.

Expansions Reported.

The following expansions were reported:.

Hussman-Ligonier Co., W. B. McMillan, president, 2401 North Leffingwell avenue, manufacturers of refrigerators and food machinery, let a contract for construction of a two-story office building adjoining the present plant, to cost approximately $40,000. The new building, to contain 10,000 square feet of floor space, will be completed during the summer.

Wholesale Food Distributors Inc., Ralph M. Friedman, president, 730 Trendley street, East St. Louis, leased 10,000 square feet of floor space at 1426 North Broadway, St. Louis. A complete line of wholesale groceries will be distributed from the St. Louis branch, where six persons are employed at present.

Metal Hose & Tubing Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., Charles DeMattis, manager, leased an office and warehouse, 2100 square feet of floor space, at 4146 Manchester avenue. The concern, which manufactures flexible tubing, was formerly at 3916 Geraldine avenue.

Ramsey Accessories Manufacturing Corporation, J. A. Ramsey, president, 3693 Forest Park boulevard, manufacturers of piston rings, is constructing a one-story addition. The new building, with 11,000 square feet of floor space, will cost $30,000. Construction is expected to be completed within sixty days.

Stockhoff Supply Co., R. Frank Mackey, president, Twenty-third and Walnut streets, moved from 107 North Main street, and is occupying 18,000 square feet of floor space, an increase of approximately 33 per cent over that formerly used. In addition to heating systems and equipment already handled, a line of sheet metal has been added.

American Car & Foundry* Co., C. B. Collins, assistant vice-president, 1558 South Vandevanter avenue, reopened its plants at 14 St. George street and 2800 De Kalb street, and employed approximately 500 persons in the two shops, which have been closed since 1930, except for a brief period in 1934.

Mednik Wiping Materials Co., Maurice H. Mednik, president, Eighth and Barry streets, moved from 115 Valentine street. The new site contains 40,000 square feet of floor space, compared with 10,000 formerly occupied. The company is spending approximately $20,000 for alterations.

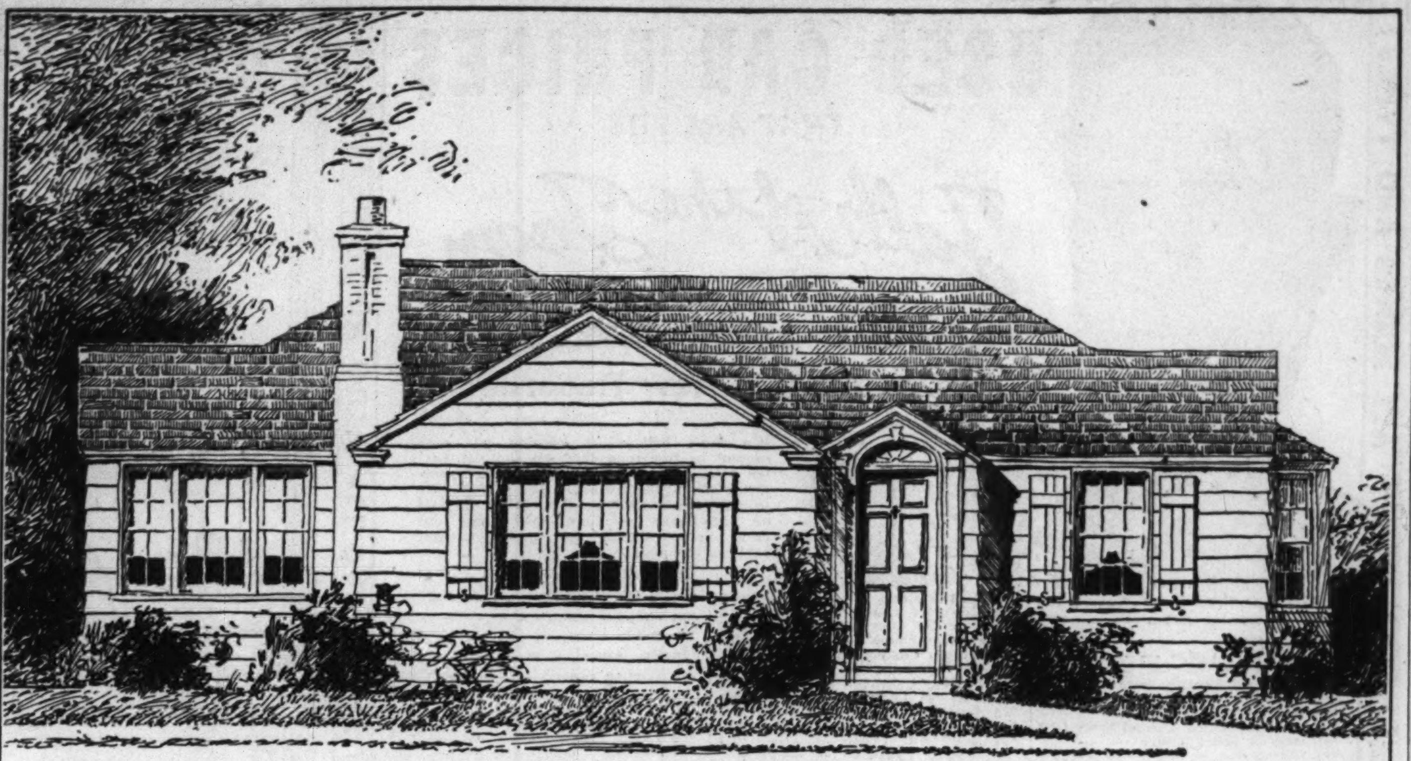
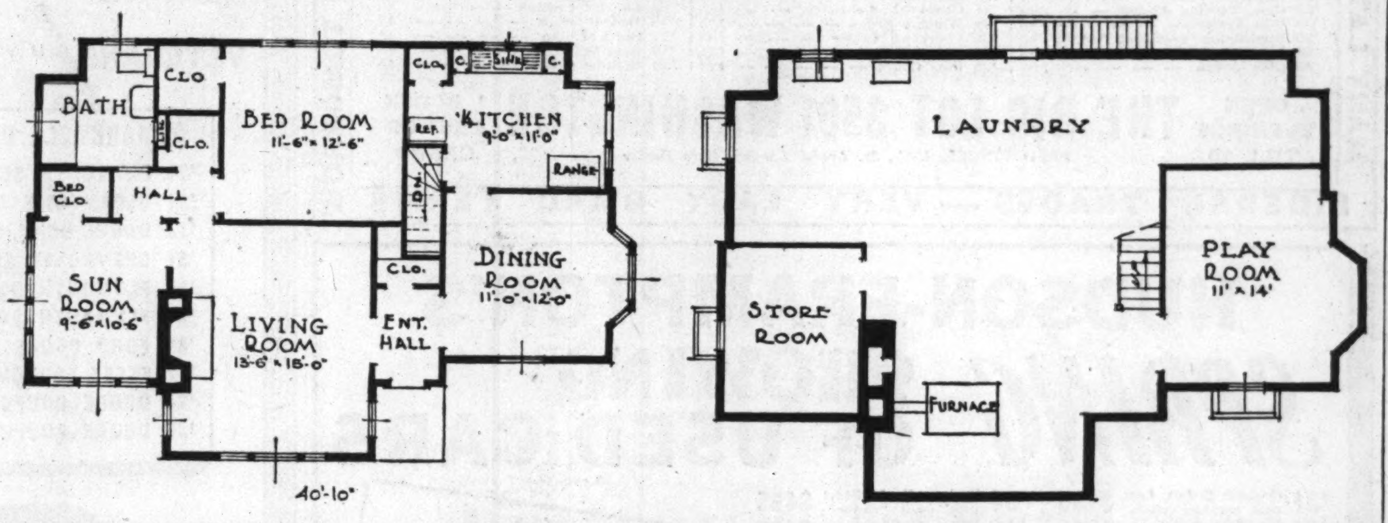
A Small House of Colonial Type in Frame



Courtesy A. B. M. CORRUBIA, Architect

Member St. Louis Chapt. American Inst. Architects



Front elevation, first floor and basement plans of small house are shown here with the possible adaptation for narrow lot by facing kitchen and dining bay front. The floor plan indicates possible use of sunroom for second bedroom.

The Irridicible Minimum of Living Is Illustrated by This Small House Which Is Planned for a Small Family.

DURING the past years the term small house has definitely impressed itself upon the American consciousness. We speak of small houses as including all the necessities for comfortable and dignified living, but many of use do not always know what it meant by the term.

When many prospective home owners contemplate the small house they have in mind a miniature of the large and pretentious home. They do not realize that embellishment and gadgets and so-called waste space push up the cost of a house.

The architect who designed the small house pictured here has an excellent definition for the term "small house." He calls it the "irriducible minimum." This means living on a simplified scale, without embellishments and gadgets, living comfortably in well-designed rooms, but not luxuriously.

Comfort is the keynote in this small house, and for comfort beamed ceilings and elaborate panellings are unnecessary. These embellishments increase the cost of the house until it can no longer be considered a small house. Rooms should be large enough with no sense of crowding. A room for daily living whose dimensions are smaller than 10 feet is simply a waste of space. Rather, fewer rooms with better proportions.

IN planning this small house the architect has considered simplicity. Colonial is an American heritage, aand this one-story adaptation has the conventional number of rooms with one or two innovations that make it attractive to smaller families.

The house faces south and this is considered the ideal exposure for our middle Western climate. The gables add interest to the roof line and exclude the possibility of a box-like appearance. The entrance has been placed under a small gable and here the doorway is emphasized in true Colonial fashion. The door itself is a fine example of panelling in the Colonial manner, the fanlight above is simple with simple ornamentation.

The shutters on the dining room and living room windows are "usable" since the architect believes that ornamentation without use is pure waste. This is also true of the chimney, which functions as flue for the fireplace and the furnace.

The entrance hall, while it is not spacious, is dignified, and has a sizable coatclosit. To the right of the hall is the dining room whose bay window facing East, gives a nice illusion of space. There is no breakfast room, and for this reason the kitchen has been large enough for the morning meal and the noonday luncheon. The work surface has been well thought out; there is a storage closet or pantry and built-in cabinets occupy either side of the sink. A stairway from the kitchen leads to the basement.

It is interesting to note that the space below the sink has been left open. Cabinets have been planned under the double drainboard and the open space permits ample knee and toe room for working.

THE living room has three exposures whicih allow good air circulation. The arrangement of fenestration leaves two wall spaces for furniture grouping. There is a fireplace which includes the flue for the furnace, and this is a further saving.

The sunroom with its south and west exposure is a clever two purpose room. The large closet has been planned for a roll-away-bed making it possible to turn the room into a second bedroom or an occasional guest room if the family is small. A closet in the hall serves this room. The bathroom is accessible from both bedrooms.

The cellar has been completely excavated since it is this architect's belief that a house of this kind can be more easily heated than one which is partially excavated. The difference in cost is said to be very slight. A playroom, storage room and laundry find ample space here.

SINCE most people overload their homes with furniture it has been suggested that the decorations be as simple as possible to carry out the idea which the house establishes. Early American reproductions in maple or walnut will find a small house of this type a beautiful setting. Care in furniture groupings in the living room will also help to maintain the atmosphere of dignity and repose. A good pine floor, stained, varnished and waxed will give excellent service besides carrying out Colonial traditions. Chintz hangings and painted woodwork will add to the spacious quality of a small house of this kind.

Where the building lot is narrow rather than wide it is possible to do a right-about-face, have the entrance at the side and use the kitchen door which has been planned with side lights and exposed hinges and the dining room bay as the front elevation. This arrangement is ideal where the building space is a corner lot and necessitates considering two exposures.

SUGGESTED materials for construction are clapboard siding or shingles. The roof is black slate since this has been estimated to cost about the same as the asbestos shingle. The foundation is concrete and the heating system is warm air, making possible the future installation of air conditioning. The price of the house has been estimated roughly at $5500 and this includes all materials used, labor, insulating and weather-stripping, painting and decorating, screens and finish hardware, lighting fixtures and curtain rods, planting, sodding and architect's fee. Materials used are to be of the best and the house, completed at this figure, would be ready for occupancy.

FOR BETTER LIVING

As soon as the weather is warm enough to let the fire go out it is a good idea to inspect, repair and clean the furnace.

With a steam or hot water heating system these things should be done: Clean out the fire box or ash pit; drain off the water at the base of the boiler until the water runs clear. It is better to leave the old water in the heating system if it is clean, because the air has been removed and very little rusting will result. Remove and clean the smoke pipe; clean out the chimney; clean the oil and thermostat controls; clean and oil fans and blowers if any; give all exposed iron parts a coat of black paint.

With a hot-air heating system: Clean out all the ashes from the fire box and ash pit; clean out the air jacket around the fire box to remove dust; remove the smoke pipe and clean out soot, after which the pipe may be stored in a dry place for the summer; clean out the chimney at the base; clean and oil the thermostat and mechanism if there is one; clean out the humidifier; clean and oil the blowers or fans on the furnace if it has them; remove the registers in the room and clean them. Give all exposed iron parts a coat of black furnace paint.

If the owner of a new house can restrain his impatience for a few months and can put up with the bare look of unpainted, unpapered plaster walls, he will be well repaid in the results he will get. New plaster must dry out and most of the moisture should come out through the inside.

If paint is put on green plaster, it is likely to discolor in spots and the panel in which the spots show will have to be repainted. That panel may be an entire wall, and the matching of the old color will be a matter largely of luck, as paint changes color as it matures.

If the walls are papered, the paper may peel off in places or become discolored. Living with plain plaster walls is not as bad as it sounds. With pretty draperies and a few pictures or other wall decorations, it will be scarcely noticed.

A white picket fence adds greatly to the appearance and sense of privacy of the small house. It is simple to build. If the owner cannot afford to have the carpenter erect it, he can purchase the pickets and rails and posts, and even the gate, at the mill and do the work himself. Cedar or locust or some other wood that will withstand the soil action used as posts; a top rail of 2 by 4 inch dressed lumber and a bottom rail of the same, nailed to the posts; pickets nailed to these, and there is the fence. To assure even spacing of the pickets, take a piece of wood—one of the pickets, if they are not too wide will do nicely—hold it against the first picket erected, and then set the next one against it. Nail the second picket and remove the stick and repeat the process In this way the pickets will be evenly spaced.

Probably one of the least attractive elements of our averge suburb is the Monday wash blowing in the breeze in full view of all the neighbors. It is difficult to picture a quiet, restful hour on the rear terrace, reading a book or chatting with a friend if our next door neighbor's clothesline is sporting all of last week's linen. Even if we don't mind if the neighbors see how many changes we make, perhaps our neighbors do, so as good neighbors we should enclose the drying yard either with a lattice or a hedge.

If the mud splashes up on the lower part of your house and makes it look dirty and untidy, dig a trench around the house, close up to the foundation wall, about 8 inches deep and as wide as necessary to catch the dripping from the roof, and fill it with clean washed gravel. It will not interfere with planting, as shrubs and even flowers can be set beyond it.

RECORD HELPFUL.

When you're having spring painting done, it's well to keep a record of the brands and tints used. This information will be decidedly useful when you wish to do a little touching up or renew a coating later on.

QUESTIONS BEFORE THE HOUSE

Q. How deep should a garden pool be? O. F. M.

A. From 12 to 20 inches, depending on what you intend putting in it and where it is located. If you make it 20 inches deep, you can put the lily bulbs in tubs. If you intend keeping fish—and you should, to prevent mosquitoes from breeding—they will need the deep water and shade in the summertime. Be sure you slope the sides of the pool slightly so if water is in it in winter, the freezing won't crack the sides.

Q. I want to have an electric bell for my dining-room table, but I do not want to cut the rug. Can you suggest the best way to do it?

MRS. J. R.

A. Have a floor bell connection put under the center of the table, and get a contact type extension bell. This is a thin circular plate arrangement that rings the bell at the slightest pressure. It can be placed anywhere one desires and is always under the rug.

Q. The gutter on the front of our house sags and lets the water run off over the door. Is this faulty construction? T. T. O'N.

A. If the gutter sags it is probably because one of the supports has given way. If it slopes gradually to the leaders and still the water runs over, the downspouts, or leaders, are clogged or they are not adequate. Examine the supports, then see that the drains are clear. If these two items are in order then you must install larger leaders.

Q. Whenever the toilet is flushed in our bathroom the drains in the tub and basin make a great noise. Can you tell me what causes this?

ALMA G.

A. It is probable that there is only one trap on all three fixtures. This should be corrected. Each fixture should have its own trap for sanitary reasons.

* * *

Q. Can you tell me what to use for a clothes rod in a wide closet? My wooden pole sags so.

MISS JANET.

A. A galvanized steel or iron pipe, ¾ inch or 1 inch in diameter, will serve nicely.

* * *

Q. Can I have a swivel faucet put on my sink in place of the two faucets it now has?

MRS. JULIA B.

A. Yes. The old faucets can be removed and the swivel type installed by any plumber.

Q. Is it all right to build a house with a cement floor right on the ground. FRED W. SMITH.

A. Yes, if the ground is well drained and level. First lay a bed of broken stone or gravel about 8 inches deep. Tamp it down well so that it is level on top. Place over this a layer of tough, waterproof paper, lapped well at the edges, and with these laps joined with hot pitch. Cover the whole area with hot pitch and over this lay 3 or 4 inches of dense concrete. Another layer of the same building paper may be laid in hot pitch over this, and another layer of concrete, at least 2 inches thick over that. The top of the concrete should be brought to a smooth finish. This may be used as the finish floor or it may be covered with composition flooring or wood flooring laid in asphaltum or set upon sleepers. If the floor is laid on sleepers the space between the concrete and the wood floor should be ventilated.

Q. Is it cheaper to remodel an old house or build a new one?

MR. AND MRS HENRY F.

A. That depends upon how much you have to pay for the old house; what condition it is in; and how much you intend to change it. Before buying an old house to remodel, employ a competent architect to go over it carefully and if the alterations are to be extensive, have him make preliminary plans showing the changes. Then let him get an estimate from a reliable contractor and weigh the possible costs against the cost of building a new house.

MRS. JOHN B. DALE and SON.

WE wish to extend our most sincere thanks to all our relatives and friends for their kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings during our sad bereavement of my beloved husband and our dear father, Emil A. Remmler; wish to especially thank Rev. Amsinger for his consoling words; also the pallbearers, Collins Undertaker and the Sunshine Lodge No. 449, B. of R. R. C., for all their kind and friendly assistance.
MRS. ANNA REMMLER AND FAMILY.

THE family of the late Rosalie Restetsky wish to express their gratitude for the many expressions of sympathy, floral tributes and services rendered, during their recent sorrow, by friends, pallbearers and Rev. King.

IN MEMORIAM

ASBURY, HANNAH—In loving memory. Departed this life April 24, 1935:
Sadly missed by her
DAUGHTERS AND GRANDCHILDREN.

BAITINGER, CATHERINE (nee Praechter)—In loving memory of our dear mother who departed this life, April 30, 1935.
Sadly missed by
SON and DAUGHTER.

BENNISH, BARBARA—In loving memory of my mother, Barbara Bennish, who died May 26, 1935:
Sleep on, sleep on, dear mother,
Oh, how sweet to breathe thy name
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
EDWARD BENNISH.

BERLINGEN, NICKOLAS—In memory of our dear father, Nickolas Berlingen, who departed this life 5 years ago April 23, 1931.
Sadly missed—CHILDREN.

BREITENSTEIN, IDA AND THEODORE—In memory of a dear aunt and uncle, who died one week apart, April 25, and May 3, 1935. Niece, CLARA.

CEDERSTROM, VIOLA M.—Of our dear daughter, who died April 26, 1935:
There was an angel band in Heaven
That was not quite complete,
So God then took our darling Viola
To fill the vacant seat.
Sadly missed by
FATHER and MOTHER and FRIENDS WHO LOVED HER.

CLARK, AUGUSTA M.—In memory of Augusta M. Clark, who departed this life April 29, 1931.
Sadly missed by her husband,
E. W. CLARK AND CHILDREN.

EISELE, ROSALIE—In loving memory of our dear mother, Rosalie Eisele, who departed this life April 26, 1934.
DAUGHTERS AND GRANDCHILDREN.

GRIFFIN, BESSIE—In loving memory of my dear wife and our dear mother, who departed this life April 26, 1935:
You are not forgotten, loved one,
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more;
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND SONS.

LYONS, BERTHA M.—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, who passed away April 29, 1935. Holy mass for the repose of her soul April 29, 6 a. m., St. Matthews Church.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

McGINNIS, THOMAS GLENNON—In loving memory of our little darling Tommy, who departed this life April 24, 1935.
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, DAD, BROTHERS, SISTERS and all who loved him.

McNAMEE, WILLIAM J.—In loving remembrance of my dear husband who left us suddenly April 29, 1934.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, RELATIVES AND FRIENDS.

MERKLE, MRS. MINA—In loving remembrance, who departed this life one year ago April 25, 1935:
One year ago she passed away,
We grieved when she departed;
Time was too short to say farewell
To those she knew and loved so well.
We miss her coming footsteps,
We miss her everywhere,
Home is not what it used to be
Since mother is not there.
LOVING HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

PITTALUGA, MRS. THERESA—In loving memory of my dear wife and darling mother, who passed away May 1, 1935:
A wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better God never made.
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million, that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright.
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew,
A wonderful mother—that, mother, was you.
First anniversary requiem mass Friday, May 1, at Passionist Seminary Chapel, 7101 Natural Bridge rd., 8:00, high mass.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, SON, DAUGHTER-IN-LAW, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

IN MEMORIAM

SCHULZE, WILLIAM—In loving memory of my dear husband and our dear father, who died April 27, 1934:
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days.
Sincere and true in his heart and mind;
Beautiful memories he left behind.
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
Remembered forever by his WIFE AND CHILDREN.

SALESMEN WANTED

UNEMPLOYED MEN
YOU MUST READ
THIS UNUSUAL AD.

This message is addressed to men in St. Louis and vicinity who are looking for an opportunity of immediate employment, who have faith in themselves to do the things they will be taught how to do without any cost to them and with possibilities of earning that may far exceed their expectations.

Any man who is unemployed and does not try to get work is a disgrace and liability to the community and the nation, if he does not take advantage of a position that is offered to him even though it be out of his regular line of work. Some of our men, who were unemployed a few years ago, heeded our call and went to work with us, have earned during these years of so-called depression (unknown to us as our business increased) more money then they previously had in their entire life. Many have had the pleasure of buying new homes, automobiles, have substantial bank accounts, with earnings as high as $5000 and up a year. Why not give yourself a chance? You may also be one of the men who could enjoy this unusual experience in unusual times.

This message comes from one of the largest companies in its line in the world, whose products enjoy an enviable reputation and whose business is built on the soundest basis. We believe in paying a man all that he is worth and he is never handicapped by having to support a lot of dead wood, as, we are sorry to say, many business firms through their system have compelled a man to tolerate.

We are on an expansion program in St. Louis and we are going to employ a certain number of men, give them an opportunity to prove to themselves the sincerity of the above statement. If we do not find enough men to respond to this ad, we will then transfer, from our neighboring cities, men who answered a similar ad and have proved so successful that they are willing to go anywhere to work. We prefer, however, to get as many men locally as is possible and, if you are a man who is unemployed or employed in a position where you feel you are entitled to greater earnings and are willing to learn, adapt yourself to our methods, and can furnish good references as to your character and habits, we will be very pleased to grant you an interview and we will frankly tell you whether or not you are fitted for our work.

Read this message at least twice, then come in to Suite 512, Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive Sts., and meet one of the company's executives in a personal interview. Monday between 9:15 a. m. and 1:15 p. m.

Who's Who in Audience At Junior League Follies

Crowd in Formal But Between-Season Attire—Box Parties—Dinners Before Performance—Out-of-Town Guests. Large-Party for Debutante.

WHILE the costume of Tanzi, comedy horse of the piece, was being hastily and ineffectually repaired backstage in time for the opening curtain, a fashionable audience gathered on the other side of the footlights for the 1936 production of the Junior League Follies Friday night at the Municipal Auditorium. (Tanzi, when assembled, was composed of Charles Peters and R. M. C. Ormrod encased together in a velvety black four-legged arrangement with shiny hoofs and a horse's head.)

As usual the audience was late, having learned from past experience, perhaps, that amateur shows rarely start on time. But there was a rush from the lobby when it was learned that the curtain had gone up on schedule. For the most part the spectators were in formal attire, but distinctly of the between-season variety-few velvets, but on the other hand few chiffons. Those few, however, were in attractive pastel tints, and often worn with the popular quilted taffeta coats, finger tip length. Miss Vera Angert, member of Miss Laura Baumgarten't party, was in an attractive gray triple sheer, of the shirt waist type, with double flat pleating from neck to hem secured by self covered buttons.

Mrs. Lloyd Stark, wife of Major Stark, candidate for the governorship of Missouri, who attended with Mr. and Mrs. Claxton E. Allen, looked smart in stiff sapphire blue organdy with a jacket to match, and huge red poppies fastened to the front of her bodice.

Perhaps the largest party at the opening was Miss Baumgarten's given by Mrs. Louis Crampton for a debutante group which included in addition to Miss Angert, Miss Carroll Jones, Miss Phoebe Weed, Miss Judith Oliver, Miss Marie Taylor Spink, Miss Blanche Fischel, Miss Lucile Keeler, Miss Peggy James, Miss Ann Shapleigh, Miss Irene Pettus, Miss Suzanne Bitting, Jack Senseney, Randolph Potter, Walter Baumgarten, Oscar Rexford, Rueben C. Taylor Jr., Sam Goodyear, David Wells, Franklin Ferriss, Horatio Spencer, Brooke Payne, Edward E. Haverstick Jr., and Bradford Shinkle Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Ford, celebrating their twenty-seventh wedding anniversary, attended with her sister, Mrs. Mary Wright Day; Mrs. George W. Niedringhaus, wearing black lace and a corsage of orchids sent by the Junior League in appreciation of the use of her home for casting and skit rehearsals, entertained a box party which included Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Col. Joseph Gilman Miller and her son, George W. Niedringhaus.

Bridlespur Hunt Gives Riding Parties

ASSURED in the invitations that "any horse that is satisfactory to you and that will navigate on all four legs will fill the bill," devotees of horseback riding have been guests for the past two Sundays of the Bridlespur Hunt at a series of parties.

At 10 o'clock this morning the third of the series, which will continue into June, will be given. This time there will be a surprise ending, known only to the committee in charge. Riders will meet at the kennels back of the Bridlespur Hunt Club in Huntleigh Village, and will travel in groups, each going a different direction, stopping for cocktails "to give them courage" at the country houses of some of the committee. About 45 minutes have been allotted for riding time, and the party will be concluded at the clubhouse.

The Bridlespur Hunt, hunting division of the Bridlespur Hunt Club, has arranged the entertainments to encourage horseback riding. Hounds will be allowed to loaf during the usual spring hunting season, and will remain idle until cub hunting, starting in August. Participants in these "supervised rides" so-called by a committee member, need not be hunters. Patented gates have been installed throughout the countryside west of the Bridlespur Club for those not schooled in jumping.

August A. Busch, Master of the Fox Hounds; Adalbert von Gontard, honorary secretary, and members of the pink coat committee in-

Florence Curry Engaged to Wed E. Fusz Thatcher

Announcement Made at Luncheon Given by Aunt of Prospective Bride, Mrs. Frank L. Harney, With Whom She Makes Her Home.

THE betrothal of Miss Florence Warfield Curry, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Warfield Curry of Laguna Beach, Cal., and Charles Clemens Curry of St. Louis, to Eugene Fusz Thatcher was announced at luncheon yesterday at Black Oaks, Ferguson, the Colonial home in which she lives with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Harney, and where she made her debut two years ago.

Miss Curry attended Mary Institute and Villa Duchesne before going to Florence, Italy, where for a year she was a student at Miss Childs' Graduate House. She returned to St. Louis for the 1933-34 season. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Florence M. Warfield, and of the late Lemuel Allen Warfield of St. Louis and Baltimore.

The bridegroom-elect is the son of Judge and Mrs. Thomas Hudson Thatcher of Glen Owen, Ferguson, and a nephew of Mrs. Marie Reine Fusz de Penaloza. He is a brother of Mrs. John Walker Barriger III of Washington, the former Miss Elizabeth Thatcher, and of George, Charles, Joseph and Thomas Hudson Thatcher Jr. After completing his studies at the Missouri School of Mines, in Rolla, Mr. Thtcher lived in New York until recently.

Guests at the luncheon were told of the engagement informally. Mrs. Harney entertained Mrs. Thatcher, Mrs. de Penaloza and Mrs. Samuel S. Primm at a small table, and Miss Curry presided over a larger table at which sat Mr. Tatcher's cousin, Mrs. Hubertus Schotten; Mrs. Eugene de Penaloza, Mrs. James R. Samuel, Miss Frances Bates, Miss Martha Ann Day, Miss Barbara Brodhead, Mrs. John A. Holmes, Miss Janet Orthwein, Mrs. Harry G. Knapp, Miss Delphine Polk and Miss Alice Sullivan.

The wedding will take place in the fall.

Moise-Richards Wedding June 20

MRS. BYRON MOSER and her daughter, Miss Virginia Moser, 27 Washington terrace, entertained 80 guests at tea yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Mary Jane Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Richards, 426 Gray avenue, Webster Groves. Miss Richards chose the occasion to announce the date of her coming marriage to A. Wellborne Moise, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Sydney Moise, 5153 Palm street, St. Louis. It will take place June 20 in the evening at the First Congregational Church of Webster Groves, the Rev. George M. Gibson officiating. The engagement was made known informally to Miss Richards' close friends some time ago.

Mrs. Moser, Mrs. Richards, Miss Moser and Miss Richards received before the fireplace at the north end of the long living room, which was decorated with spring flowers. They were assisted by Mrs. Richards' sister, Mrs. George H. Owen, and Mrs. C. B. Kenamore, and by the following young women, who served at the tea table: Mrs. Edward Burns, Mrs. B. Pollard Scholz, Mrs. Charles Spoehrer, Miss Isabel Fry, Miss Marjorie Ann Owen, Miss Lucile Rapp, Miss June Renoe and Miss S. Marie Vaughan. The prospective bride was gowned in a formal afternoon print dress, and her mother wore a long dress of pink lace. Mrs. Moser's gown was of pale blue lace and Miss Moser's of yellow moire.

On one of the newel posts of the wide staircase was a miniature bride in white satin and on the other a bridegroom. Above them hung a large heart in a shower of smaller hearts, saying:

"Do you know about a wedding
Which is coming very soon?
It is Mary Jane's and Wellborne's
On the twentieth of June."

Mrs. Moser also announced Mrs. Richards' engagement and was maid of honor in her wedding.

The prospective bride is a graduate of Washington University, where she became a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, and Mr. Moise also graduated from Washington University and belongs to Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, April 25.

NEXT month the Board of Regents of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union will pay its annual visit to Washington's home. Mrs. Alice H. Richards of Maine is head of the Association. At the grand council meeting on the second Thursday in May, a certain order of procedure is followed. It is described in Miss Grace King's book on Mount Vernon as follows:

"The vice regents assemble, addressing each other, in their greetings, by the names of their States. After breakfasting together, they are summoned to the stately council chamber—the great banquet hall, which Washington added to the mansion in 1785. The venerated regent reads a chapter from the Bible, after which all kneel to repeat the Lord's Prayer. The secretary reads, and always reads most impressively, the farewell address of Miss Cunningham, the first regent. The roll of States is called, in alphabetical sequence. And then comes the most solemn ceremony of all.

"The regent, rising, leads the way from the council chamber — all the States following—out to the portico where the superintendent awaits them, bearing wreaths made from Mount Vernon flowers. He precedes the company of ladies down the brick walk to the tomb. The regent, advancing, receives the flowers from his hands, places one wreath on the sarcophagus of Washington, the other on that of Martha, his wife. Every head is bowed. Outside the grille gate, the ladies pause to sing the National hymn — "My Country"—then all return, in procession to the council chamber—and so to the duties of the day."

MRS. WILLIAM E. BORAH, wife of Senator Borah, will join other Idaho women this summer in paying tribute to two women of yesterday at the Centennial in their honor in Idaho and other sections of the Far West. These two—Eliza Spalding and Narcissa Whitman—were the first women to go into this distant country in a covered wagon. Mrs. Spalding was the mother of the first white child born in that new region.

WASHINGTONIANS returning from London are commenting on the adroitness with which Mrs. Anthony Eden, wife of Britain's Foreign Secretary, avoids the discussion of political affairs. She keeps plenty of other talking points in motion, however—art, books and the latest bon mots—and in this way there is no time left in which to talk of politics. If they had ever met, one might say that Mrs. Eden had taken a leaf out of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge's book, whose first commandment was for a politician's wife: "Thou shalt not talk politics." The Eden home in Berkeley Square is a haven of rest to harried politicians, many of whom enjoy their tea without the inevitable questioning from the politically minded.

President-Elect of Cuba at Capital

WASHINGTON, April 25.

TUESDAY evening Secretary of State Hull entertained at dinner in honor of the President-elect of Cuba, Don Miguel Mariano Gomez and Senora de Gomez, who arrived in Washington that afternoon. This dinner was arranged when the death of Col. Louis Howe caused the President and Mrs. Roosevelt to cancel the dinner at the White House they had planned for the visitors.

Senor and Senora Gomez were guests at the Cuban Embassy. Wednesday afternoon the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Guillermo Patterson, gave a reception in their honor.

The Pan-American Union gave a luncheon for Senor Gomez, while Sumner Welles, former Ambassador to Cuba and now Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Welles gave a dinner Wednesday night for Senor and Senora Gomez.

At German Embassy dinners, flowers and greens are always placed in a formal pattern, generally flat on the cloth. Vases and bowls are almost never used. Sometimes the flowers are arranged on the silver trays which Ambassador Luther brought back from a recent visit to Mexico. The stems of the flowers are seldom used and the trays are bordered with small fern leaves or other greens. Often the damask pattern in the table cloth is outlined with little leaves.

Who'd suspect that, marching beneath the front pleat of this new silk poplin dress, goes a row of convenient buttons. Unbutton one, two or three at the hem, according to your stride or stance. Turquoise, toast beige, pink, navy. $25. Sizes 12 to 20. Panama Hat, $10.

the famililes and friends of the pair.

The bridal party stood in the living room before the fireplace which was concealed by apple blossoms. Spring flowers banked the mantel which was lighted by ivory tapers in candelabra and apple blossoms were used in decoration from the mantel to the ceiling. White snapdragon, white iris and calla lilies combined with spring flowers in pastel shades decorated the spacious living room and the reception hall.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Oberwinder and was preceded to the altar by her young cousin, Miss Jennie Ann Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Matthews, as flower girl. Hale Nelson was best man.

The bride wore her traveling suit of chartreuse moss crepe, the short jacket of which was trimmed with a deep collar of beige fox fur. She wore a small felt hat to match her suit and a shoulder corsage of orchids. The flower girl wore a frock of daffodil yellow crepe made with short puffed sleeves of cream net and a bertha of the embroidered crepe. She carried an old fashioned nosegay of spring flowers.

An informal reception followed the ceremony and dinner was served at small tables placed about the terrace. The bridal table arranged in the dining room was adorned with a large centerpiece of lilies of the valley and lighted by white tapers in silver candelabra.

Mrs. Wickard wore a gown of flowered crepe with violet, orchid and blue tones predominating. Mrs. Oberwinder wore a gown of beige tinted lace.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Bishop Spencer's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. DeYong of Kansas City, formerly of St. Louis; Mr. Mahan's aunt, Mrs. Frederick B. Monroe of Farmington, Mo.; Mrs. Oberwinder's sister, Mrs. Matthews Rieger of Columbia, Mo., and her son, Charles K. Rieger; Mrs. Oberwinder's cousin, William T. Kemper Jr., and Frank Houston of Kansas City.

After a honeymoon in the South, Mr. Mahan and his bride will live at 5872 Cates avenue. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mahan of Hopkins, Mo., and a graduate of the University of Missouri.

brother, Charles E. Claggett, both their wives in the show, sat with Miss Caro Holmes and Miss Alice Hallett. Mr. and Mrs. William Julius Polk, whose son, W. J. Polk Jr., had an important part, chatted in the lobby during intermission with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Shapleigh, Mrs. Eugene Senseney and Mrs. H. Blakesley Collins. Dr. and Mrs. I. D. Kelley were with a group of friends, as were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Maestre and Mrs. Robert Holland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLure Clark waited until last night to watch their daughter, Mrs. Denman Clark, as a French maid in one of the three versions of the eternal triangle. They were with Mr. and Mrs. John B. Denvir and Mrs. Ira E. Wight, all of whom dined with Mr. and Mrs. Guido Pantaleoni before the performance. Mrs. Joseph L. Werner, a Floradora girl in the Follies revival of last year, occupied a box this year with Mr. Werner and a group of their friends. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bascom gave a party last night, as did Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Wright and Mrs. Charles Mullikin.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Kaufman entertained friends at dinner last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. E. Herrick Low who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Warren Chandler, and later entertained the Lows, the Chandlers, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Whittemore Jr., Dr. and Mrs. E. Lawrence Keyes and Joseph Drew in a box party at the theater.

Several out-of-town visitors came to St. Louis especially for the follies. Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun Jones are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Keene C. Burwell of Oklahoma City for the week-end, and Elliott K. Ludington of New York and his son, Elliott Jr., came to see his daughter, Mrs. Donaldson L. Lambert, complete her second successful year of effort as president of the league. She will be replaced in June by Miss Edwine Nugent.

The St. Joseph (Mo.) league president, Mrs. Gregg Thompson, was here with Dr. Thompson as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Kieffer. Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Hubbell had with them her sister, Mrs. Burrell Gordon White of Montclair, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Buffum Jr. of Louisiana, Mo., the latter formerly Miss Sara Jane Gorton of Kansas City, came to the Park Plaza the weekend in order to be present.

The Indianapolis Junior League, preparing for its own follies May 16, sent a delegation here Thursday. They attended the dress rehearsal and were to have remained over for the performance but were called home because of illness. Miss Elizabeth Clark entertained them during their short stay. In the group were Mrs. Conrad Rucklehaus, Mrs. David Stone, Mrs. Henderson Wheeler and Miss Mollie Hodges.

Many in last night's audience attended the cabaret, held after the performance at Hotel Chase.

Miss Betty Pickel Wed to Dr. W. E. Cook

THE marriage of Miss Betty Pickel, daughter of Dr. J. W. Pickel, 133 Washington avenue, Kirkwood, to Dr. William Eugene Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Cook of Fayetteville, N. C., took place yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church of Webster Groves, the Rev. J. Manly Cobb officiating. The chancel was banked with greenery to form a background for large baskets of spring flowers and white tapers in candelabra.

The bride was gowned in a floor-length dress of white crepe Elizabeth made with long full sleeves and a shirred bodice with draped neckline. She wore a turban of the same material and carried white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her matron of honor, Mrs. Ruth Etta Drake, wore a formal afternoon dress of pale green crepe Elizabeth similar in style to that of the bride and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses and blue delphinium.

Dr. Drake had as best man Dr. George Schoetker of St. Louis, and the ushers were William Mason Jr. and Harold T. Smutz, both of Kirkwood. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party at the bride's home.

The bride attended Washington University and has been a member of the faculty and a student of the Mary Blackwell Stevenson Piano School of Webster Groves for several years. Dr. Drake graduated from the University of North Carolina and Washington University Medical School. They will live in Mebane, N. C.

Jane Marie Biston Engaged to Marry Vivian G. Guilford

THE engagement of Miss Jane Marie Biston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Biston, and Vivian Greenaway Guilford, formerly of London, was announced yesterday at a reception at the Biston home, 6434 Cecil avenue. As the guests arrived each received a small gilt card on which a verse was engraved, announcing the engagement.

Spring flowers, with yellow predominating, decorated the tea table, at which Miss Byrdie Biston, Miss Georgene Cox and Miss Margaret Lambert served.

Miss Biston is a senior at Washington University, where she is a member of Delta Gamma sorority.

Mr. Guilford came to America about 12 years ago and has lived until recently with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Guilford, in Rochester, N. Y. He is a nephew of Sir Percy Greenaway, formerly Lord Mayor of London.

He was graduated in 1932 from Washington University, where he became a member of Sigma Nu.

The wedding will take place next fall.

Historical Society To Give Annual Dinner

THE Missouri Historical Society will commemorate the Louisiana Purchase at an annual dinner to be held Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the Jefferson Hotel. Slides illustrating the Louisiana Purchase and early history of Missouri will be shown, and James M. Douglas will talk in connection with the pictures. Another feature of the evening will be songs of the French voyageurs and early settlers.

A group of the woman members of the society have been invited to serve on the Reception Committee. They will be assisted by the following members of the Colonial Dames of America in Missouri, who have prepared the slides: Mrs. L. Guy Blackmer, Mrs. Harry L. Block, Mrs. Leslie Dana, Miss Katherine T. Moody, Mrs. Harvey C. Mudd and Mrs. Benton H. Pollock. Mrs. William Bagnell is in charge of the reservations made through the Colonial Dames.

Wheat Linen with Sunburn Calf for gay days in town or country

With whimsical Spring well on its capricious way, we characteristically anticipate the advent of Summer with this significant, high-fashion union of Wheat Linen with Sunburn Calf.

And . . . with the same prophetic vision with which we so confidently predicted the overwhelming acceptance of our British Tan, we now forecast a brilliant fashion future for this newcomer.

Wear it all through the Summer months with your sports clothes. It's equally distinctive with pastel colors or sunburn hues in the new piques, linens, sharkskins, light wools. And, when the wanderlust gets you, wear it to match your luggage.

Advertising Club To Honor 11 Women For Achievements

ELEVEN St. Louis women who have contributed something of unusual worth to their separate fields will receive recognition from the Women's Advertising Club next month when the club, aided by other groups and the public, selects a group of St. Louis "first ladies of achievement" for the last year.

The fields from which candidates will be nominated will include art, advertising, business, education, drama, literature, music, politics, science, social service and sports. It is planned to base the choices almost entirely upon work done during the past year, although names of women who are continuing work which may have been begun earlier will be admitted.

A similar project was sponsored by the club several years ago when prominent St. Louis business men were invited to name 10 distinguished women. This year, the nominations will be made by representative organizations of high standing in the several fields. These organizations, through their presidents and board members, will be invited to nominate three women, whom they consider most outstanding in each particular field. These names, together with nominations offered by individuals or other interested groups, will form the basis for the final choice.

A committee has been named to have charge of the project and this committee, with the club board, will review the nominations, and submit them to the entire club membership for final voting to determine the final choices.

Nominations may be sent to the chairman of the Advertising Club Award Committee, 1624 Arcade Building. Final announcement of winners will be made about June 1, but all nominations must be in before May 20.

Miss Helene Sullivan has been named chairman of the committee. Other members include Mrs. Arthur W. Preetz, Mrs. Frank Bruno, Mrs. R. C. Schroeder, Mrs. Daisy Worthen, Mrs. Florence Noll Majors, Miss Opal Sweazea, Miss Gene Ellinger, Miss Marion Denyven, Miss Marjorie Drennan, and Miss Mary Johnson.

Mrs. Joseph Bauer will be guest speaker of the Women's Advertising Club at its meeting at 12:15 p. m., tomorrow, at Hotel Statler.

MISS MAYME DICKMANN (above), newly elected president of the South St. Louis Democratic Women's Club, and MRS. J. EDWARD BATES (below), retiring president of the club.

Needlework Guild Convention.

The annual national convention of the Needlework Guild of America will meet in San Francisco, Cal., May 21, 22 and 23. Mrs. James A. Dickson, president of the St. Louis branch, will attend as a delegate from St. Louis. The convention will be held at the Fairmount Hotel, San Francisco, and will be attended by delegates from 763 branches in the United States. The organization was formed more than 50 years ago for the purpose of providing new garments for the needy. The St. Louis branch collected 22,500 garments last year which were disributed to 67 institutions and 19 public schoos.

Notes of St. Louisans Visiting in Paris

PARIS, April 15.

THE annual horse show at the Grand Palais drew crowds for two weeks before Easter. The fashionable race tracks of Auteuil and Longchamps are style centers. This week the dressmaking houses are showing midsummer fashions. Night horse-racing has been adopted by the Parisians as an annual event at Longchamps.

Miss Anne Goddard, who spent several weeks with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Dean Jay, has returned to Germany to continue her studies.

Miss Alice Mizner entertained last week with a large afternoon party. She and her mother, Mrs. Henry Mizner, were among the Americans who attended Easter services at the Madeleine. Miss Mizner is in charge of the library of the American Students' Center on the boulevard Raspail.

Mrs. Robert N. Warmack and her daughter, Mrs. George W. Crawford of New York, formerly of St. Louis, arrived last week on the Ile de France and are at the Hotel Meurice. They will go to Baden-Baden and return to Paris May 10.

Commodore and Mrs. Louis D. Beaumont entertained as dinner guests Saturday night at the Cannes municipal casino: the Aga and the Begum Khan, Capt. and Mrs. Grant Milne, Sir Courtauld Thompson, Mrs. Ryan, Col. Buzzard, Mrs. Pennington and Gen. and Mme. Polovtsoff.

Villa Duchesne Dog Show Saturday

VILLA DUCHESNE will hold its annual all-breed outdoor dog show Saturday from 10 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. on the grounds of the school at Conway and Spoede roads, Clayton. Three show rings will be used and the judging of about 400 entries will begin at 12:30 p. m. Silver and bronze trophies will be awarded by the Villa Duchesne Kennel Club and the Specialty Dog Club. There will be a high jumping contest.

Miss Abigail Gross is president of the show and Miss Virginia Jane Price vice-president. On the advisory council are George L. L. Davis, S. I. Pautler, Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., Gerald B. O'Reilly and H. E. Le Gear. The following young women are assisting the show in various capacities: Miss Joy Gross, Miss Jessie Connett, Miss Nancy Connett, Miss Jane Lamy, Miss Genevieve Lamy, Miss Martha O'Neil, Miss Jeanne Butler, Miss Marcella Berkley, Miss Antoinette Schlafly, Miss Elizabeth Switzer, Miss Augusta Connett, Miss Frances Bates, Mrs. Nancy McLaughlin and Mrs. Thelin Grone. Another committee is composed of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Strelinger, Mr. Mae Gradwohl, Mrs. Guilford Priesmeyer, Mrs. William J. Kinsella Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Vertrees Young, Mrs. Anna Carey, D. L. Findley, E. M. Jackson, H. J. Missey, G. H. Hedgcock, Mrs. Mildred Tebeau, Mrs. William D. Amenda, Edward J. Meyer and John Chrisman.

UPKEEP AS FIGURED ON NEW YORK DOG

Average Aristocratic Style Calls for $240 Annually for Canine Caterer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 25.—A dog's life in New York costs $613.25 a year if the owner supports the dog in average aristocratic dog style.

The largest single item on the annual upkeep of, say, a wirehaired fox terrier, is $240 for meals specially prepared, delivered and served by a canine caterer. For $15 to $25 a month the caterers will feed the New Yorker's dog, but one agreed that a genteel wire-haired ought to get along all right on the $20 a month menu.

A dog-walking agency will take over exercising of the dog for 50 cents an hour. Figuring that the dog gets a breath of air an hour a day and discounting a few Sundays and holidays when his master himself might do the exercising, the dog's exercise thus costs $150.

A dog, authorities agreed, should be groomed and conditioned every two weeks at $5 a grooming and conditioning. Thus $130 will take care of that for the year.

If a dog's master thinks anything at all of his pet he will have its picture taken yearly. The photographer for the American Kennel Club will take three poses of the dog for $25.

Other little necessaries which one of the city's leading purveyors to dogs agreed no pet should be without include:

Suitcase, ventilated and blanketed, in which to be carried on planes and trains—$25. Chaise-longue, with silken cushion and Afghan—$7.50; collar—$1.75; lead—$3; monogrammed blanket—$10; raincoat—$50. Two hand-painted dishes—$2.50 each; sundry toys—$4; two combs—$1 apiece; an imported English brush—$2.50; a basket and cushion—$5; dry cleaning powder—$1.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which reported that there were 262,400 dogs in the city of New York, said that it also was a good idea for the dog to have a license. That costs $7.

GEORGE C. STEBBINS STILL COMPOSING HYMNS AT 90

His Latest, "Tarry With Me, O, My Savior," Sung at His Birthday Party.

CATSKILL, N. Y., April 25.—George C. Stebbins, who estimates he has written the melodies for more than 1500 hymns, is still composing tunes at the age of 90. His latest hymn, "Tarry With Me, O My Savior," was sung in his home here on his ninetieth birthday recently by Dr. Arthur Billings Hunt of the National Hymn-Sing Radio Association of New York.

The composer was born on a farm in Orleans County, New York. He went to Chicago in 1869 and began his musical career as a singer in a church choir. In succession he became a choir director, a song leader at conventions and finally a soloist and leader of services of song. This led to his composing of hymn music and he became editor of the series of hymn books used by the late Mr. Moody and Ira D. Sankey in their evangelistic work.

Among the best known of his hymns are "Savior, Breath an Evening Blessing," "There is a Green Hill Far Away," "I've Found a Friend," "Take Time to Be Holy," "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," and "Truehearted, Wholehearted."

OPTOMETRIC ASSOCIATION TO OPEN SESSION TODAY

35th Annual Missouri Convention; Technical Display at Headquarters.

About 300 delegates are expected to attend the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Missouri Optometric Association which will open this mornnig for a three-day meeting at Hotel Statler. George A. Winterer, St. Louis convention chairman, will open the session at 10 o'clock.

Among the speakers scheduled to appear will be H. L. Fuog, dean of the Los Angeles School of Optometry, who will deliver five lectures during the convention. E. L. Canfield, president of the Sight Light Corporation of New York, will speak at a luncheon meeting Tuesday on "Sight, Light, Illumination, Safety," a discussion of industrial lighting conditions relating to care of the eyes.

Technical apparatus used by optometrists will be on display beginning today at the convention headquarters. The banquet of the organization and the election of officers will be held tomorrow evening. A program of entertainment has been arranged for wives of convention visitors.

330,813 BOOKS LENT IN MARCH

Public Library Lists Those Most in Demand.

Readers who used the Public Library in March borrowed an average of two books each, according to Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian. The total number of books lent was 330,813.

Books purchased by the library totaled 4208 and 1500 more were donated.

"North to the Orient," by Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, and "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom," by T. E. Lawrence, are still in great demand. Other books frequently called for are "Man the Unknown," by Alexis Carrel; "The Last Puritan," George Santayana; "We Who Are About to Die," David Lamson; "My Country and My People," Lin Yutang; and "Sweden, the Middle Way," by Marquis W. Childs of the Post-Dispatch staff.

AUTO LICENSE DIRECTORY

Missouri List for 1936 Is in Loose-Leaf Form.

"The Multi-Mail Automobile Registration Directory," listing Missouri State automobile license holders for 1936, has been distributed to users by the publishers, Multi-Mail, Inc.

It lists licenses numerically, giving the owner's name and address, the make of car and the motor number for each license, including the "reserve" list of small numbers issued from Jefferson City, truck owners and dealers. The book is in loose-leaf form. Leslie J. Eggers, head of the publishing firm, announced that the book was intended chiefly for use by law enforcement agencies and also for commercial houses.

WOMEN'S CONVENTION FOR PEACE FRIDAY

Sessions of American Section of League to Continue Through Monday.

The annual convention of the American section of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom will open Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Chase Hotel. The convention will continue through Monday.

More than 200 women, chiefly from the East, are expected to attend the convention. Mrs. Hannah Clothier Hull of Swarthmore, Pa., president of the league, will preside at the opening session and present her annual report. At 4:30 p. m. Friday there will be a reception at the home of Mrs. Frederick J. Taussig, 50 Westmoreland place.

The league's annual dinner will be held Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock at Hotel Chase, following sessions at the hotel during the day. United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark and Henry F. Grady, chief of the trade agreements section of the State Department, will speak. Mrs. E. M. Harford, general chairman of the convention, will preside.

The principal session of the convention will be a mass meeting next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Soldan High School auditorium at which George Lansbury, member of Parliament and former leader of the Labor party in England, will be the principal speaker.

Robert Morss Lovett, professor of English at Chicago University, will also speak at the mass meeting and Bishop William Scarlett of the Episcopal Diocese of Missouri will preside.

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, together with about 30 labor organizations, is compiling a "mandate to end war" for which it hopes to secure the signatures of 12,000,000 persons. The mandate will then be presented to the various governments of the world as a protest against war. Mrs. Ralph W. Thayer is in charge of obtaining signatures in St. Louis.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER FOR RABBI JONAH WISE

Affair Tonight in Connection With Jewish Welfare Fund Campaign.

Rabbi Jonah B. Wise of New York, co-chairman of the American Joint Distribution Committee for the aid of oppressed Jews in Germany, Poland and other European countries, will be the guest at a testimonial dinner tonight at Hotel Jefferson in connection with the annual campaign for contributions to the local Jewish Welfare Fund.

In the campaign, which will be held May 10 to 20, $194,950 will be sought for the Y. M. H. A. and 20 other philanthropic organizations. Rabbi Wise and Rabbi Julius Gordon of Temple Shaare Emeth will be the principal speakers at the dinner. Howard F. Baer, campaign chairman, will preside. Those at the dinner will hear addresses over the telephone from five national Jewish leaders—Albert Lasker of Chicago, Lessing Rosenwald of Philadelphia, Judge M. C. Sloss of San Francisco, Felix M. Warburg of New York, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York.

Conference Today.

All Jewish organizations in St. Louis have been invited to participate in a conference at Hotel Jefferson beginning at 10 o'clock this morning, called by St. Louis Council of the American Jewish Congress.

At the morning session plans will be discussed for the election of delegates to the World Jewish Congress at Geneva in August, and resolutions on the Jewish situations in Germany and Palestine will be offered. Officers of the St. Louis Council are to be elected.

In the afternoon the discussion will be on the plight of Jews in Poland, who are confronted, the announcement of the meeting said, "with a wave of medieval anti-Semitism and outrages."

Dr. Samuel Margoshes, editor of The Day, one of the three Yiddish dailies in the United States, will speak at the luncheon session.

Afternoon Speakers.

Speakers in the afternoon will include the Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in American; John S. Leahy, attorney and Catholic lay leader, and Rabbi Chaim Fischel Epstein, rabbinical head of the local orthodox Jewish community.

A campaign to raise $14,000 in Southern Illinois as its share of a $3,500,000 fund sought nationally by the Joint Distribution Committee and the United Palestine Appeal, will be held May 4 to 7 under the leadership of Jay J. Rubenstein of Alton. In East St. Louis the campaign will be held from May 18 to 21.

Acacia Veterans of Foreign Wars.

11 ROUTED AT 2 A. M. IN ROOMINGHOUSE FIRE

Two Women and Two Children Helped Down Ladders at 2852 Accomac Street.

Fire starting in rubbish in the basement routed 11 occupants of a rooming house at 2852 Accomac street from their beds at 2:40 o'clock yesterday morning. Two women and two children were assisted down ladders by firemen.

When members of a hook and ladder company reached the scene they found Mrs. Catherine Dunn, 60-year-old widow, and her grandson, Marvin Hamilton, 4, at a back third-floor window, and Mrs. Mary Dalton, 50, and her 4-year-old nephew at windows on the second floor. Ladders were raised and firemen carried the boys and assisted the women to the ground.

Mrs. Dunn and her grandson were treated for the effects of smoke at City Hospital, and later went to the home of relatives.

Smoke from the fire filled the upper floors. Firemen put out the blaze estimated the damage at $175. Other roomers, who got out unassisted and returned to their quarters after the smoke cleared away, were Mr. and Mrs. William Spencer and their 1-year-old son; Mrs. Ida Coburn and her 12-year-old nephew, James Hitch, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harden.

ST. LOUIS GERMANS TO MEET ON NAZI 'DAY OF LABOR'

Members of 33 German societies in St. Louis—the singing societies, the Friends of New Germany, the turner societies, and others—will hold a mass meeting Friday night at 8 p. m. at the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue, coinciding with the observance of the "Day of National Labor" in Germany.

German Consul Reinold Freytag and others will speak and there will be a concert followed by dancing. The German motion picture, "Triumph of Will Power," depicting the Nazi party convention at Nuremberg in the fall of 1934, will also be shown.

SYMPHONY CAMPAIGN REPORTS TOMORROW

List of Contributors of $100 or More Toward $135,000 Fund Sought.

More than 250 volunteer workers, organized in 25 teams and committees, will make their first official report of gifts to the $135,000 maintenance fund for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, at a luncheon meeting at Hotel Jefferson tomorrow.

Symphony officials said yesterday that there is no way to estimate the probable total of the fund at this time, but it is known that about $45,000 has been raised through special solicitations by members of the Campaign Executive Committee.

The Symphony campaign workers are presenting their appeal to a selected list of about 4000 St. Louis business firms and individuals.

George Spearl is chairman of the campaign. In addition to the Campaign Executive Committee there are two large divisions of volunteer workers. One is the Women's Division, of which Mrs. Charles Mullikin is chairman. The other is a "co-ed division" of 70 young men and women, working in teams of two. Miss Martha Love, Miss Amelia Overall, Miss Kate Davis Pulitzer and Henry Hitchcock are co-chairmen of this group. Both divisions will make official reports tomorrow.

At the Symphony campaign office in the Mayfair Hotel, it is announced that the following have already made donations of $100 or more:

Mrs. P. D. C. Ball, Lynton T. Block, F. A. Brickenkamp, William Charles, Percival Chubb, Mrs. H. Blakesley Collins, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. D'Arcy, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Edmunds, Mrs. Moses J. COMMUNITY CENTER DANCING CLASSES IN REVUE ON MAY 9

Finale of Winter Season to Be Held at Municipal Auditorium Opera House.

The winter dancing classes, held at community centers under the direction of the City Recreation Department, will be concluded May 9 with a spring dance revue at Municipal Auditorium Opera House. About 1400 children are practicing daily for the show.

The revue will be in three episodes of 24 scenes. The first, the "Wedding of Jack and Jill," has nine scenes taken from fairy tales and nursery rhymes. The second, "Lavender and Old Lace," will consist of a group of nine dances including "Parasol Dance," "Virginia Reel," "Toe Ballet," "East Side, West Side," "Alice Blue Gown" and "Cake Walk."

The third episode, "Gems from the Municipal Opera," will feature the waltz from "Madame Sherry," by high school girls of the Sherman Park Community Center; the gypsy dance from "Countess Maritza," by 50 girls, and the totem pole dance from "Rose Marie" by 90 girls. Other numbers will be taken from "Rio Rita," "No, No, Nanette," and "Roberta."

Among other features of the revue will be dances by girls 5 and 6 years old in "Jacks and Jills" and "Sunbonnet Sue" from the first episode, and a group of girls dressed as Shirley Temple in a scene called "Curly Tops." Old-fashioned costumes will be featured in "On a Sunday Afternoon," and in the finale the children dressed in white tails and top hats, will give a special staircase tap dance.

ROSE FANNING SCHOOL PUPILS TO STAGE FOLKLORE FESTIVAL

Program at Roosevelt High School Auditorium to Be Presented Friday.

Pupils of Rose Fanning School will present a festival portraying the European heritage of folklore Friday evening at Roosevelt High School auditorium, 3220 Hartford street. The program is under auspices of the school patrons and parent-teacher association.

The entertainment will include songs and dances at a Scandinavian fair, May day festival in France and Holland, harvest festival in the Alpine countries, carnival time in old Italy, village green in England and Ireland and a gypsy encampment in Eastern Europe.

MONARK CO. FINED $100, TAKES APPEAL

Charge Against Firm, Files of Which Once Disappeared, Finally Tried.

The Monark Petroleum Corporation, 5101 Manchester avenue, was fined $100 and costs by Provisional Judge James H. Connors in Police Court yesterday on each of two charges of violataing city ordinances in the installation of gasoline storage tanks at its filling station at Goodfellow boulevard and Easton avenue. The company appealed.

Originally docketed for hearing last Dec. 24, the case was continued to Jan. 7. The court docket for the latter date did not include the case, and the files were missing. Nothing more was done in the case until inquiry was made by a Post-Dispatch reporter on April 7. After a two-day search the files were found in a desk drawer in the office of Cornelius J. O'Brien, clerk of the Police Courts. The City Counselor's office then issued an additional information against the company.

The charges were that the company, last December, installed a 1000-gallon tank and two 500-gallon tanks within 30 feet of adjoining property, and that the tanks were installed without a permit. J. A. McLaughlin, an inspector in the Building Department, testified to the alleged violations.

Barney Wides, president of the firm, testified that the three tanks were never connected up, and were installed in anticipating the purchase of adjoining property. Wides said gasoline was served from a small tank, which came within regulations.

George E. Koch, owner of property next door to the filling station, told reporters there had been some discussion of a purchase, but that he had not fixed a price on his property and that the Monark company had made no definite offer.

Civil Service Veterans' Meeting.

The Retired United States Civil Service Employes' Association of St. Louis will meet Tuesday at 1 p. m. at Mount Moriah Temple, Garrison and Natural Bridge avenues. Officers for the coming year will be installed.

Play to Be Given May 2.

"Storm-Tossed," a social drama by the Rev. Daniel A Lord, S. J., will be presented at Webster Groves High School May 2, under auspices of The Queen's Work, Catholic publication, and the Webster Catholic Youth Organization.

MUNICIPAL OPERA CHORUS TESTS MAY 4

Selection of 92 St. Louisans to Begin on That Date—Stage Staff Completed.

The Municipal Opera chorus of 92 for this year will be chosen at tryouts, beginning Monday morning, May 4. The place will be announced later.

Women applicants for either the singing or the dancing chorus will be considered on Monday, while men will be tested on subsequent days. Singers will be judged on voice quality, stage presence, appearance and ability, while the dancers will be scored on versatility as well as appearance.

Only residents of St. Louis are qualified to become members of the chorus. No formal enrollment is necessary, the only requirement being that those wishing to participate appear at the appointed place on the day set for the test.

Producing Director Laurence Schwab has completed his personal staff by employing Edward Saulpaugh and O. J. Vanasse as associate stage directors. Zeke Colvan will be general stage director. Saulpaugh has never been with the Municipal Opera before. He was recently stage manager of Max Gordon's operetta, "The Great Waltz." Vanasse was stage manager at the Municipal Theater in 1930 and associate stage director last season.

Schwab and most of his staff, will arrive in the city next Sunday. He will personally conduct the tryouts, assisted by George Hirst, general musical director and Hilding Anderson, associate musical director; Colvan and dance director Marjery Fielding. After the chorus has been chosen, rehearsals will start May 8.

Eleven of the 12 musical productions to be presented at the open-air theater this summer have ben chosen. Those selected are: "Kid Boots," which will open the season Friday night, June 5; "Sons O' Guns," "Oh Boy," and "A Connecticut Yankee"—all to be given for the first time in the Municipal Theater. "Glamorous Night"—to be given for the first time in America, having been produced in London. The other operas decided on are: "The Three Musketeers," "No, No, Nanette," "Bohemian Girl," "Merry Widow," "New Moon," and "Red Mill."

Advance seat reservations now total $87,000. Seat locations have been assigned all season subscribers, who have been notified that payment for their tickets must be made by May 9. Season reservations are still accepted at the association's office, 1876 Arcade building, where there are charts showing locations of seats still available.

Loretto Order 124 Years Old.

Webster College yesterday commemorated the 124th anniversary of the founding of the Sisters of Loretto, the national order which operates the school. The society was established in Kentucky in 1812 by the Rev. Charles Nerinc, a Belgian refugee. It spread into Missouri in 1823, and began to establish mission schools among the Southwestern Indians in 1852.

ROOSEVELT BIRTHDAY DANCE RECEIPTS $7200

Expenses $1164; Rest Distributed to Combat Infantile Paralysis.

The committee in charge of a dance held at the Municipal Auditorium Jan. 30 in honor of President Roosevelt's birthday made public yesterday a statement showing the distribution of receipts which totaled $7284. Harvey Beffa, general chairman, pointed out that there were no promotion expenses.

Total expenses were $1164, including $400 for rent of the auditorium; $256 for music; $255 for printing and postage; $112 for stage hands; $91 for decorations; and $50 for advertising. Thirty per cent of the balance or $1836, was sent to the Warm Springs Foundation, established by the President, for the treatment of infantile paralysis.

The 70 per cent retained by the local committee was distributed as follows: Midwest Polio Association, $2484; Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, $1500; St. Louis Society for Crippled Children, $150; and Missouri Baptist Hospital, $150.

SIX ST. LOUIS HEADS— and WHAT'S ON THEM

This Group of Hats for Spring and Summer Portrays Variety in Material and Design

MISS GRACE GALE has chosen a hat of navy blue felt showing the mandarin influence. Its turned-up brim starts high on the crown and is laid in folds. A tassel of silk hangs from a button on top.

MISS SUZANNE CHASSAING wears a tailored model of rough straw in navy blue trimmed with matching patent leather ribbon and blue and red cherries.

MISS CATHERINE BULL displays the trend toward larger hats for summer in this "cartwheel" of rose colored straw. It sits high and straight. The bunch of flowers, of a color to match the straw, trimming the front of the hat, are tied with a periwinkle blue bow of grosgrain ribbon.

MISS VIRGINIA PABST and a charming hat of blue straw with flat crown. The brim, pointed front and back, sweeps up on both sides to display three white gardenias.

MISS DOROTHY DITTMANN wears a hat of lavender felt covered by a matching veil. A nosegay of flowers adds a bright touch.

MISS JANE PENTLAND has chosen a rough blue straw that cocks over one eye. A large taffeta bow of lighter blue adds to the forward movement of the hat.

HOLLYWOOD WHIRL

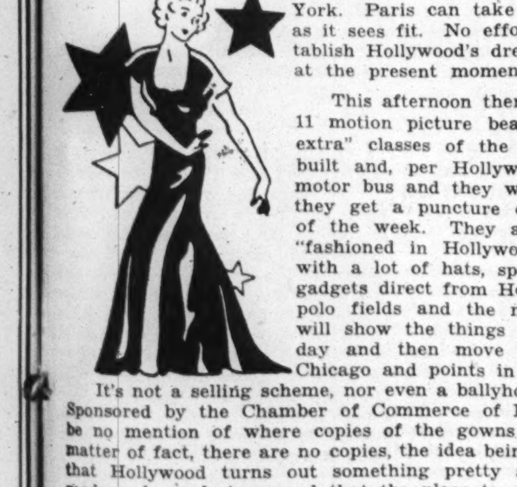
by

Margaret Post Niemeyer

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

HOLLYWOOD, April 25.

IN a few days you will have a chance to see for yourself some of the real Hollywood fashions which ought to be a lot better than any printed descriptions of mine. A Sunday or so ago this column said something about Hollywood admitting that it was the fashion center of the world, or words to that effect. Perhaps Paris or New York, or even Chicago, might lift an eyebrow at such a claim, but, all the same, Hollywood is going to prove it, or try to prove it, in a unique manner to St. Louis and even to Chicago and New York. Paris can take the claim, or leave it as it sees fit. No effort will be made to establish Hollywood's dress supremacy overseas at the present moment.



This afternoon there set out for St. Louis 11 motion picture beauties from the "dress extra" classes of the studios in a specially built and, per Hollywood custom, "colossal" motor bus and they will arrive there, unless they get a puncture or something, the end of the week. They are bringing along 250 "fashioned in Hollywood" costumes together with a lot of hats, sport things and general gadgets direct from Hollywood boulevard, the polo fields and the night clubs. The girls will show the things off in St. Louis for a day and then move on to New York via Chicago and points in between.

It's not a selling scheme, nor even a ballyhoo for a motion picture. Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles, there will be no mention of where copies of the gowns can be bought. As a matter of fact, there are no copies, the idea being to establish the point that Hollywood turns out something pretty snappy in the way of modern dress designs, and that the place to come and get 'em is in Southern California.

—o—o—

And here is a tip which the movie stars are not only handing out but acting upon themselves: No more long dresses for afternoon wear. The long "cocktail" and Sunday night gowns are as definitely out as last year's firecracker. Street-length frocks have replaced them and are the thing for informal dining at clubs and restaurants.

—o—o—

● JUST AS THE GOOD housekeeper goes in for the annual spring cleaning orgy, so the wise picture stars ordain a week of letting nature take its course this season. All make-up is abandoned except for just the faintest trace of a light lipstick. No rouge, no powder, not even a speck of nail enamel. And during this rest cure period many platinum blondes are becoming brunettes and liking it so much they may stay that way. I saw Mae West at lunch in the Beverly Brown Derby today and she was taking the cure so thoroughly that she was not even wearing her diamonds, the West family plate. She was most inconspicuously dressed in a black tailored suit and a soft crush hat and was dining with a woman friend, believe it or not. At another table was Al Jolson and his wife, Ruby Keeler, and George and Gracie Allen. Gracie was wearing a new version of her widely advertised "little blue hat," one of the "halo" models, and a dark blue dress. Ruby looked especially well with a healthy tan.

—o—o—

Saw Sylvia Sidney the other day lunching at the Trocadaro, resplendent in a new hair cut which is decidedly more becoming to her. She wore a smart black tailored suit and a gorgeous silver fox scarf.

—o—o—

And the silver fox brings us up to the "summer furs" which are now much in evidence. I saw Joan Bennett, who manages to

IN THE FASHION PARADE

What the Women of St. Louis Are Wearing

By Sylvia Stiles

FROM the time that the Lily Pons fans started gathering at the Municipal Auditorium last Monday evening until the last celebrators went home from the Follies Cabaret Show at the Hotel Chase this morning, St. Louisans concentrated their fashion interests upon dress-up clothes. It was a week of gala events and gala attire—so that every woman who prided herself upon being well dressed took advantage of the auspiciousness of the occasions to splurge in formal finery.

Some of the young ones, 'tis said, stretched their allowances to buy a second evening gown in the middle of the week after they had recovered from the surprise of seeing so many of their friends at the Monday night opera and couldn't bear the thought of facing them there again at the Junior League Follies on Friday night without altering their costumes. It was a great time for the shopkeepers and not without its thrills for those whose job it is to chronicle fashion news and events.

Not for many years have there been so many lovely frocks on promenade in the springtime. The vividness of the fabrics and the striking alliances of colors and materials were dazzling to onlookers but no more impressive than the variety of silhouettes and the many interpretations of the trends of the season's styles. There were full length fitted coats that gave their wearers a sort of Sarah Bernhardt haughtiness, and enveloping capes that were cavalier-like in quality. The Grecian influence, so popular during the winter, had undergone changes but was quite apparent in the pleated bodices and swathed draperies. Napoleonic themes entered the picture, however, and were flattering to tall and slender figures.

—o-o—

SO MANY versions of the redingote theme were noted that it was difficult to separate wraps from dresses. In fact, every third costume seemed to be equipped with a diaphanous coat or cape in a shade contrasting with the sheath-like slip beneath it. Colors that once were seen only on the canvasses displayed in famous galleries stepped out of the past to demonstrate the ingenuity of 1936 fashion creators and dye-makers.

Chiffons and other transparent fabrics were worn extensively, some of them arranged in cloud-like drapery of several different colors and others appliqued with brilliant flowers. Panels floated from the shoulders or waistlines and formed sweeping trains. White taffeta tunics supplied a staccato-like impression against the dark background of pleated black skirts. Ruchings and ruffles gave a little-girl look to otherwise sophisticated figures and petticoat embroidery subdued the modernism of form-fitting gowns.

The two performances of the Junior League Follies and the cabaret which followed the latter proved to be the outstanding events from a fashion as well as a social viewpoint. The cabaret outshone the auditorium display because there were the many participants in the follies who replaced their stage costumes with their own attire and celebrated the finale. Some who had been assigned fashionable parts and appeared in the style promenades wore these (which, incidentally, were their own) gorgeous raiments so that the guest lists at the Chase appeared quite professional.

Mrs. Donaldson L. Lambert, president of the Junior League, joined her party at the cabaret in the chic black frock worn on the stage. It had the redingote lines that have been mentioned as so smart at the moment, the diaphanous coat being of chiffon that was fitted quite snugly through the waistline but flared at the hemline where a wide band of exquisite white lingerie insertion supplied a dramatic note. The neckline was caught into a square line with brilliant clips and the shoulders were covered.

Miss Edwine Nugent, newly elected president of the Junior League,

Flower Vase Hats

● Hats shaped to look like containers for flowers and profusely laden with them are the rage of the season. Some of these millinery conceits resemble vases or have vase-like sections, while others look much like deep bowls. The basket theme is another that is being exploited while the flower pot shape continues its popularity.

Since there is a quaintness about the flower container idea in spring chapeaux, it is not surprising to discover that old-fashioned flowers are much in favor. Lilacs, either white or purple, are tucked into the tops of crowns or arranged around the crowns. Hyacinths, carnations, violets and buttercups are others that look as though they had been taken from grandmother's garden to grace straw bonnets.

This New York

by

Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, April 25.

NOT to be outdone by Hartford, where Chick Austen's spacious gestures in the direction of modern art have produced over the last three seasons some of the most scrammy pageants ever devoted to wahoo and general exhibitionism, Boston last week tossed itself a Van Gogh ball of really epic proportions and the New Haven Railroad ferried a number of first citizens back and forth for the chowder and marching ceremonies. New York's Museum of Modern Art sponsored the shindig, but Dorothy Hillyer, Nat Saltonstall and a group of other amiable and animate Boston amateurs of modern art and allied foolishness actually were responsible for it, because no Bostonians in their right minds would go to a party arranged by New Yorkers, right on their home grounds as it were. Throughout the Copley Plaza's ballroom gigantic Van Gogh sunflowers exploded against great pleated swags of crepe paper. Cab Calloway's band played appropriately impressionistic tunes and here and there tail-coated exquisites from Harvard swooned in esthetic ecstasies into the potted palms and had to be carried out by the footmen.

—o-o—

THE folding and bankruptcy of the most pretentious of British retail shops in the upper reaches of Madison avenue seems to refute the notion that Manhattanites are the world's greatest fools for being swindled for the sake of foreign chi-chi. The specialty of the house was elegant ton laid on with a solid platinum shovel, and it was only with a sort of vice-regal condescension that they would agree to part with a ready-made tweed sports jacket for $125 or a $3 tin of sharks' fin soup. It was reported at one time that a vintage black cherry jam in some very desirable years was available at a trifling $10 a jar, but this may have been a special bargain for one day only. All the firm wanted was the carriage trade with nothing but thoroughbred horses, and there didn't seem to be suckers enough.

—o-o—

THE presence-of-mind-of-the-week story concerns the Spencer Mapes' flaming youth cocktail party one Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Mapes (she used to be Mary Losey) had some folk in and there were gin and vermouth doings like crazy until somebody smelled smoke. (The underwriters later said somebody must have dropped a red-hot epigram.) Anyway, the house, which is in East Fifty-eighth street, was unquestionably well alight and the guests found it expedient to get down the fire escape quicker than you could say Grinnell sprinkler. The Mapses lingered to pick up some plate silver and the manuscript of a book Mr. Mapes was working on about the time the ceiling was ready to come down. Mrs. Mapes paused at the top of an extension ladder which a thoughtful engine company had by this time raised for her convenience, and noticed that she had on her best, brand-new pair of $18 shoes, which certainly would be ruined, what with the water and all. So she passed them back through to Mr. Mapes and said, "Put them in the icebox, honey," and, would you believe it, after all the shouting was over there they were, cool and elegantly preserved. Mrs. Mapes had caught something of a cold, however, standing in

by Martha Carr

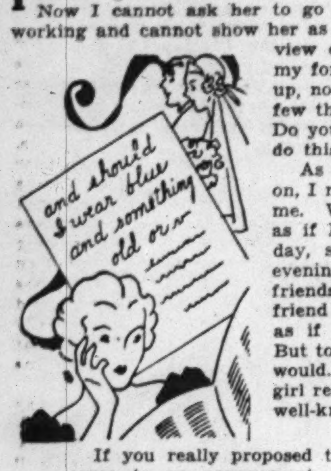
Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I AM a young man, 20, in love with a girl, 18. I have given up all former girl friends since I met her. She is the only one I date. Now I cannot ask her to go "steady" with me because I am not working and cannot show her as good a time as I would like. But in view of the fact that I have given up all my former girl friends, I expect her to give up, not all her boy friends, but at least the few that I consider "not the type for her." Do you think I am wrong in asking her to do this?



As soon as I have a job that I can rely on, I really intend to ask this girl to marry me. When we go out on a date she acts as if I am the only one for her, but next day, she acts indifferent. Just yesterday evening we went out with a party of friends in which there was a former girl friend and the girl I really care for acted as if I were the only one in the world. But today she acted as casual as a stranger would. Now, Mrs. Carr, do you think this girl really loves me, or is she giving me the well-known "run around"? DOUBTFUL.

If you really proposed to her and she were willing to agree to an engagement on faith and without definite prospects, she would probably be willing to conform to the usual obligations, forsaking all others. Without a definite understanding, she is justified in thinking you are giving her the "run around." Put a ring on her finger, assure her of some security. You can't expect to hold her just by flaunting old loves to make her jealous.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
● I AM LOSING my husband's love and affection because I cannot have any more children. My husband is becoming cross and irritable and I know why, but I cannot do a thing about it. We never have an argument only on that. We already have a girl, 12, a boy, 10.

I don't want my home broken up as I love all my family. Please advise me. I must have help and advice soon. J. M.

You might take your problem to the Marriage Consultation Service of the Missouri Social Hygiene Society, 340 North Vandeventer avenue. This is a free service of expert advice for just such difficulties as yours.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
● I AM A BOY 14 years old and I'm crazy about the girl who lives up the street from me. Her name is Nina. The trouble is this: She is always asking foolish questions such as "Joe, don't you like me any more?" or "Are you mad at me?" when really I do nothing to prompt such questions. Since I really do like this girl I do not want to say anything that will hurt her feelings. But I would like to have her cease questioning me in such a manner. What shall I do? I feel sure this girl likes me but I would like to make sure. How shall I proceed in finding out? JOE.

The mere fact that the young lady asks you these silly questions should prove to you that she is interested in you. Of course, you don't want to hurt her feelings but she will probably be grateful to you later on in life if you indicate to her, tactfully, that you consider such comments very unbecoming. If in the past you have behaved toward her in such a way as to justify them, then you have only yourself to reprimand. Forget the personal things when you are with her and enjoy the sort of wholesome fun you should be having at your age.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
● YOUR GOOD ADVICE to other people causes me to consult you. I've been a widow six months, my good husband having passed away. Now my sister, who is divorced from her husband, tells me I should no longer sign my name Mrs. John Smith, but should sign Mrs. Mary Smith, as she does. She says that I also have no right to wear my wedding ring. I want to continue with both as I have been, but will wait until I read what you advise as I know it will be right.

Sincerely thanking you for the advice I will be looking for in your column, ANXIOUS.

Your sister is entirely wrong. But when you say "sign my name," do you mean, I wonder, at the end of a letter, on a hotel register or the manner in which others may address a letter to you?

In writing your name at the end of a letter, it would be Mary Smith, NOT Mrs. Mary Smith, unless it were written to one in service or perhaps to a store leaving an order. It is very bad manners to use "Mrs." when writing to acquaintances or friends who are of your own station. If you wish to sign it (Mrs. John) Mary Smith, perhaps this might identify you where there is the possibility of a question in the minds of those to whom you write.

Everything that comes to you should be addressed, as before your husband's death, Mrs. John Smith. Your sister does not use her husband's given name, because of her divorce. If her maiden name was Adams, then she uses Mrs. Adams Smith or Mrs. Mary Adams; the former is given preference. Of course, you wear your wedding ring. You would only remove it when you marry another man.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
● I AM GOING to a dance May 30 and don't know just the proper dress to wear as I don't go to dances often. I have a rose-colored dress with a white collar and a yellow-figured sheer dress. Would one of these be all right, or shall I get another, and, if so, what kind? Also, what kind of shoes shall I wear? H. L.

You do not tell me whether the dance is to be formal or informal, nor do you tell me whether your dresses are floor-length and sleeveless, so I cannot tell how appropriate they would be. If it is an informal affair, you will be comfortable in a street-length frock of some light material, made with at least a suggestion of sleeves. By the end of May, white shoes, either sandals or pumps, will be almost an order. Linen is the coolest fabric shoe.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
● ABOUT three months ago I met a fine young man to whom I took a great liking. He seemed to like me very much, also. During the three months of our friendship we had lots of nice times together. But after a while I became very domineering and anything this boy would do I would argue with him about it. It wasn't because I was tired of him either. I really don't know why I did it. Well, he put up with it for a while but finally said he thought it best that we didn't see each other any longer. He made the excuse that he thought we were getting too serious, but I knew better and I couldn't blame him. Now I realize my theory was all wrong on love. What can I do now? Is it too late? I miss this boy terribly. I've tried to go out and have a good time but it doesn't help. I am 17 years old. JUST ME.

If it was just the company of this young man that made you argumentative then you are obviously not suited for each other, Just Me. If, however, you have a tendency to be domineering with other friends, you should examine your disposition and try to improve it. From the tone of your letter I am afraid you were just showing off for the young man, testing out your wiles, or something equally absurd. In that case, you need a good scolding and no sympathy whatever. You would be foolish to try to revive the friendship.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

ADVICE From BACK-SEAT DRIVERS

Some Sharp Words on Men's Silly Ways of Running Business—and What to Do About It

By Henrietta Ripperger

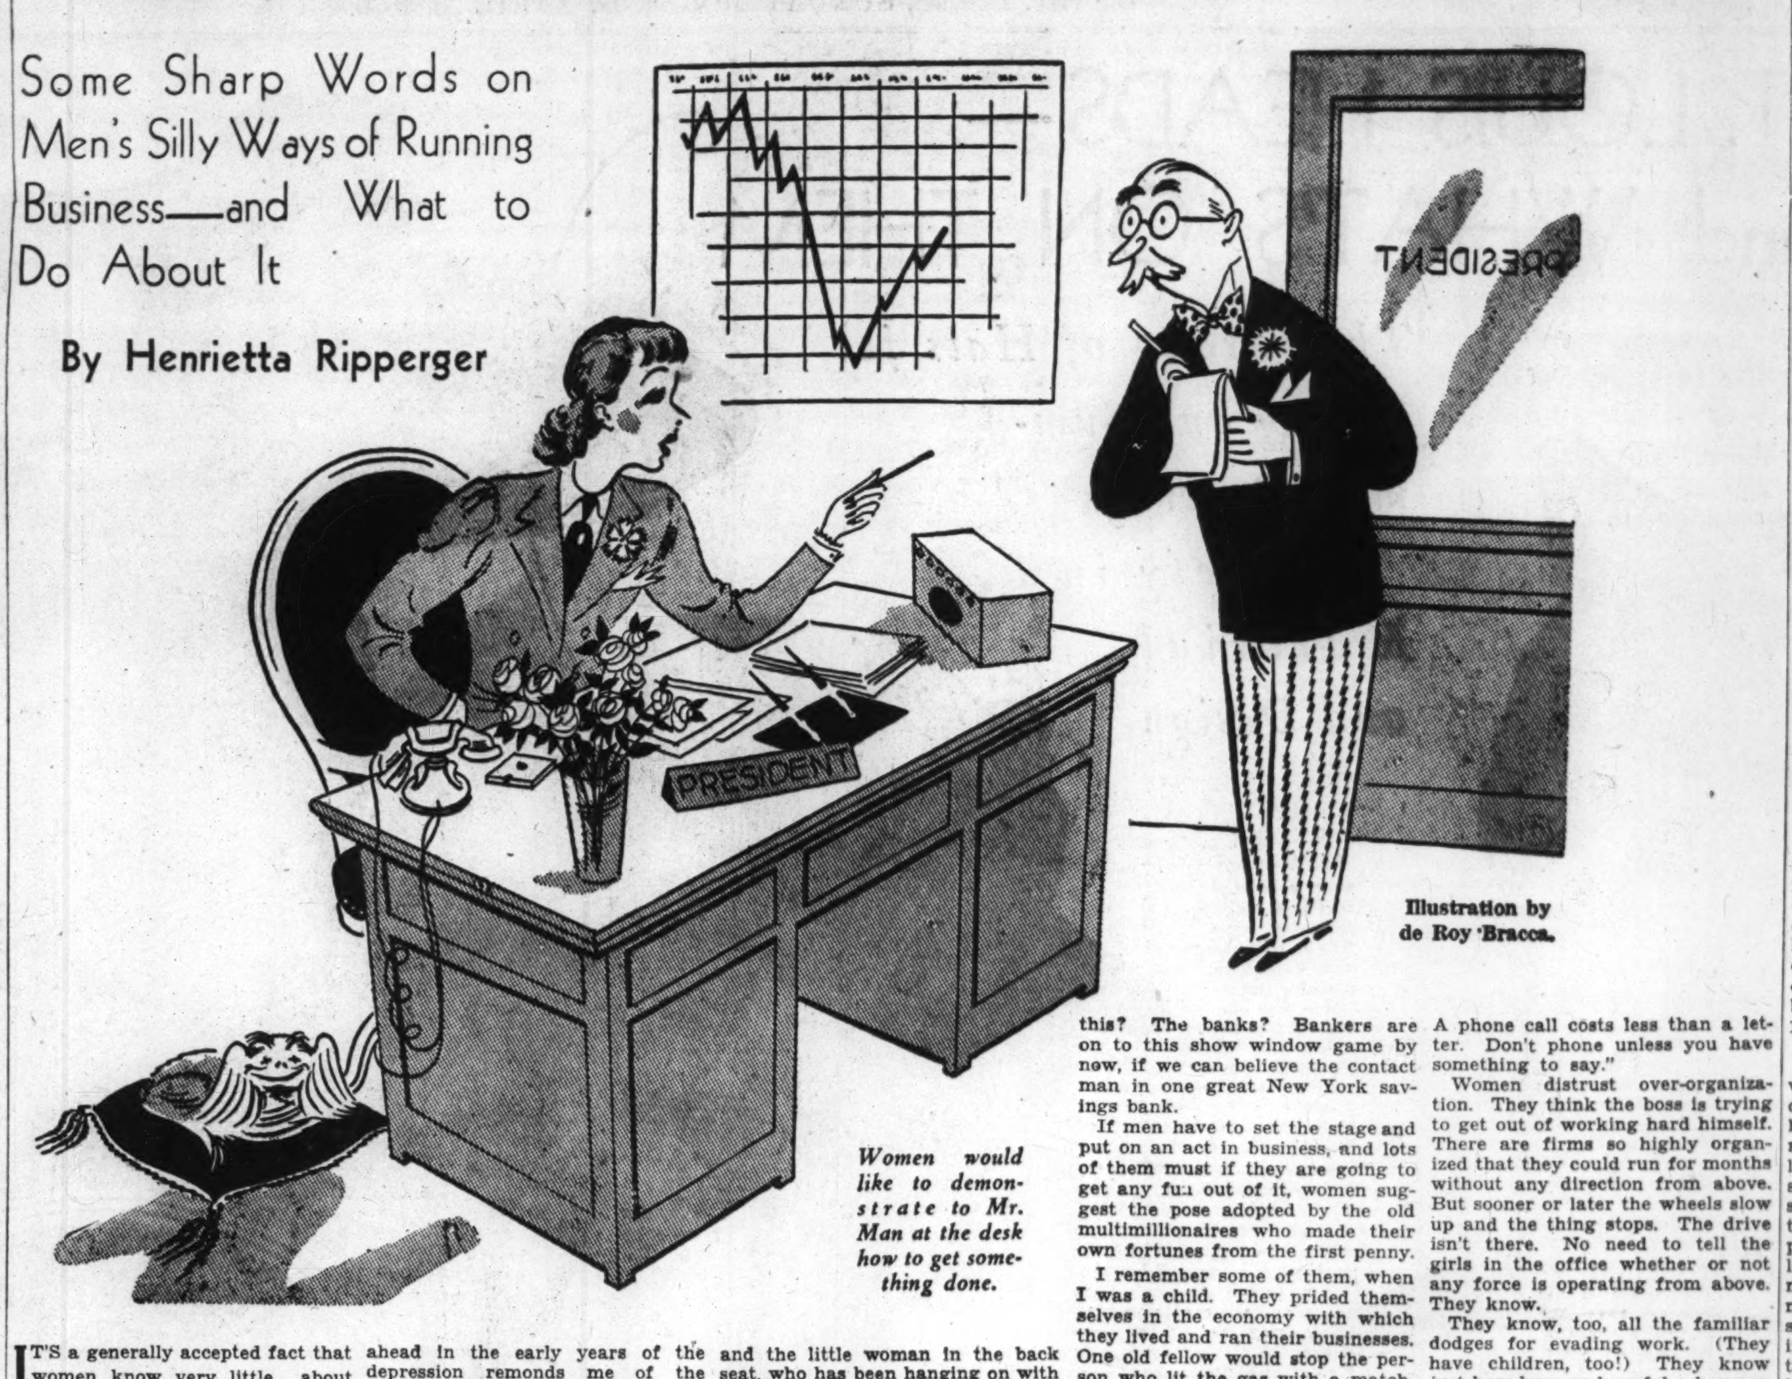

Illustration by de Roy Bracca.

Women would like to demonstrate to Mr. Man at the desk how to get something done.

IT'S a generally accepted fact that women know very little about business. Any man will tell you that a woman in the home, who just does the marketing, and plans the family expenditures for clothing, light, heat and so on, can't be expected to understand financial matters. And of course a woman who works in an office merely writes the boss' letters, relays messages from clients or associates, and listens to talk about the company's plans from nine to five, and naturally she couldn't be expected to know anything about the business world. Anybody could see that.

Except women themselves. I think I speak for the majority of them when I say that this pretty delusion has been accepted long enough, and that if men hope to rebuild their businesses on a better and sounder basis they could very profitably listen to a few things that women who have been watching them could tell them.

The way in which most men went ahead in the early years of the depression remonds me of the method of handling a certain kind of situation in the horse and carriage days. You were driving down a steep incline when some vital part of the harness broke, making it impossible for the horses to hold back the carriage in its downhill roll. The driver had two courses open to him. He could turn immediately off the road, stopping with considerable danger of a spill, or he could lick the horses in the hopes they could run faster than the wagon or carriage could roll.

This was the preferred method if one had daring, or as a farmer I knew used to say: "A smart team can beat the wheel any time."

This was the method used by American business men—most of them—after 1929.

Well, the team couldn't beat the wheels in this case. The last years have seen a terrible effort to keep out from under the hooves. Now we're on somewhat level ground with a chance to catch our breath, and the little woman in the back seat, who has been hanging on with both hands, scared to death, has a few things to say!

She thinks we were going too fast when it happened. It seems to her that men just can't be satisfied with a small but sound concern. They have to expand it and expand it, moving to bigger quarters and taking more space until the business is top-heavy with overhead.

THIS is the history of any number of houses that women know as their customers; a tailor, successful in a small shop on Sixth avenue, feels he ought to be on Fifth avenue, goes there and fails. A dressmaking place which has enjoyed a good trade downtown moves up to Fifty-seventh street and sinks without trace. Women hope their husband and bosses will go slowly, cautiously, for a while at least.

She thinks men put up a silly amount of front in business. Who is supposed to be impressed by this? The banks? Bankers are on to this show window game by now, if we can believe the contact man in one great New York savings bank.

If men have to set the stage and put on an act in business, and lots of them must if they are going to get any fun out of it, women suggest the pose adopted by the old multimillionaires who made their own fortunes from the first penny.

I remember some of them, when I was a child. They prided themselves in the economy with which they lived and ran their businesses. One old fellow would stop the person who lit the gas with a match, to offer him a spill made of twisted paper. The sight of a cigarette always called forth a lecture on waste. This was in the West, where most men were lavish and easy-going. He stood out in sharp contrast to other rich men, and he simply loved to act the part he had chosen.

There are older men whose offices are dingy, furnished in walnut, of a style popular 40 years ago, who take pride in saying to their associates that this is a sign of success. This is a pose that pays.

The little woman also thinks that men have to require much machinery to get anything done. How many letters written in an office are necessary or important? One of the great industrial corporations (committed to a yearly rental that eats up an unbelievable amount of money), trying to cut down expenses in the organization, has told its employes: "Don't write if you can phone, in the same city. A phone call costs less than a letter. Don't phone unless you have something to say."

Women distrust over-organization. They think the boss is trying to get out of working hard himself. There are firms so highly organized that they could run for months without any direction from above. But sooner or later the wheels slow up and the thing stops. The drive isn't there. No need to tell the girls in the office whether or not any force is operating from above. They know.

They know, too, all the familiar dodges for evading work. (They have children, too!) They know just how busy and useful a boy can seem to be when you want him to run on an errand, yet he may actually be doing absolutely nothing. They'd like to see the man at the desk actually getting something done.

AND they are thoroughly convinced that the majority of men are wasteful and extravagant in business, that the very ones who require thrift at home excuse lavish spending downtown on the vague excuse that it helps business.

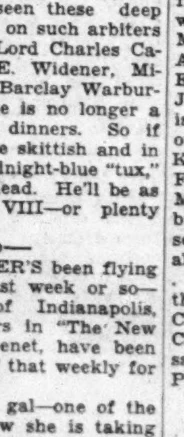
The girl who types the checks for the boss to sign thinks that he had better stop making excuses and giving reasons for extravagance and try living on a smaller scale in business. The way to recovery, she feels, must be the woman's way—the practice of the kind of economy, in business, which most women practice in the home.

But of course, men won't do it. It is beneath them. We women can just get a good grip on the seat again. We are probably in for another hair-raising ride.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK ▪ . ▪ By ALICE HUGHES

NEW YORK, April 25.

THE men seem unusually pretty these days. They are smartening up—getting more colorful without deserving the vulgar raspberry. Several of the town's leading maestros, somehow up by noon, are among the town's best-dressed lads. Emil Coleman, who waves the baton at the Hotel St. Regis, wore a double-breasted sharkskin with an "invisible" check of blue, while Hal Kemp, who leads the band at the Pennsylvania, sported a double-breasted worsted, with colored stripes. Broadway merged nicely with Park Avenue. Even in evening dress there's now a victory for the radicals. Midnight-blue dinner jackets are now worn by the more conservative wing, after years of dispute. I've seen these deep blue dinner things on such arbiters elegantiorium as Lord Charles Cavendish, Joseph E. Widener, Michael Phipps and Barclay Warburton. The white tie is no longer a "must" for mere dinners. So if Father feels a mite skittish and in the mood for a midnight-blue "tux," let him have his head. He'll be as right as Edward VIII—or plenty right enough!



Hal Kemp.

JANET FLANNER'S been flying about town the last week or so—Janet Flanner of Indianapolis, whose Paris letters in "The New Yorker," signed Genet, have been a bright feature of that weekly for years.

Janet is a great gal—one of the smartest. Just now she is taking merited bows for the series of three pieces on "Schone Adolph" Hitler which appeared in recent issues of "The New Yorker." She's no longer girlish-looking, but she still storms up and down Gotham with the same mannish stride that used to wind me in Paris a dozen years ago, when we all used to frequent the same little cafe on the Ile St. Louis, for onion soup and cheese souffle.

JOAN CRAWFORD'S husband, Franchot has a birthday in May, and she has ordered a watch chain for him whose golden links are the letters of his name. The new Mrs. Jack Oakie, charging into New York, seeing the Tone chain in process of manufacture, ordered one for Jack and five other friends. Do you hear a sizzling? That's Joan burning . . . Elaine Barrie, Jawn Barrymore's "Ariel," is now a fashion model with the Mayfair Mannequins' Academy. She opines he'll come East soon—or when "Romeo and Juliet," in which he plays Mercutio, is all done . . . Big tea party the other day—movie magazine writers Katherine Albert and Adele Whitely Fletcher hurled it in honor of Movie Mag Editor Ruth Waterbury. Their idea of fun was to send mad and confusing wires to all their Hollywood pals—Collect . . . Speaking of movie parties, there was a nice one in honor of Claudette Colbert the other day. Claudette's looking very fine, and says that marriage to Dr. Joel Pressman is all it should be.

DID YOU KNOW that Gotham fur buyers are frantically interested in this year's weasel catch? With the English coronation due next year, the demand for weasel, which is the nearest thing to royal ermine there is, will be tremendous. . . Miss Helen Livingston has one of our town's most interesting jobs of the day. She heads the trade and technical division of the Adult Education Project, which teaches girls all manner of useful things. Here are some hints. If you have "dry, healthy hands" you may be a dressmaker. A "firm, gentle touch" is a requisite for beauty culture

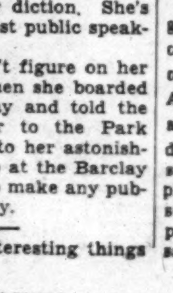
NEW YORK ALWAYS gets a kick out of something like this. There was a fire in a fourth-floor dancing school on Broadway the other day. Smoke darkened the Great White Way, and a gallant fire laddie carried a pupil, Arlene Shugert, down a ladder. She was tastefully attired in bloomers, surprised by the flames in the midst of a tap-dancing lesson. . . Gladys Swarthout, the opera beauty gone movie, has gone back to Hollywood to make her third movie. It is to be based on an old Sardou play. . . . Dorthy Thompson, wife of Sinclair Lewis, and now a columnist on a New York paper, is justly proud of her diction. She's one of our very finest public speakers.



Gladys Swarthout.

But Dorothy didn't figure on her cold in the head when she boarded a taxi the other day and told the driver to take her to the Park Lane Hotel. Much to her astonishment, she wound up at the Barclay—and decided not to make any public speeches that day.

ONE OF THE interesting things about this spring's clothes is the very definite return of the "vamp" to good style society.

Yes, ma'am, the Theda Bara type of thing has been slinking up and down some of our swellest fashion shows. From shoulder to knee she is tightly swathed, especially in the region of the hips. The top of her frock is of sheer net or lace—remember of the old "peek-a-boo"? This type of dress I have seen oftenest in black. At the knee it widens into a drape or to permit the wearer to walk with some ease.

This is an interesting reversion to a type which was a rage 15 years ago. Get vampish, ladies—or else!

—o-o—

OUR MOST POETIC clothes designer is Maybelle Manning. She has one dress this spring which she said she created after looking at a cypress tree. Another frock she calls "Parsifal," inspired by the opera. Stately and Wagnerian . . . Hark to the plight of Jane Grant, writer and traveler. She made many trips to Soviet Russia and resisted all impulses to write a book about it when all the world was doing it. Recently she decided to write one after all—and now no publisher will touch it, as the demand for Russian tomes has practically died away after the plague of them in the last six or seven years!

THE TOWN'S NICEST little rich girl, Peggy LeBoutillier, daughter of a millionaire department store owner, is engaged to be married. A deb of five years ago, a playgirl and sportswoman, and the most democratic girl along the sunny side of Fifth Avenue, Peggy is pledged to "Tony" Williams, a handsome chap. She's worked for Harper's Bazaar for four years—and says she'll keep right on.

Capes for Spring

● Capes are assured of a spring career that carries them through every hour of the day. For morning wear there are cape suits of light weight men's suitings or of heavy homespun linen, the swinging wrap varying from hip length to that which covers the skirt. Two fabrics are used successfully, one for the cape and skirt and another for the short jacket or overblouse that is an essential part of such a costume.

For luncheon and afternoon wear pleated capes accompany sheer suits or dresses when the mood is very festive. A more tailored sheer cape, which is seen extensively, has the shoulders square and padded so that the circular material hangs in a straight line to the hips. Evening modes give the cape unusual recognition, the diaphanous one, which is full length, being the most popular at present. Quilted taffeta and velveteen are used for heavier models to wear over summer evening dresses.

In the boudoir, capes continue their fashionable leadership, many of them being full length and taking the place of fitted negligees. The hostess gown or lounging robe, which has its own contrasting cape, is another evidence of the importance of this garment.

Novel Hosiery

After being accustomed to seeing carrots displayed on the lapels of spring suits and on millinery, the follower of the whims of fashion now discovers that the carrot theme has other possibilities. The exact shade of the vegetable which is being so generally exploited in accessories appears at the heels of some rather startling hosiery. The stockings were designed to match the tone of footwear as well as bags and gadgets. Less striking but of great favor in the eyes of those who like to be different are the navy hosiery with pastel blue heels, and the neutral tinted stockings which have black heels.

FOUND—for all you women who feel the need of a workout, can't get to the country for exercise, and are sick of pounding concrete—the way through Forest Park. On foot. Thanks to the Walk-Ways Association which is not really an agency for the promotion of marathons or an orthopedic institution.

Out for an airing one evening this week, we started in at the shingle at Clayton and Skinker. An hour later we emerged at Kingshighway and West Pine, two and one-half miles away, the sign said. A trail also begins opposite Barnes Hospital, but no matter how you take it, you are bound to end up across the city from where you parked your car. Red and blue triangles with a yellow bell in the center, nailed to the trees at eye level, mark the trail. You'd better put on your ground-grippers and culotte for the hike because the going is sometimes pretty rough. The path steers clear of the zoo grounds and crosses the main roads not more than 10 times, so you can safely take your dog along.

The Walk-Ways Association, we find, is under the department of neighborhood service and recreation of the St. Louis Community Council. You pay 50 cents a year to belong, for which you receive the literature and the privilege of using county trails, open only to members. There are at present about 100 paying members.

THAT ISN'T a wig Kathryn Cravens is wearing in "The Cherry Orchard" at the Little Theater. It's her own, God-given hair, and almost its natural color. She usually wears it with a plait over waves so set that they look as if they still had the stickum in them. They tried putting her in a coal-black pompadour, but it made her look like a geisha girl. All that was missing was a couple of chrysanthemums and a few miniature parasols in the coiffure. A good brushing and additional hairpins turned the trick with her own golden locks.

ON BROADWAY

with Walter Winchell

THEATRICAL folk being really more superstitious than sophisticated, and possessed of fertile imagination, create pet fancies as unique as they are inexplicable . . . One famous comic, for good luck, always wears his suspenders reversed . . . Lee Tracy totes around a papier mache fire hydrant—his lucky talisman! . . . There is the tradition that a Barrymore must have an apple on opening night. (To keep the show-doctor away?) . . . Jimmy Durante was truly mortified, for once, when an admirer presented him recently with a toy, jeweled elephant—but with its trunk to the ground. Every intelligent person knows that such an elephant is bound to jinx the wearer . . . The clay statue of a Negro youth in A. H. Woods' office is a potent factor in the selection of Woods' plays. The producer holds up a likely play before the statue—and should the figure seem to smile and nod—that settles it! . . . A new show is considered doomed should one enthuse about it before a premiere. Actors prefer their friends to predict the show will flop—to enhance the play's chance for success! . . . Chorines dip their fingers into spilled champagne and dry them on the back of either ear—for "good luck."

● ADAMS COUNTY, Illinois, has a population of 62,000, and by actual count, over 10,000 different superstitions, a few typical ones here appended: Before you return for something you've forgotten—take nine steps backward and expectorate over your left shoulder. Or else, when you've returned you should count seven backward and whirl around like a dervish. (Even Winston Churchill, English statesman, never returns for a forgotten article.) . . . You can give people a headache by turning their pictures upside down . . . If butter falls under the chair—the family auto will be stolen! . . . Dreaming of fried onions indicates a friend is very ill! . . . And that if you bury your husband's old pair of socks—he'll never leave home!

About a million educated people residing in 5 Pennsylvania counties believe that you can prevent children ever getting the mumps—by rubbing them against a pig trough . . . ● WHISTLING IS frowned upon aboard U. S. and English naval vessels. Not as a breach of decorum—but because whistling will bring on a storm! . . . In Kentucky it is believed that if you wrap 100 canceled stamps in white paper, tie the parcel with red twine and throw it out of the window—you'll soon receive money! . . . In Louisiana it is said that one who eats the point of a pie last and makes a wish —will have it granted; that if your right foot itches—it's a sign you are going where you are welcome. If it is your left foot—stay home! . . . And that a white thread on a person indicates a surprise.

One race superstition that persists is to back the first horse you see on a race track . . . Canadians believe that if a girl finds a hairpin and puts it in her shoe—the first man she shakes hand with will be her future husband . . . New Englanders vouch that if a scratch on your hand points to your thumb—you are going to ride. Long scratch long ride; short—short ride! . . . A recent nationwide and scientifically conducted investigation confirms the suspicion that every one of us is superstitious—and the better for it. Superstition nurtures our hopes, tempers our fears; and life would be dull were it cold common sense.

"If we don't win now," said Andy, "we never will!" . . .Notre Dame won. (But how an animal unlucky to lose its life can prove lucky to its possessors has yet to be determined) . . . During the same season, at Carnegie, students at the citadel of culture exchanged the coach's sombrero for a derby—to pull the team out of its slump! Previous Coach Wally Stephens had credited his wins to a derby . . . Another Harvard instructor never sings before breakfast —lest he cry before night. Another never brags. If he did—his luck would change. And yet another—a psychologist, no less—always sees the new moon, but only over his right shoulder . . . (He doesn't have to, you understand. But it would prey on his mind if he didn't!)

On this day Kentucky rustics wear odd shoes—to fend off ill luck . . . Friday 13 forebodes no evil to certain dauntless groups—the "13" clubs who welcome the day with renewed activity. They argue that by flouting tradition they are not superstitious. Yet their very notion—that luck comes by opposites—is in itself a superstition!

A well-known restaurant in Rome employs a hunch-back as head waiter. It is contended he brings good luck to the establishment—an antidote against the "Evil Eye" . . . An Ozark mountaineer who sees a spider in the middle of the road—is thus informed that a letter awaits him at the postoffice! . . . These mountain dwellers of Missouri and Arkansas avoid nightmares —by going to bed backwards . . . They know that if you don your nightgown inside out—there will be a fire in town! . . . CLOSE-UP of ST. LOUIS FASHIONS

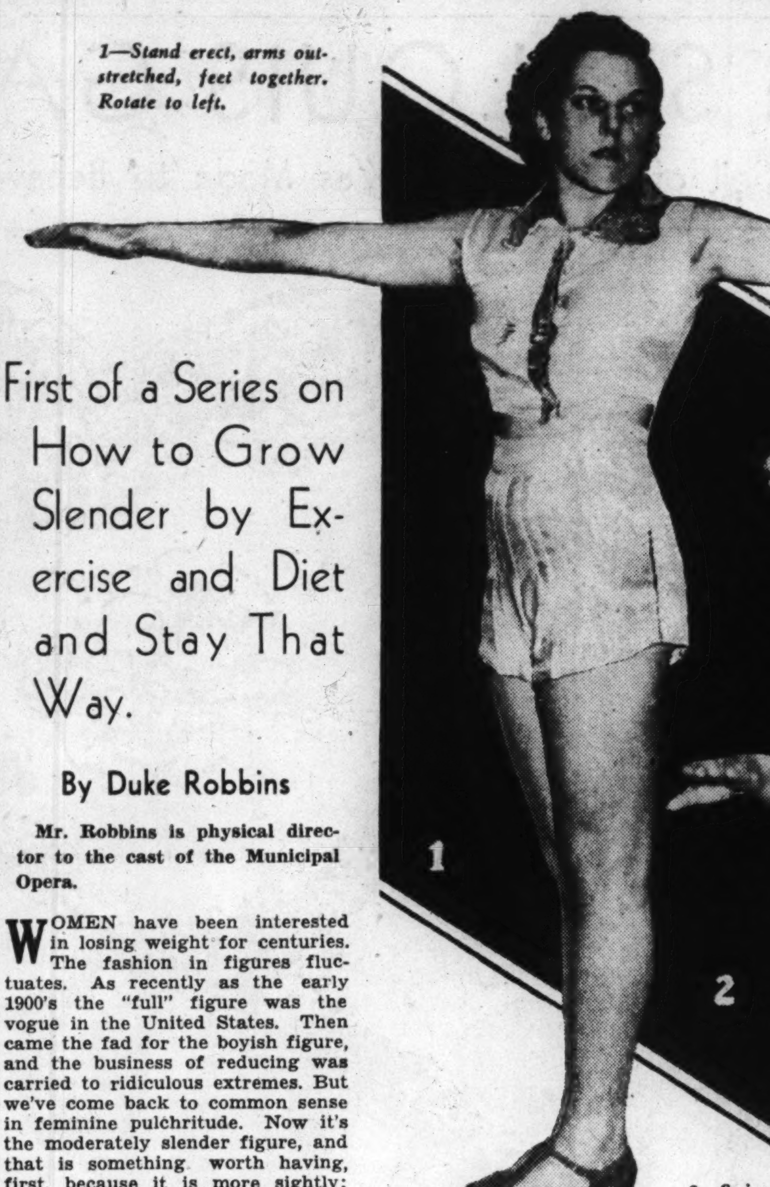
REDUCING by the COMMON SENSE ROUTE

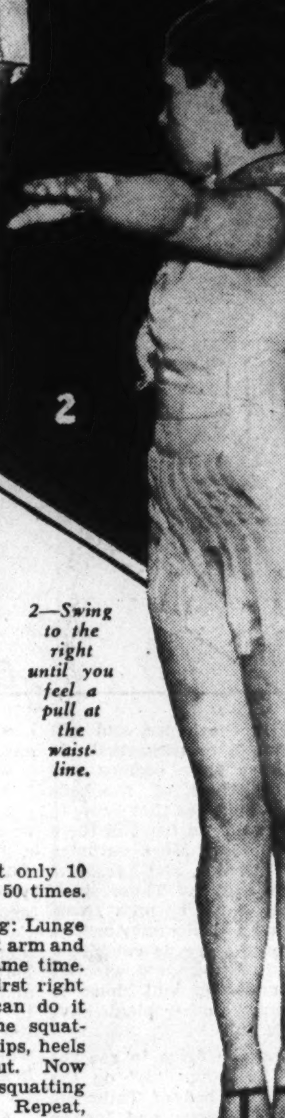
First of a Series on How to Grow Slender by Exercise and Diet and Stay That Way.

By Duke Robbins

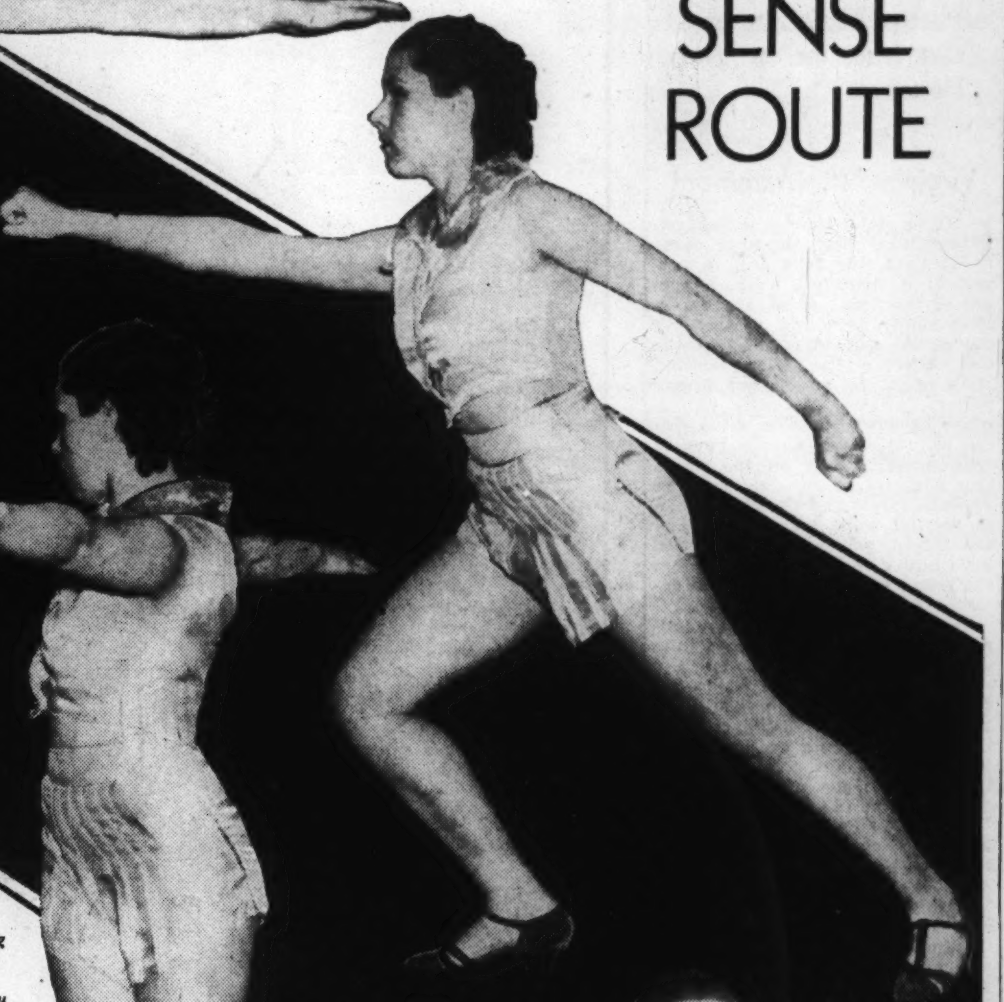
Mr. Robbins is physical director to the cast of the Municipal Opera.



1—Stand erect, arms outstretched, feet together. Rotate to left.



2—Swing to the right until you feel a pull at the waistline.



3—Lunge forward, thrusting right arm and knee forward at the same time.

WOMEN have been interested in losing weight for centuries. The fashion in figures fluctuates. As recently as the early 1900's the "full" figure was the vogue in the United States. Then came the fad for the boyish figure, and the business of reducing was carried to ridiculous extremes. But we've come back to common sense in feminine pulchritude. Now it's the moderately slender figure, and that is something worth having, first, because it is more sightly; second, because the woman who isn't forced to carry supefulous weight, is frequently more alert, happier, healthier.

Three things are important in reducing. You must diet, you must exercise. Massage also is helpful, but although I'm a masseur by profession, I'm forced to admit the first two are the more important.

Reducing may be divided into three phases. First, taking off the first superfluous fat; second, removing that stubborn second layer, and, third, keeping the normal weight after you've once attained it.

My experience with Municipal Opera stars has been that they nearly all followed some simple method of exercise. Odette Myrtil, however, didn't like to exercise. She liked a severe type of massage, such as we use in conditioning an athlete. This consists of deep kneading and a very rapid rolling of the muscles while in a relaxed condition. Leonard Ceeley, who always keeps himself physically fit, after an exhaustive day's work, requires a massage for relaxation to induce sleep. Allan Jones likes a fast, severe massage, allowing a limited time previous to make-up, for stimulation, so that when he goes on the stage he is at his best.

But let's get back to ourselves. Today we will discuss the first or preliminary stage of losing weight. For this I will give you a few simple exercises. If you follow them conscientiously for a month you should see a marked reduction in your weight.

To develop the wind and strengthen stomach muscles I suggest the aeroplane or rotating exercise. Stand erect, arms outstretched sideways, holding arms level with the shoulders, feet together; rotate the body as far to the left as possible holding the arms straight, without moving feet; then swing to the right as far as possible until you feel a pulling at the waistline. Repeat vigorously, at first only 10 times, ultimately reaching 50 times.

FOR general conditioning: Lunge forward, thrusting right arm and knee forward at the same time. Do this five to 10 times, first right and then left until you can do it 25 times. Next we do the squatting exercise. Hands on hips, heels together, toes pointing out. Now bend knees and come to squatting position, knees together. Repeat, coming to squatting position with knees apart. Start out doing this 10 times and work up to 25. This is followed by the bending exercise. Feet together, back straight, bend forward touching fingertips to the floor, later the palms of the hand. This must be done without bending the knees. Do these exercises each morning after arising for a month.

With these exercises I recommend the following diet:

BREAKFAST—Orange juice, black coffee.

LUNCH—(Liquids)—glass of orange or tomato juice, black coffee.

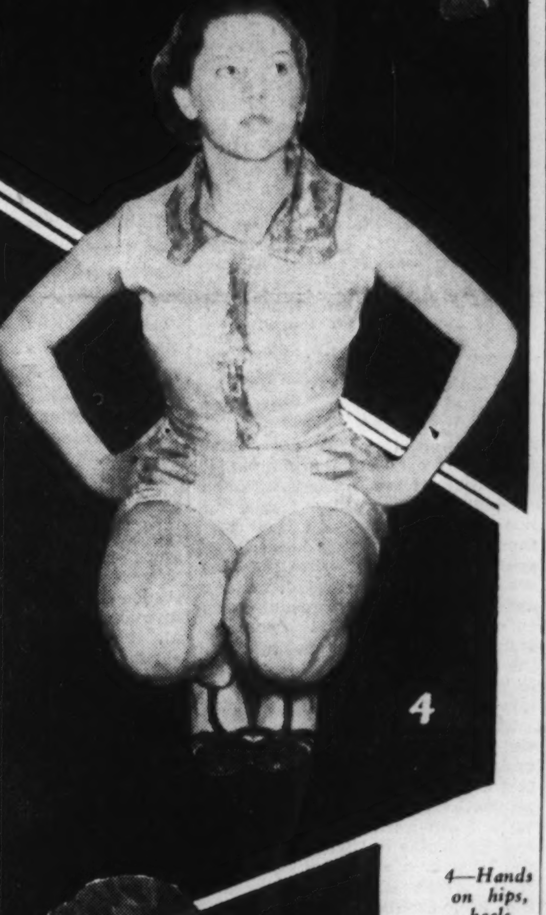
AFTERNOON—Glass orange juice.

DINNER—Two stalks celery, slice roast beef, (1¼ inch thick) or 2 broiled lamb chops or 2 slices leg of lamb. One helping vegetable (non-starch), green salad (little oil and lemon juice dressing), unsweetened baked apple, gelatin or fresh fruit non starch), black coffee or tea.

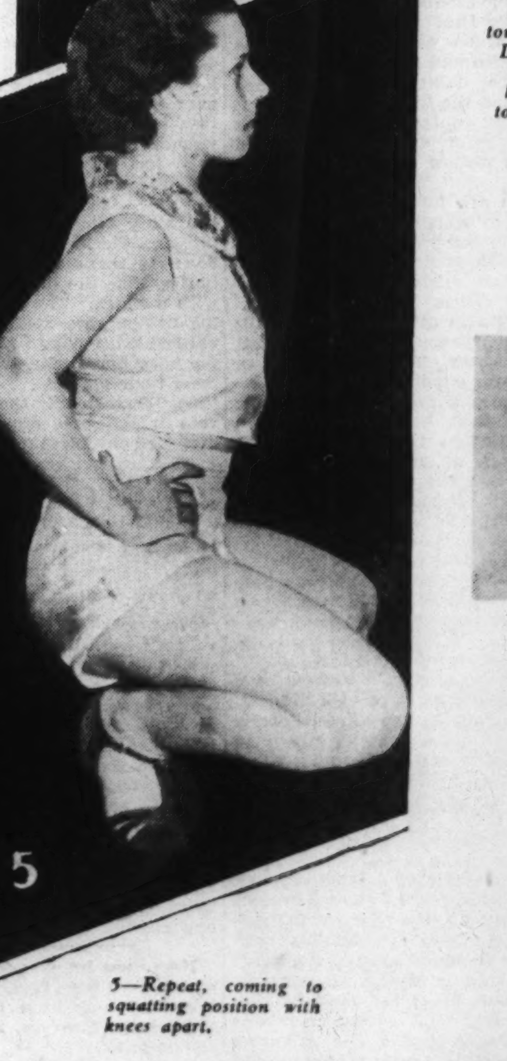
No bread, butter, starches or gravies should be used on this diet.

If a person in normal health will conscientiously follow these exercises for a month and adhere strictly to the diet it is possible to lose as much as 15 pounds. Now mind you, I said possible. But you've got to embrace the old will power and stick to it.

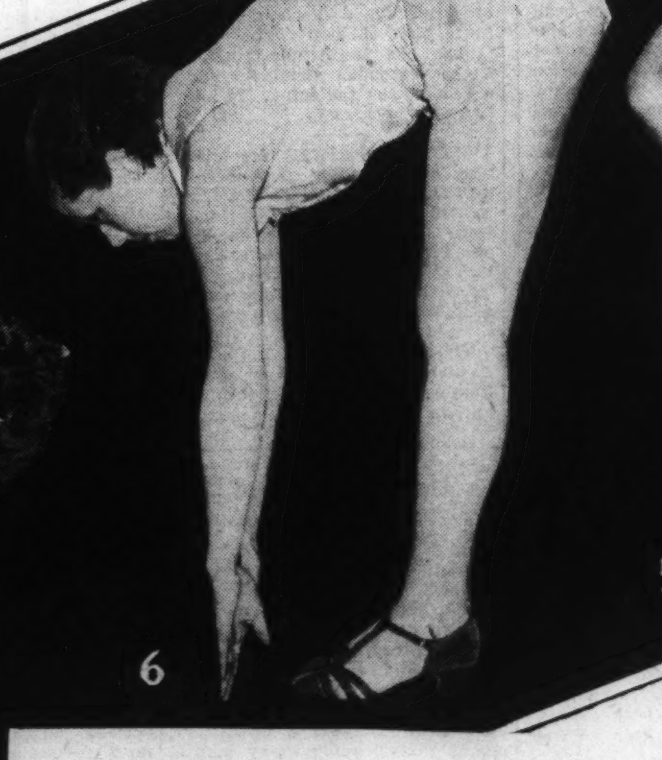
Next week we'll take up the second phase of reduction—getting rid of that secondary layer of stubborn fat.



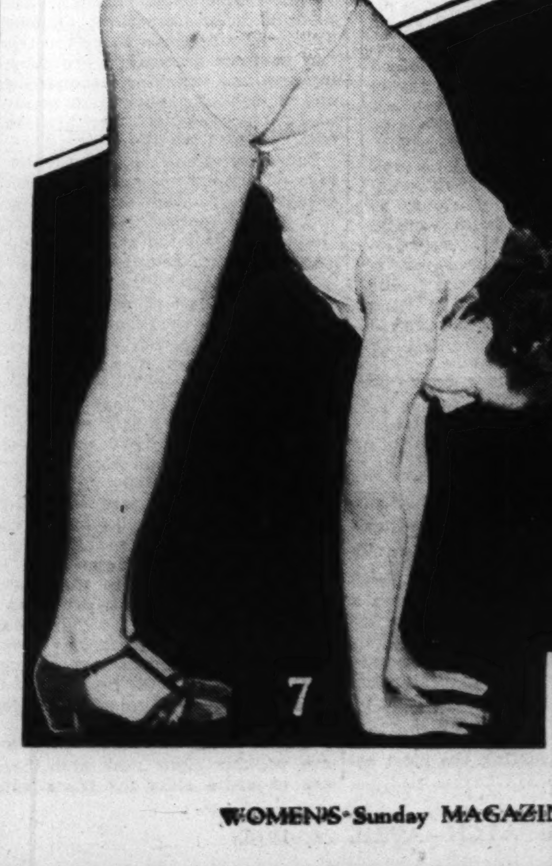
4—Hands on hips, heels touching. Down, with knees together.



5—Repeat, coming to squatting position with knees apart.



6—Feet together, look straight. Bend forward, touching fingertips to floor.



7—Bend forward, touching palms of hands to floor.

FACING the FACTS

by Helen Jameson

OLD POP TIME has his little jokes, but when he puts lines in ladies' faces he is not a funny fellow. Wrinkles are a common trouble, the cause of heartaches. No woman can bear to see her petals fall. She knows birthdays are bound to come, but why can't the skin stay smooth? Ah, there you are! She isn't always working against the ravages of the old man with the scythe. Many times she is his first assistant. Hasn't found out how to defeat him, actually helps to demolish facial tissues that should stay firm through the years.

There are plenty of reasons why facial fibers play out, the cutaneous cast falls into tiny pleatings. Late hours and lack of sleep will bring crow's feet even if one is not yet 30. Emotional storms are a common cause. A keen eye can read the human phiz like a book. It can show petulance, soullessness, discontent, envy or general cussedness as if words were written there.

The best insurance against wrinkles is health of the mind, body and spirit, A good digestion is a factor, so is lively circulation upon which the cells of the tissues live. Therefore the need of wis eating, plenty of fresh air and exercise.

Poise, cheerfulness and good humor are protective influences.

—o-o—

THE FREE USE of oily cosmetics is going to defer the wrinkle period. It has done that already to a certain extent, since many aged women still retain smooth skins. They got an early start in complexion preservation.

The epidermis is not only beset with the troubles that come to it through ill health of the body, but it is ravished by wind, strong sunlight and atmospheric dust. Oil used generously combat these enemies. The friction that is necessary for their application tend to exercise the small fibers close to the skin, send the blood skipping through heavier muscles beneath the adipose padding. Of course, one must apply emolients properly, never push the flesh into folds or drag it down. A light tapping is stimulating. A brisk slapping with flattened fingers is helpful.

—o-o—

LINES BETWEEN the eyes and across the forehead can be made less disfiguring if they are smoothed crosswise, as one would iron out a crease in a fabric. Crinkles about the eyes call for the lightest possible touch, a sweep of a single finger over the eyelid, a comeback underneath the eye.

Cold water is advisable. A white of egg pack acts as an astringent. Beat the egg-white slightly, so it can be easily handled, spread on a clean skin surface. Let it remain on until there is a starched and drawn feeling. Remove with clean tepid water, dip gauze in ice cold witch hazel, lay it over the face.

Care of Scalp

OIL shampoos are generally suggested for correcting dry scalp and straw-like hair and conditioning it for a permanent wave. Another method of making up the deficiency of natural oil that really causes the dry condition is to apply equal parts of castor oil and liquid vaseline. The oils should be as hot as the scalp will permit and should saturate the length of the hair. After these oils have been left on for one hour, the hair should be shampooed and rinsed as usual.

Astringent of herb shampoos are usually suggested for counteracting excessive oiliness and for conditioning the hair for a permanent. For this condition, an herb tonic may be massaged over the scalp; then, one hour later, a thorough shampoo should be given.

When the hair is oily and the scalp dry, or—reversing the condition—when the scalp is oily and the hair dry, it is rather difficult to suggest the correct conditioning treatment without first making a study of the hair and scalp to determine which condition predominates. The individual may be able to diagnose this condition properly, but it really is adviseable to have a competent operator suggest the best corrective and conditioning method for returning hair and scalp to normal condition.

If you want to assure the success of your spring or summer permanent wave, begin now to correct extreme dryness or excessive oiliness of the hair and scalp. Conditioning treatments will work wonders and give your hair natural softness and luster. Your permanent will be twice as lovely if you have it when your hair is in perfect condition.

Varnish the soles of boots and shoes. This will keep out the damp and make them last longer.

Add a little corn flour to your salt and it will not harden or become moist.

The House You Live In

LET ME SUGGEST

by

Josephine Walter

THERE is probably a slight touch of the exotic in most of us; some give expression to it in their clothes, some in their jewels and some in their houses. Certainly, a touch of Chinese decoration is a charming as well as safe way of ridding yourself of such bizarre yearnings and St. Louis stores, as usual, offer a wealth of Oriental objects from which to choose.

One of the simplest and most attractive ways of introducing this foreign note is through pictures and there is an infinite selection ranging from the real old Chinese paintings on silk or glass to the very modernly executed paintings of Oriental subjects on mirror or silver paper backgrounds. Many of the pictures, both old and new, are framed in bamboo. Incidentally, bamboo itself is coming in for a large share of decorative honors, being used for curtain poles, screens, lamp shades and bases, as well as for entire pieces of furniture. And finally there are countless figurines, vases, jars and other decorative objects which may be used in almost any type of interior with telling effect.

Although plain white walls are much too effective as backgrounds to be given up, decorators are trying to get away from the dead white, whitewashed effect which such walls have presented in the past. One method of doing this which is well worth the extra trouble and expense is to put a ground coat of some brilliant color, preferably vermilion, emerald green or deep sapphire blue on first, and then apply the white over it. Faint touches here and there of the underground color show through and give depth and interest to the white tone.

● THERE IS a certain appeal about quilted fabrics hard to describe which is probably a throwback to our needle-conscious forebears. Quilted chintzes are particularly effective in Early American or Provincial rooms, while silk and satins are ideal for Victorain pieces, or even the more formal Georgian or Classic types. The main drawback, of course, is that these quilted fabrics are quite expensive and hence only within the reach of a few. However, for you women who are tired of knitting or crocheting, quilting offers a new and pleasant way of keeping idle hands busy. Next time you decide to cover a chair, have your upholsterer cut your material the exact size that is to be used for the back, seat and arms and then baste thin cotton batting and a piece of musilin on the back and outline the pattern in the fabric with a quilting stitch.

● QUESTION: We have just finished building a house and do not want to paper or paint our walls at the present time, as we would like to allow some time for settling, but do not like to leave the plain plaster walls. We thought of adding color to the final coat of plaster and wondered if you could tell us the most satisfactory way of doing this. MRS. B. G. N.

—o-o—

Answer: There are coloring materials, usually in paste form, which may be added to the plaster but this is always risky business as it is very difficult to get the color mixed in smoothly enough so that it does not go on unevenly. A more satisfactory way, I believe, is to buy one of the colored plasters on the market which already have the color mixed in as these will eliminate the uneven color due to faulty mixing.

—o-o—

● QUESTION: We have had a very unsatisfactory job of whitewashing done on our exterior brick walls and before we go to the expense of painting them again we would like to know just how the whitewash should be made. Could you give us this information? MR. W. L. C.

Answer: In addition to the lime and water, the United States Government suggests salt, ground rice, powdered Spanish whiting and glue. You may obtain the exact formula by writing the Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

—o-o—

● QUESTION: In building a house in the country we feel that you should be able to come in from the outside with muddy shoes without ruining floors and rugs. Therefore we intend using very small scatter rugs and would like some kind of a decorative floor that would be easy to scrub up, preferably not wood. What materials would you suggest our using? MRS. R. P. W.

It is surprising that many people have not yet recognized the decorative qualities of the various composition tiles now on the market. Some are made of asphalt and some of rubber and they come in a wide variety of colors and sizes so that you may have them laid to your individual design and color scheme.

Touches That Brighten Up Guest Table

Attractive Meals Are Important Items for the Young Hostess.

By Virginia W. Maremont

FOR a table-for-two breakfast, assuming that there is some sunlight, the following is suggested: A breakfast nook, a corner of the living room, any accessible sunny spot and particularly the actual sun of out-of-doors, is the perfect setting. The selected cloth might be a splashed flower pattern, printed carelessly on a white background. The china coffee set, in heavy simple lines is lime green, taking on the lights and shadows of the surrounding verdure. Dark red cherries glisten in natural wood fruit bowls, and the bright yellow of the precise little butter squares is repeated in the yellow stemmed daisies that encircle the aluminum butter dish.

The icy gray sheen of the aluminum tumblers is duplicated in the coiled handles of the fruit bowls.

The success of the first breakfasts lies with the young hostess. If she has supplied satisfaction to the eye, appetizing fragrances to the nose, and apt conversation to the ear . . . she is indeed a true "diplomat" at the breakfast table.

A table-for-four . . . perhaps it is the first guest dinner. If the in-laws are being entertained at this debut, consequent trepidations may be easily dispelled by a novel table setting.

Simplicity of food and decoration will assuredly capture the colors. Arrange a centerpiece on the tiles brought back from Mexico, of red apples, blue and green grapes, oranges, little yellow bananas, and sprinkle a few deep purple plums around the tiles. It will perform miracles. Conversation as to the "how and where" the tiles were purchased will permit Dad to attack the fruit without fear of reprimand from the Old Lady. For a background use sturdy hand-woven linens. They will complement the rust brown peasant pottery. Water-blue hand-blown glasses lend an authentic touch to the primary colors of the tiles and fruits.

—o-o—

WHAT to serve? A Mexican meal would be difficult to prepare; tortillas, chile need a special attendant. Soup, thick wholesome bean soup, accompanied by individual bread twists. Tender broiled chicken, yellow corn in little brown bowls with their own tops to keep it piping hot. Green peas and starch white potatoes, orange and avocado salad, and for dessert, various and unusual cheeses on a brilliant hand decorated gourd tray, that is the pride of the Mexicana brought back. Stick to the colors and the "fortress" is taken.

The first formal dinner party for six! A bride's claim to happiness is undeniable, but her claim to a perfect table is questionable, until she proves herself worthy of applause. With fresh gardenias in her hair, and gardenias on her correct table she reveals a subtle sense of balance. Freshness is the keynote of the table-for-six. A cool, poised freshness that radiates from the starry white centerpiece to the thin, green and gold encrusted goblets, the dainty flower-patterned china and the high gleam of silver. For color contrast she uses a soft yellow satin damask cloth that lends a mellow richness to her table.

There are fashions in menus as well as in table decors. With unerring taste the young hostess, aware of modern progressive times, turns to French cuisine with its wine-steeped dishes.

Thoughtful attention to details are the prerequisites for most achievements. The enchantment of a carefully appointed table, with especial regard for the tastes of the guests, gives her the satisfaction of a gracious table. No amateur clumsiness of menu or arrangement mars the effect of the first important dinner.

The bride in a dilemma concerning that promised dinner for his eight best friends will welcome this suggestion. The usual "what-men-like" steak or chicken dinner seems overdone by less enterprising hostesses. A "drink" dinner will undoubtedly surprise them. Naturally, it must be a stag. Women have an annoying habit of expecting attention, and a man cannot divide his interests equally between a good dinner and a charming woman, and do either justice.

—o-o—

THE following "menu" is served on a green baize cloth, or the reverse side of a table silencer. Arrange the correct glasses in close proximity to the chosen ingredients. Bourbon, rye, Scotch, each with its engraved name plate, hanging locket-like around the ample containers, make the basis for old-fashioneds, mint juleps, highballs or whatever is palatable. A variey of cheeses is arranged temptingly on a wooden platter.

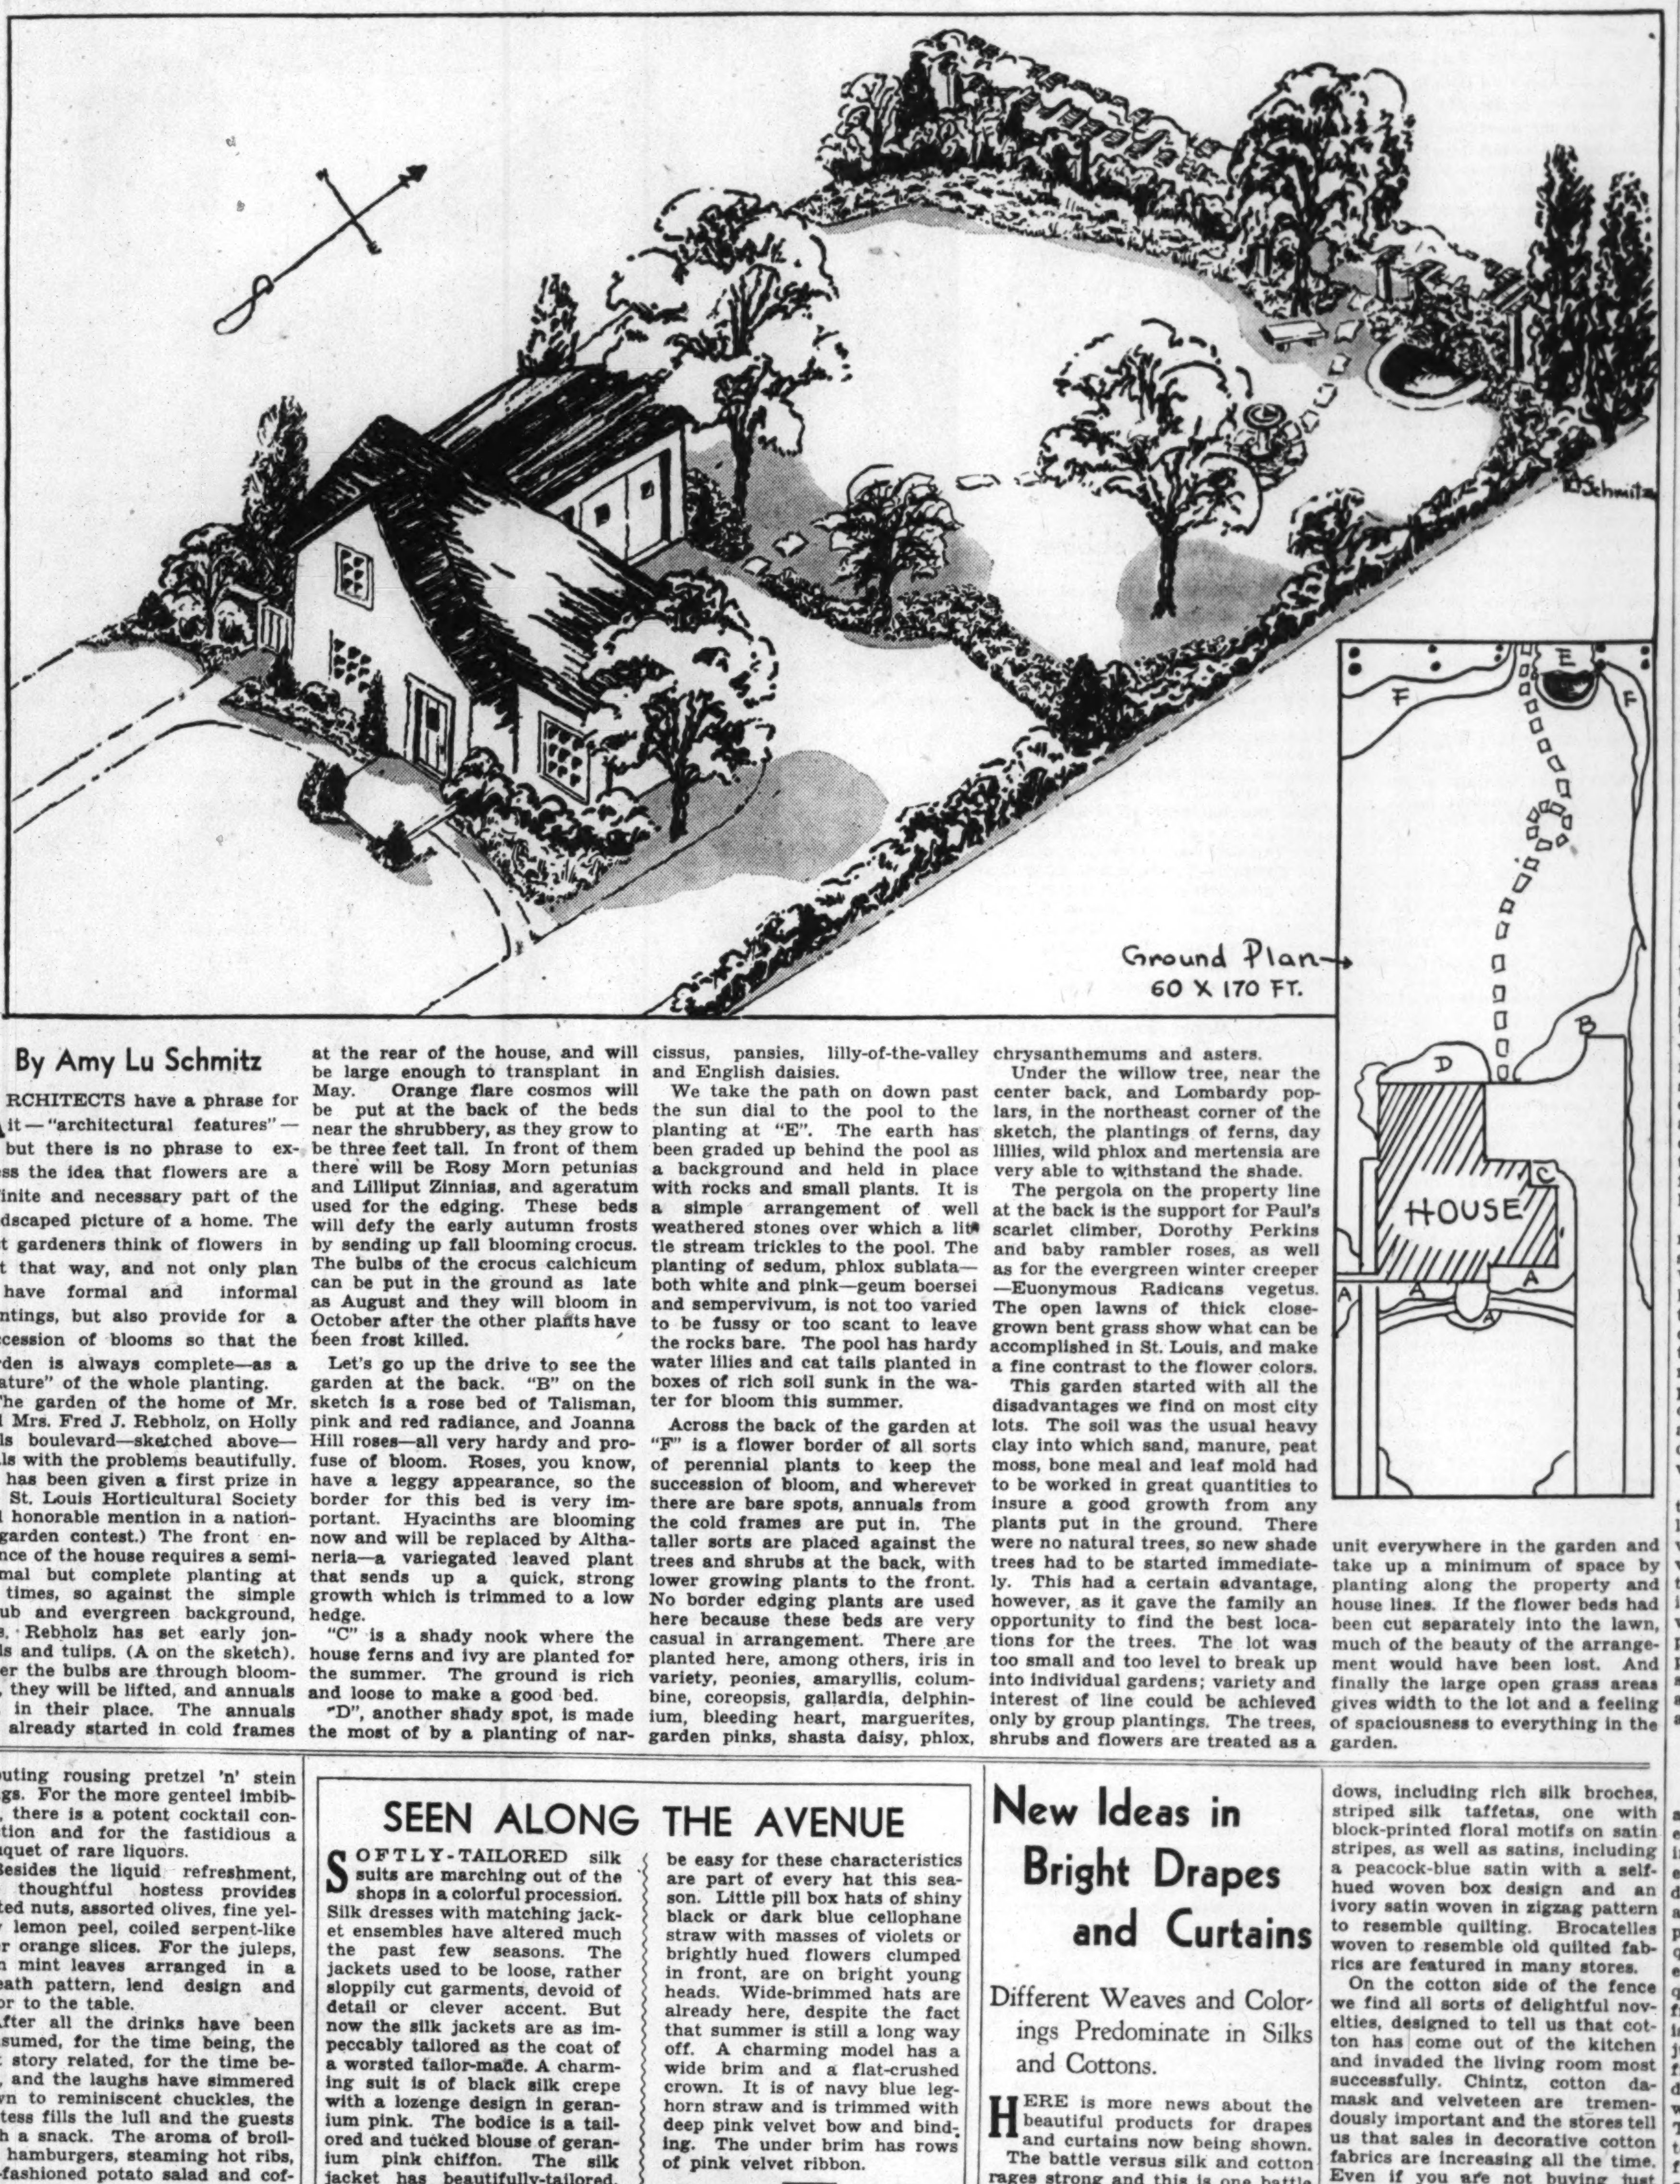
Stout glass steins are companions to the beer bottles, the eternal foaming drink of the good fellows shouting rousing pretzel 'n' stein songs. For the more genteel imbibers, there is a potent cocktail concoction and for the fastidious a bouquet of rare liquors.

Besides the liquid refreshment, the thoughtful hostess provides salted nuts, assorted olives, fine yellow lemon peel, coiled serpent-like over orange slices. For the juleps, thin mint leaves arranged in a wreath pattern, lend design and color to the table.

After all the drinks have been consumed, for the time being, the last story related, for the time being, and the laughs have simmered down to reminiscent chuckles, the hostess fills the lull and the guests with a snack. The aroma of broiling hamburgers, steaming hot ribs, old-fashioned potato salad and coffee with doughnuts, will lure them from their glasses . . for a short time. Undoubtedly the groom will vote it the best dinner party he ever had the pleasure of attending.

BUILDING a ST. LOUIS GARDEN

And How the Soil of a City Lot Was Made to Behave



By Amy Lu Schmitz

ARCHITECTS have a phrase for it—"architectural features"—but there is no phrase to express the idea that flowers are a definite and necessary part of the landscaped picture of a home. The best gardeners think of flowers in just that way, and not only plan to have formal and informal plantings, but also provide for a succession of blooms so that the garden is always complete—as a "feature" of the whole planting.

The garden of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Rebholz, on Holly Hills boulevard—sketched above—deals with the problems beautifully. (It has been given a first prize in the St. Louis Horticultural Society and honorable mention in a national garden contest.) The front entrance of the house requires a semi-formal but complete planting at all times, so against the simple shrub and evergreen background, Mrs. Rebholz has set early jonquils and tulips. (A on the sketch). After the bulbs are through blooming, they will be lifted, and annuals put in their place. The annuals are already started in cold frames at the rear of the house, and will be large enough to transplant in May. Orange flare cosmos will be put at the back of the beds near the shrubbery, as they grow to be three feet tall. In front of them there will be Rosy Morn petunias and Lilliput Zinnias, and ageratum used for the edging. These beds will defy the early autumn frosts by sending up fall blooming crocus. The bulbs of the crocus calchicum can be put in the ground as late as August and they will bloom in October after the other plants have been frost killed.

Let's go up the drive to see the garden at the back. "B" on the sketch is a rose bed of Talisman, pink and red radiance, and Joanna Hill roses—all very hardy and profuse of bloom. Roses, you know, have a leggy appearance, so the border for this bed is very important. Hyacinths are blooming now and will be replaced by Althaneria—a variegated leaved plant that sends up a quick, strong growth which is trimmed to a low hedge.

"C" is a shady nook where the house ferns and ivy are planted for the summer. The ground is rich and loose to make a good bed.

"D", another shady spot, is made the most of by a planting of narcissus, pansies, lilly-of-the-valley and English daisies.

We take the path on down past the sun dial to the pool to the planting at "E". The earth has been graded up behind the pool as a background and held in place with rocks and small plants. It is a simple arrangement of well weathered stones over which a little stream trickles to the pool. The planting of sedum, phlox sublata—both white and pink—geum boersei and sempervivum, is not too varied to be fussy or too scant to leave the rocks bare. The pool has hardy water lilies and cat tails planted in boxes of rich soil sunk in the water for bloom this summer.

Across the back of the garden at "F" is a flower border of all sorts of perennial plants to keep the succession of bloom, and wherever there are bare spots, annuals from the cold frames are put in. The taller sorts are placed against the trees and shrubs at the back, with lower growing plants to the front. No border edging plants are used here because these beds are very casual in arrangement. There are planted here, among others, iris in variety, peonies, amaryllis, columbine, coreopsis, gallardia, delphinium, bleeding heart, marguerites, garden pinks, shasta daisy, phlox, chrysanthemums and asters.

Under the willow tree, near the center back, and Lombardy poplars, in the northeast corner of the sketch, the plantings of ferns, day lillies, wild phlox and mertensia are very able to withstand the shade.

The pergola on the property line at the back is the support for Paul's scarlet climber, Dorothy Perkins and baby rambler roses, as well as for the evergreen winter creeper—Euonymous Radicans vegetus. The open lawns of thick close-grown bent grass show what can be accomplished in St. Louis, and make a fine contrast to the flower colors.

This garden started with all the disadvantages we find on most city lots. The soil was the usual heavy clay into which sand, manure, peat moss, bone meal and leaf mold had to be worked in great quantities to insure a good growth from any plants put in the ground. There were no natural trees, so new shade trees had to be started immediately. This had a certain advantage, however, as it gave the family an opportunity to find the best locations for the trees. The lot was too small and too level to break up into individual gardens; variety and interest of line could be achieved only by group plantings. The trees, shrubs and flowers are treated as a unit everywhere in the garden and take up a minimum of space by planting along the property and house lines. If the flower beds had been cut separately into the lawn, much of the beauty of the arrangement would have been lost. And finally the large open grass areas gives width to the lot and a feeling of spaciousness to everything in the garden.

Stored Blankets

Winter blankets, now ready to be packed away, may need cleaning. If these blankets and other washable woolens are laundered at home, you can mothproof them yourself by using a packaged compound in the last rinsing water. They need not be wrapped for storage except to protect them from dust. Good laundries will launder your blankets and send them home soft and fluffy. Blankets may also be dry cleaned. Some laundries and dry cleaners have facilities for mothproofing blankets and other woolens. If blankets are not mothproofed, take the same precautions against moth damage in storing them as you do for your draperies and rugs.

Never use brushes for varnishing which have been used for painting; brushes which have been used in varnishing, however, may be used for painting.

Before using new wooden clothes pins, boil them for about 10 minutes in plain water; this toughens the wood and prevents splitting.

SEEN ALONG THE AVENUE

SOFTLY-TAILORED silk suits are marching out of the shops in a colorful procession. Silk dresses with matching jacket ensembles have altered much the past few seasons. The jackets used to be loose, rather sloppily cut garments, devoid of detail or clever accent. But now the silk jackets are as impeccably tailored as the coat of a worsted tailor-made. A charming suit is of black silk crepe with a lozenge design in geranium pink. The bodice is a tailored and tucked blouse of geranium pink chiffon. The silk jacket has beautifully-tailored, slightly-extended shoulders and a link button fastening. It has two flap pockets.

FLOWER PRINTS for evening are definitely part of the mode and not the whim of a few women. Prints in everything from slipper satin to net appear at all smart evening spots. Water color prints and strongly-marked vivid designs, all are acceptable and accepted.

THERE'S NO fixed millinery fashion this year, except that the hat chosen must be youthful, blithe and becoming. This should be easy for these characteristics are part of every hat this season. Little pill box hats of shiny black or dark blue cellophane straw with masses of violets or brightly hued flowers clumped in front, are on bright young heads. Wide-brimmed hats are already here, despite the fact that summer is still a long way off. A charming model has a wide brim and a flat-crushed crown. It is of navy blue leghorn straw and is trimmed with deep pink velvet bow and binding. The under brim has rows of pink velvet ribbon.

BEAUTIFUL CLOTHES selected at random from a group of avenue shops includes a lovely wrap of red velvet trimmed with two foxes in tuxedo revers formation, with the two heads meeting under the wearer's chin. Then there is an exquisitely soft, hand-made sweater in pale pink woolen with cable stitch trimming in front and buttons in back. This would look beautiful for town or country. For daytime wear we discovered a smartly-cut dress of dark blue crepe marocain with a long, tight tunic that flares outward from the knee down.

Upholstery Care

Unless upholstered furniture is moth-proofed, it is open to attack by moths, and constant care on your part is needed to prevent damage. So before you put on your gay slip covers this spring, brush the upholstery, or clean thoroughly with a hand vacuum cleaner or with the proper attachment of your regular vacuum cleaner. Unless you have mothproofed the upholstery, repeat this cleaning every month, whether slip covers are used or not. When you remove the slip covers to clean the upholstery, turn them inside out and brush them thoroughly on both sides.

On the Bridle Path

Bridle paths are beginning to resemble circus rings or those of the rodeo, now that gay riding togs are in vogue. The horseback enthusiast who wants to be very swanky has a bright-colored shirt of satin or sateen, over which she wears a contrasting vestee. The two are combined with white or very light-colored jodhpurs to complete the most festive raiment. Red, blue, yellow or green are the preferred shades for the dashing shirts, while the tone of the vest is selected with the idea of attracting the most attention.

New Ideas in Bright Drapes and Curtains

Different Weaves and Colorings Predominate in Silks and Cottons.

HERE is more news about the beautiful products for drapes and curtains now being shown.

The battle versus silk and cotton rages strong and this is one battle whereby everybody benefits. Silk manufacturers, somewhat alarmed by the inroads made by cotton fabrics in home decoration, are showing new and exquisite merchandise and a visit to a showroom is virtually an education in art and beauty as wel las ingenuity.

New weaves and marvelous colorings predominate and the old standbys have been dressed up as well. As in the world of the mode, changeable taffetas are high-lighted. These are selling for opulent interiors, for rooms that want to be gracious as well as elegant. Taffeta that is a deep turquoise blue, then a lovely salmon pink is mentioned as a big seller, so is the sea-blue to sea-green variety. Then there are silks that are wrinkled and crinkled like musty old parchment pages, contrasted with sleek velvets offered in various colors, the pastels being featured.

Rich, crimson brocades, satins and damasks are again in the ascendant, borrowing perhaps from the Renaissance influence that is said to predominate in the mode. Raisin, plum, eggplant, prune and mulberry comprise a marvelous range of brownish-purples that have delighted decorators. Amethyst, wine, burgundy and amaranth are other hues stressed for lovely interiors.

Rooms with casement windows are popular right now and there are exquisite silks for these windows, including rich silk broches, striped silk taffetas, one with block-printed floral motifs on satin stripes, as well as satins, including a peacock-blue satin with a self-hued woven box design and an ivory satin woven in zigzag pattern to resemble quilting. Brocatelles woven to resemble old quilted fabrics are featured in many stores.

On the cotton side of the fence we find all sorts of delightful novelties, designed to tell us that cotton has come out of the kitchen and invaded the living room most successfully. Chintz, cotton damask and velveteen are tremendously important and the stores tell us that sales in decorative cotton fabrics are increasing all the time. Even if you are not buying just now, it will be worth your while to take a peek and see what is being done in this most interesting field.

Household Hint

The age of an egg can be determined with reasonable accuracy from the manner in which the yolk stands up from the white when the egg is broken out of the shell. The older the egg, the flatter is the yolk until a stage is reached at which the yolk membrane is so weak that the egg cannot be shelled without breaking the yolk.

Well-ordered Home Flatters The Household

Makes Good Background for Mother, Children and Even Father.

By Eleanor Ross

IT IS all very nice to read about the newest wrinkle in table setting, in electrical equipment or party foods, but when you buy know that it is something that fits in with the rest of your house and that it is something that will outlast its initial welcome.

If your china is nice, your linen snowy or crisp, if it is colored, your silverware clean and shining, then that is the main thing. And there has never been a more beautiful centerpiece or decoration yet devised than a bowl of flowers or an epregne with flowers and fruit.

Of course, we hope that all this does not mean that we shouldn't try to improve and beautify our surroundings just the same. New and more beautiful furniture and appointments, new table equipment, more elaborate entertaining when we can do it without any strain on the purse or facilities, these are milestones along the happy domestic road that we all count with joy and pride.

Carping critics may talk about the home meaning less and less to successive generations, but we, for one, believe this view to be erroneous. More and more we find that as the home becomes more beautiful, more efficient and smoother running, it means more to us and will continue to do so.

Women realize that there is no background that does more for them, that flatters their personality, that expresses their make-up more gracefully, even more flatteringly, than that of their home. To man, a well-ordered, comfortable home is not only a haven of rest but an inspiration, an incentive. To children, even if they do seem off-hand about it, the home is still the grandest place in the world, especially if they know that they can bring friends home who will receive a hearty welcome.

But to achieve all this, the home must run smoothly, no matter how simple it is, or how elaborate. Whether in bungalow or manor house, the essential machinery is the same, and there are certain fundamentals that should be adhered to. The first is a plan for the running of the house, with, as far as possible, every task performed according to schedule. Thus, mistress and maid will know just what each day calls for and can plan ahead with a degree of certainty.

If guests are invited, try to see that the schedule is interrupted as little as possible. And here may we digress to say again that the wise woman never entertains pretentiously unless she can well afford it and has the proper facilities. A warm, welcome, congenial company, food that is simple but well prepared and simply but nicely served, these are the essentials of a successful entertaining for average folk.

Evening Models

White beaded models for evening aren't general, those that are beaded usually are extremely interesting. Mainbocher does an exquisite ensemble of navy chiffon, a dinner dress, high necked and long sleeved, and a long swagger coat with big patch pockets. The jacket has bouquets of sequined flowers embroidered on it and there is a big bouquet of the flowers embroidered in front of the dinner dress. The skirt is gathered from a circular yoke just below the waist. Another frock has a cascade of ruffle-edged draperies that are embroidered with tiny field flowers in beads. This drapery sweeps from the waist to form a train and is of tulle. The frock is of black chiffon. There is a tulle fan.

When using an oil stove, add a teaspoon of vinegar to the oil; it will make it last longer and burn brighter.

If guests are invited, try to see that the schedule is interrupted as little as possible. And here may we digress to say again that the wise woman never entertains pretentiously unless she can well afford it and has the proper facilities. A warm, welcome, congenial company, food that is simple but well prepared and simply but nicely served, these are the essentials of a successful entertaining for average folk.

Evening Models

White beaded models for evening aren't general, those that are beaded usually are extremely interesting. Mainbocher does an exquisite ensemble of navy chiffon, a dinner dress, high necked and long sleeved, and a long swagger coat with big patch pockets. The jacket has bouquets of sequined flowers embroidered on it and there is a big bouquet of the flowers embroidered in front of the dinner dress. The skirt is gathered from a circular yoke just below the waist. Another frock has a cascade of ruffle-edged draperies that are embroidered with tiny field flowers in beads. This drapery sweeps from the waist to form a train and is of tulle. The frock is of black chiffon. There is a tulle fan.

When using an oil stove, add a teaspoon of vinegar to the oil; it will make it last longer and burn brighter.

MEATS for SPRING

by Jane Joyce

MEAT dishes may be altered as much with the changing seasons as any of the accessories which accompany them. Of the fresh meats, arrayed in spick-and-span glass cases in butcher shops, young veal and lamb are distinctly spring perennials. They supply the various cuts for some of the most savory dishes which appear often in spring menus.

Let us suppose that 10 women decide to serve veal for dinner tomorrow evening. We venture to say that nine of them will order veal cutlet, not from habit necessarily, but because it is a proven favorite in the majority of households and is comparatively easy to prepare. So, the present problem is to prepare it in an excitingly different way, worthy of the new season. One delicious answer is presented in Veal Cutlet in Crimson Sauce.

Two and one-fourth pounds veal cutlet.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
One-half cup all-purpose flour.
One-fourth cup butter.
One cup canned tomatoes.
One-half cup fresh pineapple, diced.
One-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
One tablespoon parsley, chopped.

Cut veal into six portions. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and dredge with flour. Melt butter in skillet. Add veal and saute on both sides until brown. Add tomatoes, pineapple and Worcestershire sauce. Cover and cook slowly about 30 minutes, or until tender. Serve at once garnished with chopped parsley. This recipe makes six portions.

● ANOTHER DAY you may think a roast of lamb is a practical choice, to provide cold meat for dinner on the morrow, when your bridge club meets, and when you will get home too late to serve a hot meat. Here is an opportunity to do something surprisingly unusual. We assume, of course, that it is a leg of lamb, knowing it to be the most popular piece for a sizable roast. While it sizzles and roasts in the oven, baste it frequently with fresh-mint-and-apricot glaze. This gives it an elusive mint flavor and at the same time, gives the roast a glossy dress similar to holiday Virginia ham. Treated in this way, the roast is a mouth-watering sight when served on a large platter surrounded by golden brown potatoes. You'll want to try this recipe:

Glazed Lamb Roast.

One seven-pound leg of lamb.
Two teaspoons salt.
One tablespoon all-purpose flour.
Mint-apricot glaze.

Rub leg of lamb with combined salt and flour. Roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about two hours, basting frequently with mint-apricot glaze. This recipe makes 12 portions.

Mint-Apricot Glaze.

One cup granulated sugar.
Two cups water.
One-half bunch mint.
Two-thirds cup apricots, cooked.
Two tablespoons butter.

Combine sugar, water and mint leaves. Bring to boil and cook five to eight minutes. Strain. To syrup add apricots which have been put through a fine sieve and cook until mixture is thoroughly blended. Add butter. This recipe makes two cups glaze.

● TO MANY the most epicurean dish of lamb is some version of that specialty of India curry of lamb in a halo of fluffy white rice. Our version preserves an unmistakable curry flavor, but somewhat subdues it as compared with its original counterpart. We went lightly on the curry powder, not because it is spring and appetites require less stimulation, but because many persons prefer a mild curry dish to a "very hot" or spicy one. A bit of bright color and lusciousness is added by the clusters of preserved kumquats which serve as both decoration and relish. We believe you will like the perfect contrast in flavor that they give.

Curry of Lamb.

Two pounds lean lamb, cut in one-inch squares.
Two teaspoons salt.
Two teaspoons curry powder.
Six tablespoons butter.
Three medium-sized onions, chopped.
One-fourth cup all-purpose flour.
Four cups hot water and two bouillon cubes or two cups water and two cups tomato juice.
One-fourth cup most shredded coconut.
Juice of one lemon.
Four cups rice, cooked.

Season lamb with salt and curry powder. Melt butter, add meat and onions and cook slowly until all moisture has evaporated. Add flour, mix well and cook five minutes longer. Stir in stock and simmer, covered, until well cooked, about 30 minutes. Add coconut and lemon juice. Serve with rice. This recipe makes six portions.

The Bean Pot

If you want to increase the zest of canned baked beans, put them in a casserole or saucepan, then stir in gently a mixture of one or two teaspoonfuls of mustard, one teaspoonful of sugar, a pinch of salt and a quarter-cupful of water. Heat and serve.

VARIETY Is SPICE of COOKING

Here Are Some Expert Suggestions for Culinary Surprises

By Irma S. Rombauer

THIS is not a question of whether a man ever grows up (for the answer to that is no—ask any wife or sister), it is a question of how we can please our menfolk. Mother cult flourishes. It is now a full-fledged, sturdy commercial growth. Father cult languishes, it needs soil, moisture (a few tears perhaps?) and an airing. This is being written to help it along.

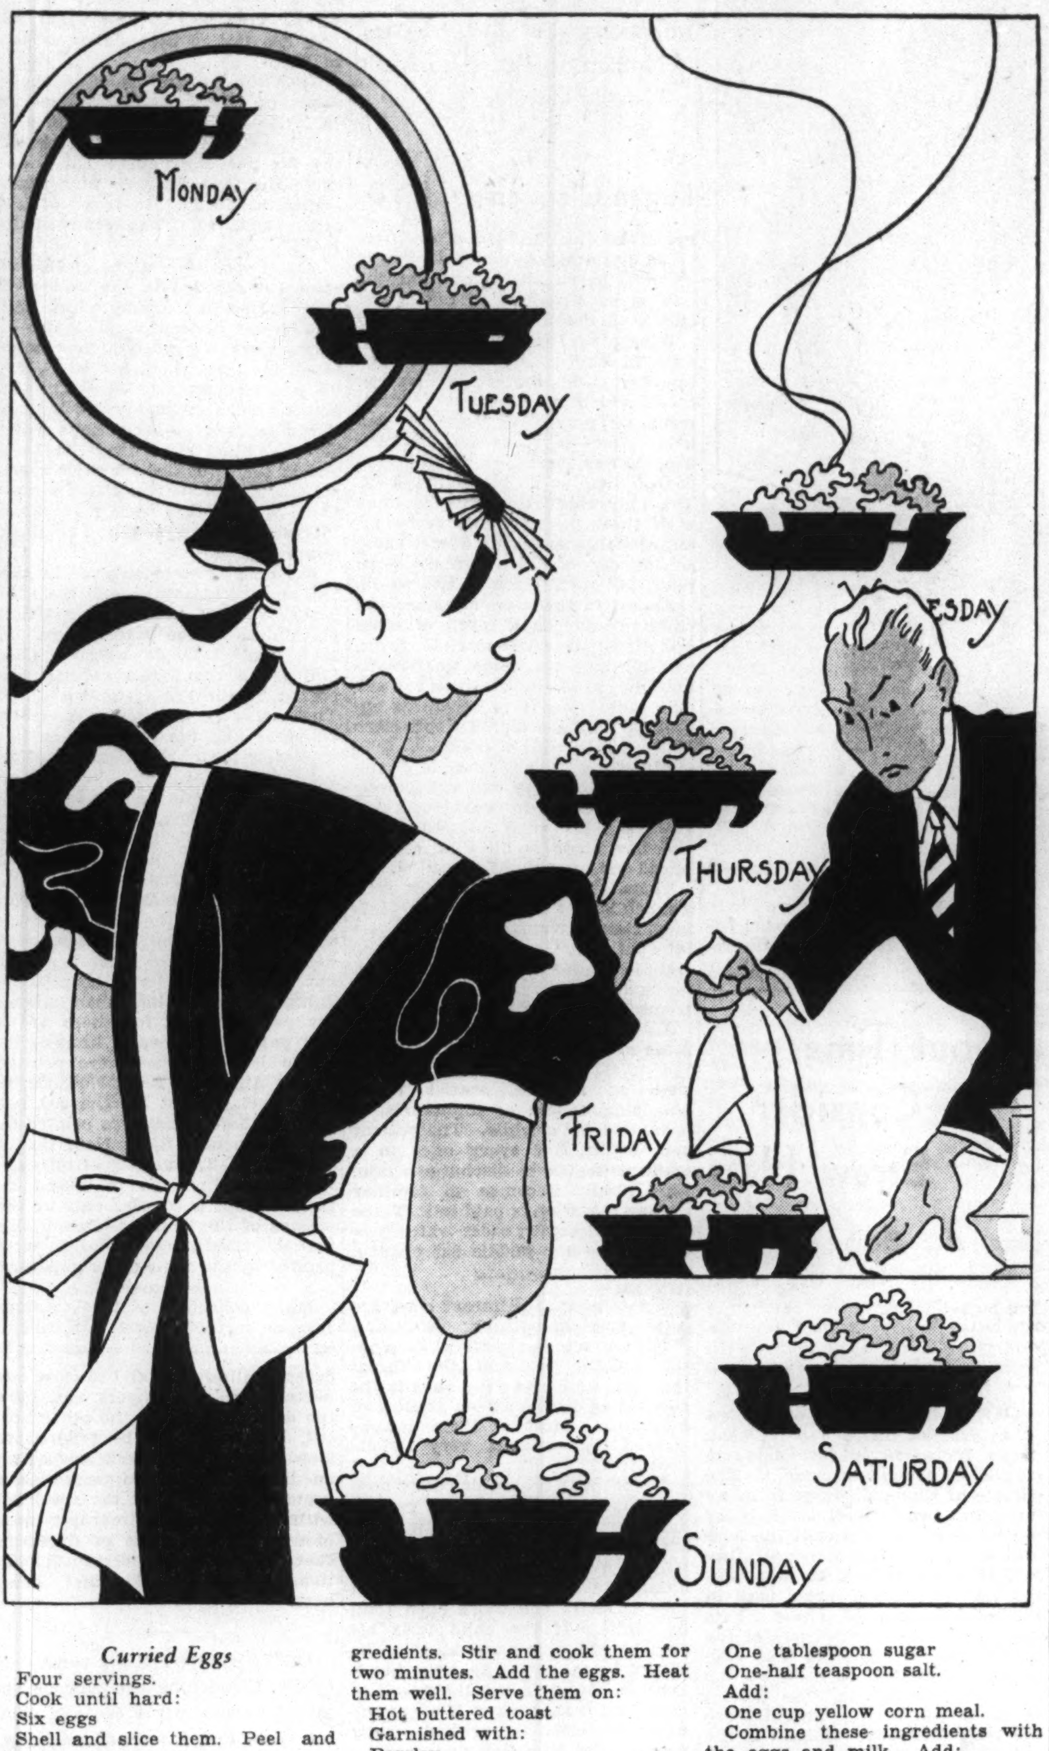
Recently an unmarried man said to me: "My cook is fine—she seasons well, is capable and economical, but her breakfasts are deadly monotonous. She never gives me a surprise." In other words, his paragon of culinary virtue lacks imagination. Lucky cook to be without this nerve-racking quality. We who possess it work overtime. We are everlastingly jumping at conclusions—changing things about—experimenting.

There is the matter of string beans. Suppose—and it is a pretty safe supposition—they are served on an average of 50 times a year. Is there any reason why they should be "just" strong beans 50 times in succession? Beans may be slithered, boiled and creamed—broken, boiled and buttered—cooked with bacon—cooked with an onion—dressed with a little hot oil—served with chopped chives—thickened with stock and flour—served with cheese sauce — moistened with cream and boiled au gratin—served in bunches with egg sauce—baked, without being previously cooked, in a casserole with onions and peppers —or with tomato sauce and horseradish—made into salad with or without bacon, and so on ad infinitum.

—o-o—

MEANWHILE, the cook without imagination is serving, 50 times hand-running (whatever that means) plain string beans. Perhaps, but the case is extreme, she has varied them with yellow string beans thrust upon her by a huckster less hampered by tradition. Each time the beans have been well-cooked, well-seasoned, attractively brought to the table—but after the fortieth, or even the thirtieth, serving the family is apt to become restive. The response, therefore, is not a joyous, unspoken, "Oh, good; string beans!" but an emphatically voiced, "No, thank you." However, this is not a dissertation on the reactions in the human breast (or should it be pancreas?) to string beans. It is a plea for varied breakfasts for the wage earner.

Downtown lunches call for money or physical effort—sometimes stress of affairs preclude any luncheon whatever. This makes a tempting breakfast doubly important. Of course, you all have your favorite combinations, suited to your tastes or your pocketbooks. Here are three suggestions that may be new to you. At least I am giving them hoping they may serve as "surprises."



Apples and Meat

Wash six large tart apples. Cut a slice from the tops. Scoop out the cores and pulp, leaving shells ¾-inch thick. Cut the pulp from the cores. Chop the pulp. Combine it with:

One cup well seasoned sausage meat.

Sprinkle the shells with:

One teaspoon salt.

Two tablespoons brown sugar (optional).

Fill them heaping full with the sausage mixture. Bake them in a moderate oven, 380 degrees, until they are tender. This makes six servings.

Cornbread is good with this dish. If you wish to use it as a luncheon main dish, serve the apples around a mound of boiled rice, noodles or mashed potatoes garnished with buttered crumbs and sprigs of parsley.

Curried Eggs

Four servings.

Cook until hard:

Six eggs

Shell and slice them. Peel and dice:

One small onion.

One apple.

Pound:

One-quarter cup blanched almonds (optional).

Saute these ingredients for five minutes in:

Two tablespoons butter.

Add and simmer for eight minutes:

One and three-quarters cup milk, chicken stock or a combination of both.

Add, if needed:

Salt.

Paprika.

Dissolve:

One and one-half teaspoons cornstarch.

One and one-half teaspoons curry powder.

in:

One-fourth cup milk or chicken stock.

Add this mixture to the other ingredients. Stir and cook them for two minutes. Add the eggs. Heat them well. Serve them on:

Hot buttered toast

Garnished with:

Parsley.

This, too, makes an excellent luncheon dish. Serve it with a green salad and an eggless dessert. (i. e. fresh fruit, fruit gelatine, wine jelly, baked peaches with brandy sauce, etc.).

Here comes the prime surprise:

Bacon Corn Meal Waffles

Six waffles.

This dish is a "find" for the efficiency housekeeper It is a complete course and requires no scouring of pots or pans. (An electric waffle iron may be used. If there is an excess of grease, wipe off the iron with absorbent paper.) Beat slightly:

Two eggs.

Add:

One and three fourth cups milk.

Sift:

One cup cake flour or seven-eighths cup bread flour

Four teaspoons baking powder

One tablespoon sugar

One-half teaspoon salt.

Add:

One cup yellow corn meal.

Combine these ingredients with the eggs and milk. Add:

Five tablespoons melted bacon fat or other shortening.

Cut into halves or quarters:

Six to 12 slices of bacon

Heat a waffle iron. Place a piece of bacon on each section and pour the batter over them. Cook the waffles until they are crisp. The bacon disappears completely. One is not aware of its being in the waffle until one strikes it with a fork.

The surprise of the week, as far as I am concerned, was the following announcement:

Madame Schumann-Heink, Joan Crawford, the movie actress, Rudolph Gans, former conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and Florence Gill, an animal imitator, will be featured by Bing Crosby at 9 o'clock Thursday night.

Thank you, Mr. Crosby. You have given me courage. I shall continue to surprise my friends, confident that that is what the public wants.

A Menu With Filet Mignon En Casserole

Hot Biscuits and French Fried Onions Help Build Up This Dinner.

By Gladys T. Lang

Coronado Canape
Filet Mignon en Casserole
Beets in Vinegar Sauce
French Fried Onion Ring with Mashed Potatoes
Hot Biscuits
French Ice Cream
Plaza Sauce.

Coronado Canape.

SCOOP out balls from ripe alligator pears with a small vegetble cutter and marinate in French dressing. Cut a center slice from a large peeled tomato, about one-half inch thick and place on a round of rye bread. Remove center of tomato, leaving a ring. Place on a bed of watercress and pile the balls of pears in the ring in pyramid form. Pour over a French dressing to which has been added a little lemon juice and some tomato catsup. A few tiny pearl onions may be scattered over the balls if desired.

Filet Mignon en Casserole.

Grind two medium sized carrots and one medium size onion and one-half cup of celery. Fry very slowly in three tablespoons of butter for about one hour. Dredge with two tablespoons of flour and allow to melt. To this add three-fourths cup of bouillon or stock and one cup of water, one cup of left over gravy is an improvement, one-fourth cup tomato juice, one-half teaspoon walnut catsup, one teaspoon worcestershire sauce, one teaspoon meat sauce, salt and pepper to taste, adding more water as necessary so as to have three cups of sauce when finished. Simmer slowly for 30 minutes.

Have the filets cut one and a half to two inches thick and sear quickly to a dark brown on both sides. Drop into the gravy and let boil not longer than five minutes. Serve from casserole.

French Fried Onion Ring.

Peel two large Bermuda onions and slice in one-fourth inch slices and separate into rings. Pour over them a small amount of milk, tossing occasionally and let stand for one hour. Drain and dry between towels. Sprinkle lightly with flour and toss in a bowel to evenly coat the rings. Drop into hot, but not smoking lard, as they should be fried slowly so as to become crisp but not too brown. Drain on absorbent paper and sprinkle with salt.

Mashed Potatoes.

Boil six medium sized potatoes. While hot mash and beat until light and fluffy with one-half cup of heated milk in which two tablespoons of butter has been melted. Add salt and white pepper. Form into a mound and surround with the French fried onions.

Beets in Vinegar Sauce.

Boil small young beets until tender, skin and dice. To three cups of beets add a sauce made by mixing one-half cup of sugar with one tablespoon of cornstarch, add one-half cup of vinegar and let boil for five minutes. Place all in a double boiler and let heat for one-half hour. Just before serving stir in two tablespoons of butter.

French Ice Cream.

Beat four egg yolks light, add one cup of sugar, a pinch of salt and one scant teaspoon of cornstarch. Pour over this two cups of scalded cream. Cook in a double boiler until slightly thickened, then add one tablespoon of vanilla and cool. Add one pint of heavy cream and freeze. Pile in a serving dish and with this pass a hot dish filled with plaza sauce.

Plaza Sauce.

Take one large can of black seeded cherries and cut cherries in halves. Place juice and all in a double boiler or chafing dish with one-fourth teaspoon of cinnamon, four cloves, one tablespoon of sugar and one scant tablespoon of cornstarch. Let cook long enough to slightly thicken. Just before serving add one-fourth cup of brandy. Serve hot.

Something New In Recipes for Cooky Bakers

UTILIZE your sour cream. The first cooky recipe given here puts it to good use. And, following it, are other interesting cooky recipes.

Sour Cream Cookies

One cup brown sugar.
One-half cup shortening.
One egg, beaten.
One-half cup sour cream.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two cups pastry flour.
One-half teaspoon nutmeg.
One-half teaspoon soda.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One cup chopped nutmeats.

Cream shortening and sugar together, then add beaten egg and nuts. Sift together dry ingredients and add to mixture alternately with cream. Mix well and drop by teaspoonfuls on greased baking sheets. Bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees F. for 15 minutes.

Soft Molasses Cookies

One-half cup shortening.
One-half cup brown sugar.
One egg, well beaten.
One-half cup molasses.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One teaspoon ginger.
One-half cup hot milk.
One-quarter teaspoon soda.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two cups flour.
One and one-half teaspoons baking powder.

Cream shortening, add sugar, and cream thoroughly. Add the well-beaten egg, molasses, spices and soda which has been mixed together with the hot milk. Add the flour which has been sifted with the salt and baking powder. Stir well, and drop by teaspoonfuls on a well-greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven of 300 degrees F. for 10 minutes. Makes about three dozen cookies.

Peanut Macaroons

Two egg whites.
1 cup confectioner's sugar.
One cup pastry flour
One cup peanuts, coarsely chopped.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.

Beat egg whites until stiff and dry. Add gradually confectioner's sugar, flour and salt. Fold in chopped peanuts. Drop from the end of a teaspoon on a greased baking sheet about two inches apart and bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees F. for 10 minutes.

Oatmeal Cookies

One cup cooked oatmeal.
Two tablespoons shortening.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One cup sugar.
One-half cup molasses.
One cup raisins.
One-half cup chopped walnut meats.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
One-half teaspoon soda.
Two cups pastry flour (about).

Mix in order given, and drop two inches apart on a well-greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees F. for about 10 minutes.

Popularity of Sandwich from Humble Start

Now in Social Register of Delicacies; Novel Recipes Offered.

By Alice Lynn Barry

THE Earl of Sandwich would most likely be astonished could he but know that his name has been immortalized by the sandwich. For his lordship was thought to be a very boorish fellow because he had the notion to munch hunks of bread together with meat, while on horseback, instead of dining afoot.

Subsequently, epicures frowned on the man-sized sandwich as a crude method of hasty eating. But gradually the sandwich has been endowed with artistry and has emerged proudly in the social register of delicacies, ranging from giant club sandwiches down to those wafer-thin, dainty affairs served at teas.

Here's a real good bid for sandwich popularity, a good leap year come-hither. To make it, mash a package of Liederkranz cheese with a fork until soft and smooth. Add two tablespoons of beer and blend to a smooth paste. Fold in two tablespoons of finely-minced onion, chives or the green tops of young onions, and spread on buttered rye bread or pumpernickel. Or, spread slices of rye bread with butter and then with Liederkranz and cover with thinly sliced marinated Bermuda onion.

To marinate the onion, add salt, pepper and equal quantities of vinegar and oil to sliced onion and let stand 20 minutes. Cover cheese and marinated onion with another slice of buttered bread. Garnish with stuffed olives.

Another tasty novelty sandwich combines cream cheese and ginger. Spread thin slices of white or whole wheat bread with butter and cream cheese. Over this spread a layer of preserved ginger which has been cut fine. Cover with another slice of buttered bread. Roquefort cheese and currant jelly and lettuce combine to make another novel and delicious sandwich filling spread on toasted bread.

For a nice party sandwich, there's cheese sandwich loaf. This should be made on the platter on which it is to be served. Remove crust from a loaf of bread. Cut into four lengthwise slices. Spread them with softened butter. Spread one layer with pimento cheese, another with equal portions of chopped hard-boiled eggs and celery moistened with mayonnaise and one slice with chopped olives moistened with mayonnaise. Put the remaining slice on top. Cover the whole loaf with cream cheese moistened with cream. Decorate the top with sliced stuffed olives, sweet pickles, sliced, and bits of pimento. Then chill. Slice loaf at table when serving it. This serves eight.

Washed Curtains

In summer particularly, glass curtains need frequent laundering, so be sure to consider the washability of the fabric in keeping your curtains fresh looking.

Before washing our cotton curtains, we measure them and shake out any lose dust. White and fast-colored curtains are then washed in hot suds of about 125 degrees Fahrenheit. We wash them 3 to 5 minutes in a washing machine or 5 to 10 minutes by hand with a small hand vacuum washer. The soiled suds are then squeezed out either by hand or with a wringer or extractor, and the curtains are rinsed through two clear waters.

When using an earthenware or glass casserole on top of the stove, with direct heat, always slip an asbestos mat under it.

CURRY OF LAMB —o— LAMB ROAST —o— VEAL CUTLETS

STAMPS · Styles for Men · DOGS

OFF the LEASH

by H. F. Owen

"COMING When CALLED"

TODAY'S lesson deals with teaching the dog to come when called. It isn't pleasant to have them ignore you when you want them.

Many of them will seem totally deaf when you call. Others will come when they feel like it, stopping to investigate anything that might interest them.'

Then there is the fellow, who, as soon as he is off the leash, will leave you like a streak. He never looks back and seems not to care if he ever sees you again. But perhaps the most provoking is the one which, when you call, comes to you as fast as he can, then stops just out of your reach and scampers off again.

A puppy one has raised or obtained when quite young usually responds to his name or a whistle or a certain call. Some of them never fail to heed this call. Some, however, when they grow older and find many things in the outside world to interest them, refuse to come. Unless you are confident your dog will always come to you when called, force him to come to you at your command. The following procedure has been found very successful and can be used without fear of injury or cowing:

Tie one end of a rope around the dog's body. A clothes line, 25 to 50 feet long, does nicely. Tie it so that it will neither slip off his hips or become tight.

When your rope is properly fitted, hold the loose end of it firmly in your hand. It is best to wear gloves; the dog pulling a rope held loosely might burn your hand painfully.

Now, let your dog go wherever he wishes, but just as he nears the end of the rope, call his name, or use some command you naturally use in calling him. If he runs, brace yourself and repeat your command. Any pain is thus caused by his disobedience. A pull or two and he will run to you for sympathy. The pain thus ends immediately, and you should praise him and say, "That's right, that's the way." In a very short while he will come to you as soon as he hears your command for he will connect it with the jerk and will know that you will praise him when he comes to you.

Never call your dog to you and punish him for some wrong he may have committed. He has learned to be praised when you call. If you punish him when he gets to you, he will not understand that you are chastising him for his misdemeanor.

If you wish to punish him, do so while he is doing the wrong. Praise him when he comes at your call, regardless of what he has done previously.

IF ONE INTENDS buying a puppy, it is wise to watch the puppy in his own surroundings and at play with other pups. If I were buying a puppy I would pick the liveliest, most active one in the lot and not let my sympathy for the poor little lonely fellow in the corner persuade me to purchase him. Be sure that the parents of the puppy are of good sound breeding. One cannot predict that the puppy will be just like his mother or father, but if the breeding is there, you stand a better chance of getting the kind of dog you want.

Buying an older dog, say six months or more, may cost more, but the purchaser should consider this extra charge as compensation to the breeder for the care that the dog has been given in those few months. Small puppies are a delight to own but there is also the problem of house manners, which in an older dog has most likely been taken care of.

AMONG THE ST. LOUISANS who returned from last week-end's Kansas City dog show with colors flying were Dr. P. H. Gregory and his Cocker Spaniel Velvet Sonny, who went Winners Male, Best of Winners and Best of Breed, thus adding another five-point win to his success at the recent St. Louis show.

The Causes Of Deafness In Children

Infections of Ear, Most Numerous, But Also Most Usually Curable.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE medical problem of deafness is by no means a simple one. It must be classified first into the two great divisions of adult and childhood deafness.

Taking up the problem of deafness in childhood, we must face the fact that there are certain cases which no amount of treatment or preventive measure can help. Some of these are the born deaf mutes, most of whom have deaf-mutism as an hereditary trait. The only thing that can be done with these unfortunates is to institutionalize them, or adjust them so that they are able to make some place for themselves in the world.

Almost in the same class are the children who, as a result of some infectious disease—scarlet fever, meningitis—have some unaccountable alteration in the internal ear or auditory nerve or receptive apparatus in the brain. Of this class Helen Keller is an example. She is also the supreme example of the ability, by training and will power, to adjust oneself to so serious a disability. Some such adjustment as she has made is all that can be hoped for in cases of this kind.

There is with children, however, a much larger group in which deafness results from infection of the internal ear, tonsils, adenoids or sinuses, and for whom much can be done by proper early medical treatment.

A discharging ear usually receives some attention. When it occurs in the midst of infectious disease, such as measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, or diphtheria, it is treated for a while. The patient gets better, but every once in a while it begins to discharge again. This finally becomes so familiar that no attention is paid to it. These are the dangerous cases which proceed to chronic middle ear change.

—o-o—

IN a somewhat different class are the nose and throat infections. The direct association between the middle ear and the throat through the Eustachian tube is the connecting link between these two infections. Most of them can be cleared up without very radical procedure.

A child with a chronic runny nose is always a suspect in this regard, and the way children blow their noses, or have them blown for them, may frequently aggravate the condition. In children the Eustachian tube is short and more open than in adults. If the child feels his ears by ordinary nasal blowing, he should be taught to hold the handkerchief loosely below the nose and blow into it that way. If a gummy nasal secretion is present, every means must be taken to loosen up the discharge before the child is allowed to blow his nose at all.

It may be permissible in some cases to allow the child to close one nostril with the fingers and blow the discharge out of the other nostril, but he should be ordered to stop as soon as he feels any effect on his ears. So impressed is a prominent New York ear specialist with the fact that improper nose blowing is the cause of deafness, that he has called certain conditions "pocket-handkerchief deafness."

The Stamp Review : : by John Chamberlin

DOM PEDRO II, Emperor of Brazil, introduced postage stamps to his country two years after his succession to the throne in 1841, and four years before the United States first issued in 1847.

Upon the declaration of independence of Brazil from Portugal in 1822 (Scott's Nos. 163, 197, 245 and 253) Dom Pedro I (No. 246), son of the fugitive Portuguese King, became the first Emperor of Brazil, abdicating in 1831 in favor of his minor son, who was crowned in 1841.

Dom Pedro II (designs of 1866-88 issues) continued in the policy of intervention in Uruguay which had caused the abdication of Pedro I. There were intermittent provincial rebellions throughout his reign, but he left an unparalleled record in South American history for his enlightened and conscientious rule. He prohibited slave trade in 1850, and in 1871 provided for their gradual emancipation (No. 164). On May 13, 1888, all slaves were freed (No. 164) without compensation to their owners.

The nobility were angered by the anti-slavery measures, and the Emperor's lack of interest in matters pertaining to the state. Nov. 15, 1889, Manuel D. da Fonseca (No. 178) led a republican revolt, supported by the army and the navy. There was no resistance, and the Emperor and his family were immediately put aboard a ship sailing for Europe. On Nov. 17, the United States of Brazil was proclaimed.

On Nov. 14, 1889, a 100 reis stamp similar to Scott's type A38 but inscribed "BRAZIL" instead of "E. U. DO BRAZIL," was issued by the mint to the postoffice. The stamp was withdrawn the following day on the fall of the monarchy and not issued to the general public, but there must have been some "first day" collectors then among the postal clerks, for there are a few postmarked copies known.

The 1866-79 issues were printed by the American Bank Note Co. in New York, except for the 300 reis stamp of 1878, which was printed by the Continental Bank Note Co. of New York. The variety of interesting cancelations to be found on these stamps is equaled only by the stamps of the United States of this period, which, incidentally, were printed by the same two companies.

● THE LARGE decorative stamp issued by Cuba in 1914 commemorates the hundredth anniversary of the birth of the poetess Gertrudis Gomez de Avellaneda. She was an eminent lyric poet, dramatist and novelist. Most of her life was spent in Spain, where she wrote the novel, "El Mulato Sab," known as the Cuban "Uncle Tom's Cabin." This stamp honoring her memory is one of the few stamps commemorating the activities of a woman in any field of endeavor other than as a sovereign. She died in Madrid in 1873.

—oo—

Some of the early stamps of Cuba and the Philippine Islands have their values expressed as "reales plata fuerte" or an abbreviation of the words. The phrase means "cash," or literally, "coined silver," and not the depreciated paper currency. The "peso plata fuerte" or silver peso was divided into eight reals or "bits," two silver reals or "two bits" being worth about 25 cents in United States currency.

Many collectors of U. S. stamps not only those new at collecting them, have trouble sorting the varieties.

First there are the 1862-68 issues without grills and with various sizes of grills. These should not cause much difficulty if the stamps are examined carefully with a magnifying glass, the grills measured, and the rows or points counted.

The collector's real trouble starts with the Bank Note issues of 1870-79. Those stamps showing grills are easily classified, but it is quite difficult to tell the hard paper from the soft paper. Collectors can buy for a few cents the 3-cent values of this issue, which will give a check on the paper (Scott Nos. 136, 147, 158, and 184). It is a good idea to write the catalogue number of the stamp on its back lightly in soft pencil as an aid to future identification.

If the catalogue description is followed carefully, the secret marks can be found, although sometimes with considerable difficulty. The 2-cent brown is particularly difficult.

The red brown, either grilled or not grilled, has four lines under the ball ornament in the upper left corner of the stamp. The curved line coming up to the ball is always open at the top. Such stamps are a product of the National Bank Note Co.

The browns and dark browns have the same four vertical lines under the little ball ornament, but the curved line coming up to the ball joins the ball closing the ornament. These stamps are the product of the Continental Bank Note Co.

Summarizing, the ornament open is National, and the ornament closed is Continental.

The re-engraved stamps of 1882 are readily distinguished by the catalogue descriptions.

The triangle issues of 1894-99 can be sorted with the aid of a magnifying glass and a water-mark detector. The water-marked stamps are much more common than the unwater-marked.

About Time To Consider Straw Hats

Here Are Some of the Favorites for the 1936 Season.

By Esquire

THE straw hat is one of the few articles of men's apparel that, as far as current fashion is concerned, is truly American. The climate of England, where so many important fashions originate, is far too treacherous to permit the general wearing of this warm weather hat. It is interesting to note that the various types of braid used in the manufacture of straw hats come from the four corners of the earth. The sennit braid was produced in England as early as the sixteenth century, but the Orient, where it has been produced since the late nineteenth century is the chief source of supply for the basic materials required in the manufacture of a sennit straw hat. "Sennit" is a nautical term for this type of braiding, and testifies to its early use by seamen. It also justifies our calling this hat a "sailor." This hat is also known as a "boater," as the English used this sea-going toppiece as an appropriate hat for small boat activities. The milan and leghorn braids are products of Italy, while panamas, contrary to the name, come from Ecuador. They derive their name from the city of Panama, because this is the principal port from which they are shipped. This seems to be an excellent opportunity to publicly declare that panama hats are not made under water, and no process in their manufacture justifies this long-accepted myth. Fashion, at the moment, accepts still another straw braid made by the natives of Nassau of cocoanut palm fibres. Then there is a straw hat made of a hollow tubular straw which comes from Switzerland, and is currently popular and fashionable.

For wear with white or black dinner jackets, for summer formality, the Sennit straw is correct. Club or school-colored bands are smart on all sennits and permissible for wear in every case.

The coconut straw, a high fashion worn by Nassau, B. W. I., winter resorters. It has a puggree band and is ideal for resort wear.

Leghorns are smart in a nonchalant shape with puggree band. The dark shades especially in brown, goes well with summer sport clothing.

Linen, Palm Beach seersuckers, and cotton clothing in the light shades call for the Panama, worn with brim turned up all around.

The Sennit straw for town wear with flannels, gabardines and tropicals has just the right degree of formality.

A Panama hat, worn with brim turned down, negligee style, is recommended for wear with an odd jacket and slacks.

The lightweight felt is favored by men for country wear during the summer months. For a showery day or open car riding, it's a smart and practical hat.

A teaspoon of marmalade is a substitute for mixed peel in a cake.

Novelties In Sweaters

Can it be possible that the regulation type of sweater has had its day? Certainly the fashion designers are trying their best to introduce a few novelties. The most pronounced indication is the padding that appears at the shoulders of severely tailored models. This results in the wearer looking as though she were starting out on the football field equipped with shoulder guards.

Another variation in the mode is the appearance of bright-colored knitted shirts that resemble boys' sweat shirts. Girls are said to be clamoring for them, especially to wear with their bicycle togs. They get them in the boys' departments of the shops and demand odd shades, especially bright tans and yellows.

After stockings have been washed always hang them up by the toes.

Suits for Summer

When the tailored woman finds the weather too warm for her mannish wool suit, she will be ready to steal another costume from the men. Tropical fabric suits such as those that a husband wears on steaming days in St. Louis will be worn this summer will be donned by wives. The fashion authorities have been busy for months in preparation for the launching of this summer tailleur. Natural string and light gray shades are to be the favorites while the lines are as severe as careful tailoring can make them. Short-fitted jackets will predominate and the skirts will have sufficient pleats to provide ease of walking without detracting from the straightness of silhouette.

Before mending children's stockings, soak the darning wool overnight in a strong solution of stale tea. This will strengthen the wool.

Putty for odd jobs can be made by crushing a handful of whitening in a small bowl and mixing it to the desired consistency with linseed oil.

NEW bridge PLAYS

by

Ely Culbertson

DURING a recent casual bridge discussion an expert friend of mine made the blase remark: "There are no really new plays at bridge! Every device, every coup is known to the master players."

I have heard this statement made many times by various players over the last 10 years. Always it has created a reaction in me of amusement mixed with irritation. The amusement resulted from the fact that in every case before a week had passed I was able to make the speaker eat his words by setting before him a brand-new play, either sent me by one of my thousands of correspondents or discovered personally.

On this occasion I was well prepared for rebuttal. Just the day before an associate of mine had brought to my attention a counter defense play of great shrewdness; it was new to me and I felt reasonably certain it would be new to him. I produced pencil and paper and set before him the following hand:

♠Q J 4
♥9 8 7
♦K 9 2
♣K Q J 10

West:
♠A 10 9 7 3
♥Q 2
♦A 6
♣A 7 6 4

SOUTH

East:
♥K 6 4
♦Q J 10 5 3
♣9 8 3

♠K 6 5
♥A J 10 5 3
♦8 7 4

I explained that the bidding had been, with neither side vulnerable and North-South having a 30 part score:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥ (1)	Double
Redouble	2 ♦	Pass	2 ♠
2 N. T.	Pass	3 ♥ (final bid)

(1) Obviously a terrifically shaded bid.

—o-o—

● WEST, FOR WANT of a better opening, led the ace of diamonds and continued with a second round, which was won by dummy's king. The king of clubs was led and allowed to hold; the queen was taken by West's ace. Next the ace and another spade were played. Dummy's queen won the second round, and now a third round of clubs was played, on which South discarded, not a diamond, but the king of spades! (There was sound reason for this play; declarer was preparing to finesse trumps into West's hand and realized that a third round of spades would be ruffed by East). After discarding the spade king, declarer led the nine of hearts from dummy and let it ride.

At this stage of my exposition I asked my expert friend whether he saw anything extraordinary about the hand. After some study he answered no, that it seemed an ordinary enough situation.

"Maybe it is to you," I said. "But I personally have never seen anything quite like it. Don't you see that West must refuse to win the queen of spades in order to defeat the contract? If he takes it, whatever card he leads back will not only allow declarer to pick up East's trump king but will give him entry to the dummy for a diamond discard. Suppose he takes the queen and leads a club. Unless East ruffs, South will discard his losing diamond and then finesse the heart king. If East ruffs, declarer overruffs, draws the king with the ace, and returns to dummy with a trump. The same plan will be used against any other lead by West. But if West refuses to win with the queen, declarer is helpless. Now West cannot be put on lead. If declarer next plays the jack of trumps, East must protect West by overtaking the queen with his king and cashing the setting diamond trick. How is that for a defense?"

—o-o—

● TAKE A PENCIL and mark true or false. Compare your answers with those that will be found farther on in these columns.

1. A forcing pass is a demand that partner pass when his next turn comes.

2. It is better to penalize the opponents two tricks, not vulnerable, than to make a nonvulnerable game.

☐ True ☐ False

3. A small slam should be bid if you have one chance in three of making it.

☐ True ☐ False

4. A pre-emptive game bid should not be raised by partner who holds two aces.

☐ True ☐ False

5. If the bidding goes North four clubs, East four no trump, South pass, West must not bid with the following hand: ♠ Q 6 5 4 3 2, ♥ 6 4, ♦ 7 3, ♣ 8 6 2.

☐ True ☐ False

6. If after agreeing on the trump suit (spades) South makes an asking bid of four clubs, and North holds ♠ K Q 10 5, ♥ K Q J 6, ♦ 2, ♣ K 9 8 4. North's correct response is four hearts.

☐ True ☐ False

—o-o—

ANSWERS: 1. False; he must bid or double. 2. False. 3. False; there should be an even chance. 4. True. 5. False; must bid five spades. 6. False; four hearts would show heart ace plus second-round club control; correct response is four spades.

IN THE BIG VILLAGE

"Grace used to live here before we moved in . . . but how'd ya like to meet my big sister?"

When Parents Let Self Top Child's Needs

Mental Blind Spot Prevents Clear Vision of Offspring's Expressions of Growth.

By Angelo Patri

THERE are blind spots in our minds quite as dark as the one we carry in our eyes. Those in our minds are not there by necessity, but are of our own making. We get between the thing we need to see and our mental vision. The shadow of our self falls across the field and what we ought to see clearly is dark to us. It is there, remember, but we do not know it. It is working its own peculiar mission for good or evil hidden from our sight by our own shadow.

Not long ago a mother visited the school where her little daughter was attending an upper grade class. "I wish you would tell me what to do with Elsie. She is becoming impossible. She cries at the least word. Lately, on two occasions, she has shown violent temper. She tore up her new piece in front of her music teacher, made a terrible scene. I was afraid the teacher would never come back. She is a high-priced teacher and makes an exception for my daughter because she has such talent. Elsie talks rudely to me most of the time now. And she is cross with her little brother. She is spoiling our home.

"We think that Elsie is being overworked. She is two grades higher now than she would ordinarily be. She is under weight. Very nervous. Complains often of headache. She is taking dancing lessons, music lessons and dramatics outside school. She thinks she must study harder so that she can skip another grade. We think that the best thing to do for her is to cut out all the extras, give her no home work, let her attend school only on alternating half-days until her health is improved. The school physician fears she will have some nervous illness. She needs rest, less work, no pressure whatever."

"O dear me! She would not like that at all. She is very ambitious, you have no idea how ambitious that child is. It would break her heart not to stand highest in the class. She wants to enter high school when she is 12. Her cousins were 13, but she wants to do better. O dear, no. That isn't what is wrong. Not at all."

The shadow of the mother's self had fallen between her and her child's need. Her ambition was eating her own child's body and mind. It happens so often to unconscious fathers and mothers. A child heads toward some ideal, some heart's desire, and his parents frantically pull him back. Being different, having opinions opposite to those of their parents, is not being wrong, not being disobedient and wilful and bad as often as people think. Usually it is an expression of progressive growth.

The Hollywood Whirl

maintain her constant style supremacy at the preview of Mary Pickford and Jesse Lasky's first picture production night before last in a truly regal cape of natural blue fox. Designed especially for her in New York, not Hollywood, which is rather generally put in a class with treason out here, this cape is fashioned from the softest, most becoming skins that I ever saw put together. They are arranged vertically and the cape is lined with triple-layer gray chiffon. Joan's gown was a new summer print of olive green and white with a shirred neckline and pleated bodice. The cape is held in place by a narrow strap of gray chiffon across the throat.

—o—o—

This little pig went to market. But he didn't come home again. At least, not in the same shape as when he left, for pig skin is one of the most used mediums for sports attire. The one Joan Blondell caught and sent to the tanners was fashioned into the best looking sports jacket you ever saw. The skin looks just like that used for men's gloves except that Joan had it done into a little darker brown shade. It is a straight, boxy affair with big patch pockets.

—o—o—

They have to keep up appearances even out on the wide open spaces. A local makeup parlor got an order from Marlene Dietrich, who is working in "The Garden of Allah" near Yuma, Ariz., to rush her, post haste, two dozen pairs of false eyelashes.

—o—o—

● CAROLE LOMBARD has the most distinctive suit that I have seen for ages. Not only is it unique in design, but the fabric itself is something entirely new. It is a French importation of gray wool, and where formerly little dots of either matching or contracting wool were interwoven to form a design, this new material employs little tufts of Persian lamb instead. The skirt is smartly, but simply, tailored. But here is the place where the second big surprise comes in. The coat has been copied directly after a man's sweat-shirt, and is made of the same gray Persian lamb which flecked the skirt. It is cut very loose, has the sweat-shirt collar line, about which she twines a scarf, and the sleeves are loose enough to slip up on the wrist for comfortable driving.

—o—o—

Saw Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone dining tete-a-tete at a night club the other evening, a large bowl of gardenias between them, and so engrossed in each other that they almost forgot to order food. Joan was lovely in a very full, flame-colored accordion chiffon gown plaited from neckline to hem and girdled with a soft cord ornamented with gardenias. In her hair was a wreath of the same flowers, and one gathers that Mrs. Tone likes gardenias. And slippers, without heels, have intrigued Joan so entirely that she is having many pairs fashioned to go with her summer wardrobe.

—o—o—

Norma Shearer's new "linen tweed" suit is one of the smartest evidences of summer seen thus far this season. The suit is fashioned from natural linen in a tweed weave. It consists of a tailored skirt and coat with a burnt orange handkerchief linen blouse. A brown "tweed linen" coat and brown accessories complete the costume.

—o—o—

● DAINTY LITTLE Janet Gaynor's photographs are much in demand for art work of one sort or another, espcially for magazine covers, and I was fortunate in being at the studio when some new ones were being made for her. Learning that I was interested in them from the fashion angle, Janet asked if I would care to stay and see them made. Of course I would, and so for the next hour or so cameramen, electricians, hairdresser, maids and press agents, not to mention Miss Gaynor, worked very hard and patiently, on what very likely will turn out to be the cover of your favorite movie magazine.

Of course, there were pictures made in many costumes. The first was a beautifully man-tailored gray suit (no wardrobe seems complete without one this year) and with this was worn a simple little white satin shirt and tie. Another of her dresses was a royal blue moire, cut high in the neck, at the front, very plain, and having a sash with ends of lacquer red making a striking contrast.

—o—o—

In case you are one of those persons with an impulse to take pictures on the spur of the moment and are always handicapped by the lack of a camera, Rosalind Keith, who is a real camera fiend if ever there was one, has solved your problem. She showed me a perfectly normal looking flat pocket-book, but on one side at the center a powerful lens was inserted, just as they sometimes do tiny watches. Now all Rosalind has to do when she spies a desirable subject is to open her bag and press the bulb concealed therein.

—o—o—

Alice Faye has just left for a little relaxation between pictures on a nearby ranch and showed me before going quite a nifty outfit in shorts and blouse. The shorts were white desert cloth and the blouse was made of bandanas and fashioned exactly like the old middy blouse, the sailor collar being made of the border pattern and lacing at the seams just below the waist in the approved middy fashion.

ST. LOUIS STYLE PARADE

wore her lovely version of the new Napoleonic trend that was so becoming to her type. It was of white crepe that had a chalk-like quality combined most effectively with white chiffon. The gown was a simple sleath with the heart-shaped neckline marked with clips, and twisted straps of the chiffon draped over the shoulders. At the back of the skirt two wide panels of the chiffon were caught with shirring at the hip line, then draped loosely to form a divided train.

Mrs. David R. Calhoun wore the dashing shaded chiffon frock that had made such a hit in the show, its tones of apricot, orange and green blending beautifully. The marquisette of which the billowy skirt and scarf were made brought out the gleaming quality of the tight satin bodice and slip beneath.

Mrs. J. Russell Coulter, chairman of the committee which arranged the cabaret, looked distinctive in a white satin evening gown designed along classical Greek lines. The satin had a faint suggestion of pearly pink which added to its becomingness. The bodice was quite full and cut with a round halter neckline. The skirt was form fitting with slight hemline fullness and a short train. A wide fitted girdle embroidered with pearls provided a trimming note that was in keeping with the mode.

Another striking costume was that of Mrs. Henry T. Brinckwirth which followed the trend toward period themes, one of its interesting features being a full length blue satin coat of the redingote type. The blue was a true cornflower shade and the frock showed blue flowers on a white background. The bodice had tiny puffed sleeves that dropped low on the shoulders. White ruching finished the neckline and the hemline of the skirt.

Turquoise blue combined with white in a striking costume worn by Miss Betty Caulk. This was made entirely of chiffon, the dress being white and a floor length circular cape being blue. White ruching outlined the V neckline and the armholes of the bodice. There were three additional rows of the ruching on the skirt. These were placed at the knees and come to a point at the center front. Skirt fullness was moulded at this section so that it flared gradually to the hemline. A double row of ruching finished the neckline and the front of the cape.

A combination of royal blue and white was chosen by Mrs. John F. Krey, with flattering results. Her gown also employed a pleated trimming, this pleating being of the bright blue taffeta and arranged on white silk crepe. The gown was very fitted through the waistline and hips, with gradual fullness to the hemline. Box-pleated strips were applied at the seams and the hemline. A short shoulder cape was formed of three tiers of pleats, these being of graduated length.

—o-o—

MRS. JOHN FRANCISCUS, at whose table Mrs. Krey sat, wore a stunning gown of dark blue and white printed linen. The square-cut bodice was finished with a little accordion-pleated cape which emphasized an off-the-shoulder line. The skirt was bias and quite wide at the hemline. A tailored belt combined shades of red and blue with white, and Mrs. Franciscus completed her color scheme with two-toned slippers. Noted at this same table was Mrs. John K. Wallace in a white organza frock using a fuchsia velvet girdle and bright spring flowers as a contrast, and Mrs. Clinton L. Wittemore Jr., in black net which was fashioned with a shoulder cape of the transparent fabric.

Mrs. Edgar Rand wore a charming evening gown of white sheer wool printed with a large floral pattern in which red and blue were dominant. A very short bolero which was attached to the bodice emphasized the fitted waistline. The neckline was low both front and back and had very narrow shoulder straps of the material. A cluster of bright-colored flowers added several shafts of wheat, carrying out the field flower theme. These flowers were placed on the front of the bodice. The skirt had fullness concentrated at the back, which was longer, to form a slight train.

Silk jersey printed in an allover paisley-like pattern combining red and blue was the choice of Mrs. W. O. Shock. The bodice was designed with a V-shaped neckline that was lower at the back. The skirt was form-fitting, with modified hemline fullness. A little bolero jacket was a feature of this costume. It was sufficiently short to permit the wide red suede belt to show.

Among other impressive costumes selected for the Follies was the peach and rust-colored chiffon frock of Mrs. Carl Langenberg, the vividly printed dress of Mrs. C. E. Bascom, which displayed Van Gogh colorings and was worn with a pale blue chiffon coat; Miss Mary Elizabeth Bascom's peach-colored chiffon, which had pleated ruffles that not only adorned the neckline but circled the armholes; Mrs. T. K. Niedringhaus' two-tone blue chiffon with trailing draperies and the white embroidered tunic which Mrs. S. M. Tohey wore over black taffeta.

—o-o—

While the large assemblage of beautifully gowned women who appeared at the Follies and the cabaret entertainment tended to overshadow the impressiveness of earlier displays, one recalls vividly the good-looking evening gown combining lemon, yellow and chartreuse which Miss Nellie Caudle had on at Monday night's opera. Yellow chiffon formed the body of the dress, while alternating draperies of yellow and chartreuse gave it the stunning aspect. Brilliant clips were placed at either side of the front of the square neckline.

Another alliance of shades creating an attractive frock was worn by Miss Peggy James. Chiffon, which ranged in tone from an ecru to a deep omber, was most becoming, the gold shade which appeared being emphasized by the use of gold clips. Miss Nancy Mitchell, also seen in the opera crowd, brightened her black net frock with spring flowers arranged in her hair.

—o-o—

Although less formal than these other events which have been mentioned, the annual dinner and dance of the St. Louis Bar Association, which was held at the Missouri Athletic Association on Tuesday night, brought out a well-dressed crowd of prominent St. Louisans. This was the first time that the annual dinner was followed by a dance, so greater emphasis was placed upon the social aspect of the occasion.

Mrs. Thomas F. McDonald, wife of the president of the association, was there in a hand-blocked field flower printed frock combining shades of red and blue with white. The square cut bodice was covered with a cleverly styled bolero which had a fan-shaped insert of accordion-pleated red chiffon at the back. Armholes of the jacket were quite deep. The fitted skirt which flared slightly at the hemline introduced a fan-shaped godet of the pleated red chiffon at the back. This extended slightly longer than the skirt to form a slight train.

Crystal clips were worn at the neckline.

—o-o—

MRS. WALTER R. MAYNE, wife of a past president of the association, wore a black dinner dress of crepe that had a rather wide and moderately low neckline adorned with gold clips. Sleeves were long and Mrs. Mayne wore a gold bracelet to match her clips. A large white gardenia was a smart accent to her costume. Mrs. Kenneth Teasdale, wife of another past president, also wore black, her dress being of net having a low back decolettage. Sleeves were shirred so that they were quite full and were held with velvet bands at the wrists. The skirt was quite wide at the hemline. A black velvet girdle was noted, as were striking gold clips and earrings.

Mrs. Jesse Barrett, wife of a former president of the Missouri State Bar Association, chose white crepe designed along very svelte lines. The shoulders were covered by a bodice cut very wide. Buckle and clips were gold. A short cape of summer ermine which Mrs. Barrett carried over her arm provided a flattering addition to her costume.

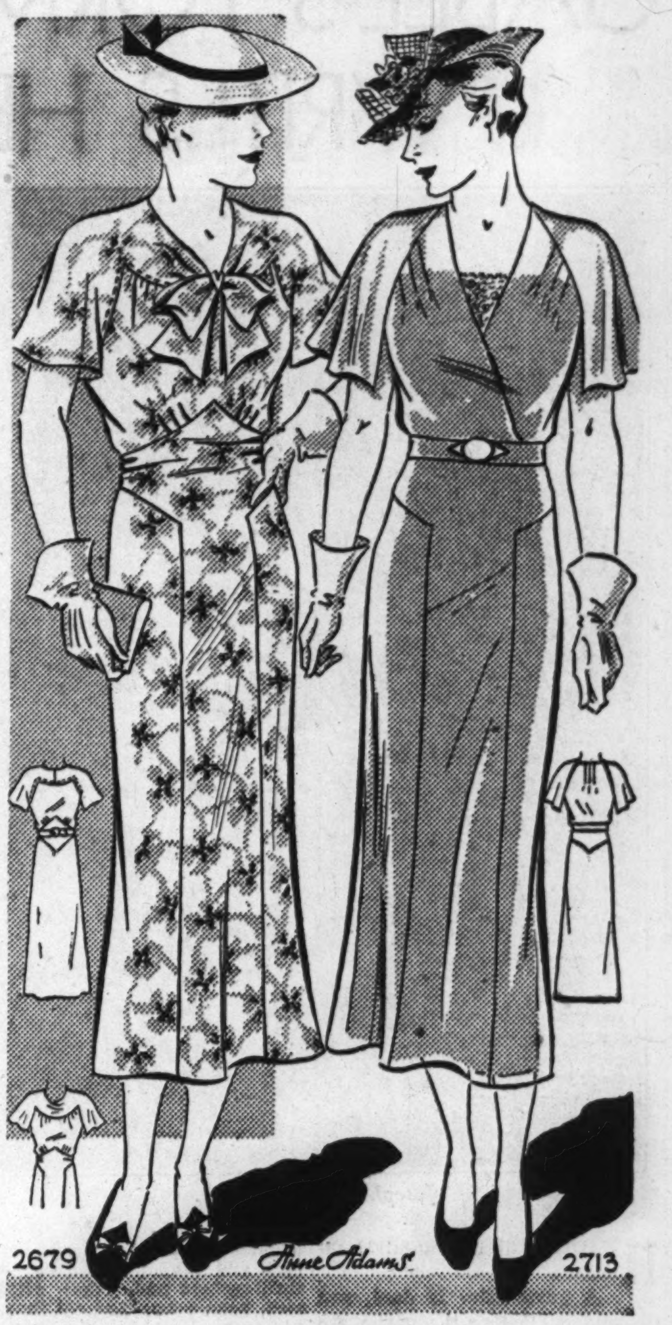
A beige lace evening gown that was beautifully designed was worn by Mrs. George Moore. It was sleeveless. Dull red flowers provided an effective contrast. Mrs. Lambert Walther was there in a black taffeta frock with touches of silver at the waistline, as was Mrs. William O. Reeder in a dinner dress of the new Maywine shade which was belted with an intricately designed girdle formed of white braid and gold metal.

An organza frock combining pastel blue and pink suited Mrs. Samuel H. Liberman. This was worn over a blue taffeta slip, the taffeta also being used for a sash which tied at the back and for bows which held the slashed back of the bodice in place. The front of the bodice was cut rather high and sufficiently wide to cover the top of the arms.

Mrs. Wallace Fry, a guest from Mexico, Mo., who is tall and slender and has striking gray hair looked most distinguished in a dinner suit of red crepe. The jacket of this suit was of the mess type, being fitted and only waistline length. Sleeves were three-quarter length.

Two Summer Frocks

By ANNE ADAMS



IDEAL for larger figures are these two graceful and flattering afternoon frocks which Anne Adams has designed for sunny, summer days. The smart matron on the left wears Pattern 2679. Its uprising fitted waist section and adjustable half way belt—to say nothing of the feminine bow at the cool V-neck are very flattering to the figure. Summary in crepe or voile. Pattern 2713, so charming in a sheer boasts a smooth cape-yoke sleeve, slimming surplice bodice, and a dainty bit of lace at the neckline.

Pattern 2679 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3 3-4 yards 39-inch fabric. Price 15c.

Pattern 2713 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 takes 3 1-2 yards 39 inch fabric and 1-8 yard 5 inch lace. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number.

ning to "raise Cain in her own quiet way." The Back Bay crooner came to St. Louis with her mother, Mrs. Nelson Scoville, about a year ago to sing at Hotel Statler. From there she went to The Jug and for the past month has been at the Park Plaza. She and her mother, who used to edit the smart Beacon Hill magazine have an apartment in the Maryland Manor. Nancy's a product of the Brimmer School in Boston and of Dana Hall. Her only acquaintances when she first came to St. Louis were Miss Jane Johnson and her cousin, Bradford Shinkle Jr., but now she's getting around without any trouble.

LUNCHING at The Jug before their matches in the Field House: "Big Bill" Tilden and Table Tennist Jimmy McClure. "Big Bill," wearing a Byronic collar and white duck trousers, sneaked into the cafe on tennis shoes before anyone realized it. We whirled around, though, when we heard him boom, "Haven't I seen you somewhere before?" as he shook hands with professional tennist Bruce Barnes.

AT DINNER the other evening we met Ben Goodwin, who has been running a Reading Club in the Forest Park Hotel. He shut down shop, is disposing of all his books, and plans to give his whole time to his uncle, Excise Commissioner Thomas Anderson. Ben tried to sell his bookshop to Miss Martha Pettus but she felt she had her hands full running the Junior League lectures and looking after a menage which includes three unmannerly dachshunds.

Salad of Dates For Spring Meal

ONE of the best fruits for spring is the lovely, golden date, dried right on the tree by the sun which seals in their goodness and turns their natural sweetness into easily digested invert sugar. Because of these virtues dates are fast becoming regarded as a natural spring tonic, one that the youngsters infinitely prefer to such concoctions as sulphur and molasses.

A salad with a new combination is always wanted. Here is an energy salad made with two-thirds of a package of dates, half package cream cheese and half cup peanut butter, also quarter cup cream or rich milk and some French or mayonnaise dressing and lettuce. Rub cream cheese and peanut butter separately to a paste with the cream. Stuff half of the dates with each mixture. Arrange the cheese and peanut butter stuffed dates alternately in a circle on a bed of lettuce leaves. Serve with dressing. It is enough for six servings.

Here's a grand relish for the rhubarb of spring. Cut four cups unpeeled rhubarb in about one inch pieces; add two packages dates, one No. 2 can crushed pineapple, some sugar, one orange (juice and grated rind). Cook slowly until thick. Add one cup walnut meats. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses. When cool, cover with melted paraffin.

For a dozen large and exceedingly delicious sandwiches, slice one package dates, chop half cup nut meats and mash one large or two small ripe bananas. Add one teaspoon grated orange rind and one-eighth of a teaspoon salt to the fruit and nuts. Mix thoroughly. Spread the paste on slices of lightly-buttered bread and put slices together in pairs. You'll like the looks of this golden and brown ensemble.

Cooked corn, beans and peas, added to white sauce and poured over toast, make a good luncheon dish. A garnish of crisp bacon adds flavor and nutrition.

WOMEN'S SUNDAY MAGAZINE

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I AM weary—and exasperated to the slapping point—at hearing men talk about "the mystery of women."

Woman is no mystery. Woman—if you can look at her without a vision clouded by prejudice, conceit or fear—is the simplest creature on earth. The most uncomplicated and direct creature.

Woman is not "the eternal riddle." Woman is simply Female—and when you have said that you have said everything.

Woman is female. And female means in 1936 A. D. exactly what it meant in 1936 B. C. and a million years before.

Men have modified themselves; or rather, been modified by social necessity. Since men have been forced to live in public and work co-operatively, they have of necessity developed and adjusted themselves to suit devious trails and strange adventures. Men are no longer primarily individuals—they are moulded to the herd pattern. One man is all men. One man thinks, feels and acts as all men think, feel and act.

But a woman has had no such social modification. Since time's dim dawn the majority of women have lived in much the same manner, followed much the same program. They have lived cave-bound, tent-bound or house-bound—serving their families—matriarchs in a limited domain. So, until the Machine Age gave women a job—and that is such a recent happening that it has as yet left little imprint on the sex as a whole—women knew almost nothing of competition or cooperation. Hers was a One Jane job. And so it follows that—

A WOMAN IS HERSELF, AND NOBODY ELSE BUT.

Each woman is as individual as was Eve when God first took Adam's rib—and, I suspect, the snappier portions of his backbone—and made the first Missus.

Each woman and every woman is a world unto herself and a law unto herself. And because she is a world unto herself and a law unto herself, the outer considerations of caution and compromise, which so influence men, never touch her.

—o-o—

• THEY MAY SEEM to touch her. A woman may seem to be a timid and conventional person. She may squeal at mice and fuss because she hasn't an Easter bonnet like her neighbor. But strip her of these artificial vapors and put her to the test—and you will find her primitive as any tigress and as ruthless and brave.

Women do not think as men think. Many—perhaps the vast majority of women—never think at all. They perceive and manipulate Life through their emotions. They feel rather than think. Which maybe you consider a handicap. But don't kid yourself. A Thinker may own all the medals in the Hall of Fame, but in practical performance an Emoter can make him take the count before the first gong.

Women do not bother to reason. Women leap directly—as a tigress leaps—and t'hell, John Henry, with your philosophical arguments! That leap is what we call "Woman instinct." But there is no such thing as "woman instinct." There is only a primitive, female animal launching herself, with superb disregard for all obstacles, at the thing she wants—and getting it!

And yet it isn't such a bad arrangement after all. The world needs male thinkers. But I suspect they would still be sitting in huddles, scratching their dandruff, if it were not for the female leapers.

—o-o—

P. S.—Mind you, I don't for one second think that any of these snippety remarks apply to Elsie. Me? I'm different.

Evening Attire

Dance frocks are sheer and filmy and more charming than ever. Prints with overfrocks of net or tulle, misting the prints to an ethereal beauty that is typical of the season, appear at many smart places. Flower ruffs of colored sheers top off white chiffon frocks, and lace alternates with net to make other lovely dresses. An exquisite frock is of silk net shirred all over, with a little row of buttons at the bodice and waistline.

Black and Green Trend

Anyone who is weary of the blue and the gray that dominates spring fashions might consider the alliance of black and green. In a recent display of exclusive fashions, this combination was given prominence. There were black afternoon frocks brightened by the use of a green belt or worn with green hat and gloves. Printed silks, combining several shades of green with black, were recommended for practical daytime wear while the green taffeta frock with black accessories suggested a diversity for evening.

GABLE'S FORMER WIFE WRITES HER OWN STORY

Describes Life as Ex-Mate of Movie Star—Tells of Relentless Pursuit by Publicity Seekers.

By

JOSEPHINE DILLON GABLE

Josephine Dillon Gable.

HEADLINES! Headlines! Headlines!—

A great actor is dead, and dragged out before the public are the women who were concerned with his living. The Ex-Wives. They were not people, they were not individuals, they were only ex-wives. A champion loses a fight, a popular star heads the cast of a smash-hit picture, a racer crashes, and the ex-wives are hauled out and flashed across the news.

Why can't we be let alone? Why can't we go on our way, living our own lives, following out our own careers as individuals? Why must we be dragged out again and again in stories of some other person's life?

Can it be true that marriage is really for eternity—that divorces have no reality in truth?—that deep in our hearts we go on being married to each other in spite of man-made laws that say we are "put asunder"? Can we be separated completely from our past experiences, happinesses and sorrows? Can we go on to other marriages, activities, careers, and completely forget?

Even if we wish to forget, will the world let us? Is there some fundamental law under marriage that forces us to remember those promises we made together? I wonder!

It is a cruel thing to see an end coming to your marriage, to feel that you are no longer needed, or wanted. But you are completely helpless against the floods of battery and selfish advice of new thrill-seekers and other riff-raff, rich, poor, young and old that fasten themselves like barnacles onto such men as Clark Gable as soon as they have fought their way through the hardest part of their struggle up.

Such men as Clark Gable put in years of fighting—perhaps with a little lift here and there by someone who liked them and a big lift by someone who loved them—before they attract the attention of the self-seekers who hasten to absorb them for their own advancement. When Clark had no clothes, no money, no grooming, no finesse as an actor or as a man, he had few friends, but they were real! But as soon as the gorgeous self that he learned to show began to be noticed, how the scavengers flocked! As soon as he had a car, and a good hair cut, and a good dentist, and a couple of good suits—ah, how different.

HE was playing small parts—then better parts, for a Los Angeles producer when things began to happen. A girl that waited at the stage entrance in a Spanish shawl—a woman in a gold dress who danced, leaning too heavily on him, her arm too tight around his shoulder—another who fainted against the car and begged a ride to a conveniently distant home—groups of girls outside the drugstore where he went for cigarettes—women who invited him to tea to talk over his career and told him he should be free—and then a famous star urging him to elope with her—and all of them offering female flattery and warmth and beauty—the eternal incense to attract the male.

No, that is not fun to watch, and to live through, holding on helplessly and losing in the end—always losing in the end through inability to combat such weapons. Honesty and pride prevent that.

BUT this is an "After-Divorce" story—about EX-WIVES.

Perhaps if a woman has been the ex-wife of more than one husband, or of several husbands, she may become calloused to the hurts, and only calculate the material gains of each marriage and plan them accordingly. But those of us who have only one such experience carry the scar unhealed, no matter how we build up our defences to hide it. But no matter how we dissemble, the curious would never let us rest.

Especially if the husband, or wife, or both, become "good copy." Then you are switched around through life like the tail of a kite, jerked up and down and back and forward with each fluctuation of the career of a man the law says is nothing to you. And you are in constant danger of plunging down into oblivion with him should anything happen to him. A pretty precarious position when you earn every cent you have yourself.

The wife—or should I say the current wife?—of a celebrated star is protected from the curious by the same organization that protects him. So the ex-wife, if she is earning her own living, as I do, in some profession that makes her of easy access to the public, is constantly hounded by curiosity and news seekers, and chiselers of all kinds.

It is easy to get an appointment with a dramatic coach like me by pretending to be in need of coaching. Of course, I am not as unsuspicious as I used to be, but how am I to know until after they are admitted to an interview, what the callers real intentions are in seeking me?

Schemes of every nature are introduced to me under the guise of interviews about taking acting instruction.

Recently the housekeeper told me that there was a woman crying on the front porch, and I told her to let her in. She brought her in and gave her some coffee. She, after some hysterics, told me she was about to become a mother and had come to me for help with the hospital bills and my promise to adopt the child. I confessed to some curiosity as to why I should do that. Then she related to me such a perfectly obvious blackmailing lie that it was apparent she was out to trick me. Of course, I denounced her as a blackmailer and advised her not to ever try to get money that way again. But I did not let her see the nausea and rebellion which she had aroused in me that I had to listen to such talk. Why should I have to go on listening to such things? I am not the wife — I am the EX! How glad I will be to be relieved of all this, when there is a new Ex-Wife to assume these burdens.

There is a big job to do both mentally and physically while learning the "trade" of acting. At least, there was a big one for Clark Gable.

Clark Gable when he was a struggling extra.

His extreme poverty while trying to win his way from his Ohio home to Hollywood via lumber camps, oil wells, and offices, and his great ambition that led him to spend money he should have used for good food, had made it impossible for him to take proper care of himself. That big frame of his needed food and care when we started out together—needed proper dieting and exercise.

CLARK was always easy to cook for. He wanted plain wholesome food, and we had a lot of Irish stew—we couldn't afford steaks — and a lot of vegetables and fresh salads and fruit. He enjoyed the California fruits so much that I always kept a bowl of oranges and apples around the house for him.

Clark was really a grand person to have around. That means an awful lot in the tiny little places such as we lived in. Perhaps a great home is different, but I don't think so. There is need of quiet and mutual confidence in the minds of the occupants to make a peaceful home—it isn't the size of a house that does it. So we always got on famously. If he didn't want to talk, we just went about our separate duties, and if he wanted to talk, we talked. Generally about acting, and the great actors, and the great plays.

I loved those long talks and always tried to show him that it was just as possible to be great today as in any period. History is something that is constant, not something past, and the history of acting must go on and on—he might as well be part of it—and he is!

When we sat around talking that way, Clark loved to have fruit around and soda crackers—always soda crackers, and generally milk. I wonder if he still likes to do that—sit around and eat fruit and crackers. There was no caviar in our lives, but a lot of joy.

FOR exercise, at first, there was mostly walking, looking for extra work. Then he afforded a golf game once in a while, at the municipal course. Golf gives a man a wonderful waistline. He loved the game, and had a natural aptitude for it, especially for long, straight drives. Of course, he had to hitch hike out there and rent clubs and play on the 25 cent course, but that golf playing and that careful building up with good plain farmer food made him over into the grand physique that brought him through to success.

But the story of how we bucked Hollywood, and gradually got ahead step by step, is well known. Extra work, tiny parts in the theater, and then better parts, then good parts.

But what happened between us? Did he tire of his wife who was older than he, as the stories go—did he turn to the fascinations of younger, or richer, or more influential, or better groomed women? No—it wasn't that.

I believe we were both lonely—and that the loneliness grew as we went on.

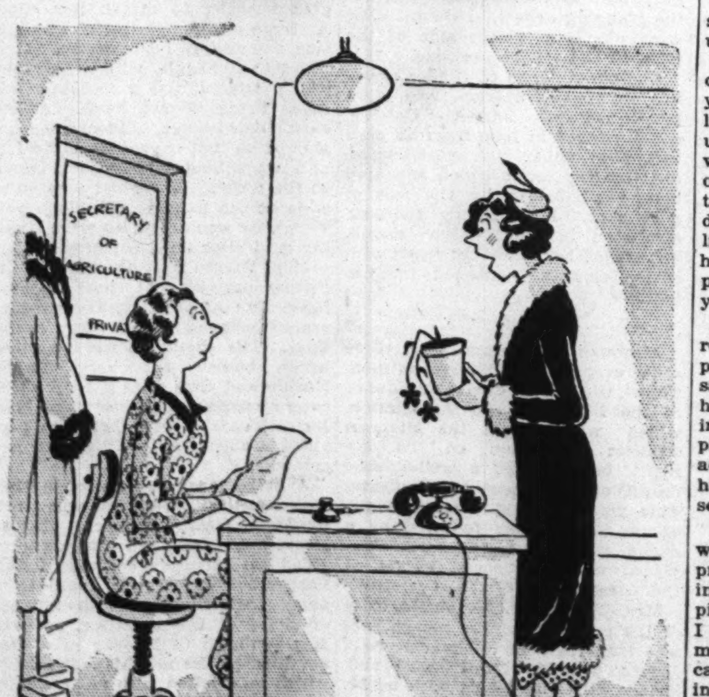
PROBLEM OF STATE



"May I See the Secretary of Agriculture, Please?"

Rickrack Braid

Old-fashioned rickrack braid trims everything from pocketbooks to petticoats. It appears on suits for daytime and formal gowns for evening as well as on millinery and shoes. In fact, the zigzag line which it presents has become so essential to the mode that designers often arrange strips of cotton materials such as pique in points to resemble the braid.

The collar, which is made of rows of rickrack fagotted together, appears in many shapes on the neckwear counter. Leather belts that finish smart printed dresses are decorated with rows of the braid in contrasting color, while fabric belts employ shiny rickrack which looks like patent leather. Handbags created for summer use assume a quaint aspect because of its application, and footwear becomes more sophisticated because of its pointed trimming.

Precautionary

Your rubber hot-water bottle needs cleaning at regular intervals, especially if used without a cover. Dirt accumulates in an astonishing manner on the rubber. Clean it regularly. First, take a soft brush and scrub it all over with warm water and a flaked soap; then dry carefully with a cloth, but not before a fire. Finally, take a piece of soft rag or wool, dip it in a little oil, and wipe the rubber all over. This will keep the rubber in good condition.

Lloyd George Declares League A Failure, Its Sanctions a Sham; Ethiopia Was Its Last Chance

Great Britain, Fooled Once by France to the Benefit of Italy, He Says, Now Is Expected to Play Dupe in Rhineland Affair.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE
(World Copyright, 1936).
Former Prime Minister of Great Britain.

LONDON, April 25.

EUROPE hopes to solve its difficulties by pursuing a policy of waiting.

Britain is waiting. France is waiting. The League of Nations is waiting, but none of them has any vision of what will happen at the end of the waiting period.

The God of war alone is not waiting for the result of the French election. His armies are pressing onward in Ethiopia with remorseless purposes—his air fleets are still drenching villages with poison gas and destroying Red Cross hospitals without pausing for one hour to inquire which party is likely to win in France.

Everywhere else rearmament is proceeding with fevered activity. Britain has just been presented with a semi-war budget, with more than a hint that next year the war preparations will cost her more.

Berlin has been rejoicing over a display of war machinery, no doubt designed to convince her neighbors that Germany cannot any longer be invaded with impunity.

Confidence in League Gone.

France is retaining with the colors conscripts who ought to have been released into civilian life and the roads to her frontiers are blocked with men and munitions, hurrying in the direction where for centuries Frenchmen have always sought and found their battlefields.

Russia is making immense efforts to be overpoweringly ready for a struggle in the East and West—whichever comes first.

The smaller powers, naturally, are uneasy and they also are arming.

Great and small have lost confidence in the League. They neither trust nor fear it.

Austria has decided almost to treble the army which was allowed her by the treaty of St. Germain and she has already taken steps without the formality of a by-your-leave to the League.

Turkey wants to fortify the gateway to Constantinople, in spite of the Treaty of Lausanne. She has massed troops on the edge of the demilitarized zone. So far she has been polite to the League. Her messengers are standing in the halls of the covenant, caps in hand, awaiting permission to go forward. If they do not get it soon, what will they do? They will nevertheless, march.

Hungary and Bulgaria will follow.

'Sham of Sanctions.'

The sham of sanctions has brought the League into contempt, and now there are none so poor as to do it reverence.

For years it has been run by Pharisees and funks, their forehands and fronts plastered with phylacteries of peace, their hearts trembling lest they should be called on to act up to their sentiments. The more often it fails, the more conspicuous its display of sententious resolutions.

The phylacteries are now pinned on the back and front so one may read them every time the League turns and runs away.

The Ethiopian dispute was the League's best chance. I think it will also be its last.

Premier Mussolini, with unerring instinct, sized up the position and came to the conclusion he could defy it without risk of serious hurt.

When the League put on its armor nearly a year ago and threatened to visit with its wrath an act of aggression on Abyssinia, Mussolini never ceased for one instant the drive on with his preparations to conquer Abyssinia.

Never once did he think it worthwhile to put on his coat and attend a single meeting of the League which was arraigning him. He never thought it worth while to dissimulate his purpose in order to gain time. He knew that he could leave that part of the business to France. She could be depended upon to delude Britain into inaction.

And now what can the League do?

Conquest Slow Work.

Field Marshal Badoglio is pushing along a motor track to Addis Abada. In all probability he will be there before the tropical torrents start in earnest. It will not mean the complete conquest of Abyssinia. That may take years.

Mussolini knows it must take him a long time to establish complete control over a disorganized, undeveloped, trackless country like Abyssinia. Even Emperor Haile Selassie's authority over the provinces was largely nominal.

Rome took generations to occupy Britain and had not conquered the whole of it when its legions were forced to leave. It took us three years to occupy the Dutch republics of South Africa. Even then our conquests over vast plains were more nominal than real and we were wise to make terms with the Boers which practically restored their authority and their rule.

But once Mussolini is at Addis Ababa the Ethiopian Empire is dissolved and the Emperor will be a fugitive in the mountains.

And as to the League of Nations, it will then count as little as Heile Selassie. It may carry on guerilla war in the Alps, but its empire will have gone.

Thinks Italy Can Get Money.

Judging by the ingenuous propaganda doled out to the British press at Geneva to mitigate the discomfiture of our statesmanship, our hope now rests on the bankruptcy of Italy.

Il Duce will get Abyssinia, but he will have so loaded his country with debts incurred in its conquest that she will be too crushed to move on to enjoyment of her new possessions.

Bankruptcy, however, is an incentive and not a preventive to rapacity. The utter insolvency of Turkey never stopped her from raiding, plundering, and massacring the Armenians in their mountains and it will not stop Italy from bombing the Ethiopians in their hills.

Turkey could always negotiate loans even in countries that reprobated her misconduct. A foreign loan is only a question of the price Italy is prepared to pay brokers and investors. A little talk about prospective oil wells and paragraphs about hills glittering with mineral wealth will do the rest.

"Hooked Through the Gills."

France, having used the League for years to dodge its own pledges about disarmament whilst keeping Germany down and disarmed is talking about quitting.

Now that the League is making a show of attempting to translate into action the charter which brought it into existence, French statesmen are annoyed and threaten to leave. They intend to fall back on the system of military pacts and conventions against Germany which made war in 1914.

The British Government, having been fooled by former Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Flandin over Ethiopia, is once more allowing itself to be trapped over the Rhineland dispute.

The French have persuaded us that this is our heaven-sent opportunity to demonstrate the sincerity of our respect for treaties. Unless

Working Class Must Go Into Politics as Such

George Lansbury Expounds the Labor Movement

Organization the Watchword—Co-operatives the First Step

Distinguished Representative of Socialism in British Parliament Comes to This Country on Peace Mission.

He Would Have Britain, Russia and United States Form a New League of Nations on Economic Basis.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
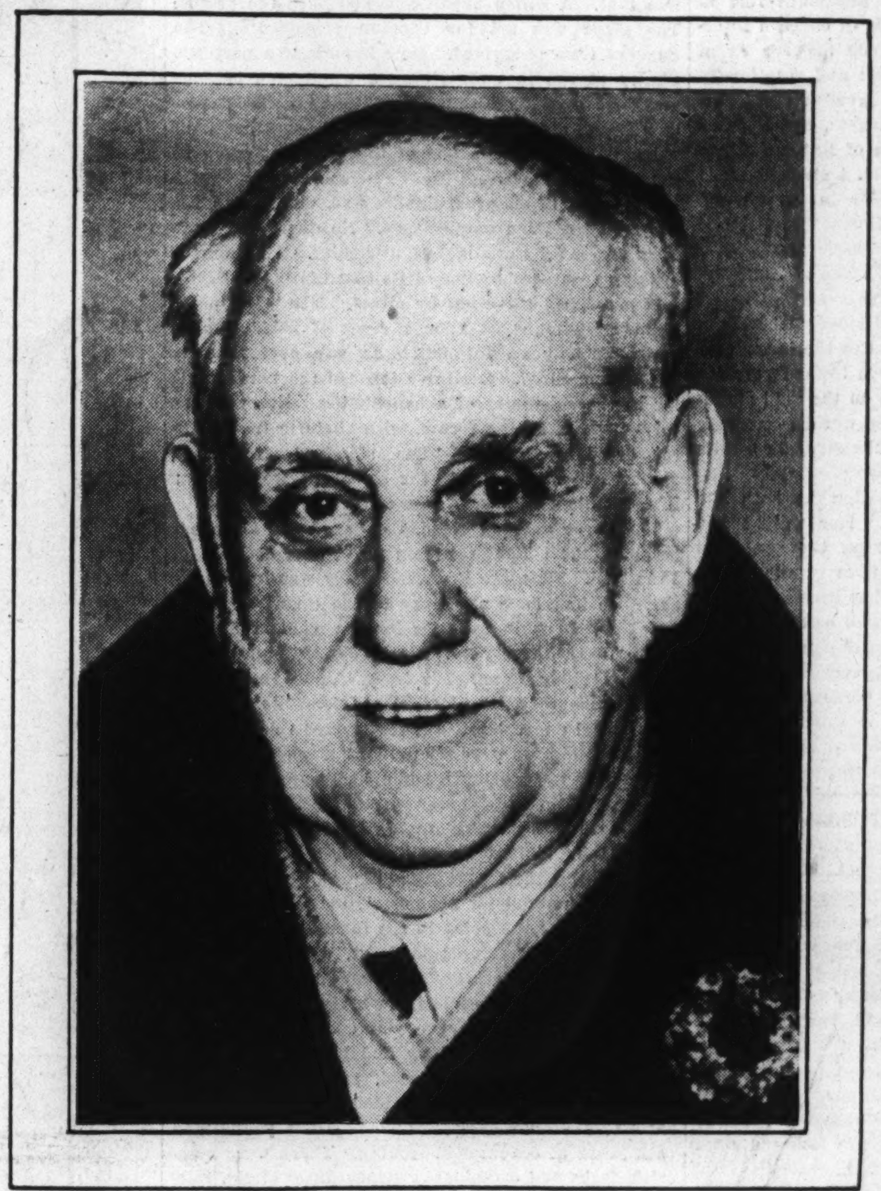
A Staff Corespondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 25.

THROUGH nearly 60 years of public life George Lansbury has fought greed, cruelty and human stupidity according to the light of his belief in Socialism and Christianity.

It has taken him into every kind of fight, from the rough and tumble brawling of popular electioneering in London to the embattled position of leader for the Labor party in a hostile House of Commons. It has brought him to this country, at the age of 77, to make a lecture tour for an ideal of peace that he offers to a cynical world without apology. He will speak in St. Louis next Sunday.

Above all Lansbury has kept an essential simplicity that is the center of the man himself and his beliefs. Goodness and sincerity fairly shine out of his big, square, pinkish face with the old-fashioned muttonchop whiskers. It is perhaps this that has won him so many friends, not only among those who agree with his views but among those who deeply oppose them.



GEORGE LANSBURY.

Quit as Party Head Rather Than Back Sanctions.

Following the line of his beliefs, Lansbury has never hesitated to sacrifice personal advantage for principle. He did that last fall, and he makes it plain it was not an easy thing to do, when he resigned as head of the British Labor party which he had done so much to create.

The issue was sanctions against Italy. A majority of the party favored enforcing such sanctions even though it might mean military action by the enforcing powers. Lansbury had always opposed war—the resort to force—and he would not accept the war-like implications in the sanctionist policy.

But also—and here his intellect and understanding are apparent—he foresaw and predicted in a speech at the Labor party conference in October of 1935 exactly where the sanctionist policy would lead. He argued that the Italian-Ethiopian War was a minor matter, a mere symptom of the general European crisis. If the Powers were drawn into a dispute over this minor quarrel, Germany, he predicted, would inevitably take advantage of the situation. Subsequent events, and particularly the remilitarization of the Rhineland, have borne out his prediction. The division between France and England over how to proceed against Italy, and the delay that resulted have certainly, in Lansbury's opinion, not advanced the cause of world peace.

Labor Party Divided Over World Crisis, He Says.

"There is a division in the ranks of the Labor party as a result of the world crisis, and a most unfortunate division," Lansbury said in an interview with the Post-Dispatch. "As a leader of the party I had to state the party's point of view but everyone knew I didn't agree with it.

"When we got to the point of Italian sanctions and the possibility that we might be plunged into war to uphold those sanctions, I felt I ought not to remain in that position. Still I couldn't screw up my courage to resign. And after I had resigned, there was a demand for me to withdraw my resignation. Sometimes in speaking in the House I would oppose sanctions, but I tried to make it plain that I spoke then not for the party but for myself. It was not fair to occupy such a dual position. In the election that followed I suppose I spoke more and worked harder than at any other election."

In the last election, according to Lansbury, the Conservatives made adroit political use of the world crisis. They referred to the Labor party as the "war party" because of the stand taken on sanctions.

Within the Labor Party, Lansbury says, are many, and particularly women, for whom pacifism is almost a religion. This is the source of the division within the party ranks. To these confirmed—one might almost say devout—pacifists, the whole sanctionist policy is obnoxious.

"But no permanent harm has been done," Lansbury said. "Whether we have war or not, the pacifist movement must grow and develop. You can't be a true Socialist without being an internationalist.

"And it must not be understood either that this division over sanctions has in any way altered or affected the ultimate objective of the Labor Party which is the socialization of the means of production in Great Britain."

Co-operative Societies Political Force in Britain.

Lansbury spoke, with the frankness for which he is noted, of the strength and weakness of the Labor Party. He discussed the political future of the party in relation to the co-operative movement in England, adding that he found that few people in this country realized how great was the political power of the co-operatives. The co-operative societies, which carry on about 55 per cent of all retail trade in Great Britain, are a powerful and coherently organized political force, Lansbury said.

"The Labor Party and the co-operative political party work together," he said. "They are more or less completely in accord. But is seems to me inevitable that one will absorb the other, or there will be a new combination of the two.

"There are some rivalries and difficulties now although the co-operative movement recognizes, of course, the importance of trade unionism and all employes of the co-operative societies are members of the Union of Distributors.

"All Socialists recognize that the co-operative movement is an important factor in the development toward Socialism. It is essential to learn the business of production and distribution and the co-operative movement affords the best method for that learning. It teaches the best methods for handling industries that have been socialized."

Disturbed Over Rise Of Bureaucracy in Party.

Both within the Labor Party and within the co-operative movement there has grown up—and it is obvious this disturbs George Lansbury even while he recognizes it as inevitable—a more or less firmly entrenched bureaucracy. First of all, he says, this bureaucracy makes for conservatism. The bureaucrats who direct the destinies of these two great organizations have a vested interest in maintaining the status quo. To a certain degree, says this candid old man, they suffer from the disease of office holding which is the fixed desire to perpetuate oneself in office.

"Of course, the Labor Party feels under the necessity of suppressing the disintegrating forces within it. It is inevitable that a bureaucracy of this sort must be terrifically powerful. Democracy has not yet discovered how to function as a democracy. I suppose it gets down to that.

"We have not yet discovered how to leave freedom for the individual even though his views are opposed to the majority. Unless we can develop a system under which it will be possible to have freedom of action, freedom to be able to organize against a policy, democracy will be destroyed.

"Oh, I can understand why party discipline is necessary. In the House of Commons, for example, why it is necessary to vote with the party. The choice is to abstain from voting and on vital issues where a change in Government may turn on a few votes it is even a kind of disloyalty to refrain from voting. I can understand that but I don't like that."

In what Lansbury says there is the sense of an understanding which has come out of long experience rather than formal knowledge. He is almost entirely self-educated, his only formal study consisting of a few years in his boyhood when he attended a "Dames" school. His father was a railroad timekeeper, they were a large family familiar with poverty if not actual want.

Labor Party Essential In a Democracy He Thinks

Asked for his view on the development of a labor party in the United States, Lansbury said he would not have the "cheek" to advise another country and particularly one so dissimilar to Great Britain. But with this modest preface, he went on:

"A labor party is essential in every democratic country governed by parliamentary methods. Labor has a point of view which can be put only by labor's own spokesmen. The Labor party in Great Britain has been the greatest bulwark, for good or evil, against bloody revolution. I say 'for good or evil' because it's not all good and it's not all evil. Having our own fellows there in the House of Commons gives the masses a feeling that they have a voice—a genuine voice. I say it in all modesty because it's my own country, my own people, but I believe the working class in England is the best educated working class in the world.

"And it's because they've learned how to organize. That's the reason for it. First they organized into friendly societies of one kind or another with an educational aim. Then they organized into co-operatives, and last of all they organized politically, on both a national and a local basis.

"I believe the proportion of politically minded and socially minded men and women is greater in Great Britain than anywhere else in the world. And it's all because we began quite early to organize. What we have

What Will Second Deal Be Like, Taking Roosevelt's Re-Election for Granted?

Democrats Confident and Even Some G. O. P. Politicians Rate 1936 Campaign Mere Maneuver for Position in 1940.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 25.

PREPARATIONS for the national quadrennial political demonstrations of 1936 are almost completed. The Republican generals met in Cleveland this week and surveyed the terrain where they will probably nominate Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas as their presidential candidate. Their Democratic prototypes, called the Committee on Arrangements, met in Philadelphia today to devise schemes to keep the Democratic convention going several days until they nominate Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner for re-election on a second deal platform drafted in the White House.

With the Democrats jubilant with confidence and with many important Republicans privately and resignedly conceding defeat, the public battle for votes will be continued until the November elections, accompanied by the usual red fire, attacks and counter-attacks and doubtless a deal of oratorical poison gas. If the present trend prevails and there is no unforseen accident or scandal, practical politicians both Democratic and Republican believe that the most that can be said for the Republican party in the 1936 campaign is that it will be a tactical maneuver for position in 1940—in which year the party managers expect to win.

That the President will be re-elected is taken for granted in high political and business circles and business men are now asking their Washington advisers: "What will Roosevelt do in his second term?" The reasoning behind this belief, whether or not it is well founded, is not hard to understand.

On the one hand, there are the disciplined Democratic forces, well organized despite the fact that they contain such diverse elements as Southern conservatives like Carter Glass, old line political bosses, such as Pendergast of Missouri, Kelly and Nash of Chicago, Guffey of Pennsylvania and Curley of Boston, former Progressive Republicans, and even Progressive Republicans and the millions on Federal relief. On the other hand, there is a disorganized Republican party, well financed to be sure, but with the leaders fighting among themselves, and with the voters apathetic about the leading candidate who was virtually unknown two years ago outside his state of Kansas.

When Hoover Struck Out.

At this time four years ago President Hoover was virtually already out although still in. There were two strikes on him—the depression and his prohibition stand—before the Democrats nominated Roosevelt. The Roosevelt promises of a New Deal, and "a more abundant life," struck him out.

This year prohibition is not an issue—it may be in 1940—and the unemployed, supported by the Federal Government, will in general vote with the administration rather than against it as they did in 1932. The Roosevelt opposition this year is from the direct taxpayers—a small percentage of the total electorate. In fact there are about five times as many persons on relief as on Federal income tax rolls.

Shrewd Republican leaders in the Senate and House, men who make politics a profession, privately admit that their party has virtually no chance of success in November, and to make the best of a hopeless situation, they are looking to 1940. Their public utterances predicting success are mere exhortations to keep up the morale of the habitual Republican voter and local party workers. The same attitude is found among important business men, bankers and industrialists. These far-seeing ones are contributing to the Republican campaign fund, even before the convention, but chiefly to keep the party machinery functioning until 1940.

"You Can't Beat $5,000,000,000."

The Democrats are not exactly happy over their campaign contributions and have had to resort to $50-a-plate dinners and profit making dances to get funds. They expect, however, to collect heavily after the Philadelphia convention. As one Democratic leader recently said, the Democrats may not get a contribution from the presidents of the big automobile companies but after the convention, some of the well-to-do vice-presidents will send in their money—just to be on the safe side.

The Republicans charge, and many of the local Democratic leaders blandly admit, that the government relief funds are and will be used for political purposes. Boss Tom Pendergast put it quite succinctly when he told a visiting French journalist in New York some time ago: "You can't beat $5,000,000,000."

To this practical statement, former Gov. Ely of Massachusetts, and anti-Roosevelt Democrat, in making a similar observation has added: "And a man is a fool to try."

Forecast on Platforms.

The Republican leaders have planned in the orthodox way for their part of the proceedings. At Cleveland, they selected Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon for the convention keynoter. To balance this western selection they chose House minority leader Bertrand H. Snell of upstate New York as the permanent chairman. If Landon has the votes, and at present it looks as if he will have the nomination "in the bag" before the convention opens, William Allen White of Kansas, will be chairman of the platform committee.

White has been touring the Middle West and East for the last two weeks trying to learn what important Republicans want in the platform. Chairman Fletcher has announced that the researches of his professoriate will be available for the platform builders. The final platform will certainly demand curtailment of Federal expenditures, and probably view with alarm most of the official acts of the New Deal.

The Democratic leaders and the Democratic platform will point with pride to increased national income — but say not so much about Federal spending — will gloss over the unemployment problem, promise to continue aid for agriculture and view with alarm the administrations of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

Prediction Still Stands.

In November, last, it was said in these dispatches:

"One year from today, Nov. 2, 1936, the country will be on the literal eve of a presidential election. If one can judge from the present evidence, the Democratic posters for the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt will ask the voters: 'Are you better off today than you were in 1932?' The attacking slogan in behalf of the as yet unknown Republican candidate probably will be something like this: 'Turn the spendthrifts out!'"

Nothing has happened during the intervening five months to change that anticipation. The latest Republican propaganda is a picture of Washington and Taft which says that the Federal Government spent only $24,000,000,000 during the first 124 years of existence, yet $30,000,000,000 had been appropriated during the first three years of the Roosevelt administration. On the Democratic

Chief Justice Ryan's Prophecy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial, "As Abraham Lincoln said—," brings to mind a statement strikingly similar to that erroneously attributed to Lincoln, quoted by James Truslow Adams on page 297 of his "Epic of America":

In 1873, the Chief Justice of Wisconsin, Edward G. Ryan, one of the abler leaders of the West in that period, posed the problem clearly in his address to the graduating class, at the university in his State.

"There is looming up," he said, "a new and dark power. I cannot dwell upon the signs and shocking omens of its advent. The accumulation of individual wealth seems to be greater than it ever has been since the downfall of the Roman Empire. The enterprises of the country are aggregating vast corporate combinations of unexampled capital, boldly marching not for economic conquests only, but for political power. For the first time in our politics, money is taking the field as an organized power. . . . The question will arise, and arise in your day though perhaps not fully in mine, Which shall rule — wealth or man; which shall lead—money or intellect; who shall fill public stations—educated and patriotic free men, or the feudal serfs of corporate capital?"

And the learned Chief Justice never even dreamed of munitioneers gayly promoting wars; of industrial espionage whose agents sabotage machinery and promote strikes to prove their usefulness; of tear gas and machine guns for employes; and the flood of money spent through organizations to keep wages down, so that the consumers cannot buy more goods to yield profits in turn for the employer.

PLATO JR.

Lord Macaulay Said It First.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DIDN'T Sir Willmott Lewis, American correspondent of the London Times, slip up a bit when in his address at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press in New York, he said: "Remember that the day on which Macaulay pointed to the reporters' gallery and declared that there would be found a fourth estate is infinitely remote from us"?

When I, a boy from Kentucky, attended school in Scotland, it was Thomas Carlyle and not Thomas Babington Macaulay who was credited with making this prophecy.

Sir Willmott seems to think journalism has advanced since then, when he declares: "The press is no longer fourth in the hierarchy of national powers—it is hardly less than the first in the sweep and continuity of its influence. It is affected with public interest to a degree greater even than a common carrier, for it does not transport the bodies or the goods of men, it plays ceaselessly on the minds of men."

JAMES C. MOFFET.

Louisville, Ky.

Sir Willmott is correct. Lord Macaulay termed the press "the fourth estate" in 1828; nine years later, the phrase was used by Thomas Carlyle.—Editor's Note.

Disagrees With Mr. Pinchot.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

GIFFORD PINCHOT has informed your readers just how the Republicans can win the next election. But if the Republicans nominate a "progressive" on a New Deal platform, would the lost "progressives" desert the Roosevelt organization and return to their former love? What would become of the 17,000,000 conservative Republicans? Does Mr. Pinchot think for a minute that they would vote for a New Deal platform supported by a Republican half-breed?

He speaks of progressivism, liberalism and social security as things to be desired in a new platform and advocated by the candidate to be nominated. These are generally used as sugar-coated pills to induce public reception of vicious legislation which makes goats of the unorganized masses. We have been taxed till black in the face to provide bonuses for commercial "farmers" for not producing an adequate supply of food; the consumers are to pay tribute to the coal barons to pay higher wages and larger profits to the producers; the oil monopoly increased prices to provide an "adequate income"; the gold speculators are waxing fat on gold sold to the Government; the silver monopoly is prospering on sales to the Government.

The administration has driven the dagger deeper by providing for old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and bonuses for war veterans and by increasing the income of special groups. It has prohibited the youth of the land from acquiring a practical education in workshops and factories and is thus turning them out upon the world with the doors to opportunity closed.

The bonuses, pensions and taxes are not paid by Wall Street. They are paid by the gainfully occupied citizens, representing 65,000,000 of the population. "Progressive" legislation degenerates into a racket.

STERLING P. KING.

A CRUCIAL ELECTION IN FRANCE.

France today is holding a parliamentary election of crucial importance. A new Chamber of Deputies, with 615 members, is to be chosen from among 4807 candidates. The French multi-party system makes for an exceedingly complicated procedure, so that the verdict of the voters will not be fully known until after next Sunday, when run-off elections will decide the outcome in districts where no candidate polls a clear majority.

There were 18 parties and 42 unattached Deputies in the Chamber whose term recently expired. There are a multitude of issues before the voters. The parties, however, group themselves into three major factions: Left, Center and Right. And the issues simmer down to two of paramount urgency: the peace question and the economic question.

The parties of the Left, united in the "People's Front," take a strong stand against war and Fascism. By virtue of their co-operation, they predominated in the old Chamber with 314 seats, a majority. Unless recent international developments cause an upset, they are expected to triumph in the elections.

The Rhineland crisis plays an important role in the election, so that the outcome is of concern internationally as well as at home. The People's Front stands firmly against the militarist and reactionary elements that urge a "preventive war" against Hitler. While favoring defense measures, the People's Front would rely upon the League of Nations rather than upon force to solve the problem. A strong Fascist group, the Croix de Feu, has arisen in France and is aligned with the Rightist faction. The People's Front insists upon retaining democratic processes.

The fate of the franc is also at stake in this election. All parties are pledged to "protect the franc," but opinion on how to do this is divided. The Right would remain on the gold standard to the bitter end. The Left would probably take steps toward revaluation. France's struggle to remain on the gold standard has had an effect on the whole world's economic structure. The future course of the struggle awaits the outcome of the election.

France occupies a pivotal position in both the Ethiopian and Rhineland crises. Her weight has lately been thrown toward relaxing the sanctions imposed on Italy, and toward a firm stand against Germany. The Rhineland debate has been suspended during the campaign, and it may well be that France will show a more amenable disposition in this matter if the Peoples's Front is decisively victorious.

Issues that extend beyond the borders of France are at stake in the election. For this reason, its outcome will be watched with concern by the other Powers.

DR. SHEAHAN RESORTS TO TECHNICALITY.

Dr. Edwin L. Sheahan, superintendent of the St. Louis County Hospital, freely accepted the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court when the ouster suit against him was filed, but now that the decision has gone against him, he is appealing to the Supreme Court on the plea that only the County Court is authorized to pass upon his fitness as head of the County Hospital. Accordingly, Prosecuting Attorney Anderson and Judge Witthaus are to be served with notice of Dr. Sheahan's intention to apply for a writ of prohibition against the ouster proceedings. This latest legal maneuver is of a piece with the whole unhappy course that the hospital situation has followed since Dr. Sheahan was reinstated last fall.

Two grand juries have denounced his administration of the hospital. Numerous protest meetings have been held. A jury in Circuit Court passed upon the case after hearing sheaves of evidence. The hospital itself has lost many of its most competent staff members.

What makes it worse is that the situation could be cured within 24 hours but for the obstinacy of two men—County Judges Thatcher and Wohlschlaeger. The third member of the County Court—Judge Tighe—stands ready at any moment to remove Dr. Sheahan. He has repeatedly offered motions to this effect, but his colleagues, in utter contempt of public opinion, refuse to go along with him.

Meantime, what county taxpayers a few years ago hailed proudly as a fine million-dollar investment for treatment of the sick continues to be the background for an unseemly political quarrel.

PHILANTHROPY AT ITS BEST.

There can be nothing but high praise for Addison H. Gibson's love of humankind and the wise way in which he elected to demonstrate it to the world. When his will was filed for probate in Pittsburgh last week, it was disclosed that the 75-year-old oil millionaire had left by far the greater part of his fortune to provide impoverished sick persons with medical care and deserving young men with funds to obtain an education.

But it is not only that the ends which Mr. Gibson chose to serve are among the best. The means by which he arranged to distribute his fortune to society are equally praiseworthy. The will states explicitly that the trustees designated to administer the trust fund shall have the right to use their own judgment in spending the money.

Thus, while the benefactor hoped that the needy of his native area of Western Pennsylvania might receive special attention, he had the wisdom not to "limit my trustees to such persons." Similarly, he gave them the freedom to donate income to hospitals and other institutions furnishing medical aid, although expressing the hope that for the most part aid would be given directly to individuals.

This commendable latitude means that no dead hand will control the fund in years to come. St. Louisans should know, perhaps above all others, what a mistake is the iron-bound bequest. It was an early resident of this city, Bryan Mullanphy, who in 1849 decreed that one-third of his fortune should remain as a fund "to furnish relief to all poor emigrants and travelers coming to St. Louis, on their way, bona fide, to settle in the West." Little did he foresee how difficult would become the use of his fund in accordance with those narrow conditions. Fortunately, in recent years new standards of philanthropy have been established by the late Julius Rosenwald, Chicago merchant. He had the wisdom to make his bequests without involving them in unfortunate and unalterable restrictions. It is his enlightened example which Mr. Gibson had the good judgment to follow.

Mr. Gibson's life is a typical American success story, and his philanthropy is philanthropy at its best. What he has done would be inspiring in any day, but, like Portia's quality of mercy, which falls as the gentle rain from heaven, it is twice times blessed in a time of widespread want and distress such as our own.

FINLEY PETER DUNNE.

In a broad Irish brogue, Martin Dooley discoursed on the state of the Union with his friend "Hinnissy." Born of an editor's need to brighten his newspaper, the illiterate saloonkeeper, Mr. Dooley, spoke with the wisdom of Plato and the wit of Aristophanes, and Chicago listened to every word. If here and there a bubble were punctured, it was just a pause in a city's gales of laughter.

Rich and big and powerful as Chicago had come to be, this philosopher who had captivated the town was bigger. The whole country presently was hanging on his utterances, and Martin Dooley became Mr. Dooley, and Mr. Dooley became "The Sage of Archey Road," and Finley Peter Dunne, in the fulfillment of scriptural prophecy, "stood before kings."

All that was in the faraway '90s. The shadow of hard times darkened the land. Economic disaster had left a tragic trail. The temper of the nation was taut. A sullen hopelessness gripped the people. The stage was set for Utopian proponents. The Panacea Guards arrived. How important a part Mr. Dooley played in maintaining a wholesome balance may be a matter of speculation. But his virile common sense, clothed always in humor, flung out with naive impudence, was one of the brightest spots in the darkling skies.

The secret of his pre-eminence was, we suppose, his serene, untroubled omniscience. No question of the hour presented the slightest difficulty. The enigma of money was having one of its best tantrums. Bryan was preaching salvation by silver. His "thou shalt not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold" was to many as holy an injunction as was ever brought down from Sinai. McKinley intoned the honest dollar in the solemnity of a benediction. Every street corner was a raging forum, with rhetoric frequently reinforced by violence. "The standard of value," observed Mr. Dooley, "is the same the world over; fifteen cints a dhrink, two for a quarter."

The great ones of his day engaged his attention betimes. The Rough Riders had charged up San Juan Hill. Theodore Roosevelt's star was in ascendant. He had done a history of the Spanish-American War. Dropping politics for the moment to consider "literachure," Mr. Dooley earnestly recommended "Tiddy Rosenfeld's book—Alone in Cubia." The commentary inaugurated a friendship between the Colonel and the critic that survived the years.

The Philippines were a long, long way from Archey Road, and international trade had posed legal involvements that had never vexed the operations of that mythical Chicago tavern. Litigation finally reached our highest tribunal, framed in impressive pattern. Did the Constitution follow the flag? Mr. Dooley stammered for a moment, but quickly recovered to resolve the point in the terminology of practical politics: "The Supreme Court," he averred, "follows the illiction returns." So down to the century's turn he regularly preached a weekly sermon in the Sunday papers which gave young and old America gems to read and memorize and gleefully quote.

The fund of humor, shrewd, penetrating, kindly, with never a bitter thrust, suddenly ceased when the author left Chicago for New York, still a young man with years of conquest beckoning. There were magazine desks and occasional reappearances of Mr. Dooley, with editors everywhere begging for his copy, but the spell of Archey Road somehow never was transplanted. Motorized America knew him only as a brilliant tradition. The horse-and-buggy age, as it clopped into oblivion, held Finley Peter Dunne fast to its heart.

CHEER FOR LOUIE.

You'd think the fellow had cut off his grandmother's ears or something equally monstrous, but it develops that all he did was to miss a fly ball. He missed the ball because the sun was in his eyes and he couldn't see it. A man can't catch what he can't see. We are referring, of course, to unfortunate Louie Scoffic, who played right field the other day for the Cardinals and will soon, according to the prophets, be in a more congenial atmosphere where a missed fly ball does not transgress the penal code or violate a single one of the seven capital sins. As Shakespeare said: "What's a missed fly ball to Hecuba?" Take Steinmetz or Thomas Edison or John Keats or Julius Caesar. None of them would have been worth a dime in right field. And that goes for Aristotle, Peter the Hermit and Queen Victoria. So, Louie, after all, is in good company.

BRITISH INCOME TAXES GO UP.

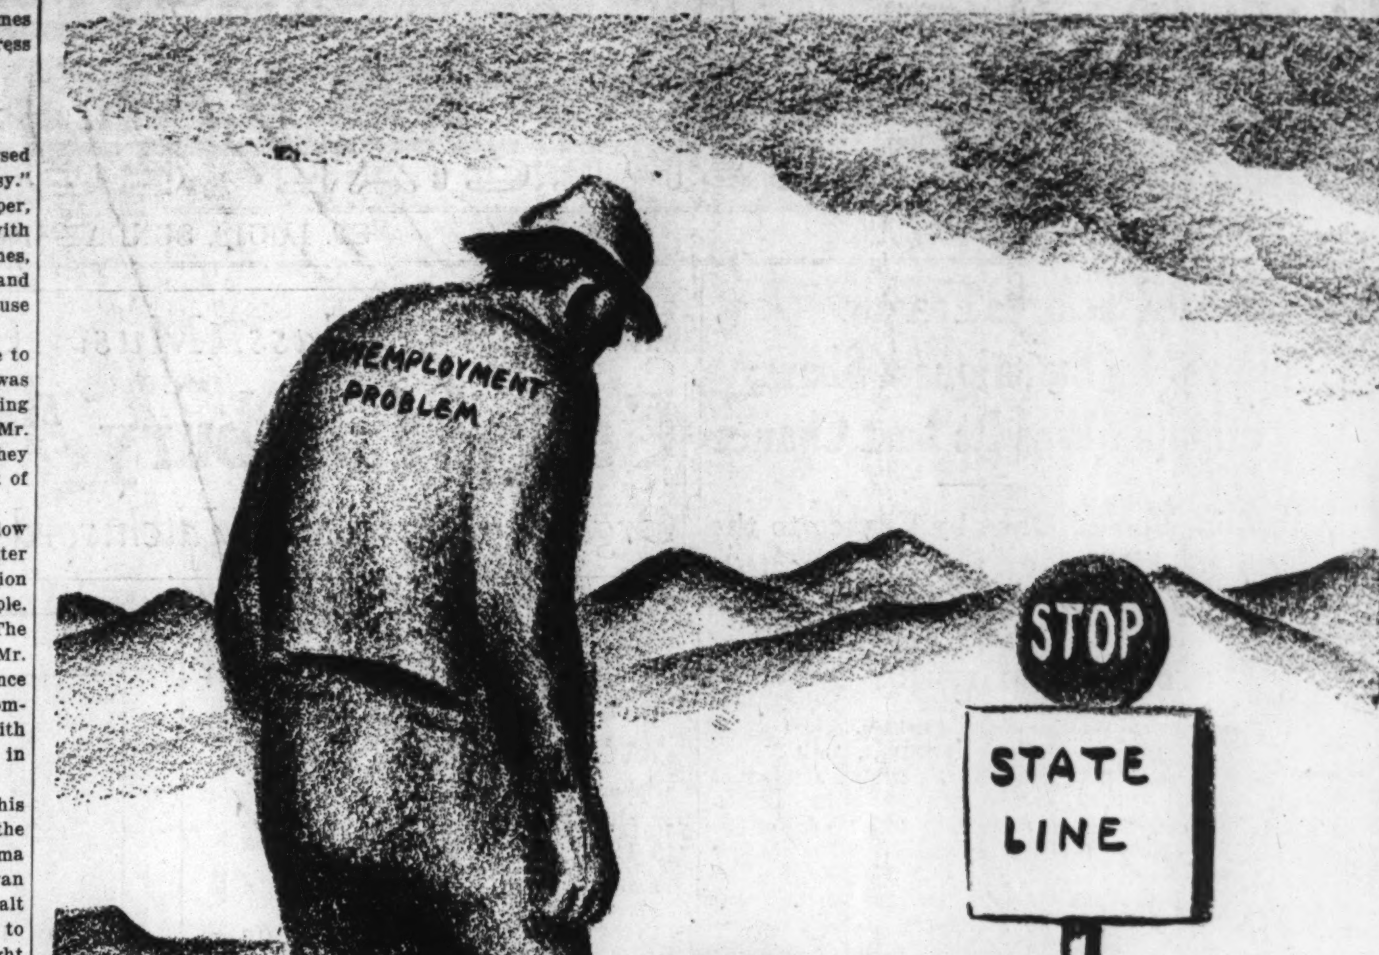
Britain is rearming, and rearmament costs money, so taxes must be increased. That is the gist of the budget message just delivered by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Everyone must help bear the burden, he said; the wealthy and middle-income groups by higher income taxes, and the poor by a 50 per cent increase in the tax on tea, bringing it to 12 cents a pound.

When Americans consider what the British now pay in income tax, as contrasted with the payments here, they will realize what an increase in the rate means. The basic British rate now is 4 shillings 6 pence in the pound. Under the new schedule, it will be raised to 4 shillings 9 pence in the pound, or 23¾ per cent. The rate in the lower brackets in this country is 4 per cent. The Englishman who earns $5000 a year and has three children now will pay about $760, as compared with a payment of $52 by an American correspondingly situated.

The revised provisions for family exemptions in the new British schedule, which Sir Neville recommends to sweeten his bitter pill, heighten the contrast. The British allowance for a married man will be increased from $850 to $900; in the United States, it is $2500. The British allowance for dependents will be increased from $250 to $300 each; in the United States, it is $400.

The British income tax is also far more broadly inclusive than that in this country. About 8,400,000 Englishmen make returns annually, as compared with about 3,400,000 Americans, though our population is about three times as great as that of England.

One result of these differences is that the Englishman is far more tax-conscious than the American. Britons feel the cost of rearmament immediately and directly, in their income tax returns. The costs of government are borne only indirectly by millions of Americans, which means they are felt scarcely at all. We may be glad that our rates do not approach the British heights, but there is much to be said for a system that makes the citizen tax-conscious.



THE NEW WESTERN FRONTIER.

A State's Experiment Is Upheld

New York Court of Appeals decision, upholding unemployment insurance law, encourages the states to seek their own solutions to social problems, writer says; ruling carries out Lord Bryce's view that U. S. has 48 laboratories experimenting in government; inspires hope that Federal intervention will not be necessary.

From the Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

BY its decision upholding the constitutionality of the New York State unemployment insurance law, the Court of Appeals has made it possible for this State to press forward in its efforts to deal with a great social problem. At the same time, other states should be encouraged to pass similar legislation so that a beginning can be made in finding an intelligent approach to the national problem of unemployment relief.

The majority opinion of the court, written by Chief Judge Frederick E. Crane, is clearly reasoned and should do much to remove misunderstandings as to the State's constitutional powers to meet social crises. That was the real question before the court, in the view of Judge Crane, who said:

"What shall we say about this act? At least it is an attempt to solve a great and pressing problem in government. . . . Unless there is something radically wrong, striking at the very fundamentals of constitutional government, courts should not interfere with these attempts in the exercise of the reserve power of the State to meet dangers which threaten the entire commonweal and affect every home."

After examining the provisions of the law and the objections raised against them, Judge Crane conceded that experience might show that mistakes had been made. The court was not passing on the merits of this specific plan to deal with unemployment. The law was regarded as experimental; the chief concern of the court was to determine if the Legislature had the power to make an effort to meet an unemployment crisis in future by taxing employers to build up a reserve fund. This, the court decided, was within the power of the State.

The implications in this opinion are very broad. Since the depression, many efforts have been made by the states and by the Federal Government to deal with the new problems created. New York has been in the forefront of the states in attempting to remedy such conditions by law. Some of the laws passed by Congress have been set aside on the ground that the Federal Government had invaded the realm of states' rights. Here, however, we have a situation in which the State is trying to solve a problem that the Federal Government has been unable to deal with effectively.

We have traveled a long way since the decision of the Supreme Court when the State of Oklahoma was denied the power to experiment in regulating the ice business by refusing a license to a plant which the State ruled was unnecessary. That was the case in which Associate Justice Brandeis ended his minority opinion with the striking declaration that "if we are to be guided by the light of reason, we must let our minds be bold." Since then, notably in the Minnesota mortgage moratorium case and in the New York milk laws, the Supreme Court has upheld the right of the states to try to find solutions of such problems.

Judge Crane's opinion and the Court of Appeals' decision in the job insurance law would seem to be in line with these more recent rulings by the Supreme Court. This is heartening. We have so many vital local, state and national problems pressing for solution that legal confusion should be reduced as much as possible.

Much of the controversy over the constitutional powers of Congress would be unnecessary if states would follow the example of New York and try to find remedies for conditions. Lord Bryce once said that this Government would probably endure longer than any other because the 48 states are so many laboratories seeking to solve the great problems of government.

The New York State unemployment insurance law is merely an experiment. So is all government. That the law is defective in many particulars is the belief of many experts who have studied it. But these defects can be remedied. What is important at the moment is that the highest court in the State has said that the Legislature is well within its rights in making the effort to meet this problem of unemployment.

If we are ever to have greater social security in this country, it must come by the trial-and-error method. In the long run, if the states fail, the Federal Government must step in. And if the fundamental laws of the states and the nation stand in the way of efforts in this direction, they will have to be changed.

The Court of Appeals in this decision encourages the hope that there is enough flexibility in the fundamental law to permit far more effort than has yet been made to deal with social problems without altering constitutions.

Loans and Foreign Policy

From the Living Age.

THE connections between foreign policy and foreign loans go far toward accounting for the whole crazy drift of world affairs in recent years. Because British banks and investors hold £42,000,000 in long-term German credits and held £70,000,000 in short-term credits in 1931, the British Foreign Office has treated Hitler far more tolerantly than it has Mussolini, whose Government owes only £2,000,000 to England.

In like manner, the £240,000,000 of British investments in China lie outside the "sphere of influence" that Japan has claimed up to now; also, the Japanese have raised some £38,000,000 in England since the war, bringing the total amount of Japanese loans in London to some £80,000,000.

But if the British Foreign Office has shown every consideration for Germany and Japan, it may presently be expected to treat France and the Soviet Union more kindly. For many of the same British bankers who were pouring money into Germany before 1931 have now arranged a loan of £40,000,000 to France. This credit will enable the French to lend to the Russians, who will turn round and spend the money purchasing French products. Yet when the Russians approached the British bankers with the same proposition, they were turned down.

Phantom Taxes

From the New York World-Telegram.

WHILE Congress is busy trying to put some new taxes on the statute books, it might well undertake to get more revenue out of taxes already on the books.

For instance, the high income tax rates in the upper brackets, ranging to a maximum of 79 per cent, look very impressive in the statutes, but not so impressive in the tax collector's cash register. One reason for this is that the upper bracket taxpayer turns his surplus into tax-exempt investments. He does so because he can net more profit thereby.

A million dollars invested in 3 per cent bonds wholly tax-exempt will net a tax-free income of $30,000. If the owner of that million dollars happens to be paying income taxes in the topmost bracket, where could he possibly find a private investment sure to yield an equally high net return? Even if a private investment offered a 14 per cent return, he would not risk it, because, out of that problematical $140,000 gross return, the Government would take 79 per cent—$110,600—leaving him a net of only $29,400.

What can be done about it? One obvious suggestion is that the high phantom rates be written down to more realistic and more productive rates. Another is that a constitutional amendment be pressed, eliminating tax exemption.

Another instance of phantom taxation can be found in the estate tax laws. Here the principal difficulty is not due to excessive rates or to tax-avoidance loopholes. It is due to the cash-on-demand policy of collection. When an estate consists of lands or buildings, or a business, or a combination of such frozen properties, it cannot be easily liquidated into cash to pay the tax collector.

As a consequence, if the tax collector's demand for cash comes in a period of depression, the trustees of such an estate have no alternative except to put the properties through forced sales or seek the mercy of some banker. In either case, the result usually is a deflation in the value of the estate and a deflation in revenue realized by the Government.

An orderly system of collecting such taxes on an installment plan over a period of years would permit businesslike operation and liquidation of estates, and would, we believe, also enable the Government to get much more revenue in the long run.

WASHINGTON TO HIS TAILOR.

From the London Times.

IN 1782, Washington's campaigns were over, but he had seen strenuous service, and he had been, since the French alliance of 1778, much in the company of officers renowned for their elegance. The effects of attrition combined with the desire for emulation; Washington wrote for a new pair of trousers. The letter has only just come to light.

No man, proverbially, is a hero to his valet; and very few are tyrants to their tailors. But the American patriot, it is clear, belonged to this formidable and fortunate minority. The phrases in which he commissions his friend to order the garments are incisive and well chosen.

"I shall thank you for reiterating my request that they be made roomy in the seat." ". . . The measure enclosed is the size I would have, not what they could be brought to by stretching.'" How far-sighted! And how enviably firm! In many of us, long and despicably accustomed to accept the sugared assurance that "you'll find they ease a lot, sir, when you come to wear them." Washington's words prompt a faint stirring of shame, a tardy recognition of our abjectness.

REARMED GERMANY A MAJOR ISSUE

Run-off Balloting Next Sunday Where Candidate Fails of Majority—How Parties Line Up.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 25.—Political leaders prophesied tonight that national balloting tomorrow would result in a slight swing to the Left in the composition of a new Chamber of Deputies.

Tomorrow's balloting will be the first voting for new Deputies to cope with economic troubles and the danger of war.

Overshadowing the election is the anxiety over Germany's rearmament and reoccupation of the Rhineland and Italy's war on Ethiopia.

Unrest and discontent over the continued economic depression figure largely too in the campaign, the main issue has been "national safety and bread," which is another way of saying "peace and plenty."

For the 615 seats in the chamber to be filled for a four year term, there is the record number of 4807 candidates. Not all the seats will be filled tomorrow. A candidate in the first vote must obtain more than half the votes in his district to be elected. In districts where the race is close tomorrow, run-off elections next Sunday will decide the winner.

Premier Sarraut tonight called on the nation in a radio speech to "rejuvenate" France by electing "thoughtful" men to Parliament. He asked for an orderly election to "impress foreign nations, especially those countries where our discords are counted on to favor their scarcely friendly intentions."

Political forecasters, even in the Right wing, predict a further swing to the Left, where the People's Front, composed of Communists, Socialists and Radical-Socialists has concentrated those forces.

On the other hand, some expect the Moderate Center to expand at the expense of both the Right (Conservative) and the Left.

What Victory Means.

The victorious majority will control France's government. Not only does the majority in the Chamber of Deputies determine who shall govern France, it holds sway over the Cabinet's policies, with power to overthrow the Government if the Chamber is displeased.

The main fight, therefore, is between the parties of the People's Front and the rest, particularly the nationalistic conservatives of the National Front.

The Rightists have campaigned for authoritative government stability of Cabinets—there have been 11 Cabinets in teh past four years—and limitation of the powers of Parliament.

The Leftist faction declares "against Fascism, war and depression," Fascism being the Leftist term for its conservative opponents. The Leftists also have attacked the "money powers."

The Croix de Feu forces of Lieut. Col. Francois de La Rocque are nationalistic in tone, although La Rocque denies they stand for Fascism or Hitlerism. The Croix de Feu has more than 700,000 members. The organization has no candidates but its members have been instructed to support Nationalists.

Strength of Various Parties.

The alignment of parties is shown in the following distribution of seats in the outgoing chamber:

Rightist parties: Independents, 10; Republican and Socialist, 14; Economic Action, 5; Republican Federation, 41; Republican Center, 31; total, 101.

PSYCHIARISTS MEET HERE MAY 4 TO 8

Program of Papers on Studies of Mind and Reaction of Emotion to Disease.

The latest reports of investigation and experimentation in the study of the human mind, nerves and emotions will be presented at the ninety-second annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association at Hotel Jefferson from May 4 through May 8. The society has 1800 members, fellows and associate members.

Particular significance is attached to the joint report of a group of psychiatrists from the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, who for six years have been studying emotional factors in such diseases as arthritis, diabetes and chronic heart conditions. The papers will be read at 2 p. m. Tuesday, May 5.

Behavior Disorders.

Recent developments in the study of epilepsy and the medico-legal aspects of psychiatry will be presented at meetings of the sections on convulsive disorders and forensic psychiatry on Monday, May 4. Dr. Baldwin L. Keyes of Philadelphia will talk on capital punishment of children. A report on glandular deficiencies in children with behavior disorders will be given by Dr. Mathew Molitch of Jamesburg, N. J. A group from Bellevue Psychiatric Hospital, New York, will tell of studies of aggressive criminals, and Dr. Cornelius C. Wholey of Pittsburgh will describe results of examinations of 200 mentally ill prisoners.

The meeting will be opened formally Tuesday morning with addresses of welcome by Dr. E. Lee Cady, president of the St. Louis Medical Society; Dr. W. McKim Marriott, dean of the Washington University School of Medicine, and the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine.

"Difficulties of Being Normal."

Among papers to be read Tuesday afternoon will be one on "The Difficulties of Being 'Normal,'" by Dr. L. W. Darrah of the Gardner State Colony, Massachusetts; another on the relation between social heritage and biological impulses by Dr. David Harold Fink of San Francisco, and a discussion of the female sex hormone in relation to melancholia, by Dr. Carroll C. Carlson of Topeka, Kan.

A joint session with the American Psychoanalytic Association will be held Wednesday morning. Dr. Clarence P. Oberndorf of New York will analyze the influence of Sigmund Freud; Dr. Lewis B. Hill of Baltimore will tell of experiments in the treatment of the psychotic ego; Dr. Thomas M. French of Chicago will discuss dreams in relation to reality, and Dr. Gregory Zilboorg of New York, "Neuroses and Anti-Social Behavior."

Hypnotic Experiments.

Among various therapies reported Wednesday morning will be experimentation in hypnotic treatments, by Dr. Milton H. Erickson of Eloise Hospital, Michigan, and Dr. James L. McCartney of Albany, N. Y., in drugs to relieve post-operative pain and restlessness, by Dr. Thomas J. Heldt of the Ford Hospital, Detroit, and in music in mental hospitals, by Dr. Waldemar G. Richter of Veterans' Hospital, St. Cloud, Minn.

Among papers to be read Wednesday afternoon will be one on tattooing and its relation to psychosexual disturbances, by Dr. Francis J. Gerty of the Cook County Psycopathic Hospital, Chicago, another on a study of 100 men and women inclined toward homosexuality by Dr. George W. Henry of the Payne Whitney Psychiatric Clinic, New York, and one of psycoanalysis in late-life depressions by Dr. Ralph Kauffman of Cambridge, Mass.

The annual dinner of the association will be held at 7 p. m. Wednesday. Dr. C. Judson Herrick of the University of Chicago will speak on "Control and Behavior; Its Mechanism and Evolution."

Joint Session Thursday.

Problems of an administrative nature will be discussed Thursday, May 7. There will be a joint meeting with the American Psychopathological Association in the morning at which Dr. Nolan D. C. Lewis of New York City will review trends in research on dementia praecox, most widely prevalent and malignant of mental disorders which fill more than half a million hospital beds in this country. Mental reactions of children to illness will be discussed by Dr. W. Wray Barraclough of the University of Toronto.

Two studies of alcoholism in women will be presented Thursday afternoon, one by Dr. James Hardin Wall of White Plains, N. Y., who will tell of women alcohol addicts of good social background, and the other by Dr. Frank J. Curran of Bellevue Hospital, New York, whose subject will be 50 women of lower economic status. Whether there is a direct relationship between parents' age and the psychic illnesses of children will be discussed by Dr. Alfred Gordon of Philadelphia.

Thursday evening there will be 14 round table discussions on such subjects as drug addiction, personality function, occupational therapy and psychopathology.

The meeting will end Friday after a joint session of the section on mental defects.

Another Convention.

The meeting will be preceded by the sixtieth annual meeting of the American Association on Mental Deficiency at Hotel Jefferson May 1, 2, 3, and 4, next Friday through Monday.

Dr. C. Macfie Campbell professor of psychiatry at Harvard University and president-elect of the American Psychiatric Association, will speak on "Mental Health—Its Social Significance," at a public meeting at the St. Louis Medical Society auditorium, 3839 Lindell boulevard, at 3 p. m. next Sunday, under auspices of the medical society and the Missouri Society for Mental Hygiene.

At the annual luncheon of the latter society at Hotel Chase at 12:15 p. m. next Saturday, Dr. Edgar A. Doll, president of the American Association on Mental Deficiency will speak on "Social Maturity." Dr. Gregory Zilboorg will talk on "Social Aspects of Suicide."

PUPILS, TEACHERS LIST BOOKS TO TAKE TO DESERT ISLAND

Bible First Choice of Both; Instructors Put Cooking Manual Ahead of Encyclopedia.

Books which pupils and teachers of Central High School would want if they were to be marooned alone on a desert island for 30 years were listed in The News, school paper.

The five most popular books, among 190 pupils questioned, were, in order: The Bible, a dictionary, an encyclopedia, "A Tale of Two Cities" and "Anthony Adverse."

Among 34 teachers, the most popular works, in order, were: The Bible, Shakespeare's complete works, a dictionary, a history and a cook book. Shakespeare ran a close sixth with the pupils and the encyclopedia with the instructors.

FUNERAL OF DR. J. E. ALLEN, PHYSICIAN FOR 35 YEARS

Services for Retired General Practitioner Held at Valhalla Crematory.

Funeral services for Dr. J. Edwin Allen, a physician in St. Louis for more than 35 years, who died Thursday at Bethesda General Hospital after a long illness, were held yesterday at Valhalla Crematory.

Born at White Hall, Ill., 63 years ago, he attended the old Missouri Medical College in St. Louis, graduating in 1896. He engaged in a general practice of medicine until his retirement several years ago. He resided at 3680 Blaine avenue.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Corrine M. Allen, and two sons, Millard G. Allen and Morris H. Allen, an attorney.

Lloyd George Says League Is a Failure

we agree to action against Germany, our old enemy, when she defies a treaty, how can we expect France to join us in punishing our ally, Italy, for her infractions of treaties?

Abyssinia is good enough for bait. We are hooked through the gills. We have completed our military convention against Germany. We are committed to war, as we were in 1914.

Perhaps a New League.

What has France given us in return?

Her attitude at this last meeting of the League was more refractory and more dilatory than ever. This time there was a distinctly hostile tang about her declarations.

We have paid the price which France agreed to accept. It is now in the till, carefully locked up. But the French have delivered none of the goods. They were definitely put back on the shelf at Geneva at the last meeting.

The hopelessness of the whole position is revealed by the talk, now general throughout Europe, as to the imperative need for an effective substitute to the down and out League.

France is thinking of alliances. Germany suggests a European pact of non-aggression. I hear that some British Ministers are advocating a new League of Nations.

If we are giving up all hope of a new heaven and a new earth, let us at least have a new League!

Unless we make better use of a new covenant than of the old, the prospect in front of humanity will not be improved.

PETITIONS FOR CONSERVATION ADMENDMENT ARE CIRCULATED

5000 Signatures Obtained in City and County for Vote on Proposition.

The Restoration and Conservation Federation of Missouri, sponsoring an amendment to the State Constitution for creation of a nonpartisan conservation commission, has approximately 900 initative petitions in circulation in St. Louis and more than 300 petitions in circulation in St. Louis County to place the proposal on the ballot at the November election, it was announced yesterday.

The petitions are being circulated by volunteers. Approximately 5000 signatures already have been obtained here.

The petitions also are being circulated in every county in the State. The federation expects to have the required number of signatures within the next few weeks. The law requires that 5 per cent of the votes in two-thirds of the Congressional Districts in the State must sign the petitions to place the proposition on the ballot.

MAJOR GENERAL BOSCHEN NEW CHIEF OF FINANCE OF ARMY

Rose From Private to Present Rank in 38 Years—Served in Philippines.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Major-General Frederick W. Boschen, who rose from private to Major-General in 38 years, has been sworn in as the army's new chief of finance. He is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., and succeeds Major-General Frederick W. Coleman, now on leave pending retirement from active duty in September. At that time Gen. Coleman will become governor of the Soldier's Home in Washington.

Entering the army on April 24, 1898, as a private, he served in the Philippines during the insurrection and for outstanding service was commissioned a Second Lieutenant of Infantry in 1903. From that time on, his promotion through the commissioned rank was rapid. As a Colonel he saw action in France.

What Will Be Roosevelt's Second Deal?

side, the latest word is that Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky will again be the convention keynoter, and that John E. Mack, who nominated Roosevelt at Chicago, will perform that service at Philadelphia. Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, who was former Gov. Al Smith's running mate in 1928, is slated to be permanent chairman.

The temporary chairmanship will go to Barkley, as a reward for party loyalty.

The St. Louis Debate.

In the three-cornered debate in St. Louis last February, Barkley described himself as "a sort of middle-of-the-roader." The voting record will show that whenever the President zig-zagged, Barkley followed each zig zag.

When Henry J. Allen, as a representative of Gov. Landon, and Norman Thomas, as a representative of the Socialist party, tried to debate in St. Louis with Barkley on the Democratic handling of the unemployment problem, the Kentucky Senator did not show up very well.

"There are still 9,000,000 unemployed," he admitted to the St. Louis audience. "That is too many. But if it took the Republican party 12 years to get 14,000,000 off the payroll, how can you expect us to put them back in three years? Give us the full 12 years and maybe there will be a labor shortage."

This was the prospective keynoter's solution for the unemployment problem which many economists are coming to think may have to be treated as a permanent government charge.

Postmaster-General-Democratic Chairman Farley in his public statements declares that "there is not a single cloud on the Democratic horizon," and in private conversation says the election will be a walk away for Roosevelt and means it. His only fear is of possible over-confidence among the party workers, but he is employing measures to forestall this. Like Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, he contends that improved business conditions are responsible for the sentiment for Roosevelt's re-election.

Farley's Warning.

This warning note is being sounded within the party by Farley:

"It has been my experience that the greatest danger in any political struggle lies in over-confidence. Let the feeling get about that the result of an election is a foregone conclusion, and that therefore it is permissible to take things for granted and to abate any effort, not infrequently the result is terrible disappointment.

"We Democrats must remember that the minority party this year is financed to an extent that dwarfs anything in the history of presidential elections. Not only has their regular organization a huge fund but its allies, like the du Pont Liberty League, have spent and are spending as much or more than the Republican National Committee. Moreover, as you may have observed, the du Pont dynasty and its satellite corporation heads and affiliated multi-millionaire enemies of the New Deal are financing any fly-by-night organization that anybody has been able to think up."

Those are harsh words about a group in which a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee is a leader. Their vehemence discloses that Farley does not expect Raskob and his business associates back in the Democratic fold. Former Gov. Smith may "take a walk" just as Senator Borah may "go fishing" if the respective platforms do not suit them. Farley, however, will not attack Smith by name, because Smith is a Democrat. The du Ponts he considers fair targets.

The lavishness and the ineptness of the Wilmington industrialists have aided Roosevelt with the mass of voters. From a political standpoint, "the breaks" so far have been with Roosevelt. This luck has been so consistent that the Republican leaders are now looking to 1940 and the Democrats are so confident for 1936 that an interesting wager just made at the Capital between one of the Democratic high command and a Republican, typifies Democratic confidence. The wager is that the Republican cannot pick eight states all of which will go Republican in the presidential election.

ROOSEVELT BIRTHDAY BALL CHECK GIVEN TO POLIO CLUB

$2500 Presented to Organization at Its Third Annual Banquet.

The third annual banquet of the Midwest Polio Association was held last night at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. A check for $2500, part of the income from the President's birthday ball, was presented to the association.

Speakers sketched the future aims of the club in helping victims of infantile paralysis. It was pointed out that the club needed a pool of its own, where under-water exercises could be given oftener than once a week.

Volunteer swimming instructors and others who have helped the club were guests. It was announced that part of the income from the President's birthday ball will be used to make admission to the pool at the Elias Michael School for Crippled Children free to infantile paralysis patients.

Going to Traffic Club Convention.

Members of the Traffic Club of St. Louis will attend the semi-annual convention of the Associated Traffic Clubs of America to be held for three days beginning Tuesday in New Orleans. Sixteen delegates, including Dan A. Noonan, president of the St. Louis organization, will make up the delegation.

Lansbury on Labor Movement

accomplished without creating class bitterness is that we have got rid of the idea that Government can only be carried on by one class. We have got rid of the idea that reform is merely an act of kindness on the part of one class to another class — the ruling class to the working class. We have got rid of that kind of condescension.

"We have taken the job into our own hands and by a general consensus of effort we are determined to lift ourselves. That is the thing we've done."

Lansbury said it seemed to him that this country had a long way to go to achieve the same end. But again he was careful not to pass a general judgment on events here. He expressed great interest in the efforts of John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, to organize vertical unions extending through an entire industry, adding, "That's the only way it can be done." He was keenly interested also in the development of the Farmer-Labor party in Wisconsin and Minnesota and hopes in the course of his tour of those two states to talk with Gov. Phillip La Follette whom he has met in London, and Gov. Floyd Olson.

Ran Seven Times Before He Won

Early in his career Lansbury encountered the kind of opposition which third party candidates in this country now are meeting with. Lansbury ran for Parliament seven times, from 1892 to 1910, before he was finally elected. In the early campaigns the cry always was raised: "Don't throw away your vote on an extremist candidate; vote for the Liberal and keep the Conservative out." It was this same cry that was heard in our presidential election in 1932 and it already has been raised in the campaign of 1936—although, of course, the political line is not sharply drawn in this country between Liberal, Conservative and Labor-Socialist.

"There was the usual talk that I was not a good candidate because I was so extreme," Lansbury wrote in his autobiography, published in 1928. "It may be that some more moderate-speaking person might have done better, but I thought it my duty to preach Socialism and Socialism alone."

He still stands by that view, he says, feeling that it was better in the long run to take an uncompromising line. Lansbury's view throws an interesting light on a political development of the last week. David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, announced in New York that he had resigned from the Socialist party in order to support President Roosevelt at the coming election. It was a choice, said Dubinsky, between Roosevelt and the "reactionary forces."

Russia's Struggle.

In his attitude toward Russia and Communism Lansbury is again somewhat at variance with the stand taken by his party. There has been more or less of a break between the British trade union movement and the Communist Internationale.

"Russia," Lansbury said, "is struggling hard to produce a democratic state. Russia is probably an exception to all other countries. For nearly a century the intelligentsia, the intellectual leaders almost without exception, were in revolt against Czardom—in the role of anarchists, Socialists, Communists, men of every rank such as Prince Kropotkin, County Tolstoy, Lenin, Trotzky, Bukharin.

"The World War found a complete undevelopment of capitalism in Russia. Industry was almost entirely undeveloped. The ruling class was incredibly corrupt. It all crashed down and on the ruins of Bolsheviks have done their best to build a new state. They are struggling in and intensely competitive world to create condition which will mean the establishment of Communism.

"But what has happened in Russia is no justification for assuming that the same thing will happen in the rest of Europe in the event of another war and collapse. Humanity does not move according to rule. No one believed, before the event, that a Socialist government would appear first in Russia."

Doubts on Smashing Fascism.

At this point Lansbury took issue with what is the popular thesis of most Communists in Europe today. They believe that if Great Britain and France will unite with Russia against the Fascist powers—Germany, Italy and possibly Japan—not only can Fascism be crushed but Socialism can be established. If it were only because of his pacifism, Lansbury probably would be compelled to disagree with this but here, as with his opinion on sanctions, his understanding of "realpolitik," the hard-headed view of how nations and people will actually behave, enters in.

"I do not believe," Lansbury said, "that the capitalist powers in Europe will help to destroy Fascism in order to establish Socialism and Communism. If, for example, the Fascist regime in Italy were overcome, it would be far more natural to expect the victorious nation, Great Britain say, to hand the ruling power over to a group of capitalists or to the King. Nor do I believe that Communism or Socialism would necessarily rise, Phoenix-like, from the ruins.

"Russia will develop in spite of capitalism if no war comes. But it is just the same as with an individual. I am a Socialist but I can't live completely as a Socialist in the midst of all this," he gestured with his thick, powerful hand in the direction of the towers of New York. "So there's no point to saying that Russia is not pure communism. The world won't let it be pure communism."

Sure War Will End Civilization.

Always he comes back to war and his implacable opposition to war. He is absolutely certain that another World War will destroy Western civilization. It would be a short war, he believes, decided by airplanes and poison gas, with no trench warfare, but far more destructive than the conflict that ended in 1918. It is perhaps because of his belief that civilization itself would perish that he dares to offer a plan for peace which appears to many to be hopelessly idealistic.

"What I would do is to bring Great Britain and America together and if possible Russia. You are a great country with resources and means of production far in excess of your needs. Great Britain has, similarly, natural resources in every part of the world and Russia includes one-sixth of the world's land area.

New League on Economic Lines.

"These three great countries would unite in calling through the League of Nations a new world conference to establish a new League of Nations without any of the inhibitions of the old. This new league," and here he hammers out his emphasis, "would start with an intelligent sharing of markets. In every country the power to produce goods is greater than the power to distribute goods. The job is to find the means and the organization—to supply the way in which the distribution of the world's goods can be carried out.

"The new league would start with the assumption that it is possible to substitute co-operation for competiton. There are already international combines which control production—rubber, tea and many other commodities. They control production on a scarcity basis in order to preserve the profit system.

"That system must go just as nationalism must go. There must be an international effort to share rather than to monopolize There are the beginnings. Humanity starts with non-essentials, such things as roads and sewers, constructed co-opertaively so that all may share. But the sharing of bread is essential. What good is a road or a sewer without bread?

Enough for Everyone.

"We must start with the assumption that there is enough for everyone. The alternative is universal slaughter. The people I have talked to about it, statesmen, the people on the boat, have said: 'Yes, that's very nice if it could be done.' And what I have said is: 'Surely, it ought to be easier to organize for sharing the world than to or—for destroying it.

"It only needs to be understood to realize that it can be done. It will be done when we have enough faith to think it can be carried through to completion. Oh, I have such terrific faith in it, faith that it will be accepted as our fathers accepted the first co-operative social services.

"There is, of course, a sacrifice, but that is a non-essential — the power of domination. If it could be shown that civilization was held together by brute force then I should feel I had no ground to stand on. But the contrary is true. It is true in neither Great Britain nor America. The average man and woman knows it is to his interest to live at peace with his neighbor. That must be extended to international relationships."

Puts Lenin Foremost.

As he talks of world affairs Lansbury speaks of world figures whom he has known in the course of his long career. Foremost among them all he would place Lenin, leader of the Russian revolution. Lenin, Lansbury says, was entirely without self-consciousness, or a sense of superiority over any people, or any person.

"He was the simplest and most selfless man I ever met. And this came out of a natural simplicity, and out of his sheer devotion to a great cause. He talked about religion, of course, and there we were apart. But I remember that he looked at me with a twinkle in his eye and he said: 'Well, you may yet convert your people to Christianity.'"

Lansbury has been brought to the country by the Emergency Peace Campaign, started by a number of organizations and individuals interested in promoting world peace. He is being accompanied on his tour by his daughter, Mrs. D. Postgate, and by Kirby Page, lecturer and writer of peace and one of the organizers of the Emergency Peace Campaign. The campaign was started, Kirby explains, because it has been shown in various ways that while a large majority of Americans are in favor of keeping out of war, the task is to make them articulate and politically conscious. Lansbury's tour is so closely planned, with luncheon, dinner, morning and afternoon meetings at most of which he will speak, that the interview of necessity took place on the train between Washington and New York.

"I want you, if you will," says Lansbury, "to express the gratitude that my daughter and I feel for all the arrangements that have been made for us. You are all so kind. I'm going to work hard, yes, giving a number of talks. But I couldn't do it, you know, if I had to rough it."

Lansbury's Hard Life.

In his lifetime Lansbury has known what it has meant to rough it. He has had his head cracked open and his body beaten and bruised in many a political row in Hyde Park. He emigrated with his family to Australia and knew terrible hardship and privation. Returning to London, he worked tirelessly in the cause of labor while he earned a meager living with his hands. He was one of the first to go into Russia after the revolution, enduring hunger and every kind of discomfort and inconvenience.

Many honors have come to him. He was the first Labor party mayor of Poplar, industrial suburb of London. He was in the Cabinet of the first Labor Government, as Commissioner of Public Works. As leader of the Labor party in the House of Commons his fearlessness and forthrightness in challenging and debating with the most brilliant men in England long have been recognized.

But with all this one feels he has remained essentially unchanged. In his voice the same booming, generous warmth in his blue eyes the same human, humorous glint.

"Of Making Many Books"

EDITED BY
JOHN G. NEIHARDT

A Victorian Sibyl

GEORGE ELIOT, a Biography. By Blanche Colton Williams. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

SPRINGING from an interest in the life of George Eliot so deep as to suggest spiritual fusion, this biography by Dr. Williams is the product of painstaking study and original research.

Accepting (although without complete satisfaction) the obvious conclusion that the genius of George Eliot was born of the union of Marian Evans and George Henry Lewes, the author devotes considerable care to the background and early life of the unusual girl, showing that she brought to that union a superb intellect, trained and disciplined by study, by translation, by the reading of philosophy and by analytical reviewing of books. She brought also an emotional nature of great intensity, influenced by evangelicalism and unhappily touched by certain earlier affairs of the heart.

But after the advent of Lewes, there began to emerge from the chrysalis of the conscientious hack-writer that gorgeous, dark-winged spirit we know as George Eliot. With a penetrating criticism of an ill-founded theological work, a scathing denunciation of the frothy writing of "lady novelists," and an analysis of the poet Young, she was on her way, formulating, perhaps unconsciously, her own creed. Of Young she wrote: "His muse never stood face to face with a genuine human being." Of fiction: "Like crystaline masses, it may take any form, and yet be beautiful; we have only to pour in the right elements—genuine observation, humor and passion."

From that time, beginning with "Scenes From Clerical Life," the creative artist despaired and exulted onward to "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," "Romola," "Middlemarch," always with that guardian angel hovering near—the homely, the brilliant, the always-dependable George Henry Lewes.

If ever an irregular union was justified by the motives impelling it, by the surrounding circumstances and by the outcome in mutual joy and productive labor, this one was. Although Lewes possessed, perhaps, a greater genius for living than Marian, although he had extraordinary versatility, and was a voluminous reader, his talents tend to retreat into the background. Dancing with "Polly" to keep her feet warm, nursing her in illness, averting unfriendly criticism, helping with her manuscripts, he well exemplified his own belief "that the law of loving is the gospel of the world."

And she, "torn between Heimweh and Wanderlust," "miserable when writing, but more miserable when not," detesting indecision, but alternating six months between writing and not writing "Romola," was the embodiment of creative unrest. Bearing upon her labors was the repeatedly expressed desire "to prove that her life would produce more good than if she never had done anything to shock the world," while softening the lines of that "grave, majestic countenance" is the spirit of these words from her own writings: "We reap what we sow, but nature has love over and above that justice." As They Knew Him

FOLKS SAY OF WILL ROGERS. Compiled and edited by William Howard Payne and Jake G. Lyons. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

MANY amusing insights into the life of the late Will Rogers are brought together in this "memorial volume" issued under auspices of the Oklahoma Society of Washington, D. C., for the edition pays less attention to Rogers, the top-ranking box office star of the films, than it does to the native of Claremore (Oologah, rather), the cowboy rope twirler of the early part of the century, the Ziegfeld star and the world citizen.

The addenda to his famous career overlap and cry out for closer scissoring, but do compose a real portrait. The informal treatment of the material, contributed from hundreds of sources, necessarily would be repetitious. There are, for example, several versions of how he started wisecracking, and the editors, without the patience of careful biographers, have set down all of them, for the reader to take his pick.

Most striking is the fact that the biggest names among the contributors head many of the shallowest articles. Too many feel called upon for only eulogy. One famous humorist sets down an anecdote told on every entertainer from Eddie Cantor to Fritz Kreisler. C. McP.

A PICKWICK GALLERY. By Members of the Pickwick Club. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

THIS album of Pickwickian portraiture, commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the first issue of "The Pickwick Papers," contains prose portraits by 16 "divers admirers" and 16 illustrations from the original plates by Seymour and "Phiz." Each admirer has written of a different character. Alfred Noyes takes the highly respectable and good-hearted Mr. Pickwick, John Betzeman the humorous and irresistible "Samivel" Weller, and Alec Waugh the sponging Jingle and his "gift o' the gab wery gallopin'."

True to His Dream

INVINCIBLE SURMISE. By Granville Paul Smith. (Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston.)

WHEN Eric Braxton was a boy in Branchfield, Ill., he had ambitions. When he grew up he would be a street-car conductor or a military crusader. That, as might be supposed, was when he was quite young. When he was getting to be a big boy he renounced childish things and decided he would be a novelist. Conditions at home were not conducive to the emergence of a great novelist. His father was a brand-plucked-from-the-burning preacher, with zeal but not much else. His mother took up with the Brotherhood of Emmaus, and there was a great deal of squabbling in the Braxton home. Life for Eric was definitely parochial and not beautiful, except as it was made beautiful in spots by Audrey Fleming, who believed in him and his ambition.

Eric went away to the big city and got a job; and there came a time when he had to choose between his career and a rich girl who had rather precipitately fallen in love with him. He took the girl. The career could wait. His wife's father gave him a better job and pushed him along, and after a while Eric was pointed out as the small-town boy who had made good in the big city.

He was not happy, though. Success and wild parties did not satisfy him. His ambition still beckoned. He had to choose again. This time he chose the way of renunciation. He chucked the rich wife and all that went with her, and the life of plenty and ease, and started all over again at the bottom. It was bottom all right, with hunger and flop houses as his lot. But he still had his "soul's invincible surmise." It was "all his science and his only art." He wrote his novel and knew that it was good. He shipped it away to a publisher and took the next train to Branchfield and Audrey.

It is as simple as that, the story of "Invincible Surmise," and since the title, from Santayana, calls for the ultimate triumph of Eric Braxton, there is no betrayal in revealing its happy ending. For all the conventionality of the plot ,it is a well told tale, highly creditable, as a first novel, to Granville Paul Smith, South Carolinian. F. A. B.

SAVAGES AND SAINTS. By Mrs. Fremont Older. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

A YOUNG priest of Spanish-Irish descent forgets his vow in a moment of weakness and permits himself to fall in love. To do penance for his acts, Father Pedro Lacey goes to the ruined mission of Santa Lucia, which he determines to rebuild.

The picturesque life of old California forms the background for the story. The first Spanish families of the country, the Indian inhabitants and the wealthy Americans, who live there because of the "atmosphere," all find their lives curiously bound up with the rebuilding of the mission.

Mrs. Older advances the old theory that every person has some good and some bad in him. She forgives all her characters all their sins, even the Indian woman, Chona, who bore the gringo doctor four children and then one day hacked his white wife to pieces in a fit of anger.

In spite of the melodramatic quality of the story, it makes an entertaining bit of reading. T. B. M.

Nation's War on Crime

FAREWELL, MR. GANGSTER! America's War on Crime. By Herbert Corey. With a foreword by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

THE police system of the United States is in a very bad way; in fact, to quote Herbert Corey verbatim, "It's cockeyed."

"We have 48 states without enough co-operation in dealing with the criminal problem to run a peanut stand," he says. "There are 3096 counties provided with sheriffs. The job of sheriff is purely political. . . . There are 16,000 incorporated municipalities and 20,000 towns and villages and between 40,000 and 50,000 police organizations. . . ."

This situation in itself creates considerable confusion of authority; but add to that the restrictions on the police of each organization in making arrests out of bounds; the lack of mandatory extradition; lawyers with habeas corpus writs, legal delays and other impedimenta, and, as Corey concludes, you have a pretty sorry mess.

"The United States is the most crime-ridden civilized country in the world."

But the situation is not hopeless, nor does Corey hold with those who decry our police and praise those of Europe. Scotland Yard has the reputation, but it is really a London police force, and at most has merely an island of homogenous people to keep in check. It doesn't compare with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

In that organization, since it was granted true police powers in 1933, lies Corey's hope for the future. He is convinced that the F. B. I. is the equal of any detective organization in the world, and with proper support can surpass even the record of the past few years.

A resume of the history and work of the F. B. I. is included in the book, together with a compendium of major crimes of the country since 1914, in which year, he believes, things really began to get bad.

The book should be a revelation to many complacent citizens who have never bothered to find out just what the police are up against and what the Federal Bureau of Investigation is doing for us. O. F. F.

Murrays vs. Santells

LONG JOHN MURRAY. By W. A. S. Douglas. (Coward - McCann, Inc., New York.)

THE Murrays were men who never did things by halves. They drank to excess, swore with gusto, fought like Tartars, and populated Ulster with "left-handed sons." From the first Long John, who was given a large chunk of Northern Ireland by King James I of England, to the last Long John, who sat down to a banquet in 1914 with one legitimate and 18 illegitimate sons—the Murrays were all lusty men.

Their saga, fictional but intensely real, is largely a conflict of three centuries with the Santell family, descended from a Spanish sea captain whose ship went down with the Armada and who remained in Ireland and married rather than return in disgrace to Spain. The Spaniard's daughter was forcibly married by the first Long John Murray and bore a son. Thus the Murrays and Santells became blood relations, but hated each other because of the continued dominance of the landlord Murrays.

Finally a day of reckoning comes. A latter-day John Murray becomes a poor man after spending all his money on whisky. Eddie Santell, once the down-trodden, Papist relative, is now on top, a wealthy distiller. As the story ends in 1919, Long John's only sensitive son and Santell's beloved daughter prepare to marry, once again merging the families.

It is a delightful story with authentic historical background. S. P.

NO FRIENDLY VOICE. By Robert Maynard Hutchins. (The University of Chicago Press, Chicago.)

THIS collection of 24 addresses by the 37-year-old president of the University of Chicago brings a brilliant young man's enthusiasm, wit and learning to some of the educational and social problems of our time. The plight of the professor in a time of economic crisis, the function of the trustees of educational institutions, the need for learning and ethics in the law, the vices and possibilities of the radio—these are some of the topics which Mr. Hutchins thinks about.

A New Master of Fiction

Trygve Gulbranssen

A Norwegian Masterpiece

BEYOND SING THE WOODS. By Trygve Gulbranssen. Translated by Naomi Walford. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

THOSE who are familiar, even though only in a general way, with Spengler's thesis as elaborated in "The Decline of the West" will recall his view of history as a series of culture cycles, endlessly repeating, in accordance with some fundamental law, a single essential pattern.

The flowering period of each cycle, he believes, is characterized by a naive, unquestioning acceptance of life and by an uprush of unconscious creative forces. At this vernal stage of the cycle, it might be said in keeping with his view, the spirit of man functions as genius does in the individual, doing better than it knows.

Spengler traces the evolution of the cycle through its fruiting summertime into its autumn, showing how, as the culture ripens toward its end that still another spring may be, the race involved becomes self-conscious, believing more and more in the validity of the exclusive sense-conception of the world, losing depth for superficial brilliance, instinctive faith in the greatness of the mysterious process for cynical sophistication. This period, according to Spengler, is characterized by the domination of megalopolitan areas, where men forget their relation to the giving earth, where feverish industry in the cultural realm results in no creative flowering. During such periods in history, Spengler contends, the genuinely creative spirit, save perhaps for sporadic exceptions, is to be sought in provincial areas where the enduring verities of man's existence may still be felt as in the springtime of the cycle.

Whether or not Spengler's thesis be accepted as a whole, it does seem to throw light upon our own era of megalopolitan culture, characteristically self-conscious, brilliant, shallow, obsessed with sense, and faithless.

Scandinavia, with its culture still deep-rooted in its long past, and set aside from the raging mainstream of continental tendency, may be regarded as provincial in the Spenglerian sense. And if we take a long view of the literature of our day, remembering what has constituted greatness in the living works of Time, we shall find that nowhere during the past two decades have more great works of fiction appeared than in the Scandinavian countries, especially Norway and Sweden, although Denmark, sharing largely the mood of the North, has also contributed. Nexo's "Pelle the Conqueror," Hamsun's "The Growth of the Soil," Werner von Heidenstam's "The Tree of the Folkungs," and various novels by Sigrid Undset may be mentioned as typical. All of these, and practically all of the fiction that comes to us from the unspoiled mountains and forests and sea-coasts of that northland, share in some notable degree the quality of greatness which grows out of man's deep awareness of his enduring relation to the maternal earth and consequently to the race of man.

In "Beyond Sing the Woods," we have another glorious example of such profoundly sane novels, written simply in the grand tradition and with no trace of urban influence. There is no way to sketch a plot so as to illustrate the distinguishing quality of this novel. It is chiefly a matter of unconscious attitude, permeating the whole slowly moving but cumulatively powerful tale of 50 years in the life of a peasant family dwelling in a Norwegian mountain forest.

Descended, according to tradition, from an ancient king, deposed and forced to flee into the wilderness, the Bjorndals, dour, mighty in both body and spirit, have gone their thriving, predatory way, feared and hated by the people of the Broad Leas in the valley. So quietly does the tale move forward with the coming and going of the seasons, with marriages, births, and deaths, the aging of old Dag Bjorndal and the growing up of his son, that one taking up the book unwarned might read a hundred pages and still be unprepared for the overwhelming power that the leisurely maturing story generates. And when at last the wall of fear and hate and envy, that has separated the Bjorndals from the people of the Broad Leas, gives way before the urgency of youth, and old Dag learns the only lesson that is worth the pain of living, then it is that the reader comes upon one of the most impressive love stories he is likely ever to read, hauntingly sweet, augustly simple, charged with the Virgilian "tears of things," and true forever.

Trygve Gulbranssen, now 42 years old, is a Norwegian business man previously known to the general public only as a writer on sports. This his first novel has become a best-seller in Denmark, Holland, Sweden, England, Germany and Finland, and unless all signs fail it should soon be competing for a high place on our American list of books in great demand. —J. From Deep Springs

OBITER SCRIPTA. By George Santayana. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

ONE who cares about the full meaning of Santayana in contemporary life can only wish that this collection of 16 miscellaneous essays, lectures and reviews might be as widely read as his remarkable first novel, "The Last Puritan," now a best-seller throughout the country. Should that happen there would be reason to believe that the thousands who are now going to the Santayana well are drinking deep of its spring-fed waters instead of merely being entranced by the dance of sunlight on its cool surface.

For here is Santayana, the poet and philosopher, thinking about things over a period of 31 years, nearly half his life. And scattered though these papers are in time and place, each is part of a pattern that fits into a beautiful whole.

How fruitfully the editors, Justus Buchler and Benjamin Schwartz, have done their work can best be judged by Mr. Santayana's own comment. After rereading the article entitled, "Some Meanings of the Word Is," he wrote them that it contained his whole philosophy "in a very clear and succinct form." Nor is it difficult to agree with the author that the paper on Spinoza represents him at his best. For in it the reader, with these two great minds for his climbing companions, does ascend "a mountain-top, and the spectacle, so out of scale with all our petty troubles, silences and overpowers the heart, expanding it for a moment into boundless sympathy with the universe."

The temptation, as is always the case when the reviewer has a work by Santayana before him, is to pluck pearls from the strand. Epigrammatic sentences are on every page; sometimes there is a whole series. But nowhere is the humility of the man so beautifully revealed as in the preface which the editors asked him to write. They meant well, he says, when they compiled an exhaustive inventory of all the things he has written; "yet who knows whether this document, at the last judgment, will serve for the defense or for the prosecution? I cannot help hoping that the ultimate recording angel may have the charity to erase as well as preserve. Ah, if only he could recount, instead, my sins of omission, and bring to light the things I have not written but ought to have written!"

But, someone says, there have been courage and clarity throughout his life and work. To this Mr. Santayana answers: "Perhaps . . . but that for the most part still lies under ground. A long life has hardly sufficed to uncover it; and a second life would be necessary to clear away the works of the first and compose instead a single book, perfect in style, sure and rich in familiar learning, and flowing in one jet from the suffering of man."

This dissatisfaction is to be expected in so sensitive a soul as Santayana. However, those without his powers but able to glimpse them will be glad that he has not permitted realization of imperfection to keep him from his task of relating the individual to the universe. "Obiter Scripta" will mean little or nothing to many readers. To others it will be a changing experience that will leave them with eyes that see where there was blur before. I. D.

The Virgin and the Dynamo

MONT-SAINT-MICHEL AND CHARTRES. By Henry Adams. (Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston.)

THIS is a new and cheaper edition of Henry Adams' great study of the Middle Ages, a study which, he felt, would have so little popular interest that the book was privately printed, and only with difficulty was he persuaded to have it made public.

It should prove an intellectual excitement, a surprise and a delight to all those who have any curiosity about the subject. Whether its success is due to the simple and disarming style with which he leads the reader into a difficult field, or to his ability to find a new and revealing pattern in the facts already known, so that for the first time the reader understands, does not matter.

He made the now famous comparison of the Virgin and the Dynamo as the driving forces respectively of the thirteenth century and the twentieth. Beginning with the Mont-Saint-Michel, he discovers in the massive walls and heavy arches a true symbol of that era when the war-like St. Michael was the popular figure. From there we must go 150 miles across the plain where a century later the cathedral was building at Chartres.

Here we enter a new world. The change of mind and heart is seen everywhere, in the high vaulted nave, the pointed arch, the flying buttress, the sculpture, in the glass whose colors have never since been equaled, and in the lovely soaring spires. It is the flower of Gothic art, built at the time of the Song of Roland and the first crusade, and it was dedicated to the Virgin, the presiding genius of this new age of enthusiasm and adventure, because men had found in her a source of hope and freedom. Subtle Tales

THE WORLD OVER. By Edith Wharton. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

ANY book by Edith Wharton is an event. In this case, however, it is not so much the material that distinguishes the volume, but rather the subtle artistry that goes into the telling of these the slightest of the author's stories. By her manipulation of situations, which in the hands of a lesser author might prove barren, and by her meticulous choice and adroit use of words, she evokes the desired mood in the reader, and then startles him by a surprise ending, which, on second thought, seems the only possible denouement.

"Charm Incorporated," a fine example of the author's subtlety, is the story of a New Yorker with far too many dependent relatives, who takes lessons from his charming Russian wife and disposes of each incumbrance to a more than able provider. The author's delicately humorous treatment of the husband's dilemma is delightful.

Perhaps a ghost story is as good a test of the ability to create and sustain a mood as can be required of a writer. In "Pomegranate Seed" with the aid only of certain gray envelopes and the faint characters upon them, the author summons, as from another world, the shade of the protagonist's first wife, whose presence grows in power until he answers her call and arranges to return with her.

Each of the stories in this collection reveals the supreme artistry that has made Edith Wharton an aristocrat in letters. V. D. G.

Tells John Reed's Story

Something Unique

TWENTY YEARS UNDER THE SEA. By J. E. Williamson. (Hale, Cushman and Flint, New York.)

J. E. WILLIAMSON, who in 1913 won fame with his submarine photographs, the first ever to be made, is said to have spent the greater portion of his waking life, since then, in exploring and depicting the under-sea world with a camera.

He tells here how his great idea came to him while strolling in the old seaport of Norfolk, Va. "Long, mysterious shadows filled the space between the ancient buildings looming ghostly and unreal against the glow of the setting sun. Silence reigned. The place seemed utterly deserted and forgotten. Above the crooked roofs and sagging chimneys was a fathomless green sky, and a strange sensation of standing on the bottom of the sea among the ruins of some sunken city came to me. I knew it was visionary, but I had always been fascinated by the legend of the lost Atlantis, and by the tales of known sunken cities of Yucatan and the submerged Port Royal in Jamaica.

"Standing there in the weird half-light of a dying day, I visualized these cities once peopled and now the haunts of creatures of the sea. What wondrous stories they held! What astounding pictures they would present if photographed!"

It happened that the author's father, Capt. Charles Williamson, had recently perfected a deep-sea salvaging device, consisting of a flexible metal tube, three feet in diameter, with an observation chamber at the bottom. Why not utilize the new device?

Although trained as a marine engineer, Williamson is self-revealed, throughout this glowing narrative of his adventures, as a rare combination of poet and scientist, the former decidedly predominating. Seized with a dream of the strange beauty in that other-worldly realm, he at once set about the task of realizing it. When his first pictures, taken in the clear waters of the West Indies, were exhibited, success was immediate and far beyond his expectations; for here indeed was something new beneath the sun. Soon he was making moving pictures of submarine life, and many will still remember his film version of Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

Merely as a record of remarkable, and often perilous, adventures, Williamson's story, here set forth for the first time, should hold even the dullest reader. But in addition there are 56 full page photographs of the submarine world, many of which suggest the enchanted beauty—not remote from terror — in some somnambulistic dream. J. G. N.

Puppets on Tour

PUNCH'S PROGRESS. By Forman Brown. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

AFTER seeing their first marionette show at Ann Arbor, Forman Brown and Henry Burnett, college roommates, decided it would be fun to present a puppet show themselves. They did. The King's Daughters and their friends thought it was "very novel" and "so different." Brown found it was a virulent disease or an insinuating and narcotic habit.

They gave shows in nearby towns. Another student joined them and they hit the road in earnest. The showmen's vagabonding life led them through Michigan, the East, the South and then to Hollywood, sometimes playing by candle light in barns, occasionally with an opening like a first night at the Metropolitan. They made a two-year stand in Los Angeles, where Charlie Chaplin came to see them and talked "fluently and intensely" on pantomime; John Barrymore, entranced by the fact it was "theater," muttered "I can almost smell the grease paint"; Aimee Semple McPherson and Einstein chuckled when they saw themselves as puppets. Then a season in New York was followed by a Hollywood contract to appear in the movie "I Am Suzanne."

Much of the charm of the book comes from the cross-section sketches of life—the old ladies living near Julian, N. C., who had never been 'out thar," ridden in an automobile or heard a phonograph; the "All You Want for 50 Cents" restaurant in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; the blizzard and the frigid shelter of the hotel at Mauch Chunk, Pa. The Making of a Revolutionary

JOHN REED: The Making of a Revolutionary. By Granville Hicks, with the assistance of John Stuart. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

JOHN REED of Portland, Ore., well-born, Harvard bred, at 26 America's ranking war-correspondent, was eminently fitted to secure for himself whatever he might want in the existing social order. He moved all his adult life in brilliant circles. He was part of Greenwich Village in its heyday, when those now high in art and letters were rollicking, passionate youngsters. Lincoln Steffens was his mentor; and even the roster of his Harvard classmates reads like a page from today's Who's Who.

He was a youth in whom arrogance and fun ran high, and he learned to know life, not through books, but through his eyes—reporter's eyes, seeing everything; poet's eyes, seeing through. He loved America with the consuming, critical passion of one who knew her faults and could not keep away from her; and he loved people. He addressed a Sing-Sing audience "Hi, fellows . . ." and returned with persistent affection to Harvard reunions even when the "stuffed shirts" repudiated him.

It was because he had a will and taste for reality that he learned to discipline and document his later writings; and he came to revolution, not through theories, but through slums and bloody labor strikes, through Villa's army, and most of all through the World War, whose ugly basic issues he completely understood and repeatedly exposed in articles which went unprinted by the press which had commissioned him.

How and why such a man, who had everything to lose and nothing to gain, came to champion in America the unpopular cause of Communism is a matter the significance of which cannot be minimized. Because John Reed's was essentially a personal genius, more than the sum of everything he ever did or said or saw in his short life, this biography, which has gathered together the evidence of his own published and unpublished writings, the testimony of some hundred and fifty friends—and enemies—is particularly poignant and rewarding. Reed, who started out like all of us in the joyful hope of somehow having his cake and eating it too, grew up to cast aside illusion and face an issue squarely. Because he was a poet he was in some measure an expression of all of us, and whether one agree with his conclusions or not, he has dug out from verbiage the human basis of the problems we face today.

In no small measure the deep impression the biography makes is due to the splendid handling, the unswerving creative integrity of Granville Hicks. He has achieved the familiarity and complete understanding of the novelist without any of the tricks of novelized biography. He has focussed on his subject, not on style. D. C.

JUDAISM IN TRANSITION. By Mordecai M. Kaplan. (Covici-Friede, New York.)

DR. KAPLAN, a writer and teacher, here analyzes the problem of a Judaism in transition against the background of a world in transition. It is Dr. Kaplan's hope that Judaism will foster its culture and its interests by effective organization, that it will live at peace and harmony with its neighbors, and so will shrivel anti-Semitism at its roots.

A Word War

FOR many months A. P. Herbert, the British humorist and satirist who recently became a member of Parliament, has been delighting and enlightening the readers of Punch with his "word war." He rallies "all lovers of good words to buckle on their dictionaries and enter the fight" against the "piratical, ruffianly, masked, braggart and ill-bred words (that) invade our language and lay waste our thought every day." His book is a compilation of the Punch articles, and it is a merry war that he describes.

Mr. Herbert attacks impartially the jargon of the business letter, the rhetorical contortions of the political orator and the wrong usages practiced by press and other writers. He levels his guns against some truly marvelous coined words, such as "deratization," a refined British way of saying "rat-killing." Another of his horrible examples is "redecontamination"; others are "deinsectization" and "backwardation."

It is not alone such freaks that he attacks; he assails many a stodgy and pompous phrase as well, many a common violation of the rules. His is a learned book, but not a dull one, for his humor is unceasing, even at moments of greatest indignation against a crass neologism or a wayward pleonasm. It is in reality a book of English rhetoric, but those who are enlightened by his lectures will find it a painless process.

Only rarely does he descend to quibbling, but much of his solid shot, it is to be feared, will be wasted on the air. He points out, for instance, that a phenomenon is, in its correct meaning, merely "a thing that occurs or is perceived or observed; a fact or occurrence," and not a marvel. Similarly, sensation is only "a perception by means of the senses," and not a startling event. Nevertheless, despite Mr. Herbert's volleys and barrages, we shall continue to hear of "phenomenal sensation" whenever something unusual happens. F. G.

A Salty Saga

THE SPLINTER FLEET. By Ray Millholland. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

CONCENTRATED action and absorbing anecdote are packed in the salty saga of The Splinter Fleet, written by a sea-going man who served as chief engineer on one of those 110-foot submarine chasers—smaller than the Nina of Columbus — that somehow got across the Atlantic to poke their noses after the U-boats.

The bombardment of Durazzo, Austrian base, in which 11 U. S. subchasers played their part, was the one general engagement of the World War in which the U. S. Navy had a hand. Mr. Millholland, who was in the thick of it, describes it graphically. He tells how his ship bagged a submarine: "The entire hull of a submarine came shooting up, spinning like a spindle of wood flung from a woodworker's lathe. A terrific explosion flung huge pieces of steel plate in all directions, one fragment screaming over us, to fall and skitter crazily across the water." His ship is saved from an enemy destroyer when . . . . "Two 18-inch torpedoes dart straight for the Austrian. Boilers flew skyward, spinning like pinwheels, with jets of steam still spurting from them."

Mr. Millholland, in his vigorous style, tells of the blind attack that his subchaser made on a British destroyer that ignored signals; of the U-boat that dodged death for 21 days while subchasers hung on relentlessly; of how four U-boats were driven into mined nets; of the visit from the commander of a fifth that escaped; of the Italian motor scafas that leaped mine booms and launched their torpedoes in Austrian harbors, of the saving of the Anzac transports. All in all, it's safe to say that The Splinter Fleet is a book that will be read in one sitting despite its 307 pages. R. R.

Origin of Tanks

EYE-WITNESS. By Major-General Sir Ernest D. Swinton. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, New York.)

IN THE early days of the World War Major-General Swinton, then a Lieutenant-Colonel, saw the need of a weapon to use against the machine guns which the Germans were employing with devastating effect. In this book he tells how he conceived the idea of the military tank.

Although he was an officer in the engineering branch of the British army, he had been assigned to the front to write official reports for the press, and in that capacity he saw that the British infantry was virtually helpless against the German machine guns.

Swinton had seen pictures of caterpillar tractors manufactured in the United States. He visualized a steel monster traveling on caterpillar treads which would cross the enemy's trenches, unharmed by his machine gun fire. The story relates with great detail the disappointing efforts the author made for several months to get the high command of the British army to consider his idea. At last experiments were undertaken, largely through the efforts of Winston Churchill, then First Lord of the Admiralty, whose conception of the new weapon was that of a "land ship."

Gen. Swinton's graphic account of the secret development of the tanks, of his assignment to train men to run them, and of their first appearance in major offensives in France in September, 1916, is a valuable contribution to the historical literature of the World War. S. J. S.

A Blithe Adventurer

ARCTIC ADVENTURE. By Peter Freuchen. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York.)

THIS is a remarkably blithe and exciting account of Peter Freuchen's 16 years as trader and explorer in Northern Greenland. Few men would have preferred, as he did, primitive life in the Far North to the practice of medicine in Copenhagen, and not many could have chronicled it with such good humor.

Freuchen was less than 20 on his first visit to Northern Greenland with a scientific expedition, but he volunteered to spend the winter night alone at a crude camp far from the expedition's base, to make daily weather observations. Admiral Richard E. Byrd was to do a similar thing years later on his second Antarctic expedition. When his fuel was gone, Freuchen relates, only his voice raised in song could keep the wolves away when he went to the weather station. It is characteristic of the author that he can say: "I made my living with my voice."

Even after that he went back to the Arctic. The difficulties of travel only challenged him to undertake the most strenuous journeys, and he throve on the daily risk of life in the hunt for food to sustain life.

The author reports the American and European expeditions he encountered in the North, dismissing some of the principals as men unfit for the rigors of the Arctic. The account of the death of one such man, Dr. Torild Wolff, is grim and dramatic; but it is in telling the harrowing stories of his own explorations on the Greenland ice cap and in the land north of Hudson Bay that he is most effective.

The last adventure related in the book is by all odds the most amazing—his attempt to cross Baffin Bay from Baffin Land to Greenland on the ice with four Eskimos. He lost a leg from exposure on that trip. Although the venture did not succeed, it must rank as a prime example of cool daring and marvelous fortitude. —L. L.

Charmers

MOTHS ROUND THE FLAME. By Geoffrey F. Hall. (Henry Holt and Co., New York.)

FOR those who are interested, a minute account of all the children that were brought into the world through the illicit relationships of Louis XIV may be found in Geoffrey F. Hall's study of "charmers and intriguers" of the seventeenth century.

In his attempt to show that women of this country influenced when they did not control affairs of state through the medium of their ambitions rather than passionate amours, Mr. Hall carefully explains how these famously beautiful "femmes d'esprit" became enceinte.

This biography leads us to believe that Louis XIV, at odd moments, waged a struggle or two against a dissenting populace or political enemy. For the most part, however, his mind and heart centered about his woman of the moment.

Queens, princesses and ladies of the court who spent sleepless nights thinking of ways to thwart each other's love affairs might find consolation in knowing that their efforts have been rewarded by Mr. Hall, who labored seven years gathering material for his book.

By the use of trite and monotonous phrases, he explains in detail each "fall from the path of virtue."

The discovery that perversion, debauchery and ambition ruined the lives of many of the "elite," leads Mr. Hall to the profound conclusion that "true love never did run smooth." M. M.

RECOLLECTIONS OF A PICTURE DEALER. By Ambroise Vollard. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

AMBROISE VOLLARD came to Paris in the 1880's to study law. The Montmartre, then the artistic quarter par excellence, attracted him and he took a room there. Actuated chiefly at first, as he confesses, by the instinct of possession, he became a very minor collector. His love of things beautiful and his passion for collecting led him from his law studies to a career as a picture dealer. His recollections cover what is broadly known as the modern movement. His galleries exhibited the works of Cezanne and Van Gogh when such display was revolutionary. His basement dining room was the gathering place of the artists, collectors and connoisseurs. His book gives us an intimate close-up of the most interesting period of painting in recent times. Many of the illustrations are portraits of Vollard. D. R. F.

SEA-MARY. By O. R. Pilat. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

FIRST MATE "GUANO" BURTT reminds Capt. "Three-Fingered" Blackford, of the lumber schooner Anna Swan, bound from San Juan to the African Gold Coast, that "a woman forward is bad." Blackford promptly reminds the mate that he is in command and the cook's wife is going to make the trip. She does, and the sailors' old proverb is borne out. After the captain's dog is thrown overboard, troubles come thick and fast. "Guano" Burtt is killed in a mutiny, the cook's wife leads the deck engineer astray, and the cook and his wife finally meet violent deaths.

Although Mr. Pilat's characters are rather puppet-like, he has written an interesting yarn, avoiding the melodramatic and yet giving the emotional problems their due. If Mr. Pilat had delineated all his characters as skilfully as he did the cook, truly a sea-going Uriah Heep, the story would have been much more impressive. R. R.

ORDER OF THE ARROW INITIATES 47 SCOUTS

Ceremonies at "Lions Den," New 250-Acre Camp Near Seckman, Mo.

Initiation ceremonies for 47 new members of the Order of the Arrow, honorary camping society of St. Louis Scouts, were conducted Friday night at "Lion's Den," a new 250-acre camp near Seckman, Mo., which will be presented to the St. Louis Scout Council this afternoon by the South Side Lions Club.

Twenty-six other members of the camping society were initiated into the second degree of the order last night. The candidates for the first honor, Ordeal, were required to spend Friday night outdoors, maintaining complete silence. The second honor, Brotherhood, was awarded for notable service to other scouts.

The third and final honor, Vigil, was conferred this morning on Ferd Gast, Robert Davis, Morton Pariera, Louis Sherwood, Sam C. Reaves and Merle Shippey. Reaves is director of the council cub program and of the Irondale Camp; Shippey is council camping director. In a brief program at 1:30 p. m. today the Order of the Arrow will dedicate a new lodge built by the members, which will serve as a recreation hall for the new camp.

Dedication of the camp itself will be at 2:30 p. m., with Dr. Robert Mueller, president of the South Side Lions Club, making the presentation. J. Lee Johnson, chairman of the scout camping committee, will represent the council.

The camp, situated 25 miles from St. Louis, may be reached by automobile south on Highway 61. Directions to the camp have been posted at Seckman.

Week-end camping will begin Saturday on the new reservation. Six-day periods will be scheduled after June 15 in order that troops unable to afford to visit Camp Irondale may go to "Lion's Den," which is well equipped with cabins, and sidewall platforms over which canvas roofs can be placed. H. M. Nusser of council headquarters staff will be in charge of the camp during the summer.

The following assignments were announced last week by George L. Gamp, chairman of the committee arranging the annual Camparall to be held May 22, 23 and 24 in Forest Park: Field layout, Herman Walz; lighting, George Gamp and A. J. Bauer; water, Harry Schollmeyer; sanitation, H. E. Dyktor; police and traffic, Robert E. Meyers.

Thomas Keane, director of Senior Scouting for the National Council, in St. Louis last week to address local scoutmasters and committeemen, told Scout Executive John D. Wright that the success or failure of the new senior scouting program here would determine largely the future of activities for older scouts throughout the country.

St. Louis had been designated a proving ground for the new program. Several Explorer and Rover patrols have been organized during the last several months.

Spring training courses for den mothers and den chiefs, conducted by the Cubbing division of the council, were completed last week. Certificates were awarded to 37 women who took the course for den mothers, and 55 men in the course for den chiefs.

Six cubs received bronze "Wolf" badges at the first meeting of Pack 68, St. Peter's Episcopal Church, last Wednesday.

Troop 242, St. Francis de Sales Church, inducted three new scouts as Tenderfeet at a court of honor Thursday and presented Star Scout badges to Richard Hafertepe and Harold Dirkers, and a Life Scout award to Valentine Miller.

Eagle badges will be awarded this week to Waldemar C. Mertens Sr., chairman of the committee of Troop 209, St. Mathew Evangelical Church, and his son, Waldemar C. Mertens Jr. At the troop court of honor Tuesday evening Earl Hahn and William Heuson will be made Life Scouts and Robert Ogle a Star. Other awards will include palms for the Eagle badges of Edgar Busch and Roy Boethelt.

Carl W. Hoppe, scoutmaster of Troop 59, and four members of the troop committee took 14 members of the troop to New Salem and Springfield, Ill., last Sunday on a Lincoln pilgrimage.

Billy Oliver received a Life Scout badge when his troop, 6, of the Second Presbyterian Church, held an award ceremony Friday evening. Troop 98, St. Roch's School, advanced James Ghio to similar rank.

THE UNDAUNTED. By Alan Hart. (W. W. Norton & Co., New York.)

ALAN HART presents the life story of a young research worker who makes a determined fight to prove that pernicious anemia can be cured with liver. Readers of Paul De Kruif's "Men Against Death" will recognize the struggle of the fictional character, Dr. Richard Cameron, as similar to that of Dr. George R. Minot, who in 1935 made the discovery here considered.

Romantic interest is supplied toward the end of the story when handsome Dr. Cameron, already a recognized research man, falls in love with a sympathetic, attractive librarian. But the principal interest is that of science—the pondering over a fatal illness, the theorizing, the sudden glimpse of truth, the years of research necessary to prove the idea, and finally success. Little Theater Grows Into Greater Perplexities

Non-Professional Group Sets Record of 73 Performances For Season Now Ending—Meeting Tonight to Chart Future Course.

WITH six performances of Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard" during the coming week, the Little Theater of St. Louis will round out its ninth season, and a total of 73 performances since it opened its doors the middle of last November.

Looking ahead, the board of directors has invited members of the Little Theater "family" to the Union boulevard playhouse tonight "to discuss the plans to be made for the coming season."

More important questions than that brief printed announcement indicates will very likely come out at the meeting, or may not, but all connected with the organization are aware now, at the end of its second repertory season, that its expansion has brought up pressing issues affecting the theater's future.

Its season this time was not only nine performances longer than that of 1934-35, and 25 more than the season of 1933-34, but also its subscription list in the last three years has grown from 850 to 1650. An average of 2000 persons saw each of the five repertory plays during the past winter.

The expansion approaches a saturation point. With an auditorium seating only 276, the group finds that its subscription list fills up the available seats. If it seeks further growth and relation to a larger portion of the show-going public, it runs into questions of larger quarters, or more performances.

More rehearsal space than is now afforded, more room for set designing and construction, more facilities for storage are as important considerations as seating capacity, and the organization from time to time in the past has considered construction at its present site and location elsewhere, without settling on any definite project.

If more performances are to be considered, there is the question of the actors themselves. As an amateur group, the Little Theater does not give its players any compensation, and members of the cast, nearly all of them employed elsewhere, find the present two weeks' runs as much time as they can afford to give.

F. COWLES STRICKLAND, now ending his third season as director of the group, has held the fond hope since he came to St. Louis of building up an acting group that he could rely on for a full season of playing. His experience, especially in the past year, has convinced him that he now has a group of "people who have played with us enough to know what it's all about."

Among the stalwarts of this year and others are Charity Grace, Sarah Selby, Gordon Sommers, Percy Ramsay, Elliott Bergfeld, Max Muench, Eugene Wood, Bruce MacFarlane, Kathryn Cravens, Mathilde Leimkuehler and Harold Elbert. The season also brought forth the talents of Rozene Johnson, David Orthwein, James Gillis, Bernard Ofner, Harriet Foote, Elmira Roessler, Wieder Sievers, Margaret Hart, Paul Pohl, Catherine Scott, Fred Hirsch, Dolores Harnett and Dorothy Jean Coleman.

Three in that list—Gordon Sommers, Bernard Ofner and Sarah Selby—were engaged two weeks ago for a summer with the Globe Theater's Shakespeare company at the San Diego Fair, and were joined several days ago by Harriet Foote and Wieder Sievers. Several other Little Theater actors are making plans that will take them away next fall.

Strickland admits that the question of compensation—either financial or artistic—is involved. Believing that the experience his players can get in St. Louis is infinitely better than they could get sitting in the outer offices of New York casting agencies, he holds that they must obtain enough evidence of appreciation from the St. Louis public to justify them in giving more time and attention to theatrical work here.

Pointing out that the attitude of the amateur player is usually that he is conferring a favor by taking part in a play, and that when confronted with his responsibility toward the production, such an actor usually thinks, "Well, you can't take golf too seriously," Strickland has sought for three years to develop a different attitude. Having had lengthy experience as a director in the professional theater, he knows definitely what he is seeking.

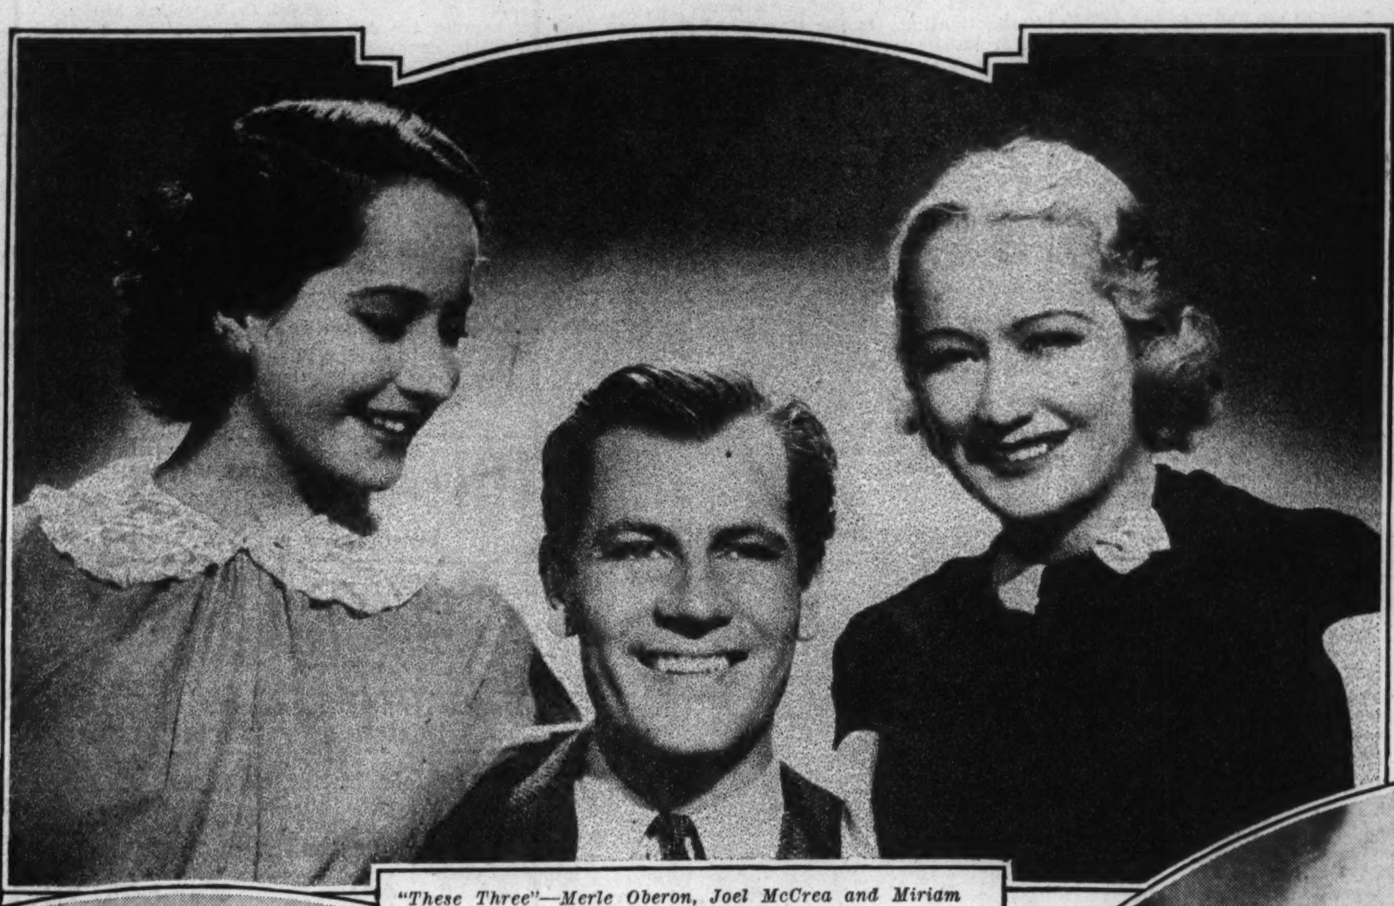
Development of a strong repertory organization is dependent, as he explains it, upon getting together a group of trained actors who can regard their theatrical work as their main business. "They have to learn to believe in themselves, the city has to believe and they have to believe in the city," is the way the director sums it up. "We can make something out of the material we have, and if the actors can't get what they want here, other cities and organizations are going to claim them."

In the past season, Strickland gave his charges Moliere's "School For Husbands" to start with, an experiment in style for most of them; followed with 'Wunderkind," the Little Theater's prize play, then teamed George Bernard Shaw's more or less routine comedy, "Captain Brassbound's Conversion" with "The Wind and the Rain," a work that required more delicate handling. Later "Ode to Liberty" was played for the League of Women Voters, because its political satire fitted the requirements. "The Cherry Orchard" is the stiffest assignment of the year, the real test for the actors.

Repertory for next season has been discussed, but the organization is sure of only one thing—its forthcoming prize play. With 100 manuscripts submitted for the $250 award, the choice has narrowed down to three and the final decision is to be made soon.

Back of scenes, the Little Theater has been going ahead with its classes in acting and playwriting, although one in scenic designing was given up after Christmas when Gordon Carter, the group's stage artist, went into WPA work in Chicago. Carter continued to design sets for plays afterward, but turned a great part of the building and painting to Risdon Tillery. Carter, Tillery, Strickland and Adelaide Tarrant, secretary, are the only salaried persons engaged by the Little Theater.

About 20 students stayed with the class in acting throughout the season, devoting Saturday afernoons to practice. The cast of "The Cherry Orchard" employs a large number of them. The playwriting group brought forth four weeks which received private production in the laboratory section of the theater.



"These Three"—Merle Oberon, Joel McCrea and Miriam Hopkins—at Loew's.

Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchinson in "I Married a Doctor," at the Shubert Theater.

The Screen Translates a Taboo Theme

"These Three," at Loew's, Keeps Force of "The Children's Hour"

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

LILLIAN HELLMAN'S much-discussed drama, "The Children's Hour," comes now to Loew's screen as "These Three" and the unanimous conclusion of those who have seen it must be that it is an extraordinarily powerful work. In its 17 months as a play on the Broadway stage and six weeks or so in picture houses, it has won a host of plaudits. After seeing it twice in previews, I merely offer here, in the conventions of reviewing, the thousandth testimonial.

"The Children's Hour," as such, means less to this section of the country than it does to the East, where the play has now and then run into censorship. Its theme or scandal concerning two young women obviously could never do for the movies, and many a wiseacre guessed that Samuel Goldwyn had a plague on his hands when he paid a fancy price for screen rights. Yet when he entrusted it to the author, Lillian Hellman, she did the miraculous job of reworking her own creation into screen material, and made it as strong as the original. The screen as a whole, to which cleanliness is so often next to childishness, may take pride in Miss Hellman's work, may take cue from it.

The story, which came originally from a case at law, concerns the desolation wrought in the lives of three adults by a lying little fiend. In the play, the small Satan brews her falsehood on the friendship of two young women, in the picture she slanders one young woman and the fiance of the other. The untruth still causes all the heartaches. Those who have seen or read the play will, I think, best appreciate the skill with which Miss Hellman has taken her theme around the barricades of movie censorship, as well as the refinement of her dialogue.

Following the order of the play, Miriam Hopkins and Merle Oberon are presented as college graduates who start a private school for girls in New England. With the help of Joel McCrea, a young physician and eventually Miss Oberon's betrothed, they succeed rather well. Then the problem child, played by Bonita Granville, under punishment for a long list of minor misdeeds, tells her Puritan grandmother a scandalous thing about Miss Hopkins and McCrea. The school is ruined in a few hours as parents withdraw their children. "These Three" sue the grandmother for giving currency to the falsehood. Their suit fails, for the malicious child forces another little girl to corroborate her testimony. With disaster complete, the lie is brought into the open. Some fragments of happiness are restored, but most of the damage remains irreparable.

The strength of "These Three" comes from its heavy emphasis on everyday villainy, from the reality that an amazingly fine cast gives it and from the expert direction of William Wyler. Expansions of scene necessarily enhance the play, as for example, the college graduation, which defines the quality of the girls' ambitions, and the courtroom scene, which indelibly marks their disgrace. Miss Hopkins, Miss Oberon and McCrea treat their roles with a natural sureness, Alma Kruger as the wealthy Mrs. Tilford, the grandmother in the case, is splendid. Both Bonita Granville, who is actually 12 years old, and her little "vassal," Marcia Mae Jones, are extraordinary actresses, according to any classification. All the children in the picture, in fact, seem unconscious of the camera. In a minor, but important role, is Catherine Doucet, who will be remembered for her appearances on the stage here in "As Husbands Go," several years ago. "These Three," in summary, has nothing to shock an adult mind and does have much to offer the emotions. We shall not see another picture like it in a long while.

I Married a Doctor.

EFFORTS were made some time back to keep from saying too loudly that "I Married a Doctor," an assignment for Josephine Hutchinson and Pat O'Brien, was a remake of Sinclair Lewis' well-known "Main Street." The film, now at the Shubert, gives honest credit to the novel, but goes ahead and tells the series of happenings in its own way. The town is no longer called Gopher Prairie but Williamsburg, Dr. Kennicott goes not to St. Paul for his bride but to Chicago, they come home by airplane instead of day coach, and most of the gossiping goes on at the country club. If modernization had gone a step further, Carol Kennicott might have obtained WPA money for the town improvements and "Main Street" would be an Alger story. As it stands, there is enough of the narrow-mindedness to give the conflicts some meaning. There is also Miss Hutchinson's serious playing of Carol, even with Civic Repertory accents that would alienate her from 95 per cent of the American population. The remainder of the cast, including O'Brien, is merely filled in. The Shubert's other feature is "Muss 'Em Up," a long and involved set of circumstances taking place in the home of the wealthy Alan Mowbray. Preston Foster's methods of unraveling murder and abduction are unique, and I suspect, more true to life than all those of the "Thin Man" detectives. "Muss 'Em Up" also provides a new glossary of gang terms, which the films needed badly.

The Witness Chair.

COURTROOM drama has not departed entirely, for "The Witness Chair," at the Orpheum, returns Ann Harding to the place where she won fame in "The Trial of Mary Dugan," stage version. It might be set forth first that this week's witness chair is the most handsome one to grace the screen in years. Only a figure of Lincoln could measure up to its marble grandeur and symbolic sculpture. The trial has to do with the killing of one of Ann's employers, and the jeopardy of the other, Walter Abel. Interesting facts keep coming out and Ann eventually saves Walter, with whom she is in love, but the defense attorney had shot holes through the State's case even before that. Those patrons who stay for the accompanying film will find Jack Haley moving around in a veritable museum of embalmed jests. The film is called "F Man"—and the F stands for something.

Everybody's Old Man.

PADUCAH'S pride and joy—Mr. Irvin S. Cobb—tries to carry a whole picture at the Fox. Entitled "Everybody's Old Man," it is identical to George Arliss' "The Working Man," which came out as recently as 1933 and hardly set fire to anything even then. Since both pictures credit the same original author, Edgar Franklin, I presume it is the same fable. Cobb represents the the millionaire who leaves control of his own factories to a nephew and goes over to help a couple of youngsters attached to the opposition. Only once, when he says Venice (Italy) "looks like Cairo, Ill., in the spring," is Cobb permitted to be himself. Most of the time he stares at a painting of Rochelle Hudson with her hair done up on top of her head, calling it "Mary," while violin music comes over the sound apparatus. Lew Ayres and Florence Rice work together in another film on the same bill, named "Panic on the Air." Lew represents a radio commentator who beats the police and the newspapers to the scene of crime.

"Captain January," latest Shirley Temple effort, and "Roaming Lady," after a week at the Fox, are now at the Ambassador.

"Great Ziegfeld" Held Over for Third Week

"The Great Ziegfeld," originally booked for two weeks at the American, enters its third and final week today. Even with matinee business light, public response to the picture has been greater than to any road show film in the past 10 years, according to Paul Beisman, manager of the American. "Ben Hur," which came out early in 1926, holds the house record for films.

Possibility that the American might house a three-day engagement of "Winterset," prize-winning play which has been in Chicago for the past two weeks, faded several days ago when it was announced that "Winterset" would head through Canada and back East.

Floyd Locke Band for Highlands.

Floyd Locke and his singing dance band will be the ballroom feature at Forest Park Highlands when the amusement park opens its season next Sunday. The unit is composed of 12 musicians and Shirley Day, vocal soloist.

Radio Salaries Making Film Stars More Costly

Frank Fay's New Million-Dollar Job Offers Inspiration to Other Ambitious Young Men—Chance to Have Two Occupations.

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, April 25.

THE threatened gobbling-up of cinema stars by England, which isn't, after all, a really serious threat, is not bothering the producers a tenth as much as the golden stream which the radio companies are pouring out upon Hollywood. Any male star, and a few of the women, who can do anything at all for the air programs is in demand at a salary just as high as the picture people can offer. Take the case of Frank Fay, for instance. It is true Frank was through in pictures, but he made a hit on Rudy Vallee's air hour and came back to Hollywood last week with a million-dollar contract as a radio entertainer. It is true, too, that Fay, an experienced vaudevillian, is a good entertainer over the air but if a big national advertising concern would pay Frank a million, what do you imagine Clark Gable or Leslie Howard or Garbo could ask for, and get?

It is not that the broadcasters are actually stealing the talent away from Hollywood. The stars find it highly profitable, where they care to go on the air, to hold down both jobs and their studio contracts are written to allow them to broadcast. But the fact that the big money is waiting for them makes it tougher on the cinema executives when arguments come up over salary.

Jimmy Cagney, who finds himself barred from the films because no producer is willing to take a chance on him while a Warner Brothers' appeal is pending from the suit which the actor won over the studio in the lower courts, where he was declared a free agent, is trying to turn to the air for an outlet. He is making every effort to sell his home here and declares he is through with Hollywood and the films. The broadcasters will snap him up if convinced by their legal departments that they will not become involved in a lot of damage suits started by the Warner boys.

Eddie Cantor is reported to head the actors who double on the air in the little matter of broadcasting salaries. His newest contract calls for $7000 per broadcast and right behind him are Bing Crosby, Dick Powell, Jack Benny and Mary Pickford who are each paid about $5000. It would be hard to picture Cantor, or Powell, or Crosby, or Benny taking any back talk from a film studio.

No, sir. Picture salaries are high—but they are not in for any drop.

HOLLYWOOD has an idea that the reason Billie Burke did not attend the local premiere of "The Great Ziegfeld" was because she objected, strenuously, to the scene, late in the picture, in which Anna Held, played by Luise Rainer, telephoned to William Powell Ziegfeld to congratulate him upon his marriage to Myrna Loy Burke. Miss Burke says nothing of the sort ever happened, which is true, for the Ziegfeld-Held romance was deader than silent pictures long before Ziggy met, and married, Billie. The scene, it seems, was in and out of the film several times. It was not shown at the very first preview in San Francisco, which Miss Burke attended, but was cut in later. Incidentally, Miss Rainer scored such a hit in her handling of this particular incident that she will be elevated to stardom at once.

Al Jolson may or may not have appeared in his last picture but he is about to turn producer and his first effort will be the immensely successful stage comedy, "Three Men on a Horse." The production will not be started until late this summer because Warner Brothers, for whom Jolson works, own stage as well as screen rights and will not turn their property into a film until the last dollar has been ground out of the legit theaters. Eddie Cantor, long Jolson's rival in a lot of things, made every effort to buy this piece so that he could star in it himself but Warners hung on to it. Under the new plan Jolson will only have charge of the production and will not play a part. The big role is said to be lined up for Stuart Erwin if he can be borrowed from M-G-M.

HEARD Along the Boulevard—Bette Davis is back from a visit to her home in Boston and ready to start work in "Mountain Justice," a meller of the Southern hill-billies. . . . Mummers to Give Stage Performances Of "Petticoat Fever"

THE original stage version of "Petticoat Fever," seen on the screen last week at Loew's, will have two performances by the Mummers on Friday and Saturday evenings at the Wednesday Club, Taylor avenue and Westminster place.

Although the play and the picture have the same introductory situation, the play differs in other respects from the film. The stage version, which starred Dennis King, ran for 136 performances on Broadway last spring and summer. In the Mummers' cast are Willard Holland as Dascom Dinsmore, the wireless operator in Labrador; Marie Stonecipher as the young woman whose plane lands near his lonely hut; Wesley Gore as her fiance and Dorothy Engler, Hugh Sanders, Al Hohengarten, Robert Bennett, Jeanne Favre, Lucille Williamson and Charles Krause in other roles.

With "Petticoat Fever," the Mummers will conclude their eighth season, in which they have presented eight plays, including two original works. Lynn Riggs' "Green Grow the Lilacs" is set for summer production.

Stokowski to Conduct Full St. Louis Concert

Leopold Stokowski will conduct the full program of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in its concert at the Municipal Auditorium the evening of May 9, under the Cueny Concert Direction. Although the orchestra is carrying two assistant conductors on its tour, Stokowski alone will be in charge in St. Louis.

The program is made up of the conductor's own transcriptions of Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D minor, Aria, Fugue in G, "Come Sweet Death" and Passacaglia in C minor—works no other orchestra is permitted to play—with excerpts from Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde," and the preludes to "Die Meistersinger" and "Lohengrin."

David Lamson's Book to Screen.

David Lamson's book, "We Who Are About to Die," will go into screen production soon, with Preston Foster as the star and Lamson himself collaborating on the screen play. Lamson, recently freed of murder charges after having faced trial four times, wrote the book during the year he spent in the death house at San Quentin Prison, under sentence of hanging after the death of his wife.

The SUPREME THRILLS of STUNT FLYING—And HOW IT'S DONE

Captain Ford (Tex) Rogers, Famous Marine Corps Pilot, Gives a Non-Technical Explanation of Various Spectacular Maneuvers Above the Clouds.

By CAPTAIN FORD (TEX) ROGERS

Captain Rogers.

Roaring through the air at over 300 miles an hour, a pilot circles the final pylon that marks the finish of a spectacular air race. He's broken another record, official observers say, and the spectators go wild. Automobile horns blast out full force, sirens screech, and thousands of people yell and clap their hands to add to the pandemonium.

Suddenly the hullabaloo quiets down and dies away. Something new is going on up there in the heavens. Some foolhardy airman, flying upside down, is whizzing around the race track pylons. Spectators facetiously remark that he is making the turns better than did the intrepid lads who flew the race in normal flight position.

That's "Al" Williams, ex-Navy daredevil. So megaphones an official. And as if Williams hadn't already thrilled the customers enough, he now seems to be gliding in for a landing upside down!

No, he doesn't actually land on his back but the plane is so near the ground before it is righted that it looks as if he positively would hit terra firma shady side up. Whereupon the more excitable of the spectators start on a dead run for what they believe will be the scene of the crash. However, "Al" rolls right side up, miraculously achieves a normal landing and all's well.

Is American flying getting tame, as some claim? Not so you could notice it. Certainly not so long as acrobatic flying, with its sensational twists, loops, rolls, spins and banks is not frowned on too severely in official circles of the Navy, Army and Marine Corps, or by authorities at the major racing meets.

No, it isn't exactly a bore to see Roy Hunt, commercial test pilot, give his famous dead stick circus. Which simply means that he performs almost every conceivable stunt known to aviation with his ignition switch shut off—in other words, with his motor stone dead.

Or Atcherly, noted English "aerobat," doing his series of "crazy flying" maneuvers. He struts his stuff at tremendous speed sometimes as low as ten feet off the ground; in fact, he has been known to place one wing on the ground and spin around on this single fin while the rest of the plane looks about as precarious to spectators as would a tiny tot hopping around on one foot atop a skyscraper ledge.

When a plane suddenly rears up, revolves eccentrically about a horizontal axis, and then straightens out into level flight again the pilot has been putting his sky steed through a barrel roll—as in the above photograph.

To those who have never seen either Atcherly or Hunt in action my humble advice is to go as soon as possible. It's a unique and amazing experience. As for me, I've been stunting ever since early World War days—don't believe there are more than a handful of us old flying warhorses left who are in active service today. Yet, frankly, I get just about the same thrills today as I did when gymnastic flying was in its infancy. There is life in these ancient bones yet!

But is there any sense to this mad cavorting through the blue heavens? Is it, after all, worth risking your healthy neck for? That is what most people want to know. They are inclined to regard aerial acrobatics as an unnecessary adjunct to worthwhile aviation pursuits, something indulged in by scatterbrains and to be discouraged if possible.

What is my answer to this? Here it is: Actually, acrobatic maneuvers have two very serious, separate and distinct purposes. The first of these is concerned with the testing of airplanes. By that I mean the flight test of the experimental type, or first issue, of each of the newest airplane designs. The second purpose is the training of pilots.

Now a highly maneuverable test plane, equipped with an accelerometer or gravity indicator, furnishes all the known facts about stresses and strains. This data is the aviation engineer's guide at all times. Such a plane (and this is a point most laymen don't realize) is invariably put through jerks, kicks, rolls, spins—in fact, put through the entire list of stunts, while the instruments record the exact effect of all the stresses and strains as they fall on each of the plane's parts. The result is actual instead of theoretical knowledge to guide the manufacturer and his engineers.

Is there any way the average person can understand how some of the most spectacular forms of aerial stunting are achieved? Well, suppose we hit the high spots of certain elementary and easily understandable facts:

An airplane's normal position in the air is on an even keel, or in a moderate angle of climb or descent not exceeding a range of from five to twenty-five degrees. In turns, the angle of the bank, or the tilting of the plane to make the turn, is not generally in excess of forty-five degrees from the horizontal. Now any maneuver of a plane which causes it to exceed these limitations is apt to be called stunting by the conservative.

The more liberal-minded would stretch the angle of bank to ninety degrees and the angle of depression or elevation of the fuselage, in relation to horizontal flight, to that of forty-five degrees. Any maneuver that places a plane in a position that exceeds these figures must be called acrobatics.

The best method of obtaining a clear conception of any written description of stunting is for the reader to imagine himself in the passenger seat of a dual control plane, with his hand on the stick and his feet on the rudder pedals. Thus he may follow through all the control movements that the pilot makes and their resulting effect upon the action of the plane. Of course such stunts are seldom, if ever, done with a passenger aboard, but in this visualized method of going through them anyone may ride. It's quite safe.

In case the reader is not very well acquainted with the functions of the stick and rudder, the following explanation may be helpful:

Two pedals are mounted on the floor of the cockpit; the feet belong on them. Push the right one and the plane heads to the right. Push the left and you get the opposite result. Between the knees is a lever, the stick. The lower end joins the control mechanism in the bottom of the cockpit. The end in front of you is equipped with a hand grip. You hold that. Push the stick forward and the nose of the plane goes down; pull it back and the nose comes up. Over to the right and the right wing goes down; to the left and that wing is depressed. That's all there is to it. . . .

Before describing just how the best known stunts are accomplished, let us look back on some thrills that come but once in a life time.

What was the most dangerous maneuver I ever attempted? This question is asked of me oftener than any other. Here is the answer: 'Way back in 1919, at the first aerial acrobatic show I ever heard of in this country, seven pilots, including me, tried some tricky stunts over Miami, Florida. We put seven Jennies through a series of acrobatics I've never seen accomplished before or since by that number of planes. After going through some simple maneuvers including snap roll and half roll, all seven of us looped simultaneously, went into a fairly close V, and then reversed the loop.

Maybe this doesn't sound dangerous, but take my word for it we were really gambling with the old man with the scythe. Those old fashioned Jennies were mighty hard to handle and were particularly sloppy

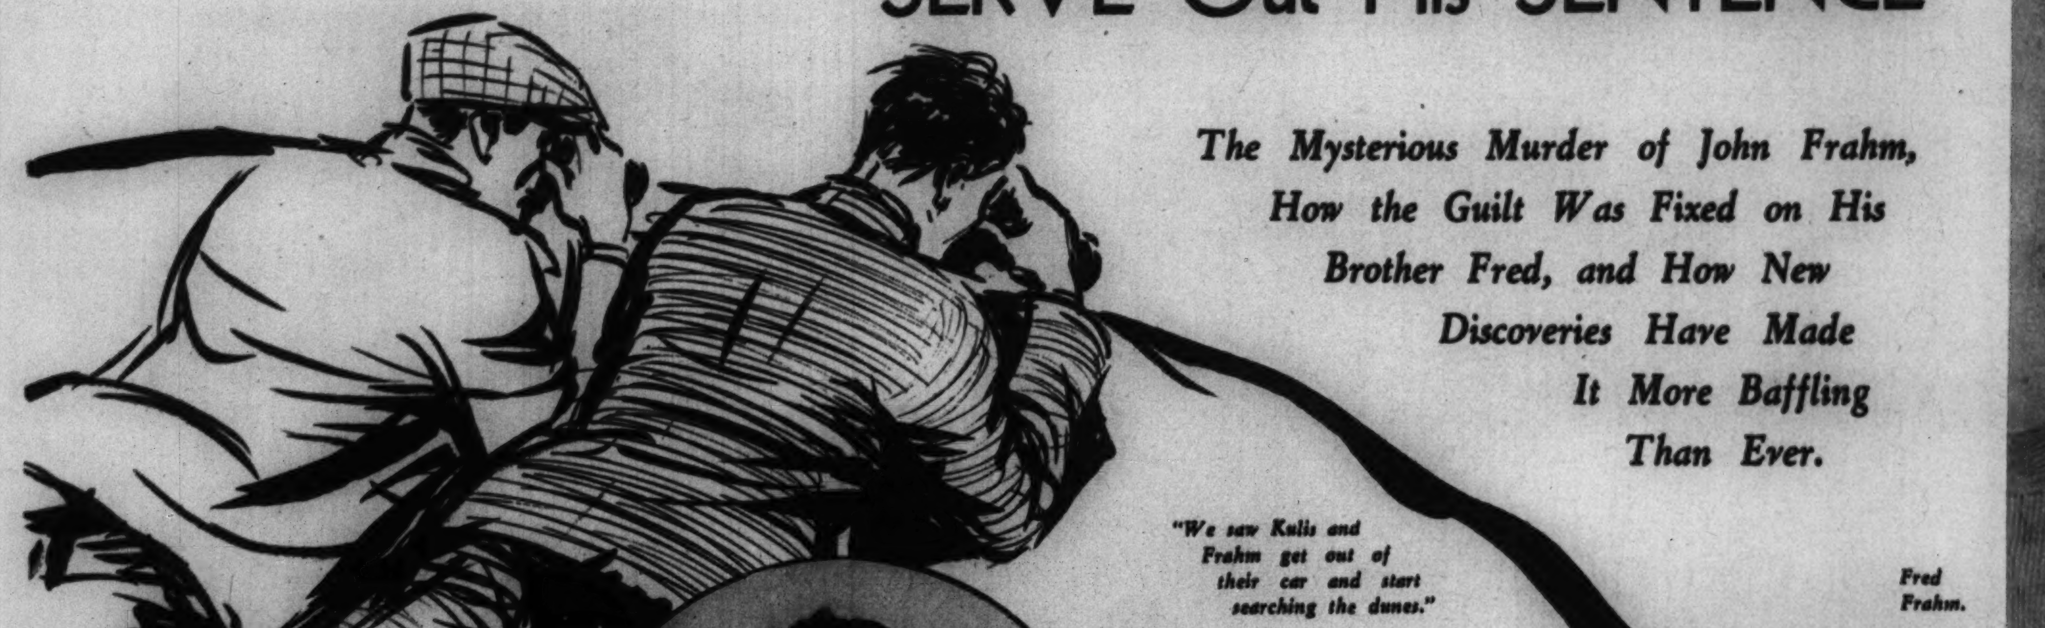
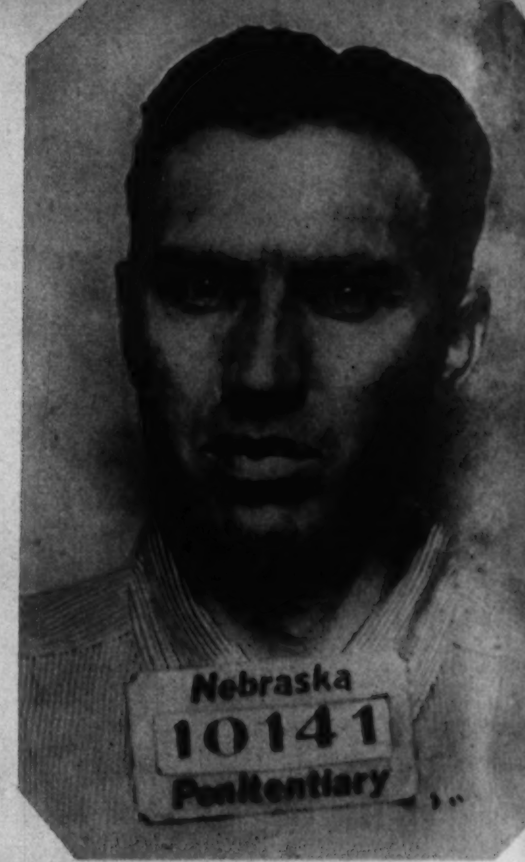
CONVICTED on FALSE EVIDENCE but Prefers to SERVE Out His SENTENCE

The Mysterious Murder of John Frahm, How the Guilt Was Fixed on His Brother Fred, and How New Discoveries Have Made It More Baffling Than Ever.



"We saw Kulis and Frahm get out of their car and start searching the dunes."



Fred Frahm.

John Frahm.

Fred Frahm being grilled by officers after the location of the second body, identified as that of his brother, John.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

OMAHA, Nebraska.

FRED FRAHM, a former police officer now serving a prison term for killing his brother, was convicted on the basis of completely false evidence and under circumstances which he could reasonably have called a frame-up. He has served two years of a 10-year sentence for manslaughter and has had another five added to his punishment for an attempt to escape. Yet now that it has been conclusively indicated that the conviction should never have been made on the basis of the circumstantial and especially the material evidence, Fred Frahm seems perfectly content to stay in prison for 13 years—or until he is released for good behavior.

Whether or not Frahm was in truth guilty of killing his brother remains a moot point. So far as the law is concerned it will always be a moot point, for no court can try him again; the Constitutions of the United States and the State of Nebraska safeguard a citizen from ever being tried twice for the same capital crime. Of course, Frahm himself might ask that the case be reopened on the new evidence, but that he has so far declined to do. On the basis of the evidence presented in the following tale any one of a variety of conclusions might seem logical.

The death of John Frahm, the convict's elder brother, occurred in 1928. John had been a county clerk in Wahoo, Eastern Nebraska, where he had relatives. Afterwards he had gone to Glendale, Arizona, and become successful as an oil operator; he was wealthy and a bachelor at the time of his death. It was November when he left Glendale in his car and set out for Wahoo on a visit. Fred was living in Sidney, Southwestern Nebraska, married, broke and jobless.

John and Fred met in Sidney, which is between Glendale and Wahoo. According to the latter they had some business to do—something in connection with settling their late father's estate. They had to go to Chappell (27 miles east of Sidney) about this, Fred explained later, and between O'Fallon and Hershey (a point about 80 miles east of Chappell) the car ran out of gas. John got out to fill the tank from a two-gallon can he generally carried in his back seat in case of emergencies, but as he stepped into the road a speeding car came by, knocked him down and killed him. Or such, at least, was Fred's story.

On November 12, a few days after this accident is supposed to have occurred, John Frahm's car was found near Julesburg, Colorado, some 15 miles southeast of Chappell. It was burned to a cinder. Nearby was the body of a small white dog exactly similar to one John had owned. A bullet hole pierced its head. No other body was found. Bits of John's personal possessions were found scattered by the roadside at various places along Colorado roads near the Nebraska line, but John's disappearance remained until very recently a complete mystery.

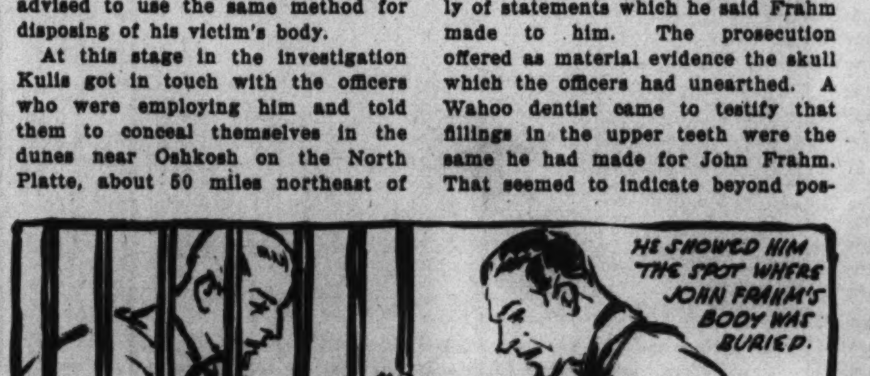
Fred turned up in Wahoo several weeks later, went to a bank and tried to cash a check for $100, drawn against John Frahm's account. He was immediately arrested and subjected to exhaustive questioning, which revealed nothing about his brother's disappearance. The check, however, turned out to be faked and Fred pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery. He was sentenced to three years in the State prison.

During the forgery hearing a Mrs. Anna McCarthy of Denver introduced some testimony which may have had a good deal to do with some later theories of possible motivation. She said she had accompanied Fred Frahm on several automobile trips and that shortly after John's disappearance they had a rendezvous in Sterling, 60 miles southwest of Julesburg, Colorado. When they met Fred told her his brother had lent him a car and she, fearing her husband might trace them to Sterling, suggested they drive on to Yuma. They went there for the night, drove back to Sterling, separated and met in Sidney the following day. Fred had come on the train, allegedly because it was too cold to drive, but later he told her he had taken the car back to his brother in North Platte. Julesburg, where the car was found, is about halfway between Sterling and North Platte. . . .

AFTER his release in 1931, the disappearance of John Frahm remaining still a mystery and no body having been found, the county authorities in Western Nebraska got together and made an elaborate plan to trap the suspected murderer. They sent for Jim Kulis, a Greek private detective from Moorefield, Minnesota, who had some reputation for this sort of thing. Kulis came to Sidney and got to know Fred Frahm. He represented himself as an ex-convict from the Wyoming penitentiary and gave his name as Jim Hill. He showed Frahm his release papers and told him he was now a bootlegger. Frahm agreed to help him make deliveries and was paid 40 cents an hour for it. The two became very friendly. The detective used to give presents to Frahm's wife and they were all on intimate terms.

Finally Kulis (and this is his version of the story) decided it was time to spring the trap. He took Frahm aside one day and told him he had been offered $6000 to do a big time job; someone, he said, wanted a murder done. He asked Frahm what he thought about it; should he take the job? According to the Kulis' story—which netted the little detective several hundred dollars in rewards and several thousand more for commissions — Frahm immediately struck a hard-boiled pose. He told the supposed bootlegger that he himself had killed a man; it was the simplest thing in the world. They had been driving along in a car, Frahm was quoted as saying, when he decided to do away with his companion. It was a lonely road through the wastelands. He stopped the car and beat the other man until he was unconscious. He waited all night for him to die, then washed the blood from the car and drove to a deserted spot in the sand hills. Kulis quoted Frahm as saying that the sand hills of Western Nebraska are the best place in the world to dispose of a corpse and added that Frahm had ultimately revealed that the man he had killed was his own brother. "The wind blows the sand," Frahm was supposed to have told Kulis, "and you can't find any trace of a grave." Kulis said he was advised to use the same method for disposing of his victim's body.

At this stage in the investigation Kulis got in touch with the officers who were employing him and told them to conceal themselves in the dunes near Oshkosh on the North Platte, about 50 miles northeast of Sidney. He designated the exact spot. They found a good point of vantage and hid there, watching the surrounding dunes through binoculars. They saw Kulis and Frahm pull up and get out of their car and start searching the dunes. They saw Frahm climb to the top of a dune, apparently getting his bearings by referring to the location of a distant windmill. Apparently the two failed to locate what they were seeking. They seemed to go away disappointed.



HE SHOWED HIM THE SPOT WHERE JOHN FRAHM'S BODY WAS BURIED.

When Kulis and Frahm had left, the officers started an intensive examination of the dunes they had been inspecting. About 60 feet from where Frahm had been standing they dug up a corpse. . . .

At the trial in Oshkosh Kulis had the entire courtroom hanging on his words as he told this story. The only person who seemed bored was Fred Frahm. He denied substantially all of it and when Kulis reached the dramatic point in which he told how they went out to the sand dunes and searched for a body, explaining that they had gone there to burn the bones in order to prevent any possibility of their turning up in evidence later, Frahm laughed harshly. In his testimony he explained that they hadn't been searching for a body, but for a cache of booze they had hidden there.

The clinching part of the testimony was not Kulis', which consisted chiefly of statements which he said Frahm made to him. The prosecution offered as material evidence the skull which the officers had unearthed. A Wahoo dentist came to testify that fillings in the upper teeth were the same he had made for John Frahm. That seemed to indicate beyond possibility of a doubt that the dead man had been the same for whose murder Fred was being tried. Others came forward to identify scars on the skull as those John Frahm had received during an injury previous to his death. Relatives positively identified the dog despite Fred's denials. The defense was comparatively meager. Fred Frahm was almost uncommunicative and made no attempt to win the sympathy of the jury or the spectators. He took the cynical attitude of a man who is being framed for a crime he did not commit, and left it to his lawyer to disprove the points brought up by the prosecution. All he said was that there was no corpus delictu—that he could produce John Frahm in court within 10 days. Nobody believed him. Apparently the lawyer did a good job of it, for in spite of the damning nature of the evidence that had been brought up, the jury refused to return a conviction for first degree murder. They found him guilty of manslaughter. District Judge E. L. Carter, who presided, was furious with the verdict, which seemed to him not in accord with the facts presented.

"You are more than lucky," he told Frahm as he imposed the 10-year term, "to get off with such a sentence."

But Fred was unregenerate. "The fact still remains," he told the Court, "that the body was not John Frahm's."

Judge Carter was not in the least impressed. "Under the circumstances," he commented, "the sentence is much too low."

Fred Frahm went to the Nebraska penitentiary at Lincoln in May, 1934, still swearing that he had been framed. Soon afterwards he made an attempt to escape, got away for a few minutes, was recaptured and got his sentence increased by five years. It may have been this which prompted him to talk. He had been self-contradictory and enigmatic up to last summer.

Last summer a fellow-convict from Frahm's home county, near Sidney, was released. Before he left the prison Frahm asked him to do him a favor when he got out. He gave him a map of Cheyenne County of which Sidney is the county seat, and showed him the spot where John Frahm's body was buried. Officers went there and found the body buried four feet below the surface in a sandy road ditch 100 yards away from a little bridge Frahm had marked on his map. The skeleton was dressed in the rags of a blue suit, as Fred Frahm had said it would be. There appeared to be no doubt that this was John Frahm's skeleton. The dental evidence was a good deal more conclusive this time. Dr. L. A. Donahoe, a dentist in Sidney, made an exhaustive investigation.

IN PHOENIX, ARIZONA, he located a dentist, Dr. Ben C. Smathers, who had made a hecolite upper denture and two gold fillings for John Frahm. He produced his records to prove this work was the same as was found in the skeleton dug up in Cheyenne County. The records and dental work corresponded precisely. This was a proof so undeniable that it immediately canceled the testimony of 32 relatives of the Frahms' who had positively identified the other remains as those of the missing man. In addition the second skeleton could be identified by a bent right leg and an old fracture of the left arm—discrepancies which had been overlooked in the earlier evidence.

The police do not know what to make of this new revelation. They have been unable to identify the first body and they can't try Fred Frahm again for the murder of his brother. The convict has given them a plethora of confusing and contradictory alibis to ponder and they are altogether unable to be certain of his motives for the crime, even if they assumed that he did it. Two hypotheses are all the police have to work with. One is the explanation offered by a fellow-convict of Fred Frahm.

This man says that it is generally understood by the prisoners that John Frahm was murdered by the husband of a woman friend in the suspicion that both brothers had had an affair with his wife. Since this man was killed three years ago in an automobile accident this doesn't give the police much to work on. But one convict has explained Fred's conduct and accounted for his motivation by saying that he refused to tell where John was buried in order to shield a woman he was in love with. He quotes Frahm as saying that he now hates the woman for whom he made this sacrifice and is eager to make her part in the story public.

FRED himself, offering no explanation for the discovery of the original corpse, still insists that his brother died after being hit by an automobile. He is still contemptuous of Kulis' testimony, which he flatly denies, and since the latter hasn't been located and has not been in Sidney since he got his commissions and his reward money, his story is generally suspect there.

Fred has been considerably more talkative since the second body was found. He tells how he was driving through the lonely sand hills country with his brother when the car ran out of gas, he relates that he was hysterically frightened when he found himself there alone, with his brother's corpse on his hands and insists that it was fear of a murder charge that prompted him to drive more than 100 miles with the body to bury it secretly. He tells of driving John's car to Sterling, to Yuma, back to Sterling—just as Mrs. McCarthy of Denver described during the forgery hearing. He still insists that the white dog found near the car outside of Julesburg was not the same dog that had belonged to John, though he admits that John's dog was with him at the time the fire broke out and the car was destroyed. He goes on to tell of his train trip back to Sidney, describes his experiences looking for a job there and tells how he went to Wahoo to cash the forged check. He skirts the fact that he pleaded guilty of the forgery charge after it was shown that John's disappearance occurred more than a month before the date on the check.

AS TO the secrecy in which he held the fact that he knew of John's death and knew where the body was buried, he explains that by saying that he didn't want to take a chance of being tried for two murders while he was being tried for one. Lists of missing men have still failed to disclose the identity of the one whose skeleton figured in the manslaughter conviction. All these explanations may be sound and it is possible that Fred Frahm, as an innocent man—as he stoutly maintains—might yet be reasonably afraid of being tried again for the murder of his brother. The reasons given at the beginning of this account may be the cause for the convict's willingness to serve out his term rather than put himself again in jeopardy.

Fred Frahm has given a great many explanations that are within the realm of probability or possibility since he revealed the location of his brother's remains and asked that they be accorded Christian burial. He has said nothing, though, about one detail which may make the jurymen who found him guilty sleep a little more peacefully when they recall the trial. The skeleton dug up in Cheyenne County showed no signs of having been struck by a speeding automobile. There was, however, a bullet hole through the forehead.

MILLIONS for Shakespeare's
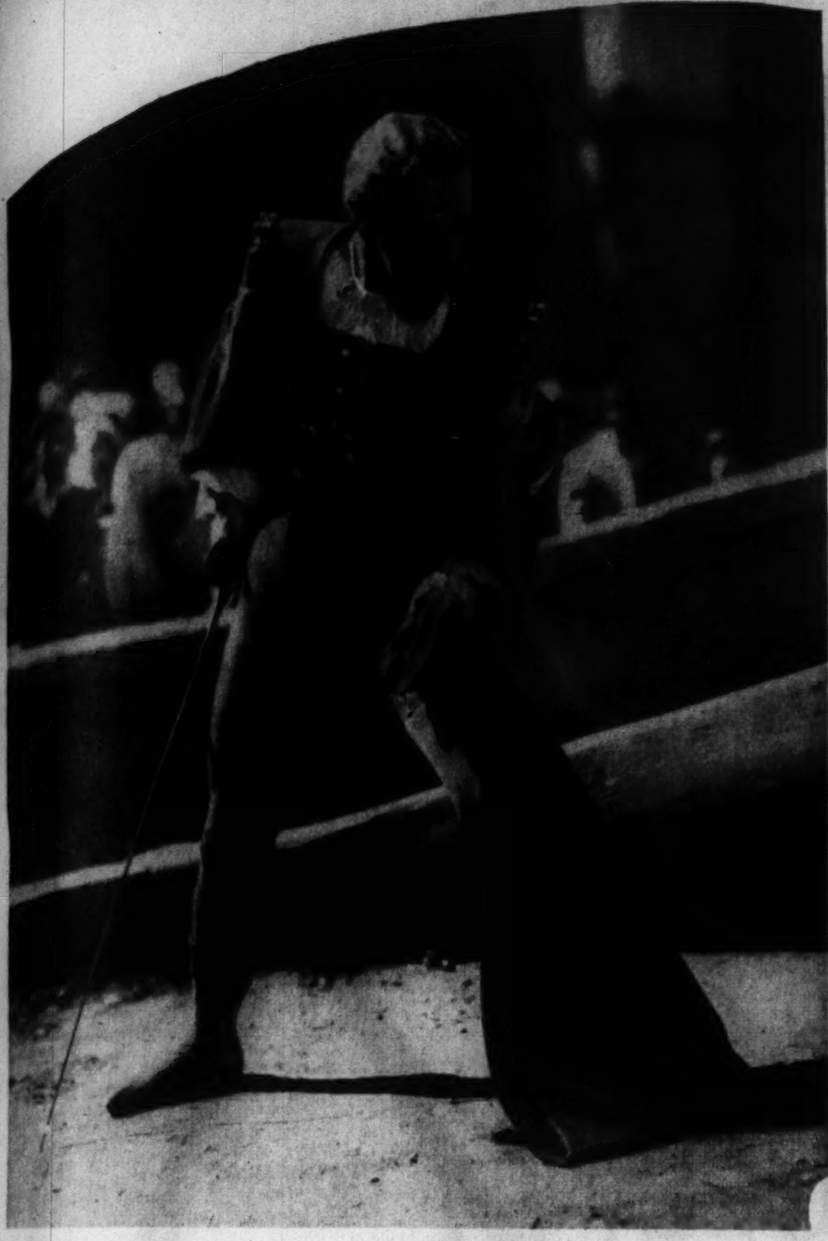
'ROMEO and JULIET'

And Why the Hollywood Barons Feel That the Cash Customers Will Like This Sixteenth Century "Boy Meets Girl" Play.



Leslie Howard as Romeo.

The famous balcony scene.

Norma Shearer as Juliet.

HOLLYWOOD, California.

WHETHER the movie customers like it or not they are going to see more of Shakespeare on the screens. During the past year Hollywood has invested something like $5,000,000 in making two of the Bard's plays into celluloid and five millions is a lot of money any way you look at it. It must come pretty close to equaling the whole amount spent on stage productions of Shakespearean works during the last two or three hundred years and when you consider that this great sum has been put into just two plays, "Midsummer Night's Dream" and the still unfinished "Romeo and Juliet," you can get an idea of how the film factories have gone about glorifying the Shakespearean girls.

Up to the moment Shakespeare hasn't been tremendously popular with the cinema fans. English producers, who guard their money supply much closer than do the Hollywood barons, had a try or two at it, largely because there was no author's royalty to pay. Even then the response at the British box offices was rather slight. In this country John Barrymore once inserted a scene from a Shakespearean play in a modern picture and his audiences thought it was some kind of an advertisement and went home.

Then the up and coming Warner brothers—the three of them are said to have read 400 pages each of "Anthony Adverse" before ordering it to the screen—went in for "Midsummer Night's Dream" in a big way with the assistance of Dr. Max Reinhardt. It was a pretty glorious affair for every one concerned except the show house cashiers who enjoyed something of a rest during the runs in what were once called "legitimate" theaters. It is now said that "Midsummer Night's Dream" will probably never be sent into the regular movie houses at regular movie prices, but the Warners expect to get a good part of their two and a half million investment by appealing to the "high brow" literary societies in the smaller cities and from school and college students.

THE Warners were, with considerable justice, pleased with their expensive "high brow" experiment. But out at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio, where "Romeo and Juliet" is now being filmed with that fine actor, Leslie Howard, playing Romeo to Norma Shearer's Juliet, they are taking great pains to stress the fact that this tragedy is not "high brow" at all, which would indicate that the picture, after its $2 runs, will be turned over to the common or garden variety of fans. It is just, say the advance announcements, a boy meets girl story with a good deal of the gangster type of meller in its makeup.

MGM started off by engaging Prof. William Strunk Jr., of Cornell University as the literary adviser during the making of the picture. Prof. Strunk, who is really one of the foremost Shakespearean authorities in America, was recommended for the task by the Folger Library of Washington, D. C. Prof. Strunk has been out here at his movie job for a year, but is still somewhat amazed at the magnificence of Hollywood picture spending. While he might easily be classed as a "high brow" himself Prof. Strunk says he is also amazed at the fact that Shakespeare is put into that class. "Those who refer to William Shakespeare as 'high brow,' " he declares, "forget that he was a writer and producer of popular and successful plays long before the world proclaimed him as a genius and creator of masterpieces. In his own time Shakespeare did not write for a bookish few. He packed the galleries as well as the boxes. He won the favor of Queen Elizabeth, the Earl of Southampton and King James, it is true, but he also won the favor of the popular audiences that filled the Swan and Globe and Blackfriars Theaters, and those who later sat in the top galleries of Drury Lane and Covent Garden.

"The same holds true today. The smashing successes enjoyed by Katharine Cornell on the road and in New York, and John Gielgud's recent production in London, are proof enough of Shakespeare's continued popularity. Both packed the galleries."

There was a twinkle in the professor's eye.

"It is not going too far to say that Shakespeare was the Ziegfeld of his day. Certainly he was the world's first great showman, as well as a playwright and actor. He accumulated a fortune as part owner of the Globe Theater. Playwrights of his day were poorly paid, but theater owners prospered. The money he made out of the Globe enabled him to purchase the finest home in Stratford on Avon, a family coat of arms, and to retire to the life of a country gentleman. Everything we know about Shakespeare points to the fact that he had a thorough understanding of human nature and was himself very human. This, unfortunately, is too often forgotten."

Now Hollywood does not consider the fact, as do its English cousins, that no royalty is involved in producing plays of Shakespeare. True, the "Ziegfield of his time" collected nothing from "Midsummer Night's Dream" and will get exactly the same amount from "Romeo and Juliet." But the screen requires a scenarist to whip even Shakespeare into shape and scenario writers get a lot of money. More money than the late lamented Mr. Shakespeare ever dreamed of, as a matter of fact.

FOR the "Romeo and Juliet" thing, Talbot Jennings, a high salaried writer who adapted "Mutiny on the Bounty," called by the Motion Picture Academy the best cinema of last year, was brought into play. A Harvard man, a student of Shakespeare and a writer of note, he was well fitted for the job.

Irving Thalberg, who is producing the picture—he has really done some fine things for the screen—wanted to get the picture right. Maybe he wanted to dispute the claims of the Three Warners to being the Charles Frohmans or the Sir Henry Irvings of cinema land. Anyway he wanted to make a great picture—with great box office possibilities—but, at the same time, do something that Cornell, represented by Prof. Strunk, and Harvard, personified by Talbot Jennings,

How the Hungarian Premier FOUGHT a DUEL AGAINST His WILL

And Why Many Such Encounters Are No Longer Dangerous But Are Merely Devices for Saving One's Face.

Premier Julius Goemboes.

By ROBERT RANDOLPH

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

NAPOLEON once said that a good duelist always made a bad soldier, but in Budapest, which is to the duelist what Reno is to the divorce seeker, a good politician must be just as ready to use saber or pistol as he is to make a speech. However, even in Budapest, as well as in Buenos Aires and other cities where the duel is not unusual, although illegal, the once deadly code duello has become just a means of saving face. Instead of pistols for two at 10 paces and coffee for one, it is pistols at nothing under 25 paces, often followed by champagne for two.

The latest affair on the so-called field of honor, and one which all Budapest still is discussing, occurred the morning of April 7 in the tanbark covered ring of the historic Francis Joseph cavalry barracks where General Julius Goemboes, the Hungarian Premier, after months of dodging his dilemma, finally seized it by one of its horns.

When Tiber Eckhardt, leader of the Peasant Party and once Hungary's delegate to the League of Nations, challenged Goemboes after a series of heated exchanges in a Parliamentary Committee session, the military code required that the General give satisfaction. His position as Premier required technically that he enforce the law against dueling.

Several times in the past year, the Premier has been diplomatic enough to talk himself out of the challenges of the fiery young deputy. Since becoming Premier in 1932, Goemboes has managed to placate several other poltical opponents without accepting demands for satisfaction on the field.

Fear most certainly played no part in Goemboes' actions, for he accepted challenges without hesitation before becoming Premier. Entering the army as a youth, he rose rapidly and because of his skill with pistol and saber was for two years instructor in fencing and marksmanship at the military school. He rose to field marshal during the World War after being wounded and decorated. He also became known for his prowess in wild boar hunts. His real rise to fame came in 1920 when he organized the counter revolutionary army and overthrew Bela Kun in 1920 and a few months later frustrated the efforts of King Charles to regain the Hungarian throne.

There was no way to avoid Eckhardt's recent challenge. Goemboes presented his resignation to Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the Regent, who refused to accept it. President Alexander Sztraniavsky of the Chamber of Deputies and Secretary of State Thaly were named as seconds to arrange details with the two deputies acting for Eckhardt. They limited the duel to a single exchange of shots at 25 paces.

THE two opponents with their doctors and seconds arrived at the barracks separately in automobiles and with the utmost secrecy. The duel master, as he examined their pistols, made the routine announcement: "I remind you, gentlemen, that dueling is against the Hungarian law, and I earnestly advise reconciliation." He then stepped off 25 paces and the men took their places.

They stood glaring at each other until the command to fire. Although it appeared each aimed at the other, their bullets missed and lodged in the walls. Both men turned their backs at once and walked rapidly away, unreconciled. Friends of Goemboes say that had he wished to kill or injure his young opponent he would have selected sabers. Eckhardt's admirers assert that Eckhardt also is a good swordsman, but Goemboes' supporters in rebuttal point out that Goemboes is a good pistol shot and not likely to miss unintentionally at 25 paces.

An official communique issued after the duel said that the two principals sought "knightly satisfaction," but did not mention the illegality of the encounter or the possibility of arrest. It is recalled that Admiral Horthy fought several duels in his younger days and that his son, in 1929 at the age of 17, wounded another youth in a pistol duel and served an "honorary incarceration" of three days in the lace-curtained political prison at Vac with its overstuffed chairs, bar and facilities for the prisoner to carry on his business affairs.

The ill feeling that long has existed between Eckhardt and Goemboes first entered the dueling phase last June when Count Stephen Bethlen, a former Premier, assailed Eckhardt in a political speech. The Peasant Party leader, charging slander, sent his seconds to the Count. The Count explained that he had only quoted Goemboes and really had intended no harm. The seconds hastened to Goemboes. The General accepted the challenge and then had his seconds explain that he had been misquoted, thus preventing the duel. But Goemboes scarcely had time to relax before the seconds of Count Bethlen arrived to say that the answer to Eckhardt had been a gross insult to the Count. It is not known what answer the resourceful General gave the Count, but he did pacify him.

Then on the following day, Ladislas Szalay, a Goemboes supporter with a temperament matching that of Eckhardt, announced in Parliament that he did not like Eckhardt's manner and would be pleased to meet him at dawn with pistols, fists or sabers. Eckhardt chose sabers and the two had at each other for 30 minutes. They were somewhat scratched and greatly out of breath when seconds stopped them on the ground they were completely exhausted.

This duel was the forerunner of a dozen others among deputies in the Parliament. They resulted in the smoothing of ruffled feelings and in a few minor lacerations. What the latest duel will result in is a matter of conjecture. It is most certain though that no one will be hurt since the civic official rarely fights the vicious duel that the army officers sometimes fight and always keep secret, listing the death as "a fall from horse" or some other cause that will lead to no inquiry.

Usually, though not always, when the politician resorts to pistols, the weapons are loaded with a small amount of powder and a lead ball or a lot of powder and a wax ball.

And more often than not, both parties fire into the air. If they resort to sabers, they are swathed in heavy bandages and well padded. Seconds are on the alert to thwart any potentially deadly thrust.

The seconds are empowered to stop the duel whenever they feel that opponents have become "utterly exhausted." Therefore, obese politicians know that their seconds will call a halt before matters have gone too far. Sometimes broad-minded seconds step in after portly statesmen, whose greatest exertion has been lifting cocktail glasses, have made but six or seven passes with the saber. The duel between Count Hermann Salm and Count Ludwig Wentheim was halted on the ground that the latter's pulse was too fast.

Dueling is good business in Budapest. Custom requires that gymnasiums be hired for the occasion. The charge for a simple encounter with no frills or pomp is $25. For a really gala occasion, the charge may be $500. After the affair has been settled, the combatants usually treat seconds and friends to the opera and a jolly champagne dinner. Custom also requires that gifts, such as gold headed canes or jeweled cigarette cases, be distributed.

Two days after the Szalay-Eckhardt duel, Count Balint Szechenyi, distant kinsman of Gladys Vanderbilt, fought a saber duel with Victor Stein, the former husband of the Count's wife, in which the rules and regulations for politicians were not used. The duel grew out of remarks that Stein made after he lost a law suit whereby he sought to make his former wife continue paying alimony to him. After three rounds the Count was somewhat scratched about the head and shoulders and Stein had nearly lost his nose. In the fourth, they rushed together, sabers swinging madly, and collapsed. Both were carried away on stretchers.

Surgeons also take their dueling seriously in Budapest. Dr. Laszlo Farkas and Dr. Josef Krauss disagreed about the proper technique while operating in a hospital last August 18 and laid aside their scalpels for sabers. Dr. Krauss, as a result, had to have a few stitches taken.

BUDAPEST is regarded as a mecca for duelists, but two Greeks who traveled nearly 1000 miles from Athens in order to fight there in 1930 nearly met with more than "honorary incarceration." Prince Constantine Apostolides, former Greek Minister, and George Scuzi, real estate dealer, had announced that they would fight to the death. Their quarrel was based on a diary kept by the Prince's wife in which she is said to have made rash entries that compromised Scuzi. The Prince read the diary.

Detectives trailed the two when they arrived at the Budapest station. It was indicated, though, that they merely wanted to see the fight. When the two gentlemen evaded surveillance, fired several wild shots, and hastened away unhurt, the detectives, their feelings hurt, tried vainly to apprehend them.

Buenos Aires is the new world rival of Budapest in the dueling field. One of the most notable incidents in its dueling history occurred last July 25, the day after a spectator in the Senate shot and killed Senator Enzo Bordabehere as Bordabehere sought to aid Senator Lisandro de la Torre who had been knocked down in the aisle during an encounter with Minister of Agriculture Luis Duhau. De la Torre had just finished denouncing Duhau and Minister of Finance Federico Pinedo.

More than 100 persons, mostly prominent, saw De la Torre, a 70-year-old graybeard, and Pinedo, 40, meet. Surgeons assured anxious newspaper men that there would be no bloodshed. A few minutes later, De la Torre, his beard whipped by the winter breeze, fired into the air, and his opponent followed suit.

THE honors go to San Salvador, though, for an attempt to establish a safe and sane form of dueling. It all came about when one Salvadore Reyes won a prize for composing a national hymn. Reyes, in his pride over his accomplishment, made derogatory remarks about some of his competitors. One of them, Cesar Perotti, promptly questioned Reyes' knowledge of music and challenged him to what he called "a duel in harmony."

Reyes replied that he would accept no challenge from a crazy man. Perotti thereupon presented himself at a state asylum for examination and obtained a certificate stating that he was not insane. In addition, he obtained a statement from a doctor to the effect that he was in full possession of all his mental faculties. Armed with these documents he renewed his challenege and Reyes had to accept.

Leading musicians were selected to examine the two men on their musical knowledge.

Perotti arrived on time for the duel only to find a messenger with a letter from Reyes to the effect that he would meet Perotti with pistols, swords, boxing gloves or bare fists—and in no other manner. Perotti declined, repeated his original challenge, and got no answer.

Recent duels in Paris have shown that Mark Twain really put it rather mildly when he said that the greatest danger for a French duelist was the chance he ran of taking cold by venturing out so early in the morning. The duel between two members of the House of Deputies, Horace de Carbuccia and Cesar Campinchi, fought March 6, 1935, attracted unusual attention because Campinchi was wounded in the wrist.

Judging from events in Mexico in the last several years, a challenge there almost invariably means a duel and a duel means death or serious injury to one or both principals. Last June, as a result of personal differences said to have been known only to the duelists and their seconds, Mayor

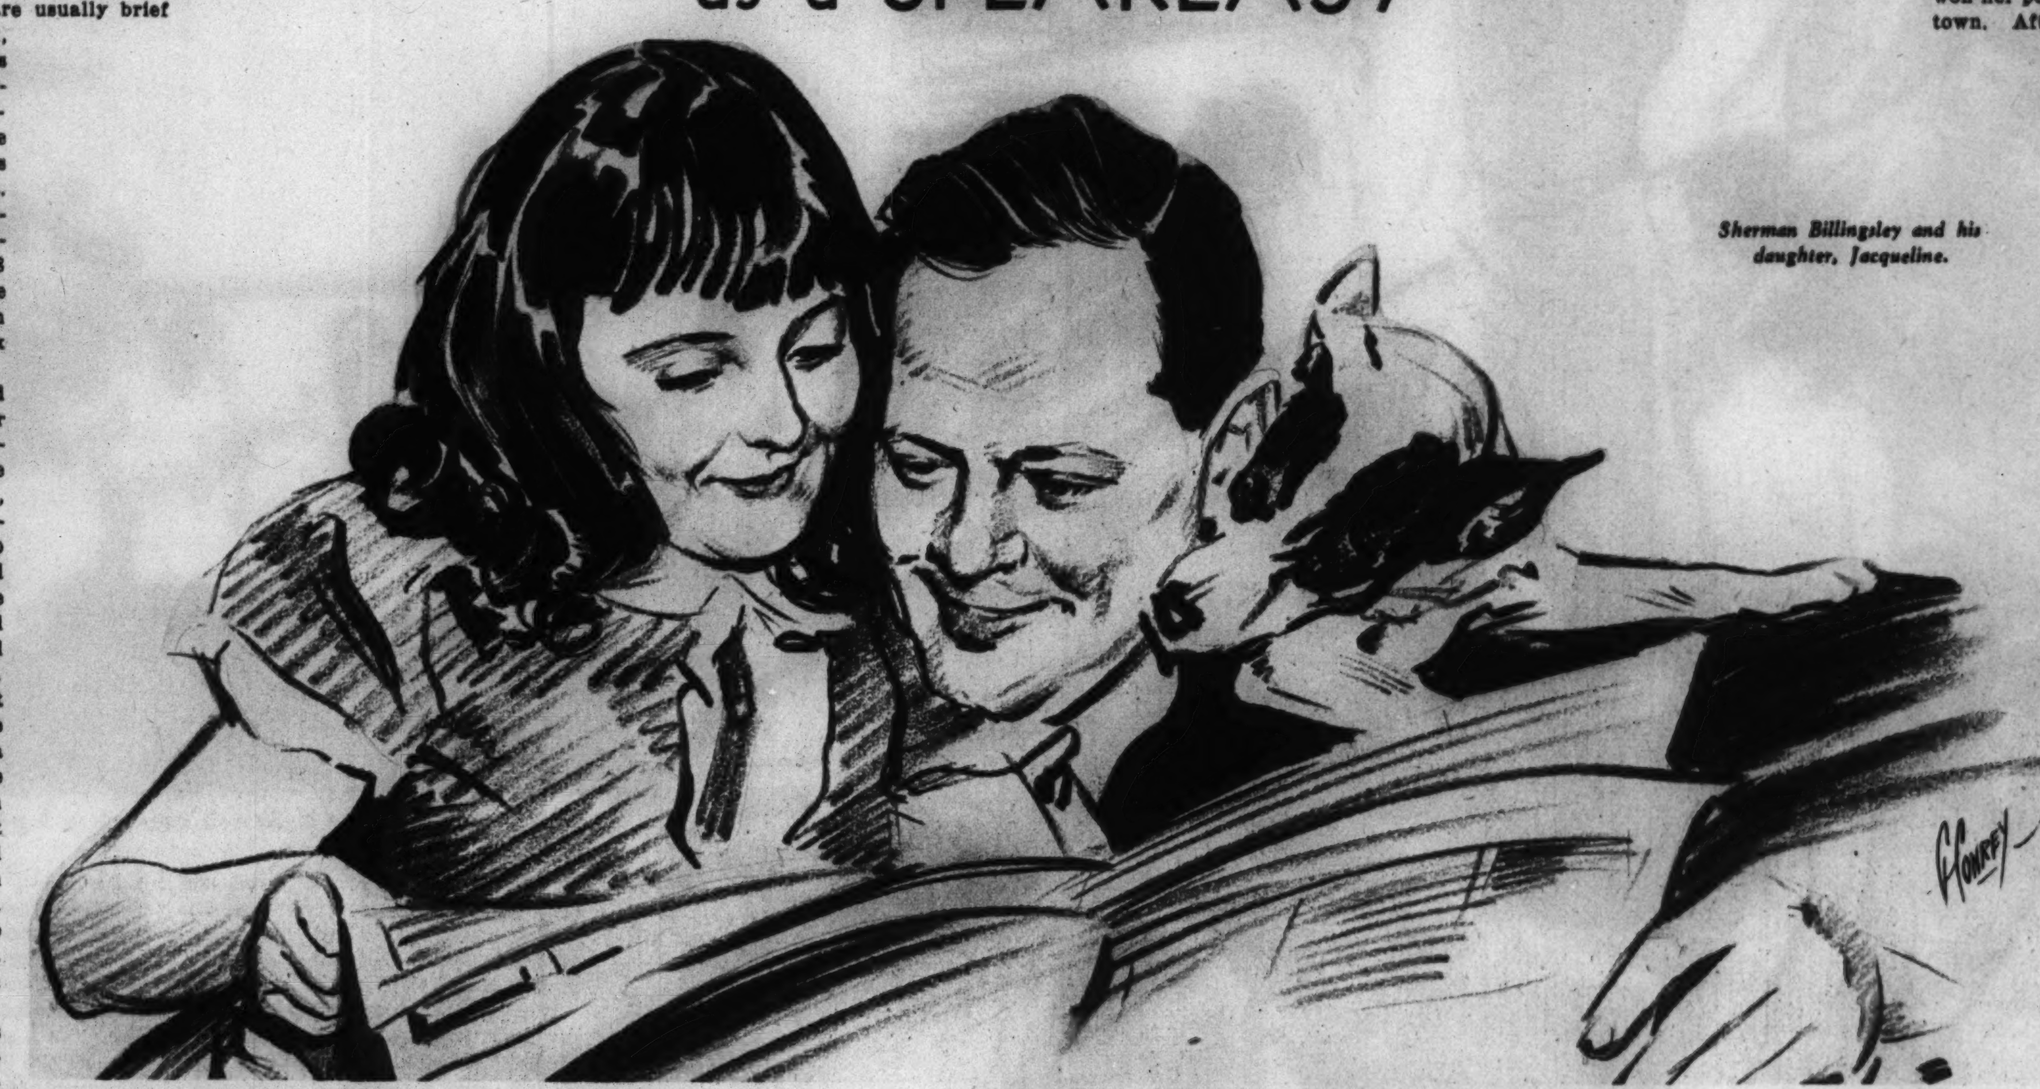
SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

RAYMOND FERNAND LOEWY
SHERMAN BILLINGSLEY

He Runs a MILLION-DOLLAR-A-YEAR NIGHT CLUB That Started as a SPEAKEASY



Sherman Billingsley and his daughter, Jacqueline.

NEW YORK.

THE Stork Club is the best known night resort in New York. One of the few speakeasies which survived repeal, it has blossomed into a $1,000,000-a-year business. In a type of enterprise where success and popularity are usually brief and failure quick, the Stork Club has achieved rare permanence, for it is almost 15 years old. The genius behind it comes from Enid, Oklahoma. He is Sherman Billingsley, a quiet, soft-spoken chap of 38 years, who was the youngest of the seven Billingsley kids back home in Enid.

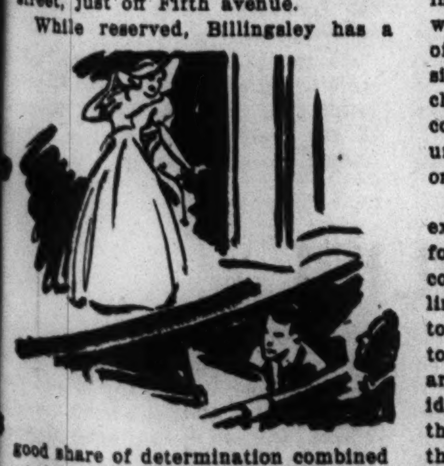
Billingsley knocked around the West for a number of years after leaving Enid. He worked in cigar stores, jerked soda, sold merchandise, ran pop stands and performed other odd jobs before coming East. He had saved his money and kept his eyes open, and one of his first acts on arriving here was to look for a good investment. He sank his money in Bronx real estate just after the war and made a nice profit on the post-war upsurge. So he went into the real estate business. He also started a chain of drug stores.

In the early 1920s two friends from Oklahoma dropped in, sampled the night life and decided they wanted to open a speakeasy. They invited Billingsley to join them. Billingsley knew of a likely site near the New York Athletic Club in West Fifty-eighth street. Instead of taking his usual brokerage commission, he accepted a third interest in the project.

How the name Stork Club was selected is at this late date more or less obscure.

"We were just sitting around a restaurant table discussing the deal," Billingsley explains, "when someone said: 'What will we call it?' Several names were suggested and discarded. Then someone said: 'Why not call it the Stork Club?' For some reason it sounded right, so we adopted it."

Partly because of the good location, the speakeasy was immediately successful. Billingsley liked the business so well he persuaded his partners to sell out to him and then he proceeded to forget he had ever been a real estate broker. Night club management seemed his natural forte. He put up the first sidewalk canopy outside a speakeasy and soon the whole town followed suit. New York was pretty much wide open during the "dry" era. The Stork Club flourished. Princeton undergraduates and visiting business men went home with a pocketful of speakeasy admission cards and among these the embossed Stork Club's was one of the prizes. Since then and with the repeal of prohibition the club has occupied two other locations, Fifty-first street and Park avenue, and then its present site at 3 East Fifty-third street, just off Fifth avenue.



While reserved, Billingsley has a good share of determination combined with an ingenuity which gets him what he wants. His courtship is an example. Before he started the Stork Club, Billingsley's heart fluttered one night when he saw Hazel Donnelly in the cast of "Sally" at the New Amsterdam Theater. Though naturally shy, he resolved to marry the pretty blue-eyed blonde show girl. The difficulties were many. Miss Donnelly ignored his notes and his flowers. Billingsley thought at first it was because he was a nobody in particular alongside the glamorous lads of wealthy background who hung around Broadway.

Then he found that the girl, while dating occasionally with the boys in white ties and tails, was the preciously guarded jewel of an Irish family in the Bronx. She had been raised to watch her step and she was doing it.

Billingsley was right in the thick of real estate and drug store operation at the time and he lost no time in making both enterprises serve him. Miss Donnelly lived at 1228 Morris avenue, Bronx. Billingsley learned that she took the subway each day at the 167th street station of the Jerome avenue line. He bought a corner site in between the two points, at 167th street and Girard avenue, and set up a drug store, the biggest and fanciest in his chain. All over the outside of it he had his name painted and the biggest electric sign he could find blazoned SHERMAN BILLINGSLEY to the world—and, he hoped, to the one person he wanted to impress the name upon. He spent most of his time in the store and prayed the girl would recall the name from his dressing room notes and see, at last, that he was a big shot worthy of being noticed. He hoped, too, that she might happen across a subdivision in another part of the Bronx, where he had created a Billingsley avenue.

Miss Donnelly passed the store twice a day, but never gave it a tumble. Billingsley found she had a couple of small sisters. He engineered the youngsters into his store and plied them with soft drinks and candy. He bought a couple of flashy automobiles and drove slowly past the Donnelly home whenever possible. The kid sisters informed him that Hazel had left "Sally" and was rehearsing for the Follies. They also tlod him that their father was a police captain and that scared him, for some reason.

One morning his break came. The girl dropped into the store, quite accidentally, on the way to the subway, to buy a stamp or some such minor article. Billingsley seized his chance and blurted out his tale across the counter. Instead of becoming angry, as he had feared, she seemed amused. They chatted for half an hour, and he won her permission to drive her downtown. After that he was allowed to call at her home, where he found Captain John Donnelly as large and as formidable as he had feared.

But the romance progressed and in a few years they were married. They have a daughter, Jacqueline, 9 years old, and they live on Park avenue.

Operation of the Stork Club takes practically all of Billingsley's time. Seven days a week, he works from noon until 4 o'clock in the morning, supervising operations. He hasn't had a day off in a year and a half and doesn't want one. He enjoys his work immensely. About the establishment he wears a business suit which helps to create an easy atmosphere. Many of his guests dress formally, but this is not required. A great many formally attired people are turned away because they are too loud or too ill-mannered. The Stork Club is not one of the noisy type of night resorts where loud bands, amplified mechanically, assault the ears. The music is soft. It doesn't interfere with conversation. Drunks are unwelcome. Society rating is desirable, but not by any means necessary. Some bluebloods are turned away. Billingsley likes "nice" people and tries to provide club atmosphere to match. Big spenders are not encouraged.

Billingsley knows that his biggest mistake would be to get society aspirations, so he assiduously avoids associating with his society customers outside his club. He finds that some social registerites expect him to entertain them for nothing, and he does it because they bring in trade of the type he likes. He frankly charges high prices. He spends $7000 a year for flowers. A woman guest is adorned with a corsage, the gift of the management, the minute she sits down. The club gets about $15,000 in bad bad checks annually, he says, which is less than in dry days. There is also less intoxication, according to Billingsley. The annual light bill is $12,000. One orchestra costs $600 a week, another $900. The 200 employes are paid higher than union wages. Billingsley gets $12,000 a year for the checkroom concession. It pays his rent with $4800 to spare.

He has compiled a list of dont's for running his business. Some are: Don't employ people who are too clever, because they will start rival clubs nearby and grab your trade; don't cater to exhibitionistic spenders because they annoy the other guests; don't let parties mix, because flirtations and trouble will result; don't admit a debutante if her escort is objectionable; don't permit your place to be empty, because people are the best advertisements; don't spend too much changing your interior, because customers like a familiar place; don't hire high-priced floor shows because society entertainers, while inferior performers, draw more people; don't have someone "angel" your business and don't have a partner, because more than one boss is too many.

Billingsley has learned to keep an eye on his employes. Everyone tries to cheat him. Egg dealers slip in small eggs; some bartenders "push" certain brands of whisky or take the dealer's money to put too much whisky in highballs; produce dealers water the vegetables to increase weight; some chefs accept inferior meats if the meat man pays them off.

Billingsley has learned a lot since he left Enid.

DESIGNS ANYTHING From LIP STICKS to LOCOMOTIVES

Raymond Fernand Loewy.

PHILADELPHIA.

WHILE specialization is doubtless still on the ascendant in most fields and in none more than industry, true versatility is by no means a useless or a lost virtue. There is always the anecdote of the hot water plumber who had to call in another professional to put a washer in the cold water tap and the jocular magazines can still get away with an occasional cartoon on the subject. But there are still one or two callings immune to the restrictions that came in with "efficiency." One field in which the specialist would be a dead loss is industrial designing—a profession which still holds some of the romance of unfettered craftsmanship. The designer is an adventurer in the machine-made world, an artist who can't conceivably be dispensed with. His un-subdivided profession is definitely on the wax.

Raymond Fernand Loewy is a good example. He has turned out designs for everything from lip sticks to locomotives, including typewriters, gasoline stations, bus terminals, refrigerators, magazine covers, radios and motor cars. Just now he is looking around for someone who wants some ideas about an ocean liner, and although marine architecture is one of the most technical subjects in the world, there is some chance of his getting a job.

Yet Loewy is primarily an artist, despite his abilities as engineer, architect, designer. His point of view is that of an artist and craftsman, rather than that of a machinist. His talents are of the very kind most incompatible with specialization, most odious in a scheme of things that calls for a rhythmical repetition of one motion or one mental response. He and his kind are increasingly in demand by the very institution that created the production line, the Ford and the Union of Hot Water Pipefitters.

Loewy is a Parisian by birth and a cosmopolite by inclination. He is 43 years old, dapper, personable and competent. Originally he planned to be an engineer. Before he could make up his mind whether he wanted to be a civil engineer—an electrical, a chemical, a mechanical, an industrial or an aeronautical—he changed his mind and switched to art. It happened while he was en route to America to learn more about engineering. The ship's passengers were getting up an auction and he had nothing to contribute, so he made a drawing. Although it was nothing more than a sketch, done on the ship's stationery, it was bid up with such enthusiasm that Loewy decided then and there that he would become an artist. In New York he found a ready market for his drawings. He did illustrations for Vogue, Harper's Bazaar and Butterick's. Then he began to branch out into designing.

His ability to epitomize the simple lines considered expressive of modern industry and to invent beautiful patterns for mass production were presently recognized. Standard Oil of New Jersey engaged him to do all their new filling stations. He became a body designer and style consultant for the Hupp Motor Car Corporation. He drew the plans for a radio set housed in a revolving sphere in black ornamented with the world map in bright gold.

Raymond Loewy's biggest job so far and the one he got most fun out of was a commission to do a locomotive for the Pennsylvania Railroad. Here, as usual, the problem was to achieve the greatest possible efficiency with the greatest amount of beauty. Loewy considers the two elements almost synonymous. He was very much excited by the possibilities, especially since he is one of those people who are impressed with locomotives in much the same way most men love ships. He had been making tentative drawings for one ever since childhood.

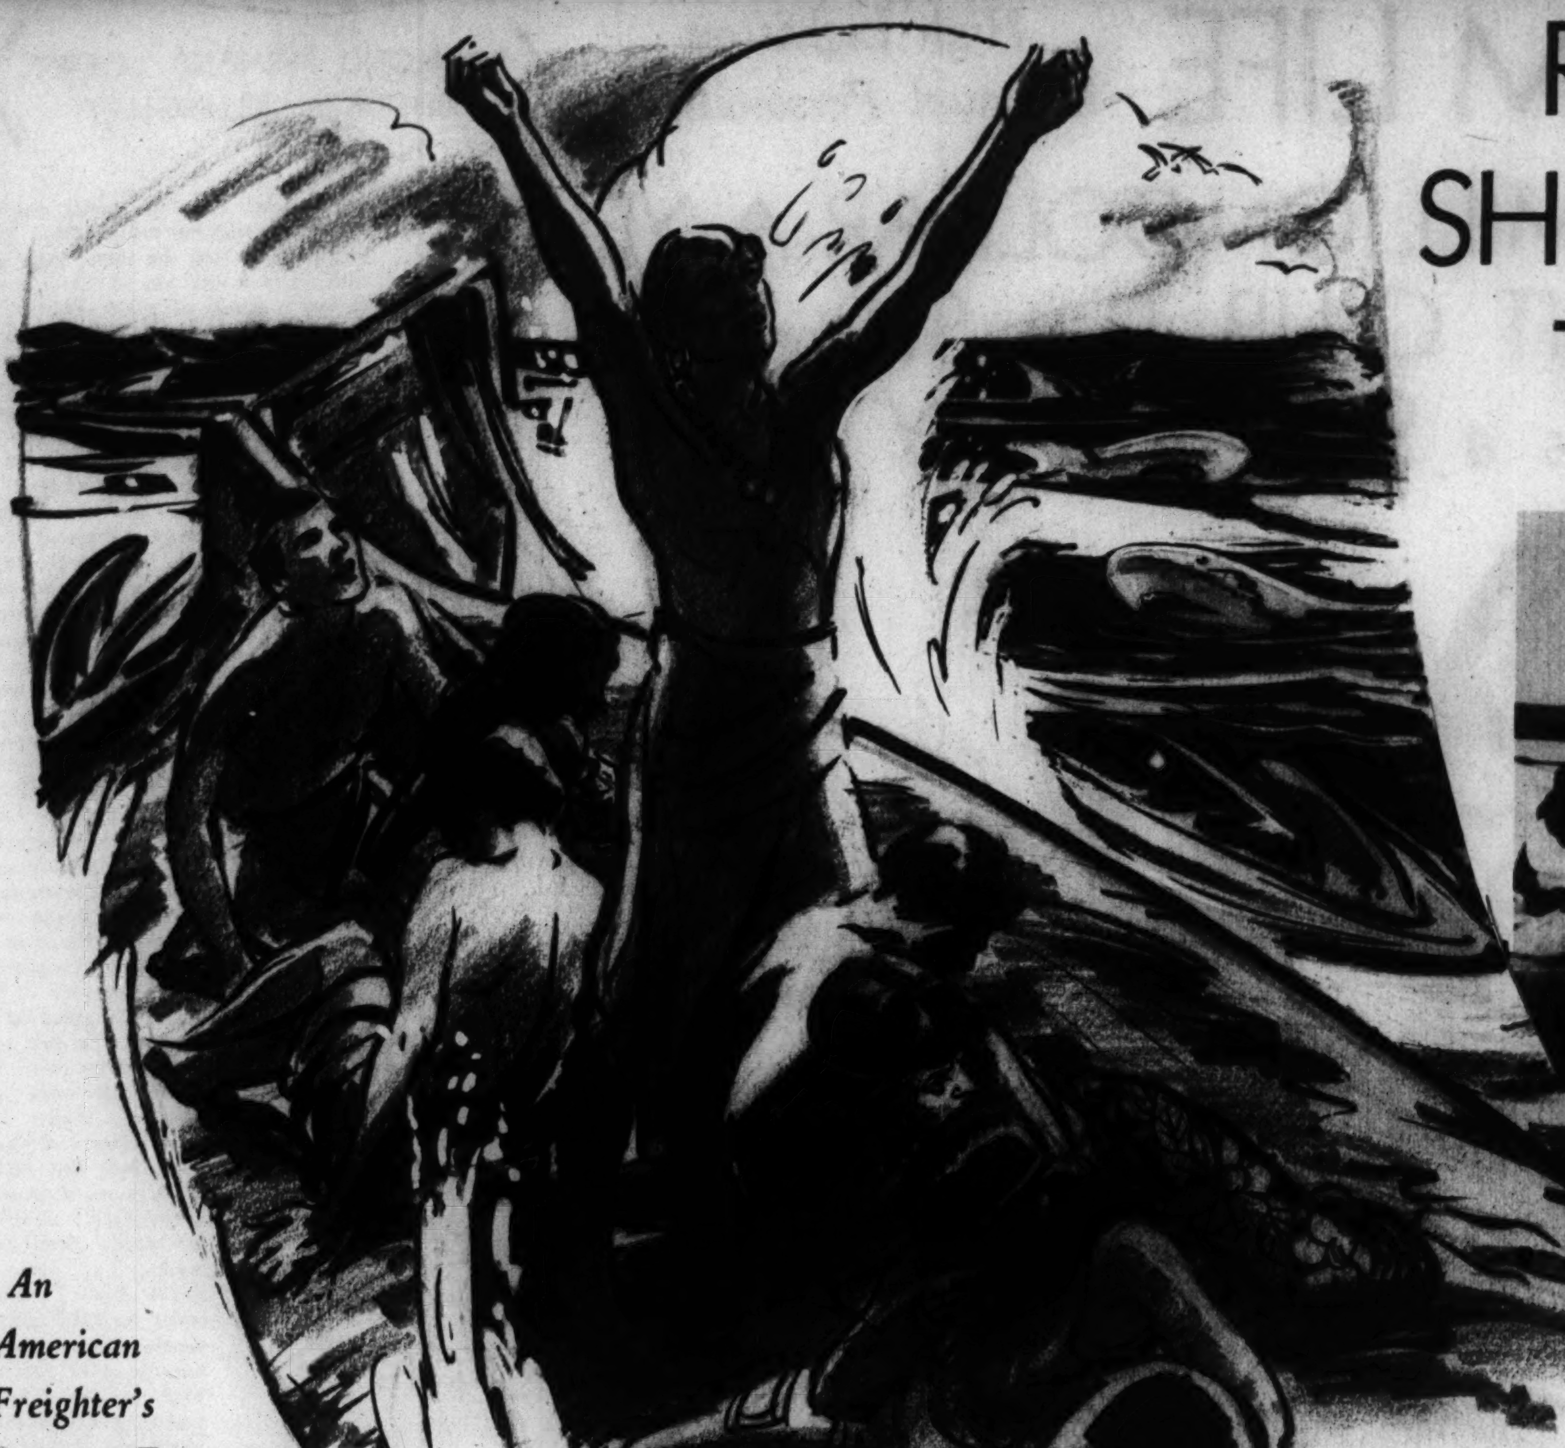
He had plenty of opportunity to get intimately acquainted with the Pennsy locomotives during the preliminary part of the job. He spent months riding back and forth between Reading and the railroad's plant at Altoona, Pennsylvania. He sat on top of the engines, rode the cow-catchers, climbed out on the catwalks that flank the boilers, put his head out of the cab windows. Every part of the locomotive was successively hung with little linen pennants to show the direction of the air currents.

When he had finished this Loewy made two dozen designs of streamlined locomotives, tore them all up and made four clay models instead. When he had brought each of these to a satisfactory state, he began testing them in the wind tunnel at New York University—one of those huge experimental devices engineers regularly use to test wind resistance of designs for airplanes, automobiles, even skyscrapers. In this case the locomotive models, each seven feet long and weighing 100 pounds, were suspended over a moving belt in order to reproduce the effect of air currents from below the engine. Bits of thread were pinned to them show the "slip stream" of air passing around them. When an irregularity was detected it could be corrected by changing the lines of the model; this made the plastic model (which was a new idea of Loewy's) much more useful than the wooden ones ordinarily used for experiment.

When the corrections were completed and the drawings had been made a 180-ton locomotive was built in accordance with them. It had an automatic stoker and every other new device applicable to locomotive manufacture. It was said to be phenomenally successful in the tests. The engineer said he was able to drive without goggles for the first time in his life owing to a device Loewy had invented which deflects the smoke upwards. It is called the K-4-S and now being exhibited around the country before being put into the time table. It will be used for passenger service and will have a regular cruising speed of 60 miles an hour.

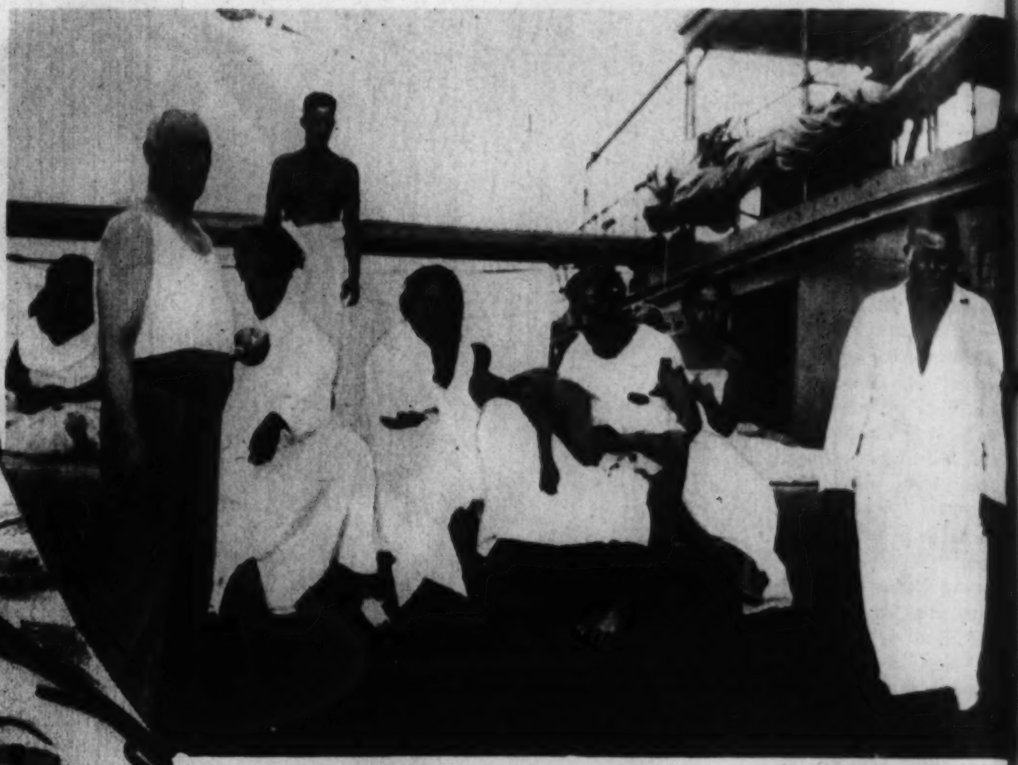
Although exceedingly up to date in his attitude, a convinced functionalist devoted to usefulness is an aesthetic value, Raymond Loewy has another side. In New York he lives in a stridently contemporary penthouse. On vacation he goes to a Henry IV hunting lodge in rural France.

RESCUED From SHARKS in Spite of THEMSELVES



An American Freighter's Strange Encounter With Adventure and Oriental Fatalism.

The native priest cried to heaven that he had been doomed to perish.



The survivors of shipwreck and sharks on board the Hauraki.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

VANCOUVER, B. C.

THE Hauraki is a wall-sided, stub-nosed freighter that trades out of American and Canadian west coast ports to those enchanted islands of the Southeast Pacific, away off down there at the gateway of the day. And she docked at Vancouver the other day with an almost fabulous tale to tell.

The Hauraki's master is Captain Alfred Reed, a matter-of-fact seaman who is not given to tall stories. He was making his regular run in the general vicinity of Samoa when he stumbled right into a story that Conrad or Kipling might have written.

It began with a despairing wail in the darkness, a wall that came across a midnight sea and reached the ears of an officer on the Hauraki's bridge. It ended with a baker's dozen or so of bewildered South Sea islanders perching on one of the Hauraki's hatches and trying to persuade themselves that this stolid freighter wasn't something that the God of Nightmares had wished onto them.

And to the minds of the crew of the Hauraki it told volumes about the strange, unemotional fatalism of the Orient—the queer way in which the East accepts disaster and sits on its hands waiting for it to happen.

The Tiafau—one of those island schooners you read about—had set out with 21 persons aboard from Apia, in Samoa, for Pago Pago. The voyage went without incident until the vessel was 60 miles out of Apia. Then things began to happen, beginning with a hurricane.

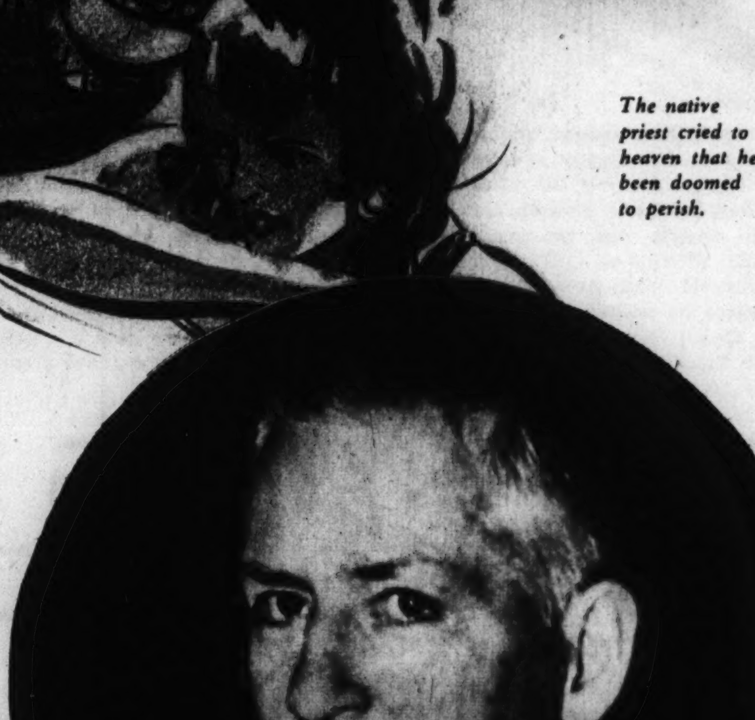
A wind that was like the world gone adrift howled down out of the darkness, whipped the sails to tatters with a noise like gunfire, snapped off the masts like so many matches, rolled up terrific seas that presently turned the little craft upside down.

Two days later, four survivors—the skipper and three others—suffering from starvation and exhaustion after rowing 40 miles in the schooner's small boat, landed at Aleipata, the nearest port, and trudged on afoot through dense undergrowth to Apia to tell of the disaster.

It would be useless, they said, to send out a rescue party; the hulk of the Tiafau had undoubtedly become waterlogged and gone to the bottom in a very few hours. . . .

BUT the overturned hulk of the Tiafau had stayed afloat while 10 men, five women and two children—all natives—clung frantically to its slimy curving surface and waited for the dawn.

The dawn came, bringing with it a blazing sun that scorched and blistered these 17 survivors and inflicted an agony of thirst upon them. And as they huddled down in a vain effort to escape its rays, they noticed jagged triangular fins cutting the surface of the water about them. Sharks!



Captain Alfred Reed of the Hauraki.

A native priest, white sarong swathed about his brown body, raised his cracked voice in a prayer to the South Sea gods for aid. The sharks drifted around, the sun blazed down, and slowly the first day passed. The priest kept on praying. He had been touched by the sun, and his prayers were delirious.

Night came, and relief from the heat. But there could be little sleep—only a patient endurance of thirst, weariness and terror.

In the middle of the night there was an unexpected splash. A 6-year-old child had slipped from its mother's arms and slid into the sea. The phosphorescent water gleamed as a shark's fin slid toward him.

But this youngster had grown up in the South Seas, and knew the lore of sharks. He kicked and splashed vigorously—and the shark speeding near cut off in a wide circle. So the youngster was hauled back aboard again, unhurt.

The night wore on. Once the lights of a great passenger steamer appeared in the distance. The natives raised a despairing shout for help, but the steamer—it was the great Matson liner Mariposa, they found out later—was too far away for anyone to hear. It vanished over the dark horizon, and after a while the sun came up to give the shipwrecked folk another day of torture.

The sun-crazed native priest came to life again, too. And after a while he stopped praying and announced in a cracked voice:

"The gods have turned deaf ears to my prayers. It is decreed that we perish!"

They took his word for it, after the way of the Orient, and resigned themselves to death. But somehow, for all their fatalism, they clung to the sun-blistered hull tenaciously. It might be written in the book of fate that the sharks were going to get them, but they weren't going to help the sharks along any by slipping into the water until their arms had lost all their strength. . . .

Now, back at Apia, the Hauraki had been loading copra when the trouble started. Captain Reed had got a wireless warning that a hurricane was on the way, and sailed off to a sheltered cove, where he rode out the hurricane very snugly indeed. After the blow subsided he went back to Apia, finished loading, and cleared for Vancouver.

Before he left he heard the tale told by the skipper of the Tiafau. "We'll be passing that vicinity," he told his officers, "so we'll just keep our eyes open for those survivors."

So it happened that on the second night after the disaster the people o the overturned hull saw the lights o the Hauraki come into view. They se up a despairing wail, and the Hauraki's lookout heard it. The Haurak came alongside, Captain Reed came o deck, and a bosun's chair—a rope tie in a double loop to fit around a human body—was lowered to the waterlogged schooner.

"Send the women and children u one at a time," called Captain Ree

And then the sun-smitten nativ priest swung into action.

"I command you—stay where yo are!" he ordered his people. "Be no deceived. This craft that comes in th night is but a devil ship. We ar doomed to die. Board it, and you wil spend endless years in purgatory, fo it will take you there."

And the natives refused to g aboard the freighter!

THIS went on for—well, muc too long, thought Jack Champion, the steamer's third mate He decided to take a hand—a heav American hand. He plunged into th water, kicked the sharks away, clambered up on the half-submerged hull and proceeded to show the fatalisti Orientals that the game isn't lost until the last card is played.

First he took the babbling pries and thrust him in the bosun's chair The Hauraki's sailors hauled lustily and the priest went swaying up to th freighter's deck. Down came the cha again, and one after another the others were hauled up—all except on woman, too exhausted to stand upright. She threw up her hands i weary despair and slid off into the water.

But Jack Champion was still there He went in after her, scared th sharks away, hauled her back onto th Tiafau's hull, fastened the rope to he sagging body—and up she went, wit the freighter's winch furnishing th motive power.

So the 17 survivors of the Tiafa were saved, after all, and the Haurak sailed away for Apia, leaving the hul of the Tiafau to go to the bottom without its human cargo.

MILLIONS for SHAKESPEARE'S 'ROMEO and JULIET'

would be none the less proud of.

"Shakespeare wrote for entertainment," says Mr. Thalberg. "He was not thinking of educating people, but of amusing them. He had his 'gags' even in 'Romeo and Juliet' all aimed at the diversion of his customers—excuse me, please, audiences. There is the greatest fun in 'Romeo and Juliet' as well as supreme tragedy and I didn't want any of it changed, modernized or improved upon."

Jennings says that nobody could change the dialogue. But then he never saw, as this correspondent did, Oscar Dane, now a burlesque impresario in St. Louis, play Romeo some 30 years ago. Mr. Dane made changes, and how, but that is an entirely different matter.

"Shakespeare's style," said Jennings, "is amazingly like the very modern Hollywood method of scenario construction. He wrote 'Romeo and Juliet' in 24 scenes to be played continuously. In his day there were no curtains and no acts to halt the action. The play is action from start to finish. It moves and every scene hurries the action on to its climax. In essence 'Romeo and Juliet' is a melodrama. There is nothing 'high brow' about its great scenes, the balcony scene, the ballroom scene, the duels and the street scenes, which in the picture will be presented against a background of the Renaissance, one of the most lavish and spectacular periods in all history."

And the picture will be lavish, and then some. None of the great classic stage producers of other days ever imagined doing what the movie people are doing. Horses—real, to all intents and purposes—graveyards, towering cathedrals and such things enter into it. It took a lot of preliminary work. After much study, the fifteenth century was selected as the most suitable period for the film version. This was the height of the Italian Renaissance, those brilliant years when the arts flourished as never before in all history. In costumes and settings, a union was sought between the poetic beauty of Shakespeare and the superb art of Botticelli, Benozzo, Gozzoli, Carpaccico, Fra Angelico, Bellini, and others, who so richly preserved the life and spirit of their time in fresco and painting.

Art Director Gibbons dispatched two camera crews to Verona to picture that ancient city from every angle, to recapture the beauty of its famed Church of San Zeno, and its weathered buildings, mellowed by their romantic associations with Juliet and her Romeo.

FROM England, a brilliant young costume designer, Oliver Messel, who had made a study of Italian art, was called to Hollywood. He became associated with Adrian in the tremendous task of creating the 1250 costumes needed for the picture. A week in Hollywood and he was on his way to Verona to sketch and photograph the old masters, who inspired the costumes.

From thousands of photographs taken in Verona, Gibbons created a city in miniature. Fifty-three models and 212 drawings, the work of two months, furnished a complete and detailed picture of what the settings would look like.

"The motion picture," Gibbons pointed out, "removes the physical limitations from which 'Romeo and Juliet' has always suffered on the stage. It has been our aim to reproduce a real Verona against which Romeo and Juliet can actually be made to live."

He pictured the settings as they finally grew from the blueprints on his desk.

"Juliet's balcony," he said, "is a real balcony in a real garden. For the first time, the balcony and garden will be seen from Romeo's angle, from Juliet's angle, and also from the angle of the spectator. It occupies a stage 400 feet long and 130 wide.

"The square of Verona, for which the Church of San Zeno, one of the finest structures in North Italy, was reproduced, is medieval in period, and in form like many other Italian squares as they still exist in smaller Italian cities today. In natural size it covers about eight acres. It's size merely meets Shakespeare's conception of the opening scene, which shows the fight between the Capulets, Montagues and their retainers. The fight spreads into the side streets which lead into the square, giving vigor and realism to the scene."

AND then I saw Verona itself, Verona on a great scale sprawled over eight acres of studio lot space. It was crowded that day with a mass of seething humanity. Knights in shining armor; armed retainers—the gangster element—of the houses of Capulet and Montague; peasants from the country with their donkey carts. A kaliedoscopic panorama of Italy in 1460.

Taking a rest in the California-Italian sun which is aided by a thousand or so arc lights is the first blond Romeo, Leslie Howard. "This is harder work than three modern plays or three modern pictures," he told me. "Shakespeare is all action. There is hardly an idle minute and Romeo has to be quite an athlete, which I am not. I have practiced dueling until my arm felt like lead. I had to learn a fifteenth century dance, to leap walls and climb Juliet's balcony. It's certainly not dull, this picture Shakespeare."

Shakespeare, who never missed an opportunity to stage a fight, would have loved the way the film people are going about the dueling and the big and little stabbings in "Romeo and Juliet." Once or twice on the streets of Verona some 400 of the 1460 gangsters fall upon each other and battle it out. A famous swordsman was brought over from Belgium to show them how.

And the fans are going to see—maybe they will refuse, but they'll get the chance—"Romeo and Juliet," Boy Meets Girl, Scarface Stabs Legs Diamond, on a great scale. On a Hollywood scale. If they don't care for Shakespeare then Hollywood will no take up its option on The Bard.

'FEED DIPLOMATS WELL for FRIENDLY NATIONS'
—Says the Gourmet Society

The Epicures Meet to Discuss the Peace That Follows Perfect Food and Ladles That Made History.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

IF THE ponderous diplomatists who perennially foregather for the purpose of maintaining international good and bad relations were to sit down to a table loaded with rare and delectable viands instead of arguing, conceding, rejecting, offering, condoning, censoring and signing across an empty polished expanse of directors' tables or a phalanx of desks—they might be in a better frame of mind to reach amicable conclusions. That is the judicious opinion of Hendrik Willem Van Loon, the popular historian. The ready and whole-hearted approval it got from the sated gentlemen who heard him at the Cafe Louis XIV seemed to demonstrate that it is easier to agree on a full stomach than in hunger, that a nine-course dinner served up by a famous chef makes for readier accord than pork chops in a one-arm joint or a feast of fine talk in a high hall.

Van Loon went further. Speaking to a select audience, the amiable gentlemen of the Gourmet Society, he suggested that such as they might do a better job as rulers and diplomatists than the testy envoys and potentates to whom national affairs are now entrusted by the discordant Europeans. Epicures and bon viveurs, he told the Gourmets, should be the statesmen of the future. The love of good eating should be the Esperanto, the international language, of the nations.

The Gourmet Society was founded only three years ago, but it has a venerable air about it and the atmosphere of its table talk is benign and mellow. The purpose to which it is dedicated is "To resist the popular illusion that food is eaten for its dietary value alone and to inculcate the more civilized notion that food is eaten for enjoyment. This conception of the role of food antedates the scientific era and traces back to the discriminating days of King Louis XIV himself." Apparently the words which Historian Van Loon addressed to his fellow-members were not an empty figure of speech nor entirely jocular. The society includes a number of distinguished diplomats and statesmen among its honrary membership. Edouard Herriot, the former Premier of France; Sir Norman Angell and Prince William of Sweden are privileged to attend its meetings. For the most part, the membership consists of writers, and well-known wits are most eligible for election. J. George Frederick, the president, is also president of the Writers Club. Andre Maurois and the plump Pierre Benoit are members. That the group should invite a well-known historian to make an after-dinner speech is not accidental, for the members are eager to appeal to precedent in justification for a goal that might be misunderstood by those who take their eating more casually or find it necessary to take hunger more seriously.

THE bill of fare for the recent banquet gives a notion of what these professionals consider dining well. The most minute details were attended to with an eye to perfection. The celery came from Kalamazoo, Michigan. The coffee was a blend of the choice products of Arabia and Java. The first course was Feuillete Suedoise, the fish was Supreme de Sea Bass, Bonne Femme; the fowl was Poulet de Grain (corn-fed) Saute Durand; the vegetable was Haricots Verts Panaches; the salad Coeurs d'Endive. There were Pommes Fondantes Fine Herbes and the pastry was Gateau Louis XIV, finished off with an icing of marzipan emblazoned with the Sun King's heraldic bearing and royal crest.

"The trouble with modern civilization," the speaker solemnly deplored, "is that we are cafeteria-conscious. To solve our problems—international, national and personal—we require an adaptation of the ancient Chinese proverb: 'A good statesman should rule a great empire as a good cook fries a very small fish.' A banquet which ended in several liqueurs for the delegations of France and America made possible the purchase of the Louisiana Territory. . . .

"Nothing," he went on grandiloquently, "uplifts the soul quite the way excellent food does. No basis for international peace that is quite as sound as good eating presents itself, and the sooner the world turns to dining instead of simply eating to live, the sooner the reign of peace on earth will be established."

(The historian might be criticised at this point for neglecting to remember that the eagerness of members of Parliament to get to their dinners prevented them from hearing one of the most cogent speeches in favor of peace which has been presented in English: Edmund Burke's oration in favor of conciliating the rebellious American colonies. Careful attention to that speech might have changed world history for if the members of the House of Commons had not been such ardent diners they might have prevented one war, if not several.)

"I got my figure," continued Van Loon, whose girth is not to be compared with the imposing dimensions of some fellow members, "by working hard for it; I have eaten in practically every part of the world and found joy in it almost everywhere, although ordinarily I prefer to stick to my Dutch food. I have found, too, that cleanliness is not synonymous with good eating. In fact it seems to me that excellent food always seems to go with unsanitary conditions.

"But I do think that compacts have been made and important decisions arrived at over tables after satisfying meals, ever since the beginning of civilization. It might be well for epicures to serve as statesmen in the future. I believe that the present threat of war between Germany and France would quickly be dissipated if Chancellor Hitler would join Premier Flandin at a good dinner in a Paris cafe."

As a general rule the Gourmets devote more of their attention to the past than to the future and more to the present meal than to the historic meals of the past, but they have assembled a great deal of evidence to associate good eating with the history of civilization. They are fond of citing historical figures who took their dining seriously. Many of their predecessors have been great men, as Van Loon pointed out.

Hendrik Willem Van Loon, "who ate hard for his figure."

ARCHESTRATUS of Gela, the guide of the philosopher Epicurus, was a restless traveler and made notes on the food he encountered in every place he visited. His descriptions were later made into a versified guide book. The ancient Greeks included many other gourmets — Numenius of Heraclea, Hegamon of Thasos, Philogenes of Leucas, Simaclides of Chios and Tyndarides of Scyon, are the names of some whose reputation has survived. The Romans of the Empire outdid them all, however, in the extravagance of their culinary indulgences. Lucullus is said to have spent the equivalent of $10,000 on a single dinner, yet his taste in fine foods did not interfere with his more idealistic pleasures and the rarities his chefs assembled for a "Lucullan feast" did not prevent his being a generous patron of the other arts.

In England cooking was early accepted as a polite art—not for ladies, but for gentlemen. Three of the famous early cook books were written by men, Sir J. Elliot's in 1539, Abraham Veale's in 1575 and Robert May's in 1665. In the seventeenth century there were many Englishmen of culture and experience who despised cooking of foreign origin, and French cooking in that age had not nearly the pre-eminence it enjoys today. Robert May, who studied the art under his father and afterwards traveled abroad in search of further refinements in it, disliked French cooking, but was very much interested in Spanish and Italian dishes. One of the most delightful and athletic English gentlemen of the seventeenth century was Sir Kenelm Digby, who wrote not only elaborate cook books, but also poetry and treatises on physics and philosophy.

Cooking achieved its greatest distinction, however, under Louis XIV, the monarch dearest to the affections of the Gourmet Society, because his influence laid the foundation for the style of cooking which remains the highest standard to this day. Although King Louis' court was more distinguished for its kitchen than for its sanitary features, some of the recipes of his famous chef are celebrated even now and no one has made any improvements on the Bechamel sauce.

It was in the time of Louis XV, according to Van Loon, that ices were introduced into France from Italy and Pope Leo X's chef invented fricandeaus. The great Richelieu himself is said to have invented mayonnaise. Other churchmen who were not above paying their respects to the gastronomic arts were the urbane Jesuits, Brunoy and Bougeaut, who wrote a loving treatise on cooking in 1739.

At first America seems to have been a desert so far as the refinements of cookery were concerned. One of the most celebrated authorities of all time, Anthelme Brillat-Savarin, came to New York to escape conscription in France. Instead of being given an opportunity to display his talents in his proper sphere, he had to earn his living by playing in a theater orchestra until the end of the reign of terror. When he returned to France he immediately found again an appreciative audience. His "Physiology of Taste" was one of the most eminent encylopedias on the art of dining and remains so to this day.

Later America became as fastidious in its taste in dinners as the Continent. The first American man to come forth with a cook book was Henry T. Fink. It was James Hazen Hyde, however, who first received the distinction of having an invention accepted in Parisian cafes. His dish was something like what is now called Peche Flamber. He called it Poached Peace a la James Hazen Hyde, and his recipe was probably finer than the one in common use today. It called for a peach poached as if it were an egg, then served with flaming Kirsch poured over it.

After the middle of the nineteenth century famous gourmets began to appear in New York. De Wolf Hopper, the actor, was one. His favorite dish was of German origin — Kartoffelkloesse. It is made by adding a cup of croutons to three cups of mashed potatoes, mashing both with two beaten eggs, seasoning the whole with nutmegs, pepper and salt; molding the mixture into little balls, boiling these in salt water until they double in size, then browning them.

In America a taste for fine cooking has long been associated with the celebrities of the stage. David Belasco was quoted by Van Loon as having said: "There is many a dish with excellent ingredients that fails for lack of skill in combining them—just as many a good play is ruined in the building. An artistic proportion must be maintained between ingredients, just as between characters in a play." Belasco had a recipe for salmi of goose which required three hours to execute.

LITTERATEURS have also done their share to keep up the tradition of the great amateur chefs. Jack London was one of the foremost. Frank Crowninshield, the magazine editor, is as famous for his Welsh rabbit as for his late-lamented Vanity Fair. The former was quite as spicy as the latter, including among its ingredients beer, cheese, salt, mustard, cayenne, paprika and black pepper. Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, the book collector, is also a famous epicure. He makes his own salads, and his town house in Philadelphia had a terrapin farm on the third floor.

One of the oldest established clubs on the order of the Gourmet Society is the Rabbit, in Bala, Pennsylvania. It was founded in 1867 and meets every second Saturday night. Unlike the New York club, the members of the Rabbit do most of their own cooking. The president is famous for crab gumbo and members do their own steaks over charcoal fires.

The most illustrious devotee of the chafing dish is His Majesty, King Edward of England. His specialty is a supper dish made by adding three tablespoons of ale and a small glass of champagne to half a pound of grated cheese and heating the mixture gently for 10 minutes. The resulting sauce is served on toast. The historian of the Gourmet Society could have found other examples of royalty puttering around in the kitchen, but his time was up and the members were ready to go home and sleep off their meals.

The SUPREME THRILLS of STUNT FLYING—And HOW IT'S DONE

in a spin. If a single one of those planes had come out at the wrong angle it would have piled into one or more of the other ships, resulting in death for at least one flyer—and perhaps for all of us.

Never will I forget Freddie Lund, civilian professional, who performed countless daredevil feats back in 1928 and 1929. He was a little bit of a fellow from Texas who acted as a commercial test pilot. Lund was a magnificent precision flyer, which simply means that he literally could perform miracles with any type of plane and with a nonchalant smoothness and ease that only the best acrobatic flyers can really appreciate.

Freddie's specialty took plenty of nerve. He actually did as many as 10 outside loops in succession. (More about them later). They tell me Lund is not with us any more. Seems he cracked up quite a while back—killed in an insignificant little race at a county fair. What a fate for a grand flyer like that!

But if it's a thrill you want, then just try to stunt a big transport. The late "Speed" Holman was the lad who could slow roll one of those sky monsters better, probably, than any man that ever lived. Not only that but he could loop them and then back again. It is plenty tough trying to stunt an ordinary service type plane, weighing maybe 3000 pounds when equipped for ordinary flying. But imagine trying it with a ship weighing around 8330 pounds.

Now for a little inside information:

The tail spin is an eccentric rotation of a plane down a vertical axis. The machine revolves as it falls, the nose describing small circles while the tail makes big ones. The center (or fulcrum) around which the two ends spin varies with the type of plane. It is always up toward the nose.

In plain language, the cause of the spin is due to the plane's being stalled and, after stalling, being allowed to start the consequent drop of the nose with one wing lower than the other. This starts the fall and the rotation, but to keep it up the plane has to remain stalled and be continually affected by a rotating cause.

The tail spin is not necessarily death-dealing. A plane with which the pilot is completely familiar can usually be brought out of a spin and headed in any desired direction.

Now let us consider the loop. For some unknown reason this, the simplest of all acrobatic maneuvers, gives tremendous thrills to beginners and passengers. It was one of the first of all stunts and perhaps the initial glamour still hangs over it.

Riding through a loop as a passenger this is what happens: First the pilot ascends to 4000 feet, a good, safe distance. All right. You now are in level flight with the throttle open. He pushes the stick forward and sends the plane on a speed-gathering trip down hill.

As soon as the desired momentum is picked up the stick starts coming back smoothly and slowly. The nose of the plane returns to the horizon and then gradually passes it. The earth is lost sight of and blue sky and fleecy clouds comprise the entire scenery.

The only physical sensation is one of being crammed down rather tightly in your seat. With the stick still coming back slowly, the plane reaches the top of the loop. One hardly realizes the inverted position; there is no tendency whatever to leave your seat.

Looking back the sky and earth seem to have changed places. Just before reaching the apex the pilot puts on a little right rudder. This counteracts the propellor torque—which becomes rather strong as speed diminishes—and keeps the plane on a straight course. (Propellor torque is a tendency for the plane to turn away from the direction in which the propellor is spinning—that is, to the left as one faces forward.)

Over the top of the loop you start the last half of the circle with the stick gradually returning to neutral. The earth seems to be coming up at a terrific rate; scenery unrolls in high speed panorama and in a second or two the horizon appears, this time with the earth and sky in their proper places. Now the nose of the plane climbs back to its normal position on the horizon and the stick and rudder are in neutral; the loop is finished. Nothing to it. And yet if it happens to be the first time, it's the kick of a lifetime.

The falling leaf is the best named of all aerial gymnastics because, if properly done, the plane falls in the same way that a leaf or piece of paper does, that is, with a great deal of spread out motion, but a relatively slow rate of descent. This is really an easy evolution, but if it is not executed properly it does not qualify as a true stunt, being only the spectacle of a plane tumbling about in the sky.

JUST what is a barrel roll? Well, it is one complete turn of a tail spin effected horizontally instead of vertically. The aerodynamic cause is exactly the same as that of a spin, the only difference between the two being that in a roll the plane is traveling forward with sufficient momentum to keep it revolving horizontally when the cause for stall and rotation is brought into play.

Major Jimmy Doolittle, former Army ace, was the first pilot, it is generally agreed, to execute the difficult outside loop. He performed this spectacular and highly dangerous feat at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio, in May, 1927. Starting at an elevation of 8000 feet, he turned the nose of his plane downward and put it through a circle 2000 feet in diameter. At the bottom of the loop he was going 280 miles an hour and probably would have been thrown out of the cockpit of his plane had he not taken the precaution to use a very heavy safety belt.

Several years ago at the Cleveland races, "Sandy" (Lieutenant Lawson Harry McPherson Sanderson) got into an air collision. He bailed out, but his chute fouled the plane and for a couple of grim minutes he dangled helplessly in descent. Just in the nick of time the chute cleared and Lieutenant Sanderson saved his life by the narrowest margin.

The plane crashed nearby. "Sandy" thought it surely would take fire so he made a furious dash for it. Worried about his plane? Wrong guess. He just couldn't bear to lose his precious chewing tobacco. Always before every flight he places a substantial wad of it in his plane.

FOUGHT a DUEL AGAINST HIS WILL

Luis Segura, of Papantla, near Vera Cruz, and Prosecuting Attorney Carlos Ongay fought with pistols on the outskirts of their city. The Mayor's son, attempting to prevent interference, was shot and seriously wounded by the police at almost the same time that his father was shot dead by Ongay. Ongay, however, was wounded seriously before his opponent fell.

Two days later another duel, resulting in death and serious wounds, was fought at Tiajuana. It was reported to have been the result of rivalry for the affections of a woman. The principals, Raoul Portugal, 35-year-old Chief of Federal Police of the Ensenada District, and Enrique Topete, 40, a politician and a Colonel in the Mexican army, agreed to dispense with seconds, referee, and doctors, and meet alone on a ranch. The weapons they chose were the ones each carried in his line of duty—the heavy .45-caliber army pistols.

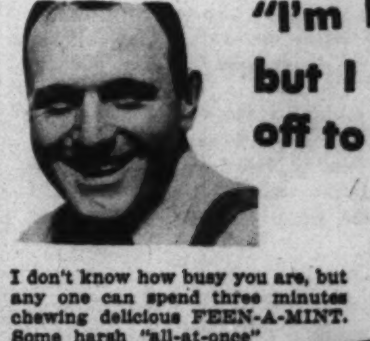
It is presumed that friends must have followed them at a discreet distance, as Topete was taken to the army barracks at Ensenada with wounds that apparently had been inflicted only a short while before. It is known that they fired at close range. When found, Topete lay close to the body of Portugal, who evidently was killed outright. Topete was wounded twice in the right shoulder and twice in the chest, one bullet lodging near the heart.

From Oran, fortified seaport of Algeria, came the story April 7, 1935, of Abbe Lambert, Jesuit and Mayor of Oran, who, despite the Catholic Church's order against duels, accepted a challenge from a lawyer named Rolland. The lawyer, defeated in the election, maintained that he had been insulted in an election poster. When the principals met the Abbe took his place, stuck his foil in the ground, folded his arms, and announced that he stood ready to give Monsieur Rolland whatever satisfaction he might desire. Naturally, the duel was called off.

FROM another outpost—Saint Louis in Senegal, came word in March, 1934, of an unusual type of duel. Maurice Lepine, civilian official, learned that Lieutenant Roger Canrobert was his wife's lover. Lepine told Canrobert that one of them must die without causing any excitement. They agreed that the one who lost three out of five games of dominoes would have to kill himself Canrobert lost. Before he shot himself he wrote a letter to Lepine's wife, explaining all to her. She reported it to police, but they disregarded it, saying it was a duel to avenge a man's honor and not murder.

Rosina Consolazio, 19, and Montalberti Filcorate, 23, of Avellino, Italy, were engaged to marry. Then, last August, Filcorate broke the engagement. His former fiancee challenged him to a duel. He accepted and was shot through the face.

An all-woman affair was held in an exclusive Budapest women's fencing club in 1929. Two dancers, who had been good friends, quarreled as a result of both falling in love with the same man. Their duel ended in the third round when Miss Susanne Weinhard received a wound in the chest that prevented her from ever wearing low-necked dresses again.



"I'm busy too— but I take 3 minutes off to feel right!"

With the modern three-minute way, there are no cramps, no bad after-effects, and it's certainly thorough! The whole family thinks a lot of it. Only 15c and 25c per box.

I don't know how busy you are, but any one can spend three minutes chewing delicious FEEN-A-MINT. Some harsh "all-at-once" cathartics actually make me feel worse the next day. But not FEEN-A-MINT.

"Three minutes of chewing make the difference."

DUNKER—A mouse, who is a great admirer of Bert.

CHIEF OF POLICE RIP—A raccoon, who is the head of the local police force.

SHORTY—Old Swag's wicked companion.

Poor Rip, he is terribly upset. Last night someone broke into the jail and smashed the door all to pieces. But who ever it was didn't take anything. Because there wasn't anything there. Just the same, Rip doesn't like to see his nice jail all broken up and is determined to catch the guilty parties. So he went to Bert Tillon to ask that great detective to help him. Bert was eating his breakfast when Rip called, but he promised to come to the jail as soon as he finished. So Rip went back to wait for Bert, and he waited and waited and waited. At last, when he had decided that Bert forgot his promise, he heard someone moving around outside. He went to the door and looked out, and there was Bert Tillon and Dunker. Bert is examining the battered door as

THE PLAY BEGINS

CHIEF OF POLICE RIP—Gosh, so you got here at last. I thought you would never come. Every minute we waste the farther away those burglars are going to be. I always make it a point never to waste time.

BERT TILLON—(Still looking for clues.) Hm-m-m. That's a very good point, Rip, if you would only use it. Dunker and I were out here for some time before you heard us. Hm-m-m. I believe I know how this door was broken and I think I know who did it. Hm-m-m. Let me think.

(And Bert straightens up and is soon lost in thought. Rip and Dunker look on in silence. Suddenly Bert spins around and faces them.)

BERT TILLON—You two wait here. I know who the villains are and I will have them in hand in a few minutes. (Bert then whirls around on his heel and walks rapidly away. Rip and Dunker stare after him in amazement.)

CHIEF OF POLICE RIP—Bert is crazy if he thinks that he knows who broke down that door just from looking at it. I know, because I looked it over carefully and I couldn't find a thing.

DUNKER—I'll bet lightning struck that door or a wind storm tore it off of its hinges. Bert knows this and he has probably gone home to take a nap. Ha! Ha! Ha! It's a good joke on us. (Just then they hear Bert call to them. They rush to where his voice comes from and are surprised to see him marching the handcuffed Old Swag and Shorty to jail.)

BERT TILLON—Here are the villains. They broke into jail hoping to find some police uniforms so they could arrest their victims and take them to jail and search them. Hm-m-m. They might have succeeded if Shorty hadn't dropped a piece of cheese out of his pocket when they were working on that door. Hm-m-m.

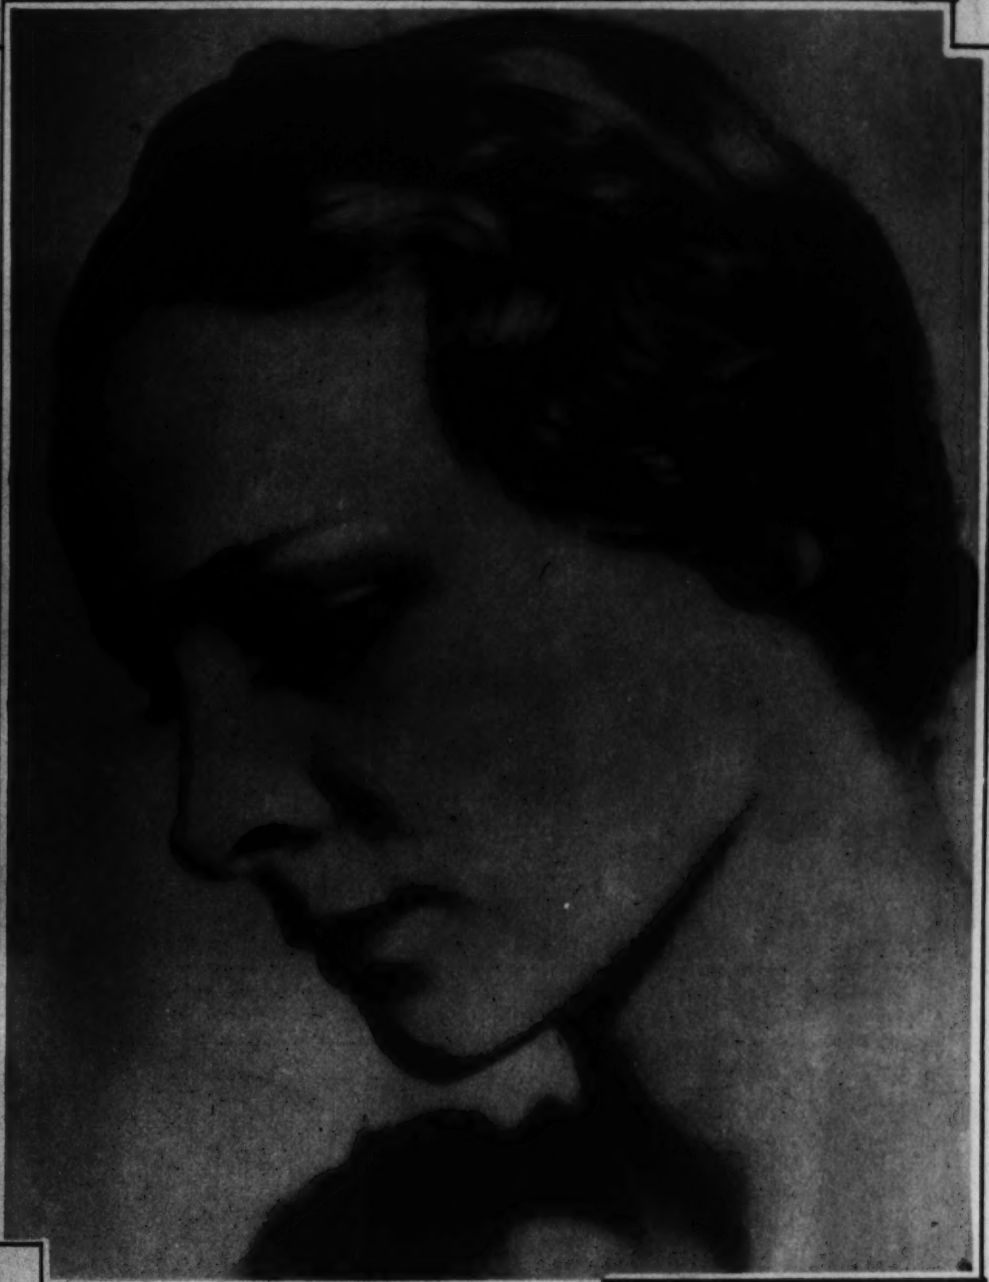
CONCRETE EVIDENCE

Military ceremonies led by General Goering (center of platform) marked the opening of one of Germany's new highways—part of a system to cost more than $3,000,000,000 in five years, employ 150,000 workers and provide enormous strategic advantage in wartime. Like the others this stretch from Berlin to Stetin and the Polish-East Prussian frontier passes through no towns, has no grade crossings, connects only with large cities and could transport 72,000 men an hour in one direction. Opposite lanes are to be separated by hedges to prevent glare at night.



ANOTHER ROYAL DEFECTION

The object of the affections of Prince Bertil, son of the Swedish Crown Prince, is a commoner — Miss Margareta Brambeck of Stockholm, daughter of an army officer. His Royal Highness has asked his royal grandfather's permission to marry her.

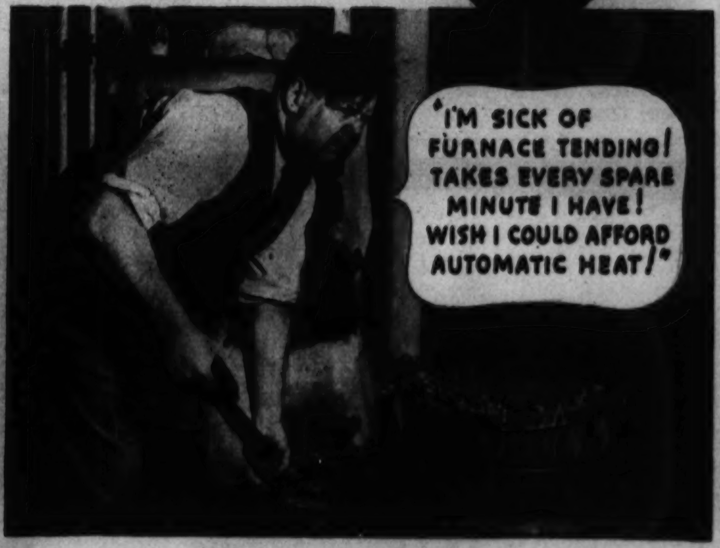
MUTINY IN THE BASEMENT



"I'M SICK OF FURNACE TENDING! TAKES EVERY SPARE MINUTE I HAVE! WISH I COULD AFFORD AUTOMATIC HEAT!"

THOUSANDS ARE REBELLING AGAINST FURNACE SLAVERY

THEY ask—"why shovel coal and drag out ashes when Oil-O-Matic users report it costs no more than coal?" Thousands change to new Oil-O-Matic that cuts fuel costs to the bone!

And they are right! Mass production (more than 200,000 Williams Oil-O-Matics have been sold) has reduced prices 50% in five years!

Add to this what Oil-O-Matic saves you in cleaning and decorating, in ash hauling, furnace cleaning and repair bills, and doctor bills due to uneven heat. Now will you say you can't afford Oil-O-Matic?.

Don't shovel coal another day. Williams Oil-O-Matic can be installed in your present heating plant in a few hours. The Summer plan permits installation now under the FHA program. Nothing to pay until October 1st, 1936—low interest—12 to 36 months to pay balance. Write or phone us today for a free heating estimate.

"I HAD no idea that there was such a BIG DIFFERENCE in Permanent Waves. It took only one "bargain" permanent to teach me a lesson I'll never forget. Now I always say: 'Give me a Frederics Vita-Tonic or Vitron (Croquignole Style) Permanent Wave.' Then, to be doubly sure, I see that genuine Vita-Tonic and Vitron Wrappers are used on my hair."

Frederics Permanent Waves are obtainable in either the Vita-Tonic (Spiral) or Vitron (Croquignole Style). Frederics Vitron (Croquignole Style) Permanent is a soft, wide, natural, flowing wave, with plenty of flattering ringlet ends. If, however, you want a deep, tight, lasting wave—or if your hair exceeds 6 or 7 inches in length, we recommend Frederics Vita-Tonic (Spiral) Permanent.

TIM TYLER'S LUCK

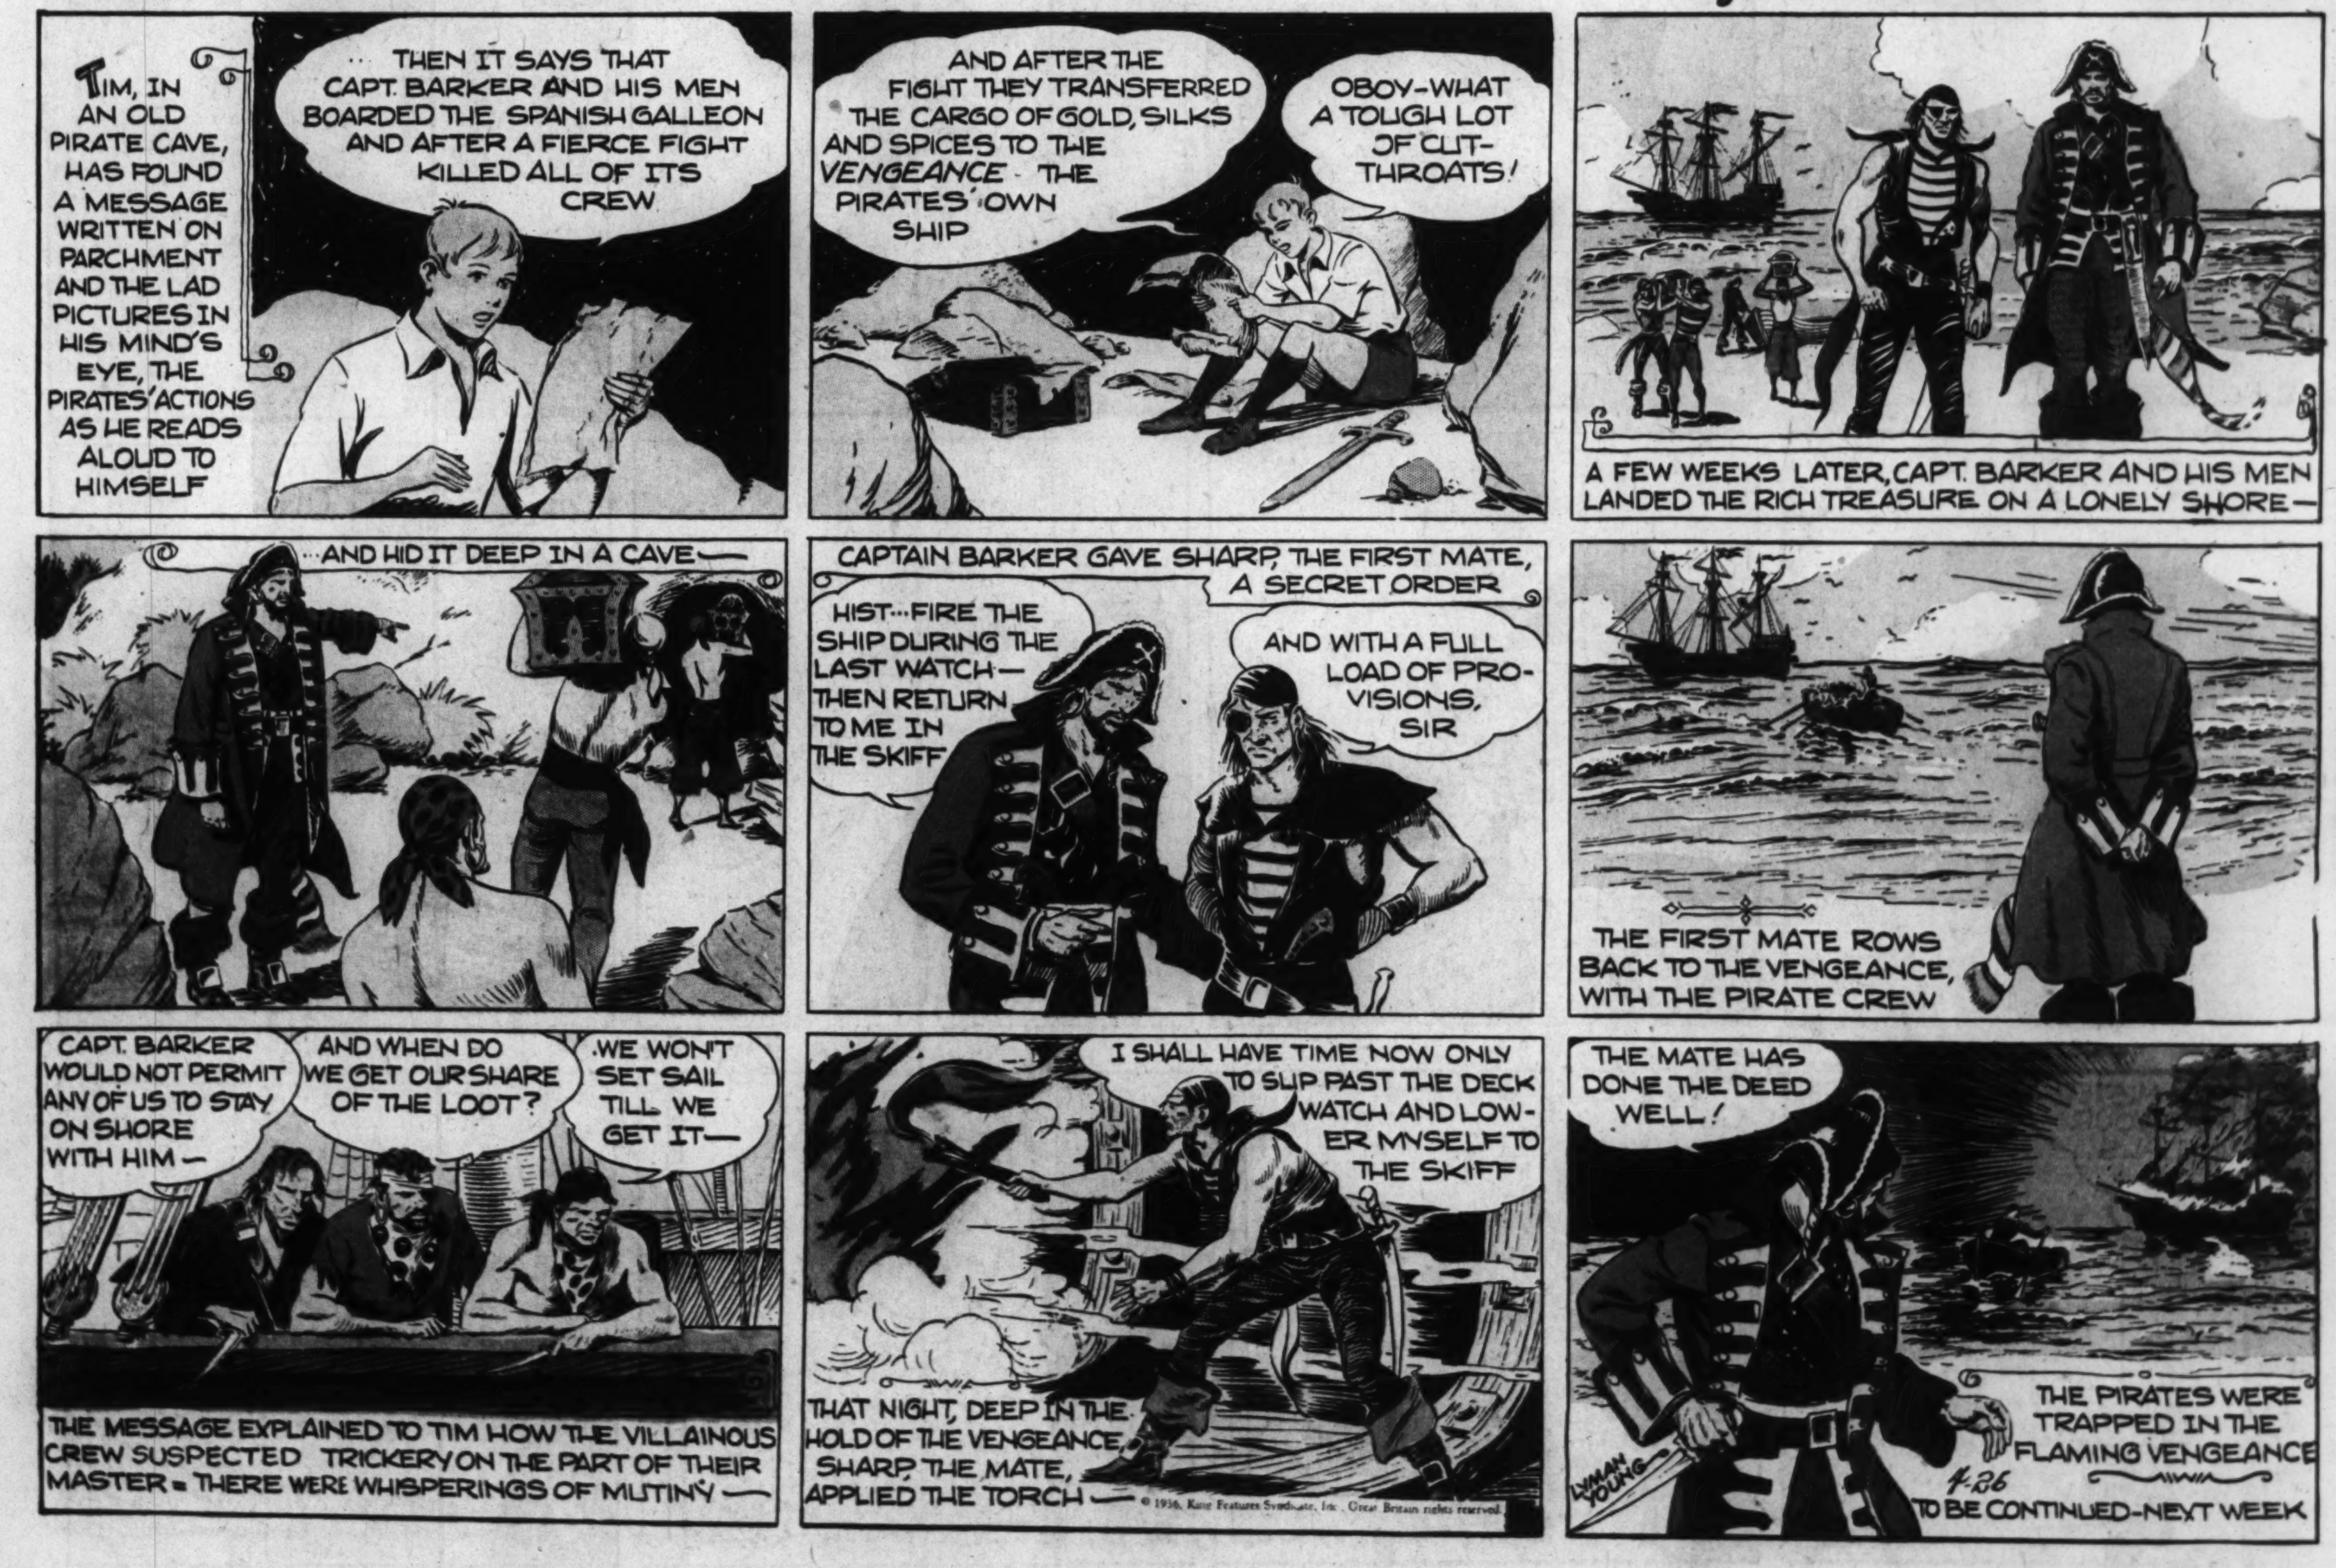
By LYMAN YOUNG



TIM, IN AN OLD PIRATE CAVE, HAS FOUND A MESSAGE WRITTEN ON PARCHMENT AND THE LAD PICTURES IN HIS MIND'S EYE, THE PIRATES' ACTIONS AS HE READS ALOUD TO HIMSELF
... THEN IT SAYS THAT CAPT. BARKER AND HIS MEN BOARDED THE SPANISH GALLEON AND AFTER A FIERCE FIGHT KILLED ALL OF ITS CREW
AND AFTER THE FIGHT THEY TRANSFERRED THE CARGO OF GOLD, SILKS AND SPICES TO THE VENGEANCE - THE PIRATES' OWN SHIP
OBOY—WHAT A TOUGH LOT OF CUT-THROATS!
A FEW WEEKS LATER, CAPT. BARKER AND HIS MEN LANDED THE RICH TREASURE ON A LONELY SHORE—
...AND HID IT DEEP IN A CAVE—
CAPTAIN BARKER GAVE SHARP, THE FIRST MATE, A SECRET ORDER
HIST...FIRE THE SHIP DURING THE LAST WATCH—THEN RETURN TO ME IN THE SKIFF
AND WITH A FULL LOAD OF PROVISIONS, SIR
THE FIRST MATE ROWS BACK TO THE VENGEANCE, WITH THE PIRATE CREW
CAPT. BARKER WOULD NOT PERMIT ANY OF US TO STAY ON SHORE WITH HIM—
AND WHEN DO WE GET OUR SHARE OF THE LOOT?
WE WON'T SET SAIL TILL WE GET IT—
THE MESSAGE EXPLAINED TO TIM HOW THE VILLAINOUS CREW SUSPECTED TRICKERY ON THE PART OF THEIR MASTER = THERE WERE WHISPERINGS OF MUTINY—
I SHALL HAVE TIME NOW ONLY TO SLIP PAST THE DECK WATCH AND LOWER MYSELF TO THE SKIFF
THAT NIGHT, DEEP IN THE HOLD OF THE VENGEANCE, SHARP, THE MATE, APPLIED THE TORCH—

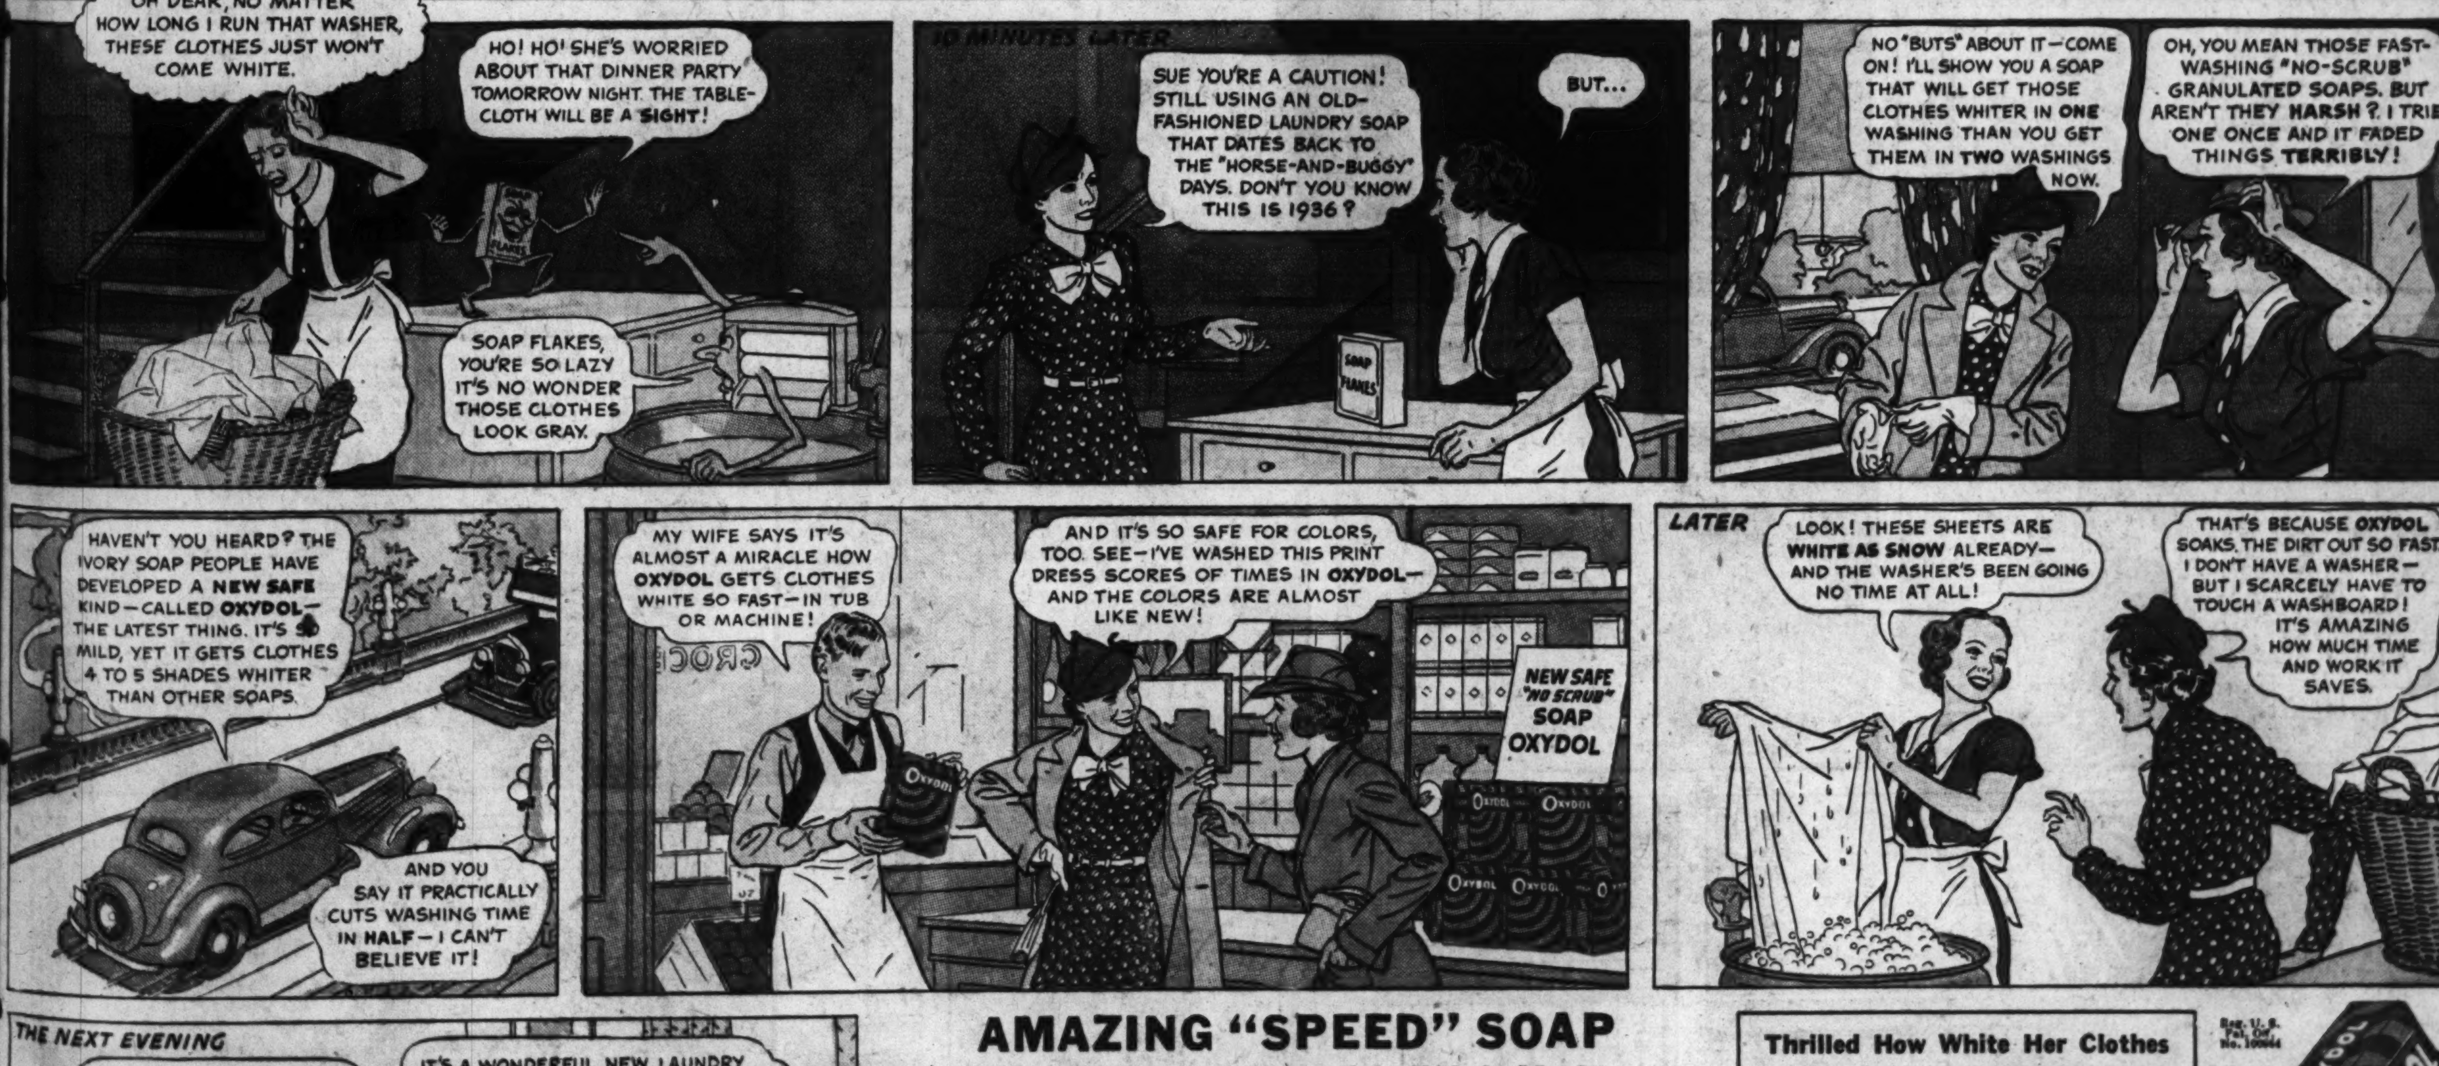
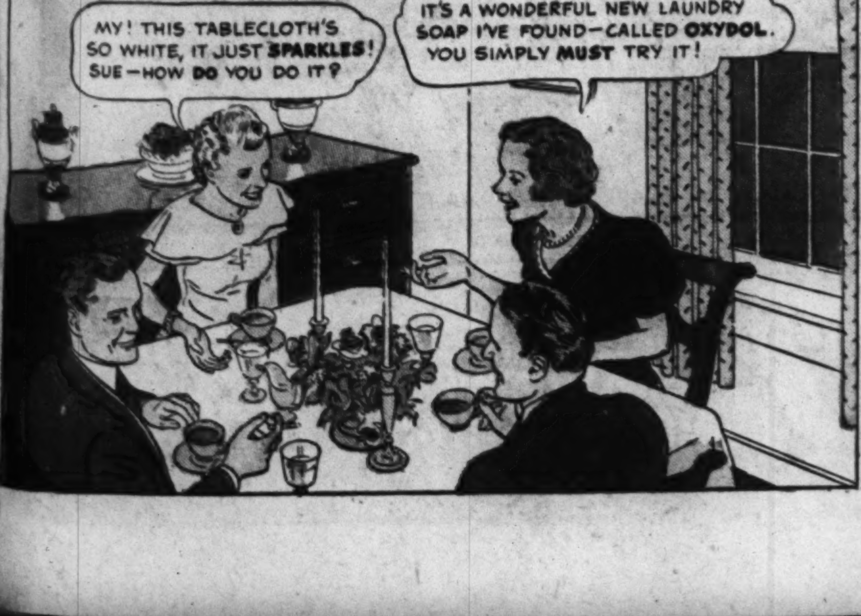
NO MORE "HORSE-AND-BUGGY-DAY" SOAPS FOR SUE



OH DEAR, NO MATTER HOW LONG I RUN THAT WASHER, THESE CLOTHES JUST WON'T COME WHITE.
HO! HO! SHE'S WORRIED ABOUT THAT DINNER PARTY TOMORROW NIGHT. THE TABLECLOTH WILL BE A SIGHT!
SOAP FLAKES, YOU'RE SO LAZY IT'S NO WONDER THOSE CLOTHES LOOK GRAY.
10 MINUTES LATER
SUE YOU'RE A CAUTION! STILL USING AN OLD-FASHIONED LAUNDRY SOAP THAT DATES BACK TO THE "HORSE-AND-BUGGY" DAYS. DON'T YOU KNOW THIS IS 1936?
BUT...
SOAP FLAKES
NO "BUTS" ABOUT IT—COME ON! I'LL SHOW YOU A SOAP THAT WILL GET THOSE CLOTHES WHITER IN ONE WASHING THAN YOU GET THEM IN TWO WASHINGS NOW.
OH, YOU MEAN THOSE FAST-WASHING "NO-SCRUB" GRANULATED SOAPS. BUT AREN'T THEY HARSH? I TRIED ONE ONCE AND IT FADED THINGS TERRIBLY!
HAVEN'T YOU HEARD? THE IVORY SOAP PEOPLE HAVE DEVELOPED A NEW SAFE KIND—CALLED OXYDOL—THE LATEST THING. IT'S SO MILD, YET IT GETS CLOTHES 4 TO 5 SHADES WHITER THAN OTHER SOAPS.
AND YOU SAY IT PRACTICALLY CUTS WASHING TIME IN HALF—I CAN'T BELIEVE IT!
MY WIFE SAYS IT'S ALMOST A MIRACLE HOW OXYDOL GETS CLOTHES WHITE SO FAST—IN TUB OR MACHINE!
AND IT'S SO SAFE FOR COLORS, TOO. SEE—I'VE WASHED THIS PRINT DRESS SCORES OF TIMES IN OXYDOL—AND THE COLORS ARE ALMOST LIKE NEW!
NEW SAFE "NO SCRUB" SOAP OXYDOL
OXYDOL
LATER
LOOK! THESE SHEETS ARE WHITE AS SNOW ALREADY—AND THE WASHER'S BEEN GOING NO TIME AT ALL!
THAT'S BECAUSE OXYDOL SOAKS THE DIRT OUT SO FAST. I DON'T HAVE A WASHER—BUT I SCARCELY HAVE TO TOUCH A WASHBOARD! IT'S AMAZING HOW MUCH TIME AND WORK IT SAVES.



THE NEXT EVENING
MY! THIS TABLECLOTH'S SO WHITE, IT JUST SPARKLES! SUE—HOW DO YOU DO IT?
IT'S A WONDERFUL NEW LAUNDRY SOAP I'VE FOUND—CALLED OXYDOL. YOU SIMPLY MUST TRY IT!

AMAZING "SPEED" SOAP

Cuts Washing Time 25% to 40% In Tub Or Machine—Washes White Clothes 4 to 5 Shades Whiter

Yet So Safe And Mild That Every Washable Color Comes Out Sparkling, Brilliant, Fresh

Yes! Get washes so white your friends will envy you! And save time, save money, too—with this new and amazing soap—OXYDOL!

Representing the latest scientific advancement in soap making, OXYDOL is as different from old-fashioned soaps as the horse and buggy from the modern automobile! A soap that gets clothes snowy white in record time, in tub or machine! Yet so safe and mild that every washable color stays sparkling, brilliant, fresh!

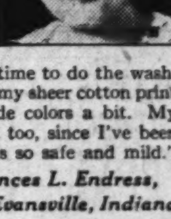
Combining speed and safety in a way no single soap has done before, OXYDOL does these 4 amazing things: (1) Soaks out dirt in 15 minutes—no scrubbing, no boiling—thus ends the back-breaking drudgery of tub washing. Even the grimiest spots come white with a gentle rub between the fingers. (2) Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine. (3) Gets white clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter than old-type soaps by scientific Tintometer tests. (4) So safe and mild that even sheer cotton prints, soaked through 100 consecutive washings, showed no perceptible sign of fading.

OXYDOL is economical, too. One package often does twice the work—gives twice the suds—lasts twice as long as less modern laundry soaps.

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. D9-1, Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio—and we'll see you get a regular-size package, absolutely free. Or to avoid delay—get OXYDOL tomorrow from your own dealer.

Thrilled How White Her Clothes Wash Now . . . With OXYDOL



"Actually, I never believed there could be such a difference in laundry soaps as between OXYDOL and the kind I was previously using. You're right—OXYDOL makes all those other soaps seem positively old-fashioned. My clothes wash so much whiter, and it takes only about half the time to do the wash. And I use OXYDOL even on my sheer cotton print dresses, and it doesn't fade colors a bit. My hands look years younger, too, since I've been using OXYDOL, because it's so safe and mild."

It's the last of the ninth . . . Carter's hitters have come to Red Light's aid . . . the score is All Stars, 5—Carter, 5 . . . Carter has two out and a man on third—
NEVER TOO LATE, BLUDGEON
ANY KIND OF A HIT WILL WIN THIS BALL GAME, KID!
STRIKE ONE!
YOU CERTAINLY LOOKED PITIFUL ON THAT ONE, BIG FELLA!
SOMETHING PHONEY ABOUT THAT PITCH!
YOU'RE RIGHT! IT'S A WONDER IT DIDN'T GO UP YOUR SLEEVE THE WAY YOU SWUNG!
Copyright, Register and Tribune Syndicate Great Britain Rights Reserved STRIKE TWO!
PULL UP A CHAIR AND TAKE A GOOD LOOK AT THE NEXT STRIKE, BLUDGEON!
LET'S SEE THAT BALL
IT'S A BASEBALL, BRANT—YOUR COLLEGE BOYS HAVE BEEN WONDERING WHAT IT WAS THROW IT OUT, UMPS—THAT PITCHER HAS BEEN ROUGHING IT UP TO MAKE HIS CURVES WIDER!
I OUGHT TO THROW THE PITCHER OUT, TOO—BUT IF YOU SAY SO, I'LL NOT—I'LL WATCH HIM THOUGH NO WONDER THE BALL CAME BOBBING UP THERE LIKE A CORK ON AN OCEAN!
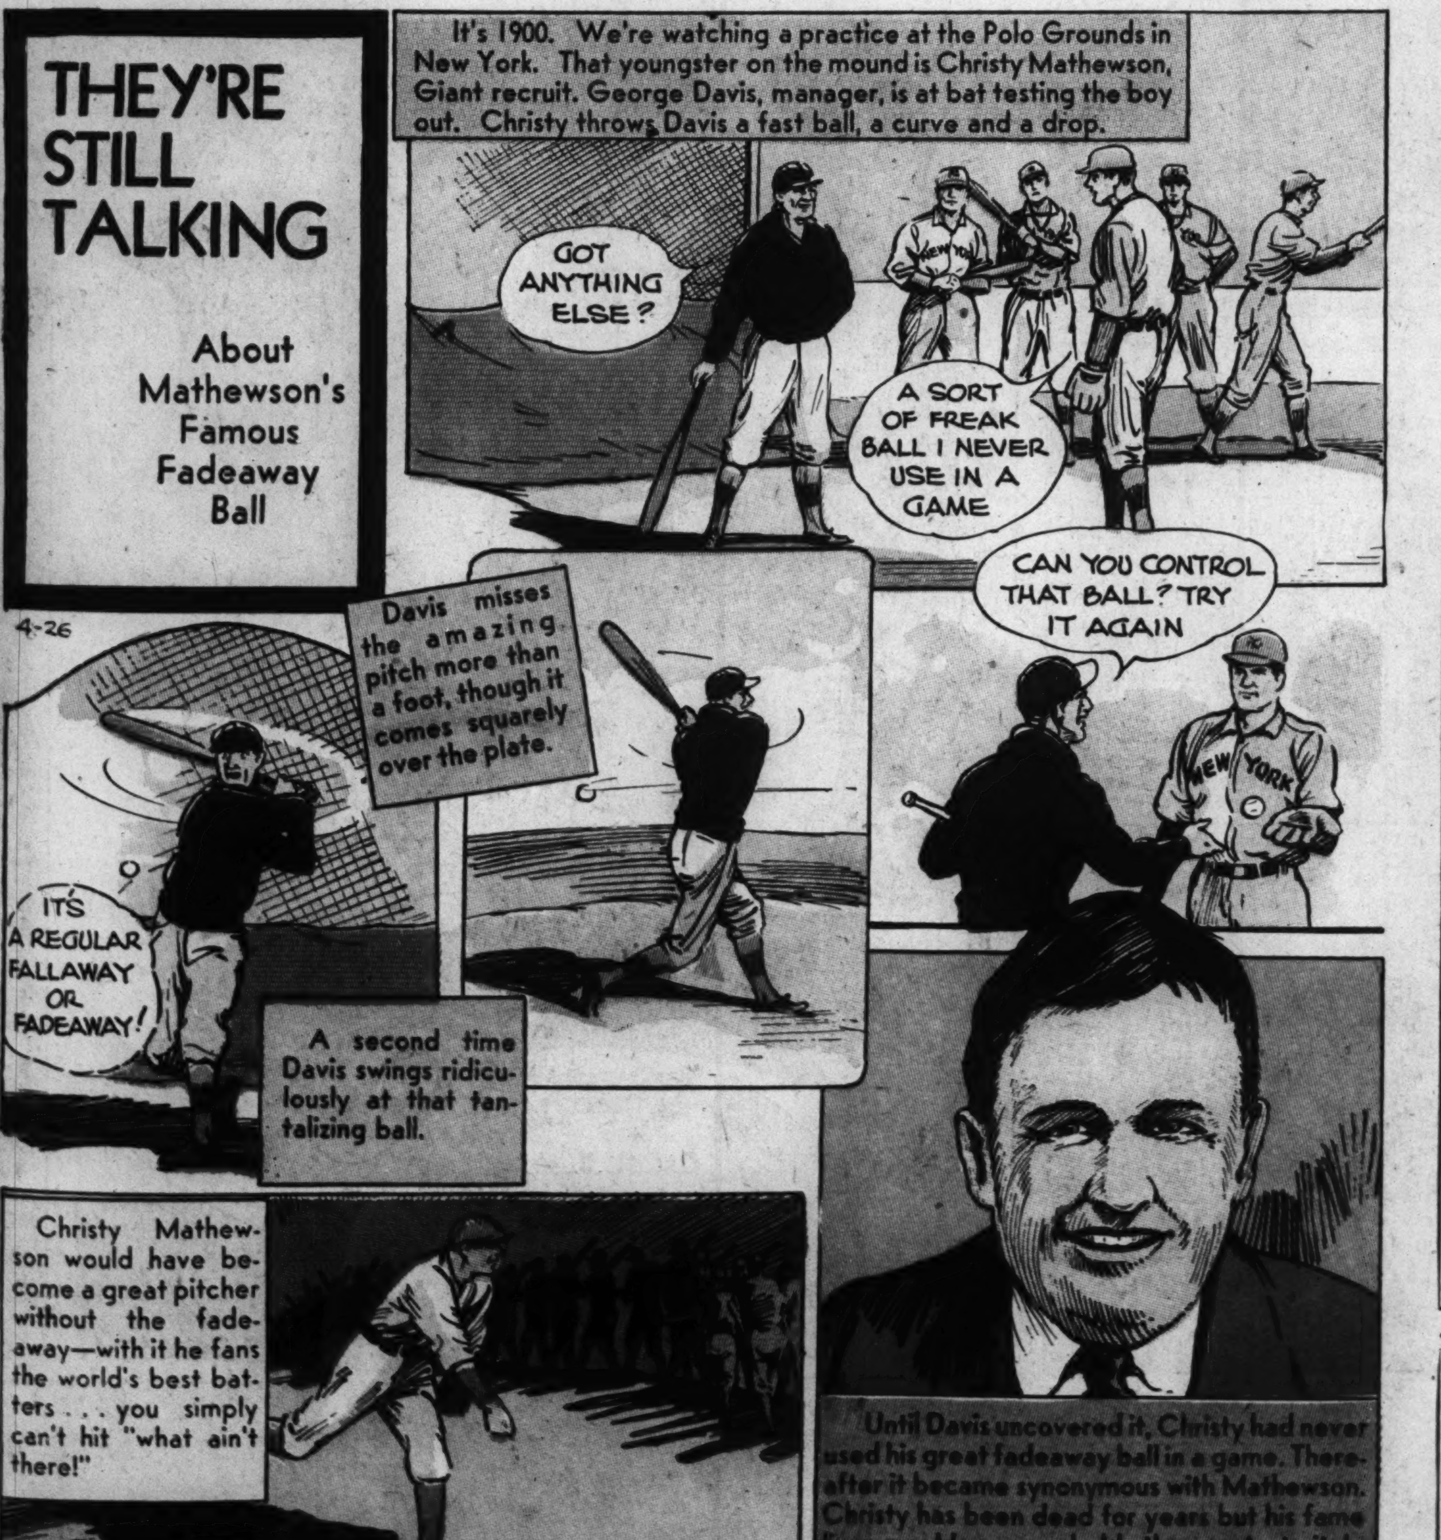
LISTEN—!
CARTER
LAY DOWN A BUNT- THE OUTFIELDERS ARE PLAYING DEEP AND THE INFIELDERS ARE BACK ON THE GRASS
I GET IT! THEY'RE EXPECTING ME TO LEAN ON THIS GOOD BALL!
OAKS WILL TEAR IN FROM THIRD ON THE PITCH!
A SQUEEZE PLAY IN THE LAST OF THE NINTH WITH TWO OUT IS A BIG GAMBLE, SHOTGUN!
The All Stars were caught napping when the heavy-hitting Bludgeon bunts. Bludgeon beats out the pitcher's snap throw. Oaks scores. Carter wins, 6 to 5!
SAFE!
B. W. DEPEW



THEY'RE STILL TALKING
About Mathewson's Famous Fadeaway Ball
It's 1900. We're watching a practice at the Polo Grounds in New York. That youngster on the mound is Christy Mathewson, Giant recruit. George Davis, manager, is at bat testing the boy out. Christy throws Davis a fast ball, a curve and a drop.
GOT ANYTHING ELSE?
A SORT OF FREAK BALL I NEVER USE IN A GAME
NEW YORK
CAN YOU CONTROL THAT BALL? TRY IT AGAIN
4-26
Davis misses the amazing pitch more than a foot, though it comes squarely over the plate.
IT'S A REGULAR FALLAWAY OR FADEAWAY!
A second time Davis swings ridiculously at that tantalizing ball.
NEW YORK
Christy Mathewson would have become a great pitcher without the fadeaway—with it he fans the world's best batters . . . you simply can't hit "what ain't there!"
Until Davis uncovered it, Christy had never used his great fadeaway ball in a game. Thereafter it became synonymous with Mathewson. Christy has been dead for years but his fame lives on. He was probably the greatest pitcher baseball has known.

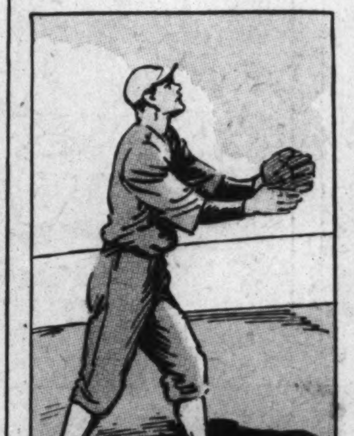
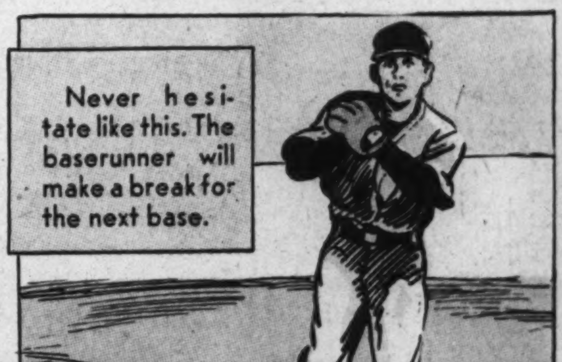
OUTFIELDING

Chief Qualifications Of an Outfielder:

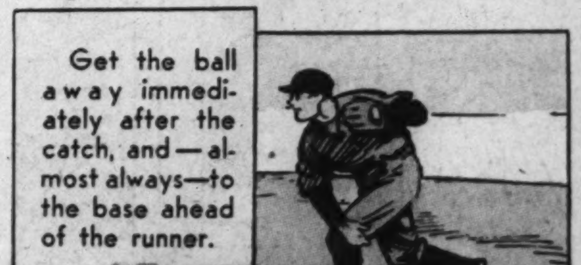
- Hitting
- Throwing
- Judgment of fly balls
- Ability to cover ground



This boy is balanced to get the throw away as soon as he catches the ball.



Never hesitate like this. The baserunner will make a break for the next base.



Get the ball away immediately after the catch, and—almost always—to the base ahead of the runner.

NEXT WEEK . . . . . More About Outfielding

FELS-NAPTHA

"W-h-o-o-o-o . . . tattle-tale gray!" That's one thing you'd never want your neighbors to say about your clothes.

And it's one thing they never can say—if you use Fels-Naptha Soap. For Fels-Naptha brings to your wash something no "trick" soap does. It brings you two dirt-looseners—richer, golden soap and lots of busy naptha! Together, they whisk out every bit of dirt. They get things so clean they're shining white!

Fels-Naptha is gentler, too. So mild you can use it for your loveliest undies and sheerest stockings. And it's kinder to hands because every golden bar holds soothing glycerine.

Get a supply of Fels-Naptha Soap at your grocer's today.

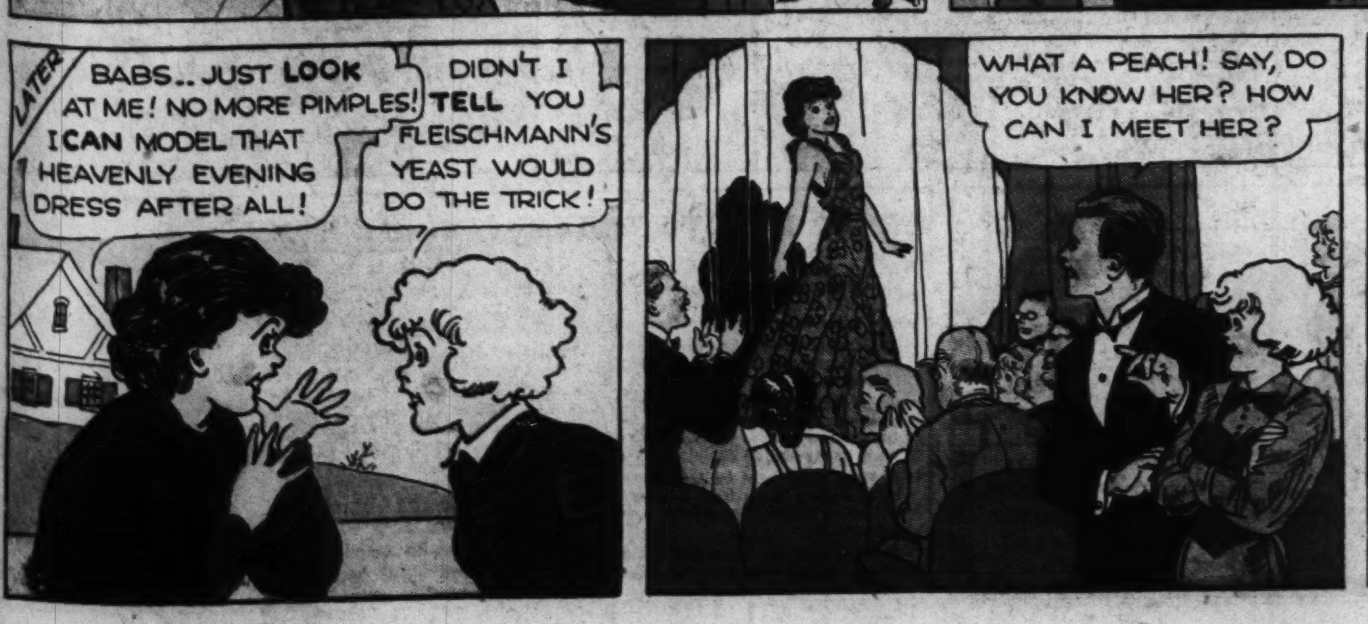
THAT'S FINE, KAY—YOU'VE GOT THE WALK DOWN PAT—BUT I DON'T LIKE THE DRESS ON YOU—SUPPOSE YOU TRY ONE OF THE SPORTS SUITS
HOW COME? WHY'S SHE MAKING YOU CHANGE?
SHE SAYS THE DRESS DOESN'T SUIT ME—WHAT SHE MEANS IS I'VE GOT TOO DARN MANY PIMPLES TO WEAR IT. OH, BABS, HOW CAN I GET RID OF THEM BEFORE THIS SHOW COMES OFF!?!
I KNOW EXACTLY WHAT YOU OUGHT TO DO—EAT FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST. HONESTLY, IT'S DEATH ON PIMPLES. I OUGHT TO KNOW—IT CLEARED UP MINE!
IT DID? I'LL START TONIGHT!



LATER
BABS.. JUST LOOK AT ME! NO MORE PIMPLES! I CAN MODEL THAT HEAVENLY EVENING DRESS AFTER ALL!
DIDN'T I TELL YOU FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST WOULD DO THE TRICK!
WHAT A PEACH! SAY, DO YOU KNOW HER? HOW CAN I MEET HER?

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES KEEP YOU FROM BEING ADMIRED

UNSIGHTLY skin blemishes are a big trial to many young people during the years that follow the beginning of adolescence—from about 13 to 25, or even longer.

Important glands develop at this time, and final growth takes place. Disturbances occur throughout the entire system. The skin, especially, gets very sensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin, and it breaks out in pimples.

But even severe cases of adolescent pimples can be corrected. Fleischmann's Yeast clears these skin irritants out of the blood. Then, the pimples go!

Eat three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast regularly each day, one cake about ½ hour before each meal. Eat it plain, or dissolved in a little water, until your skin is entirely clear. Start today.

THERE'S JUST ONE THING WRONG WITH YOU, PEG—YOU'RE TOO POPULAR!
COME ON, PEG!
BEAT YOU OUT TO THE RAFT, PEG!
BUT THEY RUSH THE LITTLE RED-HEAD SO ON THE BEACH!
WHY, THAT'S ME!
YES, BUT YOU CAN'T REALLY BLAME THEM FOR NOT DANCING WITH HER. THE GIRL'S BREATH—WELL, SHE SHOULD SEE A DENTIST!
MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM IMPROPERLY CLEANED TEETH—FROM FOOD DEPOSITS LODGED IN HIDDEN CREVICES. I ADVISE COLGATE DENTAL CREAM BECAUSE ITS SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM THOROUGHLY CLEANS EVERY TOOTH!
THEN I'LL GET COLGATE'S THIS MORNING, DOCTOR!
YOU KNOW IT'S NOT JUST A SUMMER ROMANCE! YOU KNOW IT'S THE REAL THING, DON'T YOU, PEG?
YES...I DO!
BUT IT WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN—WITHOUT COLGATE'S!
NO OTHER TOOTHPASTE EVER MADE MY TEETH SO BRIGHT AND CLEAN!
COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM
20¢ LARGE SIZE
Giant Size, over twice as much, 35¢
Now—NO BAD BREATH behind her SPARKLING SMILE!

MOST BAD BREATH BEGINS WITH THE TEETH!

You seldom suspect bad breath—in yourself. Even less, perhaps, do you suspect its most common cause . . . improperly cleaned teeth!

Yet authorities say decaying food deposits, in hidden crevices between the teeth, are the most common source of this social handicap—and much tooth decay.

Play safe! Make sure your teeth are free from hidden food particles that ordinary cleaning methods fail to remove.

Use Colgate Dental Cream. Its special penetrating foam cleans every hidden crevice—washes away food and acid deposits. And a soft, grit-free ingredient safelv polishes enamel.

So brush your teeth, gums, tongue with Colgate's at least twice daily. If you are not entirely satisfied, send the empty tube to COLGATE, Jersey City, N. J. We'll refund TWICE what you paid.
